President dangles July tax cut, if ...

By EILEEN SHANAHAN
WASHINGTON — President Ford plans to use his State of the Union message to tell the American people that they can have a tax cut of $10 billion, starting July 1, if Congress will hold government spending for the coming fiscal year to the $395 billion level.

In that message, scheduled for the evening of Jan. 20, Ford will be reopening the debate on the issue of taxes and spending, which he sees as one of his strongest for the forthcoming election campaign.

EXCLUSIVE
N.Y. TIMES SERVICE

The tax cut Ford will recommend would, if enacted, reduce withholding taxes by $2 to $4 a week for most families with incomes between $7,500 and $20,000 and give smaller cuts for those above and below these incomes. A heavy majority of the electorate has incomes in the $7,500-to-$20,000 range.

Ford's tax-cut proposal will include an increase in the personal exemption from $750 to $1,000 and some reductions in tax rates for individuals and corporations.

An increase in the personal exemption is particularly popular with the voters. Many members of Congress report there is no issue on which they regularly receive more mail, year after year.

The tax-cut proposal that Ford will announce will repeat in most, and possibly all, respects the program he originally proposed last October. He then asked Congress to enact $28 billion in tax reductions, effective Jan. 1, 1976, and a matching $28 billion in spending cuts that would not have started going into effect until Oct. 1, 1976.

Instead, Congress approved a stopgap tax bill, continuing the 1975 withholding tax rates for the first six months of 1976 and refused to make a commitment on spending reductions until it had seen the details of Ford's budget for the fiscal year 1977, which begins Oct. 1. The 1977 budget will go to Congress Jan. 21.

As the administration calculates things (it compared the 1976 tax rates with those in effect in 1974, not those in effect for 1975), the stopgap tax bill involved a tax reduction that would amount to $18 billion if continued in effect for a whole year. Thus, according to Ford's philosophy, there is room for an additional $10-billion tax cut, provided Congress agrees to his goal of slowing the growth of government spending by imposing a spending ceiling of $395 billion for the fiscal year 1977.

There appears to be no prospect that Congress will agree to any such ceiling, which would require substantial cutbacks in many major governmental programs.

Budget and tax experts in Congress, including some key Republicans, are, however, prepared to argue that it would be sound economic and budgetary policy to give $1 of tax reductions for every $1 by which Congress holds the total of spending in the

Detente defended by Ford

By BERNARD GWERTZMAN

WASHINGTON — President Ford said Saturday that he would not abandon his support for detente with the Soviets, adding that any presidential candidate who urges such a change in policy "will be the loser in the long run."

In an interview taped by the National Broadcasting Co. and made public by the White House, Ford said again that the large-scale Soviet military involvement in Angola was "inconsistent with the aims and objectives of detente."

He added cryptically, however, that "we are making some headway" with Moscow toward an end to foreign involvement in Angola, "but I can't say categorically that

Police chief 'regretful' L.B. man slain giving up

By MIKE JELF
Staff Writer

Long Beach Police Chief Ralph G. Kortz said Saturday that Gene Lowe, one of two brothers killed New Year's Day after a policeman was slain in an apparent ambush at their Long Beach home, was shot by a police sharpshooter who didn't realize the victim was surrendering.

The chief said the officer who fired the fatal shot was at the opposite end of a wall from the officers to whom Gene Lowe was surrendering and couldn't see the other officers.

Kortz said that, while he was "extremely regretful it happened," the officer who fired the fatal shot was "not going to be suspended. There's no reason to."

Lowe was in a crouching position when Special Training and Rescue (STAR) team member J.S. Harmon fired the shot from a distance of about 100 feet, Kortz said. According to the description of events given by the chief, Lowe would have been facing away from Harmon when the shot was fired.

Harmon apparently couldn't see Lowe's hands, which were raised only to shoulder level, and thought the victim was trying to jump the fence to escape, the chief said.

The chief said a police investigation indicated the tragedy was the result of a "setup or ambush by a mentally disturbed person."

Kennedy Lowe, Gene's older brother who was also slain in the shootout, "somewhere...got the idea that everyone was out to get him," Kortz said.

At an afternoon press conference in his office at the Public Safety Building, the chief made these disclosures:

—As far as was known Saturday from the "not yet finished" investigation, Gene Lowe, 28, took no part in the ambush or shootout.

—Officer Gary Elkins, 34, was the victim of what police believe to be an ambush rigged by Kennedy Lowe, 33.

—Elkins and his partner, Officer S.W. Housden, arrived at the Lowe house at 2816 Easy Ave. after four telephone calls to the police station reporting a prowler. The first call came from a boy, the next three from a man.

The calls were made at 2, 5:12, 5:19 and 5:27 a.m. Elkins and Housden arrived about 5:45 a.m. In the last call the man talking said he was a Long Beach police officer named Lowe and that he needed assistance.

Kennedy Lowe, according to investigators, had talked to a police detective the day before the shootout, the chief said, and seemed to fear that some persons, possibly policemen and possibly Black Muslims, were after him.

Two years earlier Kennedy was seriously wounded in a shotgun attack that killed a companion as they sat in a station wagon in the driveway of the Lowe home.

After Thursday morning's shootout, police found several rounds of shotgun ammunition "carefully laid out" near the front door and beside a kitchen window of the house, the chief said.

Kennedy Lowe's body was found inside the house near the front door, and a shotgun lay near his body.

"It was later found that five rounds of shotgun ammunition were fired by Kennedy Lowe, one a round of shot and four deer slug rounds, all of which were found to have struck Elkins," Kortz added.

Kortz's statement gave this account of how Gene Lowe died:

Federal welfare takeover urged

By RONALD SULLIVAN
New York Times Service

TRENTON, N.J. — Contending that the national welfare system is "out of control," the governors of four major states have called on President Ford to espouse a federal takeover of state and local welfare programs.

"The current patchwork of federal, state and local welfare programs is not working," the governors said in a joint telegram sent to the President. "It is time for a fundamental reordering of our approach to income maintenance; mere tinkering with existing programs is not enough."

The telegram was signed by Govs. Brendan T. Byrne of New Jersey, Hugh L. Carey of New York, Milton J. Shapp of Pennsylvania and Patrick J. Lucey of Wisconsin, all of them Democrats.

Last month, Lewis B. Kaden, Byrne's chief counsel, conferred with White House officials on the prospects of a White House initiative toward a federal welfare takeover. Soon afterward, Byrne solicited the support of governors from other big urban states in attempting to exert further pressure on the Ford administration. Friday's telegram represented one measure of Byrne's success.

Asking for a White House meeting to discuss welfare reform, the four governors proposed the following:

—Consolidation of existing federal programs for the poor into a "single, federally financed cash system providing a floor to the income available to every family." The proposal would consolidate the federal food stamp program, the Supplemental Security Income program for the aged and disabled, and the principal federal welfare program, Aid to Families with Dependent Children.

—A federal welfare program that would provide equality to divided or fatherless families as well as to united ones.

—The preservation of work incentives and a "fair level of assistance to the poor." According to New Jersey officials who helped draft the proposals, a minimum income of about $4,000 a year would be guaranteed to a family of four.

—A uniform and easily understood benefit-reduction schedule, gradually reaching a "zero point of no benefits and no income taxation" when actual family income reached about $7,500 a year.

—Retention of state responsibility for a number of social services for the poor and the elderly, elimination of a means test for the elderly and institutions of a "reasonable," federally funded, cost-of-living increase.

Although the four governors did not say what a federal takeover of welfare programs would cost, New Jersey officials estimated that it would total from $5 billion to $7 billion a year for the federal government. At the same time, they estimated, the elimination of duplication, red tape and fraud would save the states more than the additional federal expenditure.

In seeking the President's support, the governors acknowledged that their proposal was "neither simple in concept nor easy to implement." In an effort to eliminate the fraud and ineffectuality that has marked welfare programs at every level, the governors suggested that the program might well be better administered outside the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

While the governors made no specific recommendation on what agency should handle a federal program, New Jersey officials here said that the federal Internal Revenue Service might be the best administrative vehicle, recognizing, as the governors said, "The problems of stigma associated with traditional welfare programs and the need for fraud prevention."

"The harm done by the existing system has been well documented," the governors said. "It tolerates unacceptable variations between different parts of the country which cannot be explained by regional differences in the cost of living."

"It encourages family instability and disintegration. It does too little to help the working poor while it permits excessive levels of ineffectuality and fraud. It is unworkable for the family in need and is fast

Kennick won't seek reelection to Senate

By BOB HOUSER
Political Editor

State Sen. Joseph M. Kennick, D-Long Beach, an 18-year-veteran of the Legislature, announced Saturday that he would not be a candidate for reelection.

Kennick, 70, gave no specific reasons for his decision other than his feeling that the district "would best be served by a new person."

The announcement, about a month before the Feb. 2 opening of filing for legislative offices, erases the prospect of a battle royal between Kennick and State Sen. George Deukmejian, R-Long Beach, in the Long Beach area's reapportioned 31st Senate District.

They shared city representation in their old 33rd and 37th Senate districts, respectively. Reapportionment put them in the same district, which includes all of Long Beach plus Lakewood, Carson, Signal Hill and Hawaiian Gardens.

Kennick underwent major surgery last May for a blood clot in a neck vein, but quickly returned to his legislative post. He has maintained an active schedule since and last month helped chair a Senate committee hearing in Long Beach.

He said Saturday that his decision to retire at the end of 1976 "is both a source of sadness and satisfaction. I will deeply miss working

$2,000 reward in killing of officer

Long Beach police Officer Franke Neal Lewis had parked his car in his driveway after finishing a duty shift at 2:50 a.m. on Dec. 14 when he apparently saw or heard a disturbance nearby and went to investigate.

His wife, inside their home, heard a gunshot and looked out the window to see her husband's car in the driveway and his body lying in the street down the block.

Investigators found that the 28-year-old officer had been killed by one gunshot wound in the head. Detectives said Lewis apparently had been trying to aid a man who was being beaten in his car.

A police dragnet was spread for a suspect whose identity was revealed by a tipster. This suspect surrendered after learning of the widespread search, but was released after detectives determined he was not involved in the shooting — and police now are without a suspect.

Secret Witness will pay $2,000 for information leading to the arrest and murder conviction of the slayer of Officer Franke Neal Lewis.

If you have such information, call Secret Witness at 436-2528 between 8 a.m. and midnight on weekdays, or from 3 p.m. to 11 p.m. on Saturdays and Sundays. Or write to Secret Witness, P.O. Box 67, Long Beach, Calif. 90801.

U.S. REPS. Martha Keys of Kansas and Andrew Jacobs Jr. of Indiana, both Democrats, pose after their wedding in Topeka, Kan., Saturday.

Keys, Jacobs make history, matrimonially

Combined News Services

U.S. Reps. Martha Keys of Kansas and Andrew Jacobs Jr. of Indiana were married in Topeka, Kan., Saturday, becoming the first sitting members of Congress to wed each other.

"I am the happiest woman in the world today," the bride said after the mid-afternoon ceremony. She said she will retain her last name and would prefer to be called Representative Keys. The bridegroom said the personal significance of the event was more important than its historical or political significance.

Both Jacobs, 43, and Rep. Keys, 45, are Democrats and both have announced they plan to seek reelection this year. It is the second marriage for each.

The wedding was performed by the Rev. Jack Bremer, pastor of University United Methodist Church, at the home of the bride's Topeka administrative assistant, James Buchele. After the ceremony, the newlyweds attended a private reception and appeared briefly before photographers.

The couple planned to then fly to Indianapolis today to visit Jacobs' friends and relatives. They said they would honeymoon in "some warm country," but declined to reveal their destination. Rep. Keys said she and her husband would return to Washington before Congress resumes session on Jan. 19.

She was elected to Congress in 1974. Jacobs served four terms in the House between 1965 and 1973 and ran successfully again in 1974.

Room at top for abuse

"It's good to be back home," Joe Strezishar said Saturday after completing a 34-day stay in a tree house atop a flag pole in Morton Grove, Ill.

Strezishar, 23, who collected more than $7,750 for muscular dystrophy research, was greeted by Illinois Gov. Daniel Walker as he climbed down from the shack over the parking lot of a discotheque where he works as a bouncer.

"All I could think about was my girlfriend," the Des Plaines resident said. "You know we're engaged — and the cold. Boy, was it ever cold the last two days."

With temperatures near zero and winds of more than 20 miles an hour, Strezishar's two space heaters were not enough in the final hours. Otherwise, he was well equipped. Before making his descent at 3:45 p.m., he used a rope to lower his furniture: a television, stereo and portable toilet.

He also had a telephone in the shack and endured occasional crank calls. He also suffered from snowball attacks and had a black eye after being hit with a rock. "An experience like this can change your whole outlook on things," Strezishar said. "You find out who your friends really are."

Belated thanks

Three-year-old Stephen Sheldon gave his pediatrician's nurse a handkerchief for Christmas and the boy received a thank you note in return on New Year's Eve — 17 years after it was mailed.

Sheldon, now 20 and a student at Duke University in Durham, N.C., received the yellowed envelope Dec. 31, 1975, at his parent's home in Cincinnati, Ohio.

The letter, mailed Dec. 30, 1958, was addressed to "Master Stephen Sheldon," by Mrs. Linda Charley Moore. Mrs. Moore has long since left the doctor's office and works at a Cincinnati hospital.

The envelope, according to letter carrier Thomas Rottinghaus, had been found in an old mail sack at the U.S. Post Office. It was stamped "Found in Supposedly Empty Equipment."

"I couldn't believe it," said Rottinghaus, who hand delivered the letter. "I told Stephen, 'It's not my fault. I haven't been with this outfit that long.'"

"I'm going to contact her and let her know I got the thank you note," said Sheldon, "a little belatedly."

That's progress!

Forty years ago, it took T.D. Smith's uncle one day to carry the mail in a Model T the 30 miles between West Plains, Mo., and Viola, Ark., including intermediate stops.

Today, a letter mailed between the two Ozark Mountain communities travels nearly 460 miles.

"We went from Model T days to airplane days, and now we're going backward," Smith said. "I think there are more people or machines handling the mail today and it's costing us more money."

First-class mail usually is still delivered the same day, "but how many people handle it before it gets to me?" said Smith, a 44-year-old retired Army officer who operates a combination service station and grocery in Viola, a community of 200. "This is the biggest duplication of effort I've seen."

A first-class letter posted for Viola first is trucked to Springfield, Mo., a distance of about 110 miles. There, it is put on an airplane and flown to Little Rock, 200 more miles. Then, after processing, it is trucked another 100 miles to Batesville. Batesville is about 50 miles from Viola. Eventually, it is worked to Viola.

The reason for the circuitous route, says the U.S. Postal Service, which last week got a rate hike because it said it was losing $7 million a day, is to concentrate mail volumes so more mail can be worked by machinery.

"We used to have only two post offices handle it — one on each end," Smith said.

'Singing Sam'

Singer Irving Kaufman, a pioneer radio and recording artist, died Saturday of heart complications at Indio Community Hospital. He was 85.

Kaufman first recorded for Thomas Edison, inventor of the phonograph, in 1912. Since then he had made more than 6,000 recordings, said Henry Tobias, a cousin and family spokesman.

Kaufman made many of his recordings under the names of "Singing Sam, the Singing Man" and "Lazy Dan, the Minstrel Man," among others. He recorded with such notables as Bing Crosby and his Rhythm Boys and Tommy and Jimmy Dorsey. Kaufman's "I'm Nuts About the Good Old U.S.A.," which he wrote and recorded, was one of his biggest hits.

Ecumenical

When deputies gave Paul Covey an opportunity to make one telephone call from the Akron, Ohio, jail after his arrest Saturday on a charge of reckless driving, Covey dialed the person he thought might be in the best position to help him — the Pope.

Deputies said Covey, 21, dialed several numbers unsuccessfully and then made a connection. He had been talking for five to eight minutes when a deputy picked up an extension and discovered that Covey was talking with a secretary at the Vatican.

Covey never got to speak with the Pope, but he will get the phone bill. Deputies said they advised the overseas operator to charge the call to Covey's home.

Weekend rates from Akron to the Vatican are $5.10 plus tax for the first three minutes and $1.70 plus tax for each minute thereafter.

Menninger 'fair'

Dr. Karl Menninger, psychiatrist and cofounder of the Menninger Foundation, underwent surgery at St. Mary's Hospital in Rochester, Minn., Saturday for removal of a tumor on the back of his head.

A spokesman for the foundation in Topeka, Kan., said the 82-year-old Menninger was in fair condition Saturday night, improved from the critical state in which he was described before surgery.

Menninger, chairman of the Menninger Foundation's board of trustees, co-founded the Menninger Clinic and the foundation more than 50 years ago with his father and brother.

Fink Olympics

The nine folks in Fink, Tex., are planning to stage the Fink Olympics during the annual National Fink Week, June 20-26. Mayor Patricia Albright says the North Texas community is trying to attract a different type of athlete than the real Olympics.

"Anyone who wants to take a crack at breaking a Guinness World Record is welcome to compete," the mayor said. "I see no reason why we can't have competitors in such events as baby carriage pushing, brick carrying, hand clapping, hoop rolling, house of cards building, rocking, see-sawing, shoe shining, skipping and others."

Mayor Albright said she is in training to enter the standing-on-one-foot contest. The record is five-plus hours.

'Mazeltov' on record

In an auditorium packed with enthusiastic church members, friends and visitors at the Birmingham, Mich., Unitarian Church, the Rev. Robert Marshall set a new world's record for nonstop preaching Saturday.

Marshall, who started his sermon at 12:01 a.m. New Year's Day, wound up the 60-hour, 31-minute marathon at 12:32 p.m., minutes after one of the congregation serving as timer called out, "You've made it, Bob."

The 55-year-old minister had topped by six minutes the world record set 18 months ago by an Irish Unitarian minister.

When the timer announced the new record, the congregation cheered. Marshall removed his glasses, wiped tears from his eyes and, when the tumult died down, raised his arms over his head and called out, "Mazeltov. Let that be the final word."

"Mazeltov" is a Yiddish term of congratulations that means literally "good luck."

$1-million painting recovered

BOSTON (AP) — Months of negotiations and investigation by law officers have led to recovery of a stolen Rembrandt masterpiece — a portrait believed to be of his sister. It was damaged slightly.

"There are no deals being made," U.S. Atty. James Gabriel said Saturday. "No money has been involved in this transaction whatsoever."

The 343-year-old oval portrait of a sober-faced, curly-haired Dutch woman, valued at more than $1 million, was wrapped in a threadbare old brown quilt when recovered at a secret meeting Friday night with an unidentified man in a restaurant parking lot.

"I THINK all the art world will be elated," said Jan Fontein, acting director of the Museum of Fine Arts, where the painting was stolen last April 14.

He said there appeared to be only slight damage to the 24-by-18-inch painting — two or three rubs or scrapes from the upper right to the lower left. The frame was damaged extensively.

The portrait, entitled "Elsbeth van Rijn," was painted when Rembrandt was 26, living in Amsterdam and beginning to gain prominence for his unusual use of light and mood.

Public Safety Commissioner John Kehoe said recovery of the portrait will not end the case.

"The investigation is continuing in an effort to identify, apprehend and prosecute the men who entered the Museum of Fine Arts and stole this painting," he said.

No stone left unturned by genealogists

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — OK, folks, you've shelled out upwards of $5 for your Pet Rock, and he or she is home safe in a vented, straw-lined box.

But who is the little critter? What's its background? Who were the parents? Were they the "right kind" of rocks?

For $1, the Oregon Department of Geology and Mineral Industry will tell you all this, and more. They'll prepare a genealogy.

Tens of thousands of the pet rocks have been purchased recently. Ralph Mason, deputy state geologist, says without the genealogy, the pet rocks are only faceless pebbles.

If you take your rock to the department in the State Office Building here, a state geologist will tell you the history and origin of the little fellow. Sandstone turned to quartzite, ocean ooze changed to slate, or morsel of a lava flow from millions of years ago.

"With a genealogy," Mason said, "a pet rock becomes a part of the story of the restless Earth."

Father of dead boy pleads

'Please, no more letters'

DECATUR, Ill. (AP) — A bereaved father made a nationwide plea Saturday: "Please don't send any more get-well letters. My son has been dead for seven months."

"My wife and I just can't take it any longer. We are being torn up. I've got to let all of my son's letter friends know that he died last June," said Charles Ryan.

The son, Mark, 13, fought cancer for five years. A story of his crippling plight appeared in a national weekly publication last May. The article said Mark would like to receive letters and the family's address was given.

"A week later Mark passed away," said Ryan. "In that time we received 6,400 letters, including a personal one from Sen. Edward Kennedy whose son's cancerous leg was amputated. Since Mark died, we have received 6,000 more pieces of mail. We are getting about 40 letters a week now."

Ryan said he screens the mail and tries to answer as many letters as possible.

"Mark has letter friends all over the country and many in Canada," said Ryan, who has three older children living at home. "I try to answer as many letters as I can to let people know that Mark is dead."

Ryan said about 200 packages also have been received containing games, reading material and religious matter.

"We received 24 Bibles, $300 in cash and even a coin collection," said Ryan who works for the Decatur Public Library. "We got a dozen boxes of gifts that I am going to take to St. Jude's Children's Hospital in Memphis."

Mark was stricken with bone cancer when his father was stationed at Fort Hood, Tex., and was treated at the Scott and White Clinic in Temple, Tex.

"It started to spread to his lungs," said the father. "I retired from the Army and we went to Tucson

Chile denies allegations of torture

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP) — The military government on Saturday denied allegations by British Dr. Sheila Cassidy that she was tortured by Chilean authorities.

Dr. Cassidy, 38, was arrested Nov. 1 on charges of treating a wounded leftist guerrilla. After being jailed for two months, she was flown to London Tuesday and told newsmen she was stripped naked and tortured during her imprisonment.

"The government decisively rejects that Sheila Cassidy has been the object of tortures, not only because of the inopportune timing of the accusation made by her on arrival in England, but also because of the moral cowardice constituted by the fact that she had not made any complaint, be it through English diplomatic agents, be it through the competent tribunals," the Chilean Interior Ministry said.

It said Miss Cassidy had opportunities while she was detained in Chile to make official complaints of torture through the court system or the British Embassy.

It was with "surprise and displeasure" that the Chilean government learned of her accusations after she arrived in London last Tuesday, the ministry said.

It also rejected the validity of the argument that no official complaint of torture was made while Miss Cassidy was still detained "in order not to hamper her departure from the country."

The ministry did not respond to the Britain's request for an investigation of the torture allegations, nor was there any reference to Britain's decision to recall its ambassador in Santiago.

Emergencies said 'normal' at hospitals

By KRIS SHERMAN
Staff Writer

County hospital emergency-room employees geared up Saturday for a barrage of patients left doctorless by the physicians' slowdown in protest of rising malpractice insurance premiums.

But as the protest neared the end of its third day, officials at four large public hospitals said their emergency rooms were "not much busier than normal, especially considering the holiday weekend."

Officials of two of the hospitals, UCLA Medical Center and County-USC Medical Center, reported late Friday that they were "swamped" with patients seeking emergency treatment.

They added, though, there was really no way to determine how many of the patients were using the public facilities because their own doctors refused to treat them.

"We're usually busy on a holiday weekend, and I'm not sure you could say this one has been any different," said a nursing supervisor at UCLA.

SHE ADDED that the emergency staff treated 205 patients Friday, compared with a normal average of 150 over a 24-hour period. The staff treated about 135 persons from midnight Friday to 6 p.m. Saturday, the supervisor said.

A supervisor at County-USC, meanwhile, said the number of emergency cases there was running "only slightly above normal." Supervisors at Harbor General Hospital in Torrance and Martin Luther King Jr. Hospital in Los Angeles said their emergency rooms were handling "about the normal number of patients."

Earlier Saturday, doctors and state officials emerged from a marathon meeting at Brotman Memorial Hospital in Culver City with little to report.

Dr. Daniel Lang, medical director at the facility, called the 10-hour meeting "a meaningful exploration of the issues." Other doctors refused comment on the meeting.

THE CONFERENCE between Deputy Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare Robert Gnaizda and several leaders of the doctors' slowdown focused on a state proposal to operate a doctor-funded insurance pool.

Dr. Sanford Marcus, president of the Union of American Physicians in California, warned his colleagues not to be confused about rumors of an impending solution to the insurance crisis.

He said any agreement reached by Gov. Edmund G. Brown's representatives and doctors' groups would require legislative action "that could take months to achieve."

Marcus also said the union would not sign any agreement with state officials until it is submitted for written ratification by all of the state's doctors.

"We will no longer let self-appointed spokesmen deal for us," he said. "The doctors of California must now have a direct voice in approving any decisions in their name."

Stress on detection, treatment and post-hospital care Intestinal-cancer clinic set

By BEN ZINSER
Medical-Science Editor

A weekly outpatient clinic for persons with colostomies, ileostomies or urinary diversions will open Jan. 14 at Long Beach Community Hospital to serve those who need post-hospital care.

The new service, to be known as the stoma rehabilitation clinic, will be sponsored by the hospital and the Long Beach-Harbor-Southeast Unit of the American Cancer Society.

The term stoma refers to a surgical construction of an artificial opening to the bowel or bladder.

Colo-rectal cancer, the most common internal cancer, is the primary cause for most colostomies.

Stomas also may be required because of ulcerative colitis, congenital defects or incontinence.

Authorities with the American Cancer Society estimate that as many as 86,000 new stomas are created annually in the United States, with 7,500 of that number in California.

THE STOMA clinic will be conducted by a hospital-based enterostomal therapist.

The stoma service will be only clinic for such patients in the Greater Long Beach area.

It is one in a series of cancer detection and treatment programs developed over the past three years by Community Hospital at a cost of nearly $2 million.

Appointments will be accepted starting Monday for the Wednesday clinic. Fees will range from $15 to $25. Most major medical insurance will pay at least a percentage of the fee.

Patients may be referred by their private physician or by community agencies such as the American Cancer Society.

Rhoda Spoungle, R.N., the clinic's enterostomal therapist, has more than 12 years of experience in the field, all in the Long Beach area. She was formerly in private practice and made between 80 and 100 patient calls monthly. She is one of only 500 enterostomal therapists in the United States, Canada and Australia, and is the first registered nurse to practice enterostomal care in California.

MRS. SPOUNGLE is a member of the board of directors of the International Association of Enterostomal Therapists and also serves on the board of directors of the local unit of the American Cancer Society.

In addition to her clinic duties, she will provide counseling and instruction for all of Community Hospital's stoma inpatients and their families. She will also be available for telephone consultations at no charge to patients in the hospital of the clinic. Home visits may be scheduled for patients unable to come to the clinic.

Currently Mrs. Spoungle is conducting training programs for Community Hospital's nursing staff regarding the care of stoma patients. She will update nurses and physicians from time to time on innovations in stoma care and on new prostheses as they become available.

DISCUSSING her role, she says:

"My goal is to provide continuity of care. . . I also try to help the patient accept the social and emotional implications of the surgery."

"We discuss their life prognosis and any sexual problems. In many cases these patients don't have anyone else they feel free to talk to about their fears."

"I want to eliminate their feelings of being dropped at the hospital door after their acute care is completed."

The clinic is also open to outpatients who experience problems with fistulas (abnormal ducts or passages from hollow parts of the body to the surface or other hollow organs); surgical wound openings and drainage; skin ulcerations, and bowel problems following any type of surgery.

EXAMPLES of surgically created stomas include:

Ileostomy: An artificial opening of the small intestine on the abdominal wall.

Colostomy: An artificial opening of the large intestine on the abdominal wall.

Funding for the stoma clinic will be based on declining payments by the American Cancer Society with assumption of complete fiscal responsibility by Community Hospital at the end of two years.

The cancer society also will provide patient literature for the clinic and transportation when needed.

The Ostomy Association of Long Beach has unanimously endorsed establishment of the stoma clinic.

Area bloodmobile visits scheduled

President Ford has proclaimed January as National Blood Donor Month to honor those who donate blood for public benefit.

The President noted in a proclamation that, "In this first month of our Bicentennial year, it is most appropriate that we dedicate ourselves to the achievement of an all-volunteer supply of blood to meet the nation's needs."

Locally, according to William C. Barnes, Red Cross Blood Program chairman, the Greater Long Beach Red Cross is seeking to provide the total supply of blood needs for 29 area hospitals for 1976.

The first will be at Latter Day Saints Church of Long Beach, 3701 Elm Ave., Jan. 5 from 3 to 8 p.m.

Others scheduled for Jan. 7, will be at Kaiser Hospital of Bellflower, 9400 Rosecrans Blvd., from noon to 4:30 p.m.; Masonic Service Bureau of Long Beach, 3610 Locust

Ave., from 3 to 8 p.m.; St. Joseph's Catholic Church of Long Beach, 6220 E. Willow St., from 22 to 7 p.m.; and East Side Christian Church of Long Beach, 668 Obispo Ave., from 3:30 to 8:30 p.m.

Appointments may be made in advance by calling the Red Cross at 595-6446.

SLA con blames parole 'stall' on refusal to snitch

SOLEDAD (AP) — Jailed radical Willie Brandt says his parole is being held up because he won't snitch on friends associated with the Symbionese Liberation Army.

Brandt, 28, said authorities seem interested in his prison visitors, including sports activist Jack Scott, sportswriter Jay Weiner and SLA-linked fugitives Michael Kilgore and Kathy Soliah.

"They were my friends on the street and I see no reason to abandon them now," Brandt said, adding that none has visited him since any terrorist activities attributed to the SLA occurred.

"What they (parole board) want me to do is snitch," Brandt told the San Francisco Examiner in an interview published today. "That's a common tool. If you snitch, you get less time. But normally, you don't get more time for not snitching."

BRANDT was sentenced in 1972 to up to 15 years in prison for possessing components for an explosive device and intending to use them. Soledad prison officials called him a model inmate, but two weeks ago the Adult Authority recommended a parole date of March 28, 1977. Brandt has filed suit in Monterey County Superior Court challenging the date.

"The parole board wrote that predicting his future behavior 'is difficult because subject was evasive and refused to discuss details of his associations and activities. Subject associated with known revolutionary radicals.'"

"My case has got worse and worse as I've been sitting in prison," Brandt said. "I sort of got promoted to field marshal just sitting here doing nothing." (Field marshal was a rank used by SLA leaders.)

Brandt, a native of Pennsylvania, was arrested

in March 31, 1972, after police found an explosives cache in a Berkeley garage. Two companions, Michael Bortin and Paul Rubenstein, pleaded to lesser counts and received one year and 10 months respectively in the Alameda County Jail.

A FOURTH indicted conspirator was Wendy Yoshimura, then Brandt's girlfriend. She went underground for three years and was arrested in San Francisco with Patricia Hearst last September. She now faces trial on the explosives charges.

"The reason I got involved in what I did was Vietnam," Brandt said. "I was convinced the country was in the grip of an anti-democratic dictatorship and there was no other way of fighting it."

"If I got out on the streets now, I would be interested in political struggle rather than a military one," he added. "As long as the present situation exists, I favor going through the channels. The whole idea is to institutionalize revolutionary power."

Fire hits 10 nearby structures

SANTA MONICA (AP) — Eleven structures were burned — ten severely — in a fire that started in an unoccupied condominium Saturday, fire officials said.

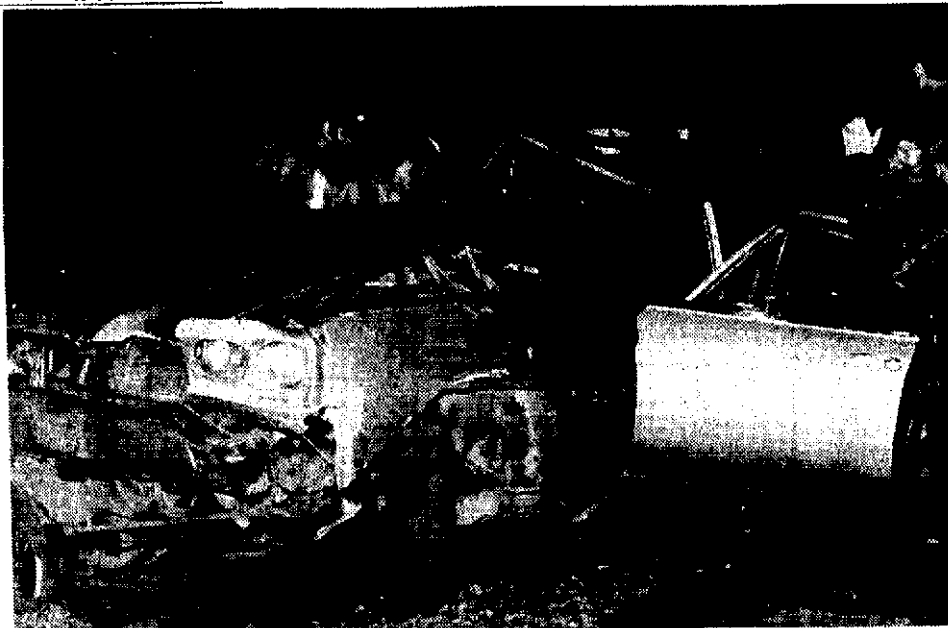

One man was hurt, scores of residents were evacuated and damage was estimated at about $750,000 from the blaze, which officials said started under "suspicious circumstances."

The cause of the fire was under investigation, but arson was suspected because some youths had been seen by neighboring residents during the week playing in the vacant structure.

The afternoon fire was brought under control within 45 minutes by six Santa Monica fire units and three units from the City of Los Angeles.

Winds carried sparks and embers from the blaze to adjacent buildings, including apartments and single-family houses. One person was injured trying to help people get furniture out of their home.

Jerry Charklin, 29, of Santa Monica was treated for smoke inhalation at Santa Monica Hospital, officials said.

Three die in train-car crash

Rescuers work to free one of three youths killed when their auto was dragged 200 feet by an eastbound Santa Fe train in La Mirada Saturday at about 7:20 p.m. Witnesses said the car was traveling about 60 miles an hour on Valley View Avenue, ran a stoplight at the intersection of Stage Road, plunged through the track barrier and was struck by the train. John Campbell, 21, and his brother James, 18, both of 14718 Florita Rd., La Mirada, were dead at the scene and the third victim, Michael Ross, 20, of 9614 Cedar Ave., Bellflower, was dead on arrival at La Mirada Community Hospital.

'The Orange Phantom'

Cyclist survives freak mishap

ORANGE (AP) — Highway Patrolman Jerry Ellison was chasing a motorcycle on the Newport Freeway when the motorcycle crashed at 120 miles per hour — and the cyclist disappeared.

"He was maybe 400 yards ahead of me when I saw this gigantic shower of sparks," said Ellison of the New Year's Eve incident. "It was a steel motorcycle being ground to bits on a concrete freeway."

Ellison found the wrecked motorcycle and 240 feet of skid marks at Lincoln Avenue, but no rider. Traffic was stopped while officers searched for the body of the Orange Phantom, as he was called because of his orange helmet and brightly colored motorcycle.

Several minutes later, a breathless motorist told officers he had an odd experience.

John Wokurka of Santa Ana said he was driving on the freeway at 55 mph when something slammed into the rear of his car. He looked in the rear-view mirror and saw a man in dark clothing and an orange helmet sitting on the trunk of his car.

Wokurka said he slowed to 10 mph, and the Phantom rolled off the trunk, scrambled over the freeway divider fence, ran across the opposite lanes and disappeared.

The next morning at 10 a.m., Ellison and an Orange County sheriff's deputy knocked on the door of Gerry Easton's apartment, a mile from the wreck.

Easton, 25, had reported the motorcycle stolen an hour after the crash.

Ellison said at first Easton maintained the helmet was stolen along with the bike, but finally revealed himself as the Orange Phantom.

Easton told officers that when he put on his brakes the motorcycle skidded and "it pitched me right onto the trunk."

"I guess you could call it a miracle," said Easton, who said he was on his way to church when Ellison caught up with him.

Easton was booked on a traffic warrant, said the Highway Patrol.

Record lows in some areas

Cold snap damages Cal. crops

Combined News Services

VISALIA — A fourth straight night of bitter cold has caused "considerable damage" to Tulare County's $100-million citrus crop, Agriculture Commissioner Clyde Churchill said in Visalia.

Record lows were recorded in many parts of the California's farm-rich San Joaquin Valley, but Tulare County, the state's main citrus-producing county with 100,000 acres, probably will suffer most from it.

"It will run into a considerable amount of money," Churchill said in a weekend report. "In the cold spots, some ranchers may lose everything."

Churchill said in some ripening orchards temperatures hovered around 24 degrees or lower for eight hours Friday morning. Most citrus fruits begin freezing by the time the thermometer reads 27 degrees.

Churchill said it takes several days for freeze damage to become evident in citrus fruit, so no accurate estimate of the damage was expected until next week.

In neighboring Fresno County, Commissioner Ed Corn said a warm-air inversion may have protected much of the county's $28.5-million citrus crop.

The cold snap is reminiscent of a year ago when three periods of heavy frost virtually wiped out some central California citrus growers.

Rural areas of Riverside and San Bernardino counties also were hit by frost, forcing citrus farmers to stoke up their smudge pots to protect their crops.

Some crop damage was expected in western Riverside County, said a spokesman for the Fruit Frost Warning Service.

Scattered variable high clouds and cool temperatures with a high of only 60 was forecast for Long Beach today. Saturday's high reading was 66. Overnight lows will continue to range in the high 30s.

Weekend sailors will tack into westerly winds of 8 to 14 knots this afternoon and pitch across wind waves of two to three feet, forecasters said. Only light, variable winds are expected offshore this morning.

Those who look to Southland deserts for warmth might as well stay home, according to forecasts. Temperature highs are expected to range from 53 to 66 in desert areas, with overnight lows ranging from 26 to 36.

Though cool, these temperatures represent a warming trend from Saturday's desert cities' temperature range of 10 to 63 degrees.

Mountain areas will have highs today of 48 to 55 and 52 to 58 Monday.

Ex-chief hits Cal. information staff

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Elaborate newsletters, fat budgets and unneeded employees typify the state's information services, says California's first chief information officer.

The report by Harvey Yorke, quoted in Saturday's Sacramento Bee, recommended that the 150 full-time state information officers be reduced to about 100 and redistributed.

Yorke, appointed by Gov. Ronald Reagan as chief of information services, was replaced last November by Gov. Edmund G. Brown's appointee, Fred Epstein. His report to Brown will be forwarded to the Legislature.

The state spends about $4 million a year on information services, with "little or no apparent relation between the communication needs of the various programs and the staff authorized," Yorke said.

He added that some departments had far too many officers and others far too few. For example, until recent cutbacks, the Department of Transportation had 20 information officers and the Department of Consumer Affairs

one. The report also said: —Besides its own printing plant, the state has at least 10 duplicating centers employing 186 persons.

—Many publications cost too much because of expensive printing, artwork and photographs. The Department of Corrections spent $3,600 for 1,100 copies of its 32-page annual report.

—Many department newsletters are elaborate and costly and contain too many feature articles.

—The state has more photographic equipment than it needs. In addition, the state has a complete motion picture and videotape studio at the Department of Water Resources, but Yorke said he heard complaints that private filming would be cheaper.

—Information officers appear to spend about half their time on administrative tasks.

The report said it wasn't clear how much of the material published by the state is needed. It recommended that departments share information officers and that Brown put limits on the state's information services.

Religious events 'good business' at Knott's

Associated Press

The sound of religious music and impassioned "witnesses" have been reverberating through Knott's Berry Farm in Buena Park recently, and park officials say religion has proved to be good business.

On at least four occasions, religious music events have brought 20,000 persons to the park, which annually draws the third largest crowds in the country, behind Disneyland in neighboring Anaheim and Disney World in Florida.

"We've always had the freedom to make statements — be they political like my grandfather has done in the past, or religious, through the musical programs," says Darrel Anderson, one of 11 general partners and a grandson of Walter Knott, the 86-year-old founder, of the park.

"We provide the business support for those who want to minister," Anderson says, but adds that the groups have to both entertain and "seriously involved in ministry."

2 masseuses found slain

MONTEREY (AP) — Police are searching for clues in the execution-style slayings of two masseuses whose bodies were found bludgeoned, bound and gagged in a field near Salinas.

Yong Suk Hoilman, 27, and Kim McConnell, 42, both natives of Korea and residents at the Oriental Health Spa in Monterey, had been asphyxiated and struck over the head with a blunt instrument, a coroner's spokesman said. Their mouths were taped.

There were no signs of sexual molestation, the spokesman said.

Most inherited their wealth

22 U.S. representatives millionaires

By RICHARD LYONS
New York Times Service

WASHINGTON — Amid increasing pressures from both inside and outside of Congress for fuller disclosure of financial holdings, partial records show that the House of Representatives has at least 22 millionaires among its 435 members — and possibly more.

Despite a recent trend toward "sunshine bills" that make the activities, financial holdings and certain activities of members of Congress more open to the public than in the past, there is no law that requires members of the House or the Senate to make public their total net worth.

But financial statements on file with Congress and government ethics committees in a dozen states, plus voluntary disclosures made by the representatives, have disclosed the presence of at least 22 millionaires in the House, as well as many other members with considerable wealth.

PREVIOUSLY, The New York Times reported that 22 members of the Senate were millionaires.

At present, members of the House must file with the House Committee on Standards of Official Conduct the sources of some of their income. These include the names of companies that do "substantial business" with the federal government and companies subject to federal regulatory agencies.

But according to the House rules, neither the exact number of shares nor their total value need be made public. Estimates of their worth must be filed with the committee, but this material is not made public.

The partial disclosure rules were passed by the House in 1968. But some members now complain that these rules do not require sufficient disclosure to free members from potential charges of conflict of interest during the handling of legislation affecting financial matters.

REP. Morris K. Udall, D-Ariz., has introduced a bill calling for more complete reporting of personal financial records. "The public has a right to know the financial involvement of congressmen in the legislative issues that come before them," he said.

In addition to the records on file, some members of the House have voluntarily made public either income-tax records or statements of net worth to avoid potential charges that they might have something to hide.

Rep. Millicent H. Fenwick, R-N.J., not only has acknowledged a net worth of more than $5 million, but also has repeatedly volunteered the information during her political campaigns. In contrast, most of her moneyed colleagues seldom call attention to their wealth, doubting that voters want to vote the wealthy into office.

Most of those representatives who are millionaires inherited family wealth as did Mrs. Fenwick, whose father, Ogden Hammond, was a wealthy banker and diplomat. Members of other famous families include the following:

—Pierre S. du Pont IV, R-Del., the great-grandson of the founder of the chemical empire that now is duPont de Nemours & Co.

—H. John Heinz III, R-Pa., a descendant of the founder of the H.J. Heinz food conglomerate.

—Alphonso E. Bell, R-Calif., whose family founded the Bell Petroleum Corp., who also has interests in ranching and real estate.

—W.S. Stuckey Jr., D-Ga., whose family founded a chain of restaurants and nut shops.

—James T. Broyhill, R-N.C., heir to a family furniture business.

Other millionaires in the House whose families fortunes are the basis for their wealth are: Richard L. Ottinger, D-N.Y.; Jonathan B. Bingham, D-N.Y.; Robert W. Daniel, R-Va.;

Gilbert Gude, R-Md.; Robert C. Krueger, D-Tex.; Richardson Preyer, D-N.C.; Philip E. Ruppe, R-Mich.; Fortney H. Stark, D-Calif.; Charles W. Whalen, R-Ohio; Edward Hutchinson, R-Mich.; and William S. Moorhead, D-Pa.

Members of the House who have become millionaires mainly as a result of their own efforts include:

James M. Collins, R-Tex., who has run a number of successful insurance and electronic ventures; James H. Scheuer, D-N.Y., who has been successful in real estate operations in New York and Washington; Don Edwards, D-Calif., who founded a successful title insurance company, and Jack Brooks, D-Tex., who has become wealthy through banking and real estate.

Stocks in financial institutions are a favored means of investment for congressmen. The National Committee for an Effective Congress, a liberal lobbying and fund-raising group with headquarters here, conducted a survey of representatives' financial interests three years ago and found that 107 members had held either an interest in or derived income from either banks, or savings and loan associations or bank-holding companies. In addition, 28 members then reported holding interests in insurance companies.

Of the 107, nine were members of the Banking and Currency Committee, while six others were on the Ways and Means Committee, which initiates legislation dealing with taxes paid by banks. In addition, 37 of the 107 named in that survey indicated they had a management position with a financial institution such as being either an officer or a director, or both.

Among the favored forms of investment by representatives in 1972 were oil and gas companies by 12 members, power and light companies by 31, broadcasting companies by 22 and drug companies by 20.

Several members of the House have married women who are millionaires in their own right, including James A. Haley, D-Fla., whose wife at one time owned the Ringling Brothers Barnum and Bailey Circus.

Other members whose wives are wealthy, although probably not millionaires, include Barber B. Conable, R-N.Y., and Richard Bolling, D-Mo. Representatives who are not known to be millionaires but whose wealth is believed to be about $500,000 include: John J. Rhodes, R-Ariz.; Teng Roncalion, D-Wyo.; Glenn M. Anderson, D-Calif.; Bill Archer, R-Tex.; Bobb Casey, D-Tex., who has announced his intention to resign from Congress to take a post with the Federal Maritime Commission; William Lehman, D-Fla.; Henry S. Reuss, D-Wis.; Shirley Pettis, R-Calif.; James C. Cleveland, R-N.H.; Harold Runnels, D-N.Mex.; G.V. Montgomery, D-Miss. and J.J. Pickle, D-Tex.

AMBULANCE ATTENDANTS, fireman and civilians help pull victims from autos in massive chain-reaction collision on Highway 81 in Syracuse, N.Y., after worst pile-up in the area's history. —AP Wirephoto

Icy road turns into 'junkyard'

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) — A chain-reaction collision that involved 52 vehicles and injured 65 persons was triggered when a tractor-trailer jackknifed on ice-slicked Interstate 81, police said Saturday.

The pileup occurred Friday night as the cars and trucks topped a banked hill and swerved to avoid a disabled rig sprawled across both northbound lanes. In less than 90 seconds, the super-highway turned into a sea of battered cars.

"I knew we were going to hit, but I couldn't stop. It was just too icy," said Joseph O'Donohue of Bay-side, Queens. He was hospitalized with head injuries after his car slammed into a guard rail.

Sixty-five of the more seriously injured were taken to four hospitals, where 13 remained in fair or good condition Saturday.

Injuries included broken noses, fractured jaws and ribs, neck sprains, knee injuries and cuts and concussions suffered when motorists banged their heads against the windshield.

The death count on the nation's highways over the New Year's weekend rose to 277 by midnight, with homeward-bound motorists facing highways made treacherous by snow, ice and rain over much of the eastern third of the country. The National Safety Council estimated 350 to 400 persons might die on streets and highways in the holiday period that started at 6 p.m. Wednesday and ends at midnight today. The Associated Press counted 426 traffic fatalities in the most recent four-day New Year's period, in 1973.

Police Chief Thomas Sardino said Carl Smith of the Oswego County community of Parish was the most seriously hurt and had to have a leg amputated. He was in fair condition while his wife, Elizabeth, was being treated for hip injuries and shock.

Fifty-one other persons who suffered minor cuts and bruises were bused to the Syracuse Public Safety Building, where they were treated by volunteers in an auditorium and released.

"All of us in this auditorium are lucky people," said Ron Ajemian of suburban Liverpool. "The road really froze up all of a sudden. It was raining and then crunch."

He said he saw a state police patrol car "slide by and be demolished." Trooper Peter Patterson escaped with minor injuries.

"This is when it happened," said Bill Walker, 18, of Liverpool. He held out his arm, which showed a cracked watch stopped at 10:53 p.m.

Fifty-two battered vehicles were towed from the scene. Seventy Syracuse police officers, sheriff's deputies and other law-enforcement officials worked to free persons trapped in the vehicles. Police pressed citizens into action, telling them to "just dig in."

The accident on the busy north-south highway that cuts through the heart of Syracuse occurred at the Liverpool exit about five miles from the downtown area.

Many motorists were headed home from a North American Hockey League game.

Mrs. Melvin Arthro of East Stroudsburg, Pa., said she was going to visit her daughter in Canada when her husband lost control of the car while attempting to avoid hitting a vehicle in front of him.

"The car just went sideways and another one crashed into my door," said Mrs. Arthro, who received leg and arm injuries.

Officials sent fire trucks and pumps to handle other medical emergencies in the area, and in one instance had to use a hook and ladder truck to pluck a heart attack victim from the wreckage.

Still no sign

PLACERVILLE (AP) — Air and ground crews continued a fruitless search Saturday for a light plane that disappeared Dec. 23 with three Fallon, Nev., residents aboard. Civil Air Patrol Capt. Betty Storey said the search would be dropped after today.

End to Viet era sought

Clemency issue lingers

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Justice Department still is trying to wind up the cases of almost 2,000 deserters and draft evaders from the Vietnam war who applied for presidential clemency.

The Presidential Clemency Board closed shop more than three months ago and President Ford assigned the Justice Department to tie up the loose ends of the clemency program.

The board received almost 20,000 applications. Full pardons have been given to 5,831. Pardons conditioned on completing a period of work in public service jobs were given to 6,448. Among the others, some 5,000 were found not eligible for the clemency program and pardons were denied to about 700.

Almost all assigned work were given less than a year. The maximum is two years.

Before the door was closed March 31, the clemency board took applications for pardons from men who had been punished for desertion or draft evasion during the Vietnam War era.

Unpunished deserters were processed to draft offices for jobs by the military and unpunished draft evaders were processed by the Justice Department.

However, the dropout rate from the job program among the 4,530 men processed by the military has continued to rise — to 2,820 — since the Associated Press reported last August that 2,035 had quit their jobs or were kicked out for not performing satisfactorily.

In addition, another 1,000 men processed out by the military never reported for jobs at all. Job assignments have been completed by 170.

Of the 732 processed by the Justice Department 70 have left their jobs and 38 completed the work. Of the 2,067 clemency board assignments 66 have terminated and 49 completed job assignments.

Lawrence Traylor, pardons attorney for the Justice Department, said that of the 2,000 cases left over from the clemency board 1,000 are cases on which the board did not have enough information to act.

Involved in the remaining cases are many "hard cases" whose records show other kinds of felonies besides draft evasion or desertion, Traylor said.

'Food-stamp money often used illegally'

WASHINGTON (AP) — A preliminary Agriculture Department survey of food-stamp vendors has shown that some of them are failing to make prompt deposits of receipts from stamp sales and may be illegally misusing some of the money, the Washington Star reported today.

The Star said department investigators thus far have located 18 vendors with undeposited receipts totaling $8.7 million. Some of the money may have been deposited since investigators began checking in November and December, the newspaper said.

A source close to the investigation was quoted as saying that some of the money would probably be recovered but some would not.

Vendors are required by law to deposit receipts of $1,000 or more from food-stamp coupon sales within 24 hours. The money is to be deposited in federal reserve banks.

Investigators told the Star that some vendors were using the money for their own purposes for several months before depositing it.

The report said the investigators have not determined the uses to which the money was being put.

Food-stamp coupons are sold to the public by 6,700 banks, credit unions, check-cashing outfits and other agencies.

Zapata unit claims bomb

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A terrorist group claimed responsibility Saturday for the Dec. 30 bombing of a Berkeley branch of Bank of America.

In a letter to Associated Press, the Emiliano Zapata Unit said it set off the blast because the bank had helped to "exploit" farm laborers.

More airports shut down in wake of bomb threats

Associated Press

Several of the nation's airports have continued to close their terminals in response to bomb threats after an explosion that killed 11 persons last Monday at La Guardia Airport in New York.

The airport in Columbus was closed for about two hours Friday night and early Saturday after a threat, and officials at the Kansas City International Airport evacuated the United Air Lines terminal there in response to a telephoned bomb threat.

Both facilities were searched, and no bombs were found.

At La Guardia itself, the passenger terminal was closed twice Friday, once after an anonymous telephone call and again after an X-ray scan showed an unattended case spotted by an Eastern Airlines baggage handler contained a suspicious looking device.

No bombs were found, and it was determined the case contained only camera equipment.

At New York's Kennedy airport, three teen-agers were accused of criminal nuisance after they frightened travelers by running through the Eastern Airlines terminal shouting, "It's going to blow up."

"It created considerable excitement among the patrons," a police official said.

In Kansas City, some 200 persons were evacuated from the United terminal after a regional reservation line received a call from a man who said, "There's bomb set to go off in the terminal."

The terminal was searched by officers and police dogs for about 50 minutes.

The Port Columbus airport was closed at 11 p.m. after a caller told Trans World Airlines in Pittsburgh that a bomb was set to go off at the Ohio facility at 1 a.m. Saturday. After a search, the airport was reopened at 1:15 a.m.

Police in New York say they still have no clues in the La Guardia bombing. Eleven persons were killed and some 75 injured by the explosion at 6:33 p.m. in a baggage-claim section.

Nuclear blast felt in parts of Calif., Nev.

MERCURY, Nev. (AP) — The nation's first underground nuclear test of the new year jolted a wide portion of Western Nevada and Eastern California on Saturday and was felt in Las Vegas, 110 miles to the south.

The test, first set for Dec. 29 but postponed due to adverse weather, was conducted at 11:15 a.m. at Pahute Mesa in the northern reaches of the Nevada Test Site.

The weapons-related test, code-named "Muenster," had a yield of 200,000 to 1 million tons of TNT, said Dave Miller, a spokesman for the Energy Research and Development Administration.

"It produced a long rolling motion that lasted for about 10 seconds at the command post, which is about 30 miles from ground zero," Miller said.

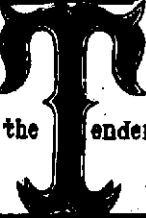

"In Las Vegas it was felt most strongly at the Alladin towers, Circus Circus, Valley Bank and the Mint Hotel," he said.

The blast was felt strongly at Ridgecrest, Calif., located on the eastern side of the Sierra Nevada, about 125 miles from the test site. "It was a pretty hard shake. It swung the chandeliers and made a table move," said one woman.

The nuclear device was buried at the foot of a vertical shaft 4,600 feet beneath the hard rock surface of Pahute Mesa, Miller said. The usual dust cloud was absent, he added, because "we had a lot of snow and rain up here in the past week and everything's pretty damp."

Miller said the shock was felt at the Exchange Club at Beatty, Nev., just north of the test site. The historic adobe tavern had been evacuated for the test.

At least 38 dead

Europe lashed by windstorm

Associated Press
A storm with 100 mile-per-hour winds whipped across Western Europe Saturday, killing at least 38 persons, destroying crops, disrupting shipping and threatening floods in Holland, Denmark and Germany.

Gusts ripped roofs from buildings, swept automobiles from highways and people from sidewalks. Power lines were blown down and ships tossed dangerously along the coast.

In the British Isles, 24 persons were reported killed, most in accidents involving winds that reached 105 mph. A London weather center spokesman called it Britain's worst windstorm in 29 years.

West Germany reported 10 storm-related deaths, the Netherlands two and France and Belgium one each.

In the Netherlands and on Denmark's Jutland Peninsula, authorities kept an anxious watch on dikes that hold back the North Sea from hundreds of thousands of low-lying farmland acres.

More than 20,000 persons were evacuated from their homes in southwestern Jutland as the sea strained at the dikes. But police said the immediate danger was over by late Saturday afternoon as high tide ebbed with no serious breaches in earthen seawalls.

The mass evacuation by car, bus, train and ambulance was conducted without panic, loss of life or injury. Volunteers joined home guard and civil defense units in patrolling the dikes and shoring up minor gaps.

Residents began moving back to their homes in southwestern Jutland Saturday evening, but the area remained in a state of flood alert. Authorities said the dikes had been badly battered and there would be new danger if another storm hit in the next few days.

Several deaths in Britain occurred on the roads. A Royal Automobile Club spokesman said many areas of the country were "like a giant bowling alley with trees littered like ninepins all over the roadway."

At least two motorists were killed in separate incidents when their cycles smashed into fallen trees. At Kiltiernan near Dublin, Ireland, a falling tree crushed a 19-year-old youth on a bicycle.

West German naval helicopters plucked 22 seamen from storm-tossed ships in the lower Elbe River, where the winds peaked at 112 mph.

The hurricane-force winds blew an elderly woman from her balcony in Holland. Winds ripped the roof from a house in Lower Saxony and sent the chimney crashing down on a 29-year-old woman. Officials said both women died.

A man and woman were reported killed near Leeds in northern England when their trailer home was blown over.

The storm disrupted air and train services, shipping and ferry services in the southern North Sea and English Channel and cut off electrical power in many areas as trees toppled onto power lines.

But it bypassed northern and eastern Scotland, and a coast guard spokesman at Aberdeen, on Scotland's northeast coast, said it posed no danger to the many North Sea oil rigs in the area.

British truck farmers who raise lettuce, tomatoes and other salad foods in greenhouses called the high winds "catastrophic." A National Farmers Union spokesman said greenhouses were smashed throughout the English Midlands, the main growing area.

In the Netherlands, authorities in the North Sea province of Zeeland said they hadn't faced such danger since 1953. On Jan. 31 of that year 437,750 acres of farmland were flooded, and 1,400 persons, 25,000 cows and 1,500 horses drowned in the swirling tide.

Letter to Hanoi aired Kennedy for aid to Viets

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy has told a high North Vietnamese official that U.S. reconstruction aid to Vietnam would "reflect the feelings of many Americans," according to Hanoi Radio.

Kennedy, D-Mass., also expressed hope America would "contribute meaningfully toward healing the wounds of war in Vietnam." Hanoi Radio said Friday night, quoting what it said was a Nov. 17, 1975, letter from the senator to Nguyen Duy Trinh, deputy vice premier minister and minister of foreign affairs.

The broadcast said Kennedy also suggested visits to Vietnam by "respected U.S. experts in health, agriculture and other areas to help improve relations between the two countries."

Hanoi Radio said the Kennedy letter expressed "personal gratitude" for North and South Vietnam's recent repatriation of several American and foreign nationals and asked for more information on U.S. servicemen missing in action, including two Marines killed in the U.S. evacuation of Saigon.

Cpl. Charles McMahon Jr., of Woburn, Mass., and Lance Cpl. Darwin L. Judge of Marshalltown, Iowa, were killed April 29, 1975, by a rocket blast while loading passengers on aircraft at Tan Son Nhut Airport.

The radio broadcast quoted Trinh's reply to Kennedy in which he said the two Marines' burial places had been found.

"We think that there will be no obstacle in your sending your people to Vietnam to undertake the repatriation of these remains," he said.

Kennedy said last Tuesday, when he released a copy of Trinh's letter, that he had talked with families of both Marines and arrangements were being made to return the bodies to America.

Trinh thanked Kennedy for "closely following up our Vietnamese people's efforts to heal the wounds of war and reconstruct the country after 30 years of destruction."

400 men assault Lebanese prison, free 24 convicts

New York Times Service

BEIRUT — More than 400 armed men assaulted a prison north of Tripoli early Saturday and, after a 90-minute battle with prison guards, freed 24 convicts, police sources reported.

At the same time, another armed band of about 100 men and women attacked a police station in the hill town of Aley, east of Beirut, and released a Moslem, Abdo Shakiy, who was accused of having murdered two Christians.

The attacks on the jails — a phenomenon that began last fall and appears to be growing — underscored the spreading lawlessness in Lebanon, where the line between gangsterism and politics is not always perceptible.

The truce between armed factions in Beirut, which has been punctuated by occasional outbreaks of sniping, machine-gun fire and rocket exchanges, continued to hold, but scattered shooting was reported in the suburbs.

Arson likely in big Tel Aviv blaze

TEL AVIV (AP) — Police said they suspected arson in a fire at a Tel Aviv newspaper Saturday and reported that 14 men had been detained for a shoot-and-run machine gunning of a police club in the heart of the city Friday.

The shooting and the suspected arson were just two incidents in a recent flurry of law-breaking that has stirred growing apprehension in Israel about organized crime.

The fire at the daily Haaretz, the largest blaze in the city's history, was the "possible" work of protection racketeers, said police spokesman Avi-noam Kahane.

He said the group held in the police attack was caught with a cache of guns and ammunition that also indicated involvement in the underworld.

Kahane denied reports from Beirut that Palestinian guerrillas either were responsible for the police-club attack or indirectly involved in the Haaretz fire, which injured no one but caused millions of dollars in damage. There also were no injuries in the police-club attack.

The club assailants, who sprayed 15 bullets at the building from a speeding car, used the Israeli-made Uzi submachine gun, he said, and may have been out to avenge the arrest of a friend on a drug charge.

Kahane called two other fires in Tel Aviv in the past week possible arson. He said a suspect was being held in a blaze at a furniture store that newspapers speculated was retribution from protection racketeers who could not intimidate property owners into making payments.

Fire inspectors said the square-mile Haaretz fire showed every sign of arson" and resembled the two earlier blazes.

"The protection game is nothing new in Tel Aviv or any other big city in this world," Kahane said. "We've just made more arrests lately and it's looking worse."

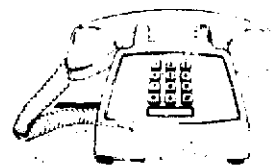

Jerusalem police announced Friday they had caught four racketeers using electronic eavesdropping equipment. And another gang of 14 was arrested in an exclusive Tel Aviv suburb in December after wringing protection payments out of coffee shops, and bars.

In failure to provide more judgeships

Burger scores Congress for inaction

By WARREN WEAVER JR.
New York Times Service

WASHINGTON — Chief Justice Warren E. Burger of the Supreme Court accused Congress Saturday of failing to meet demonstrated needs for more manpower on the federal bench that were submitted to the lawmakers four years ago.

In an unusually blunt year-end report on the state of the judiciary, Burger warned that judges in the federal district courts and the courts of appeals were being flooded with steadily increasing caseloads without any relief from Congress.

"THE Judicial Conference and the judges can do nothing more, except wait on Congress and urge prompt action," Burger declared. "Action taken in 1976 on 1972 needs and projected needs is hardly a reasonable response."

The chief justice noted that, in 1972, as required by statute, the Judicial Conference, the administrative agency of the federal courts, told Congress that the federal dis-

WARREN E. BURGER
Files Year-end Report

way of congressional action to meet 1976-80 needs when the 1972-76 needs have not been met is problematical," the chief justice observed.

To back up his accusation, Burger noted that during the 1974-75 fiscal year, 402 cases had been filed in federal district court for each sitting judge, "an unrealistic number for one judge." This was an increase from 317 in 1970, the last year that additional judgeships were created.

THE CHIEF justice predicted that this workload would increase to 450 by the end of the current fiscal year next June 30.

Through new procedures and longer hours, district court judges have been able to increase the average number of cases disposed of in a year from 292 in 1970 to 371. But, at the same time, the rising number of cases filed increased the number awaiting disposition per judge from 285 in 1970 to 355 in 1975.

The Burger statement was clearly designed to put pressure on Congress to complete action on some pending judicial legislation. A bill creating seven new seats on the court of appeals has been approved by the Senate but still is in committee in the House.

A bill establishing 45 new federal district court judges has been cleared by the Senate Judiciary Committee but has not yet reached the floor.

Frequently such legislation is held up for long periods when different political parties control the White House and the Congress.

pending arrangements on a division of the new judgeships between Republican and Democratic candidates.

Not weighing any such political considerations, Burger emphasized that the number of judges on the federal bench is "an obviously crucial element in our ability to provide the kind of justice the public expects."

Union members' trials delayed at newspaper

New York Times Service

WASHINGTON — A federal judge Saturday obtained a voluntary postponement of the union disciplinary trials of more than 300 members of the Newspaper Guild who have remained on duty at the Washington Post during a bitter 13-week strike by the newspaper's pressmen.

The Guild trial board

proceedings were originally scheduled to begin Monday, hearing charges that the working Post employees had violated the national union's constitution by crossing another union's picket line against the order of local guild officials. Members of other craft unions at the Post have honored the pressmen's picket lines.

Ford, Kissinger, Congress suffer 'put-down' in poll

Combined News Services

NEW YORK (AP) — A nationwide NBC News poll shows most people feel that the government does not care about them, that Congress is doing a poor job and that they do not have much confidence in President Ford's ability to improve the economy.

The telephone poll of 2,836 adults, conducted between Dec. 16 and Dec. 21, was done as part of a news special on "What America Thinks," to be broadcast at 4:30 p.m. Monday.

In addition, the poll showed public approval of Secretary of State Henry Kissinger's performance has fallen steadily over the past year, particularly among Americans who describe themselves as very liberal or very conservative.

THE POLL also found a substantial decline in the numbers of Democrats choosing Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., as their prime candidate for the 1976 presidential nomination. This is in line with the findings in other polls, a trend that political observers view as an indication that more people are taking seriously Kennedy's denials that he intends to run.

Sixty per cent of those contacted said they feel that "most people in government today don't really care about people like me" and 56 per cent said they disapprove of the job being done in Congress.

Fifty-five per cent feel Ford cannot improve the economy and 51 per cent approve of the way the President is handling his job. This last item was down 17 per cent from a poll taken Sept. 23.

The decline in Kissinger's popularity was attributed to liberal disapproval of the U.S. policy toward Angola, which gained heavy attention in the news media the week the poll was taken, and a continuing distrust of the pursuit of detente with the Soviet Union.

THE POLL, found that even Kissinger's supporters, by a 3-to-1 margin, felt that the Soviet Union "cannot be trusted" to live up to agreements reached in the interest of detente. Kissinger critics felt the same way, 4 to 1.

The decline in first-choice presidential support for Kennedy, which has gone from 42 per cent in July to 35 per cent in October in Gallup Polls of Democrats and independents, and from 28 per cent in early November to 21 per cent at present in NBC polls of Democrats, has been a boon to Sen. Hubert Humphrey, D-Minn.

The NBC poll indicates that, if Kennedy does not run, the bulk of his support would go to Humphrey, with Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., Sen. Henry Jackson, D-Wash., and Gov. George Wallace of Alabama picking up smaller shares.

IN PART, analysts attributed the support for Humphrey to his identification with economic issues, a matter that evoked considerable concern from those polled by NBC.

A substantial majority of those questioned reported it was "harder to make ends meet" than a year ago, and less than a third expressed confidence in Ford's ability to improve economic conditions.

As to how well Ford is handling his job, NBC found a substantial decline in the past three months.

Among registered Republicans, the NBC poll found Ford and Ronald Reagan of California favored almost equally for the presidential nomination.

In other areas the poll showed 75 per cent of those questioned feel they have a better life than their parents; 38 per cent think the economy will stay the same this year; and 51 per cent feel that there is no justification for violating the rights of an individual by wiretaps or opening mail.

However, 55 per cent of those interviewed have the same amount of confidence in the FBI as they had five years ago.

Early warning test for diabetes

WASHINGTON (AP) — Researchers at Georgetown University report they have developed a simple method for early detection of diabetes and potential diabetes in adults.

Dr. Melvin Blecher said the results of tests at the school have provided the earliest sign of a potential problem in people with no diabetic symptoms.

He said the study involves glucagon and insulin, the two hormones involved in diabetes.

By looking at the interaction between these and white blood cells "we were able to determine who was normal and who had diabetes or potential diabetes," he said.

"TO PREDICT early that this man or woman would become a diabetic means they are alerted to have checkups, watch their diet and avoid obesity in an effort to control the disease if it develops and to prevent serious complications," Blecher said.

This was the second report in less than two months of the development of an early-detection test for diabetes. Last November, Dr. Joseph R. Kraft of St. Joseph Hospital in Chicago announced a test making it possible to detect diabetes before it is serious enough to be discovered by the standard test.

Kraft's test has been adopted at a number of other medical centers around the country and was first used in 1971. "Diabetes is a disorder in which sugar is not broken down properly in the body and an abnormally high content of sugar accumulates in the blood. If not controlled, the disease can lead to blindness, circulatory problems, coma and death. University officials estimated that nine million Americans suffer from the disease.

Blecher said the study concentrated on adult diabetes, where and individual has sufficient insulin but it does not work correctly. In childhood diabetes the individual simply does not produce insulin.

He said the problem appears to be on the surface of the individual cells where chemicals are present that recognize a hormone and attach it to the cell.

In normal individuals, the researchers said, there was good reception of both insulin and glucagon to the cells, while in diabetes there was diminished ability to bind either hormone to the cell.

THEY reported they also tested individuals who had no diabetes symptoms but had a family history of diabetes and also found lessened cell ability to receive the hormones. This could serve as an early-warning sign for potential diabetes, the researchers said.

Adult support

Our son and daughter have to pay $25 a month to the welfare department because my husband and I receive aid. According to a story in the I. P.T., adult children aren't required to make these payments any more, but my son and daughter just received their monthly notice. Can Action Line find out why? H.F., Long Beach.

As of Jan. 1, the state no longer requires the adult offspring of aid recipients to contribute to their parents' support, but your children and others in their situation will be billed this month for the December payment and they are required to pay it, according to a state welfare official. In the past, the offspring of persons receiving state old-age benefits often were required to contribute to their parents' support. In January 1974, the federal government instituted the Supplemental Security Income program, which replaced the California Old Age Security plan, but the state still financed part of the benefits. The federal government has never required support payments from the adult offspring of SSI recipients, but the state-funded portion was still subject to the relative responsibility statute until the Legislature repealed this law in October.

Stereo

I had a problem with my AM/FM 8-track car stereo in July, so I took it to L & R Radio & Stereo Center, 1594 Long Beach Blvd., for repair. I was told the radio would be ready in three to five days. After three weeks, it still hadn't been completely repaired, but it was playable. Since I was going on vacation and wanted a radio in my car, I arranged to take it then and to bring it back when I got back to town. They charged me $19.95 at that time and said I would be charged only for parts when I brought it back. I left it there again Nov. 7 and was told it would be fixed in a few days. It still isn't ready and when I call them I can't get a satisfactory answer. Would you look into this for me? S.R., Long Beach.

Your radio is now fixed. Joe Brooks, owner of L & R Radio, said they had been unable to get the parts needed to complete the repair work. He maintained that he had ordered the parts several times from Clarion Corp. of America, in Lawndale, and had been told each time by Clarion that the parts were out of stock. Bob Smith, of Clarion's service department, maintains, however, that the parts had been "in stock constantly for the last year and if they had been ordered, we'd have sent them." Smith shipped the needed parts to L & R at no charge.

Not on Ice

I heard a rumor that there is going to be an ice skating rink in the Lakewood Center. Is there any truth to this? I have children who would really enjoy ice skating. S.A.H., La Palma.

There are no plans to build an ice skating rink there, but "this is something we'd like for the future," said Steve Soboroff of the J.K. Eichenbaum Associates, the original developer of the big shopping center and now the exclusive leasing agent for it. Soboroff said they have wanted a rink there for some time, but no firm has come forward to build one. He said surveys conducted to find out what people want in the center have shown a continuing desire for a rink. In the event one is built, it will be beside the theater, he said. In the meantime, you might want to take your children to the Iceland Ice Skating Arena, 8401 Jackson St., Paramount, or the Glacier Falls Ice Arena, Inc., 211 W. Katella Ave., Anaheim.

Signal

Can Action Line find out where I could buy an old traffic signal? I'd particularly like the type that used to hang in the middle of an intersection. T.H., Lakewood.

Main's Antiques, 5647 Rosemead Blvd., Temple City, currently has three old traffic lights, and James Main, the owner of the shop, said he probably will be picking up others in the future. The prices for the three in stock range from $40 to $150 for a 100-pound, solid bronze signal that directed traffic through a Beverly Hills intersection in the 1920s. Main specializes in collecting off-beat Americana items. He has a large supply of gum ball machines, railroad lanterns, old locks, wooden Coca-Cola crates and his specialty, fire-alarm boxes — "Every fireman wants one for his den," Main says. The shop is open Mondays through Saturdays from 10:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. You can call 286-8340 for more information.

Lowe "came out the rear door and was challenged by" a highway patrol officer who "was on the second floor of 2802 Easy." The building is next door to the Lowe residence. The officer ordered Lowe "to freeze and raise his hands above his head."

"Officer Joe Van Coutren took command of the suspect from behind the south fence and told him to come around in front of the vehicle parked in the driveway. The subject complied, but at this time his hands were away from his head about shoulder height."

"At this time the suspect approached the officer and was about 2 feet away on the north side of the fence. Van Coutren lowered his shotgun and told the suspect to walk to a small opening between the garage and the fence. As he finished two or three steps, a shot was fired striking the suspect, and he fell to the ground."

Earlier, the chief said, 14 women and children had left the house after tear gas was fired in.

"On numerous occasions" before tear gas was fired into the house "the occupants were ordered to come out with their hands up," the chief's statement said. "We're at a loss to understand why these people didn't come out...."

GENE LOWE

Homicide detectives Saturday also discounted the possibility that Kennedy Lowe may have mistaken Elkins for someone else. They said Elkins was shot from a distance of about 6 feet. He was in uniform, and no tree or shrubbery branches obscured the view from the front window.

Though it later was shot out, a porch light was on when Elkins approached the front door, police added.

"It was a clear, clean view from the window," one detective said.

who best be served by a new person who can, in the spirit of this Bicentennial year, bring to our people a continuing sense of urgency and willingness to develop new programs and policies in finding solutions to the many problems that confront us as Californians."

Kennick's retirement at the close of his term is expected to attract a number of contenders for the Democratic nomination in the district, which is almost 60 per cent Democratic in registration. Party observers acknowledge, however, that it will take a strong candidate against Deukmejian, the Senate's Republican floor leader who has a record of victories in districts with registration statistics against him.

First speculation included the names of Long Beach's Democratic Assemblymen Mike Cullen and Fred Chel and Third District Long Beach Councilwoman Renee Simon.

Chel said Saturday he was "very saddened by the senator's decision to retire on completion of his present term. He has served his community and his district with devotion, dedication and effectiveness for many years. It will be impossible to replace him."

Chel added that he intended to run for reelection to his 58th District Assembly seat and has made no plans politically other than that. Cullen and Mrs. Simon were not available for comment Saturday.

Kennick, elected to the Assembly in 1958 and to the Senate in 1966, was superintendent of the Long Beach Department of Social Welfare and Juvenile Bureau for 25 years.

President reaffirms support for detente

ment — led to widespread speculation here that Ford, who is facing a primary race in New Hampshire next month against Ronald Reagan, might take a harder line on detente in an effort to gain support from conservatives.

Asked if he were now less enthusiastic about the prospects for detente, the President said "I am not at all, and I think it would be very unwise for a president — me or anyone else — to abandon detente."

"To abandon this working relationship and go back to a cold war, in my opinion would be very unwise for us in the United States and the world as a whole," he said.

When he was asked if he would not be under "a lot of domestic political pressure" to alter his detente policy, Ford said "I think it would be just the reverse" because of the gains from that policy.

On Angola, Ford said that if the American people were "fully informed" about American objectives of letting the Africans settle the disputes there without outside interference, the country would support the administration.

One of the principal charges by critics, however, has been that the administration became involved in Angola last year without informing the public about the American military support given the factions supported by Washington. No official has yet publicly explained the full scope of the American aid, even the amount — a figure said to be about $50 million to $60 million.

Ford denied that the United States was training "foreign mercenaries," although he said the United States was "working with

He is a member of the Senate's five-member Rules Committee. He has authored legislation creating the State Housing Finance Agency, property tax reform measures, carried a measure to allow the spending of gasoline taxes for smog research and rapid transit, led the drives to bring a state office building and the California State University headquarters to Long Beach and was coauthor of an unsuccessful bill to abolish the death penalty.

Five Republican state senators previously announced their retirements at the end of this year. They are Donald Grunsky of Watsonville, Howard Way of Exeter, James Whetmore of Buena Park, Robert Stevens of Los Angeles and Clare Berryhill of Shingle Springs. Stevens and Berryhill are colleagues of Kennick on the Rules Committee.

Also retiring is the Republican No. 2 member in the Assembly, Frank Murphy of Santa Cruz.

Kennick closed his retirement news release with this quote from Plutarch:

"They are wrong who think that politics is like an ocean voyage or a military campaign, something to be done with some particular end in view, something which leaves off as soon as that end is reached."

"It is not a public chore to be got over with. It is a way of life. It is the life of a domesticated, political and social creature who is born with a love for political life, with a desire for honor and with a desire for his fellows."

other countries that feel they have an interest in giving the Angolans an opportunity to make the decision for themselves."

Meanwhile, a British political leader has stirred up a diplomatic storm with his charge that the Soviet Union has paid a $50-million bribe to an African leader in return for recognition of a Marxist group that has set up a government in Angola.

The charge was made by Jeremy Thorpe, leader of the Liberal Party, who refused to name the African country involved. But he said: "I have no doubt about the authenticity of my information."

A Nigerian high commission official here characterized Thorpe's report of bribery as "preposterous," and demanded: "Why doesn't he name the country instead of slandering all the countries?" Nigeria is among the nations that have recognized the Popular Movement for the Liberation of Angola as the government of the former Portuguese territory in West Africa.

Officials of the British Foreign Office said they knew nothing about $50 million in gold, said to have been placed with Swiss banks to pay for recognition of the popular movement, which is backed by the Soviet Union and has set up a government in Luanda, Angola's old colonial capital.

What lent some weight to the allegations was Thorpe's solid reputation as leader of the Liberal Party, a moderate group that some in Britain view as an alternative between the governing Labor party and the opposition, the Conservative Party.

Ford offers tax-cut package

fiscal year 1977 to less than $423 billion. That figure is an estimate for the fiscal year 1977 spending that would occur if no new programs were added or old ones killed — in other words, next year's costs of laws already on the books.

The political battle over tax reductions appears likely to focus on these two different views of the proper level of government spending.

A serious technical complication in the prospective argument over further tax reduction will arise because Congress has enacted a tax law and withholding rates that are effective only through

June 30. Any changes in the law that go into effect at midyear will have to be averaged out with those that were in effect for the first half of the year to make withheld taxes and tax liabilities match for the whole of 1976.

What Ford wants to do, and will ask Congress to do in his State of the Union message, is to put into effect, as of July 1, new and lower withholding rates that can be kept in effect, unchanged, through the 1977 calendar year, even though, under his plan, the basic tax law would be changed substantially in 1977.

He will ask that the $1,000 personal exemption, the new and slightly lower tax rates and the other changes that he recommended last October, be made effective as of Jan. 1, 1977.

For the second half of the calendar year 1976, some complex tinkering will be required to write a tax law that would achieve a close fit with the new and lower withholding rates Ford wants to put into effect as of July 1. Treasury experts have, however, worked out a tax proposal for the second half of 1976 that would deal with the problem.

It is not yet clear if Congress will pay serious attention to an part of Ford's tax plan.

Ford, facing as he does a challenge for the Republican nomination from Ronald Reagan, former California governor, who has proposed much larger government spending cuts than the President is advocating, appears to be focusing mainly on the issue of reducing the size and scope of the government's tax and budget plan.

Congressional leaders, on the other hand, look at budget and tax policy more from the point of view of the spending and tax levels required to keep the economic recovery from sputtering out. On this basis, they find higher spending levels economically and politically desirable.

U.S. takeover of welfare urged

becoming too costly for the taxpayer."

Furthermore, the governors contended that the existing welfare structure was "grossly inefficient."

"Its very complexity requires an army of bureaucrats to organize and run it," they said. Only an efficient and equitable system, he said, can alter the public's "negative perception" of welfare and, at the time, provide more effective help to the poor.

"The welfare system today is out of control," the telegram continued. "The nation, and particularly state and local governments, cannot indefinitely bear excessive rates of growth in this sector."

For example, Carey and Mayor Abraham D. Beame of New York City have cited that city's soaring local welfare costs of more than $800 million a year as a major factor in the fiscal crisis that forced the city toward municipal default last year.

New Jersey's welfare costs exceed $200 million a year at the state and local level, and its recurrent budget crisis has produced a series of cuts in the state's Medicaid program and wholesale job layoffs in most of its major cities.

Elsewhere, mayors and governors have warned that ever-increasing local welfare costs were driving cities into bankruptcy and generating massive voter resistance against any new taxes.

According to officials here, a federal takeover of welfare costs would produce the following savings to state governments: New Jersey, $116 million a year; New York, $324 million; Pennsylvania, $231 million; California, $218 million, and Illinois, $275 million.

Although a number of proposals involving a guaranteed federal income maintenance level for the poor have been advanced from various sources, none have ever come close to succeeding on a national level.

According to officials here, there is now a debate within the White House over whether to include welfare reform in the President's State of the Union Message to the Congress.

However, the President's budgetary officials are said to be opposed to anything that would mean adding additional billions to a federal budget that Republicans have promised to stabilize.

Adult support

Our son and daughter have to pay $25 a month to the welfare department because my husband and I receive aid. According to a story in the L.P.T., adult children aren't required to make these payments any more, but my son and daughter just received their monthly notice. Can Action Line find out why? H.F., Long Beach.

As of Jan. 1, the state no longer requires the adult offspring of aid recipients to contribute to their parents' support, but your children and others in their situation will be billed this month for the December payment and they are required to pay it, according to a state welfare official. In the past, the offspring of persons receiving state old-age benefits often were required to contribute to their parents' support. In January 1974, the federal government instituted the Supplemental Security Income program, which replaced the California Old Age Security plan, but the state still financed part of the benefits. The federal government has never required support payments from the adult offspring of SSI recipients, but the state-funded portion was still subject to the relative responsibility statute until the Legislature repealed this law in October.

Stereo

I had a problem with my AM/FM, 8-track, car stereo in July, so I took it to L & R Radio & Stereo Center, 1594 Long Beach Blvd., for repair. I was told the radio would be ready in three to five days. After three weeks, it still hadn't been completely repaired, but it was playable. Since I was going on vacation and wanted a radio in my car, I arranged to take it then and to bring it back when I got back to town. They charged me $19.95 at that time and said I would be charged only for parts when I brought it back. I left it there again Nov. 7 and was told it would be fixed in a few days. It still isn't ready and when I call them I can't get a satisfactory answer. Would you look into this for me? S.R., Long Beach.

Your radio is now fixed. Joe Brooks, owner of L & R Radio, said they had been unable to get the parts needed to complete the repair work. He maintained that he had ordered the parts several times from Clarion Corp. of America, in Lawndale, and had been told each time by Clarion that the parts were out of stock. Bob Smith, of Clarion's service department, maintains, however, that the parts had been "in stock constantly for the last year and if they had been ordered, we'd have sent them." Smith shipped the needed parts to L & R at no charge.

Not on ice

I heard a rumor that there is going to be an ice skating rink in the Lakewood Center. Is there any truth to this? I have children who would really enjoy ice skating. S.A.H., LA Palma.

There are no plans to build an ice skating rink there, but "this is something we'd like for the future," said Steve Soboroff of the J.K. Eichenbaum Associates, the original developer of the big shopping center and now the exclusive leasing agent for it. Soboroff said they have wanted a rink there for some time, but no firm has come forward to build one. He said surveys conducted to find out what people want in the center have shown a continuing desire for a rink. In the event one is built, it will be beside the theater, he said. In the meantime, you might want to take your children to the Iceland Ice Skating Arena, 8401 Jackson St., Paramount, or the Glacier Falls Ice Arena, Inc., 211 W. Katella Ave., Anaheim.

Signal

Can Action Line find out where I could buy an old traffic signal? I'd particularly like the type that used to hang in the middle of an intersection. T.H., Lakewood.

Main's Antiques, 5647 Rosemead Blvd., Temple City, currently has three old traffic lights, and James Main, the owner of the shop, said he probably will be picking up others in the future. The prices for the three in stock range from $40 to $150 for a 100-pound, solid bronze signal that directed traffic through a Beverly Hills intersection in the 1920s. Main specializes in collecting off-beat Americana items. He has a large supply of gum ball machines, railroad lanterns, old locks, wooden Coca-Cola crates and his specialty, fire-alarm boxes — "Every fireman wants one for his den," Main says. The shop is open Mondays through Saturdays from 10:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. You can call 286-8340 for more information.

Lowe "came out the rear door and was challenged by" a highway patrol officer who "was on the second floor of 2802 Easy." The building is next door to the Lowe residence. The officer ordered Lowe "to freeze and raise his hands above his head."

"Officer Joe Van Coutren took command of the suspect from behind the south fence and told him to come around in front of the vehicle parked in the driveway. The subject complied, but at this time his hands were away from his head about shoulder height."

"At this time the suspect approached the officer and was about 2 feet away on the north side of the fence. Van Coutren lowered his shotgun and told the suspect to walk to a small opening between the garage and the fence. As he finished two or three steps, a shot was fired striking the suspect, and he fell to the ground."

Earlier, the chief said, 14 women and children had left the house after tear gas was fired in.

"On numerous occasions" before tear gas was fired into the house "the occupants were ordered to come out with their hands up," the chief's statement said. "We're at a loss to understand why these people didn't come out...."

Homicide detectives Saturday also discounted the possibility that Kennedy Lowe may have mistaken Elkins for someone else. They said Elkins was shot from a distance of about 6 feet. He was in uniform, and no tree or shrubbery branches obscured the view from the front window.

Though it later was shot out, a porch light was on when Elkins approached the front door, police added.

"It was a clear, clean view from the window," one detective said.

would best be served by a new person who can, in the spirit of this Bicentennial year, bring to our people a continuing sense of urgency and willingness to develop new programs and policies in finding solutions to the many problems that confront us as Californians."

Kennick's retirement at the close of his term is expected to attract a number of contenders for the Democratic nomination in the district, which is almost 60 per cent Democratic in registration. Party observers acknowledge, however, that it will take a strong candidate against Deukmejian, the Senate's Republican floor leader who has a record of victories in districts with registration statistics against him.

First speculation included the names of Long Beach's Democratic Assemblymen Mike Cullen and Fred Chel and Third District Long Beach Councilwoman Renee Simon.

Chel said Saturday he was "very saddened by the senator's decision to retire on completion of his present term. He has served his community and his district with devotion, dedication and effectiveness for many years. It will be impossible to replace him."

Chel added that he intended to run for reelection to his 58th District Assembly seat and has made no plans politically other than that. Cullen and Mrs. Simon were not available for comment Saturday.

Kennick, elected to the Assembly in 1958 and to the Senate in 1966, was superintendent of the Long Beach Department of Social Welfare and Juvenile Bureau for 25 years.

ment — led to widespread speculation here that Ford, who is facing a primary race in New Hampshire next month against Ronald Reagan, might take a harder line on detente in an effort to gain support from conservatives.

Asked if he were now less enthusiastic about the prospects for detente, the President said "I am not at all, and I think it would be very unwise for a president — me or anyone else — to abandon detente."

"To abandon this working relationship and go back to a cold war, in my opinion would be very unwise for us in the United States and the world as a whole," he said.

"When he was asked if he would not be under 'a lot of domestic political pressure' to alter his detente policy, Ford said "I think it would be just the reverse" because of the gains from that policy.

On Angola, Ford said that if the American people were "fully informed" about American objectives of letting the Africans settle the disputes there without outside interference, the country would support the administration.

One of the principal charges by critics, however, has been that the administration became involved in Angola last year without informing the public about the American military support given the factions supported by Washington. No official has yet publicly explained the full scope of the American aid, even the amount — a figure said to be about $50 million to $60 million.

Ford denied that the United States was training "foreign mercenaries," although he said the United States was "working with

He is a member of the Senate's five-member Rules Committee. He has authored legislation creating the State Housing Finance Agency, property tax reform measures, carried a measure to allow the spending of gasoline taxes for smog research and rapid transit, led the drives to bring a state office building and the California State University headquarters to Long Beach and was coauthor of an unsuccessful bill to abolish the death penalty.

Five Republican state senators previously announced their retirements at the end of this year. They are Donald Grunsky of Watsonville, Howard Way of Exeter, James Whetmore of Buena Park, Robert Stevens of Los Angeles and Clare Berryhill of Shingle Springs. Stevens and Berryhill are colleagues of Kennick on the Rules Committee.

Also retiring is the Republicans' No. 2 member in the Assembly, Frank Murphy of Santa Cruz.

Kennick closed his retirement news release with this quote from Plutarch:

"They are wrong who think that politics is like an ocean voyage or a military campaign, something to be done with some particular end in view, something which leaves off as soon as that end is reached."

"It is not a public chore to be got over with. It is a way of life. It is the life of a domesticated, political and social creature who is born with a love for political life, with a desire for honor and with a desire for his fellows."

other countries that feel they have an interest in giving the Angolans an opportunity to make the decision for themselves."

Meanwhile, a British political leader has stirred up a diplomatic storm with his charge that the Soviet Union has paid a $50-million bribe to an African leader in return for recognition of a Marxist group that has set up a government in Angola.

The charge was made by Jeremy Thorpe, leader of the Liberal Party, who refused to name the African country involved. But he said: "I have no doubt about the authenticity of my information."

A Nigerian high commission official here characterized Thorpe's report of bribery as "preposterous," and demanded: "Why doesn't he name the country instead of slandering all the countries?" Nigeria is among the nations that have recognized the Popular Movement for the Liberation of Angola as the government of the former Portuguese territory in West Africa.

Officials of the British Foreign Office said they knew nothing about $50 million in gold, said to have been placed with Swiss banks to pay for recognition of the popular movement, which is backed by the Soviet Union and has set up a government in Luanda, Angola's old colonial capital.

What lent some weight to the allegations was Thorpe's solid reputation as leader of the Liberal Party, a moderate group that some in Britain view as an alternative between the governing Labor party and the opposition, the Conservative Party.

fiscal year 1977 to less than $423 billion. That figure is an estimate for the fiscal year 1977 spending that would occur if no new programs were added or old ones killed — in other words, next year's costs of laws already on the books.

The political battle over tax reductions appears likely to focus on these two different views of the proper level of government spending.

A serious technical complication in the prospective argument over further tax reduction will arise because Congress has enacted a tax law and withholding rates that are effective only through

June 30. Any changes in the law that go into effect at midyear will have to be averaged out with those that were in effect for the first half of the year to make withheld taxes and tax liabilities match for the whole of 1976.

What Ford wants to do, and will ask Congress to do in his State of the Union message, is to put into effect, as of July 1, new and lower withholding rates that can be kept in effect, unchanged, through the 1977 calendar year, even though, under his plan, the basic tax law would be changed substantially in 1977.

He will ask that the $1,000 personal exemption, the new and slightly lower tax rates and the other changes that he recommended last October, be made effective as of Jan. 1, 1977.

For the second half of the calendar year 1976, some complex tinkering will be required to write a tax law that would achieve a close fit with the new and lower withholding rates Ford wants to put into effect as of July 1. Treasury experts have, however, worked on a tax proposal for the second half of 1976 that would deal with the problem.

It is not yet clear if Congress will pay serious attention to an part of Ford's tax plan.

Ford, facing as he does a challenge for the Republican nomination from Ronald Reagan, former California governor, who has proposed much larger government spending cuts than the President advocating, appears to be focusing mainly on the issue of reducing the size and scope of the government's tax and budget plan.

Congressional leaders, on the other hand, look at budget and tax policy more from the point of view of the spending and tax levels required to keep the economic recovery from sputtering out. On the basis, they find higher spending levels economically and politically desirable.

becoming too costly for the taxpayer."

Furthermore, the governors contended that the existing welfare structure was "grossly inefficient."

"Its very complexity requires an army of bureaucrats to organize and run it," they said. Only an efficient and equitable system, he said, can alter the public's "negative perception" of welfare and, at the time, provide more effective help to the poor.

"The welfare system today is out of control," the telegram continued. "The nation, and particularly state and local governments, cannot indefinitely bear excessive rates of growth in this sector."

For example, Carey and Mayor Abraham D. Beame of New York City have cited that city's soaring local welfare costs of more than $800 million a year as a major factor in the fiscal crisis that forced the city toward municipal default last year.

New Jersey's welfare costs exceed $200 million a year at the state and local level, and its recurrent budget crisis has produced a series of cuts in the state's Medicaid program and wholesale job layoffs in most of its major cities.

Elsewhere, mayors and governors have warned that ever-increasing local welfare costs were driving cities into bankruptcy and generating massive voter resistance against any new taxes.

According to officials here, a federal takeover of welfare costs would produce the following savings to state governments: New Jersey, $116 million a year; New York, $324 million; Pennsylvania, $231 million; California, $218 million, and Illinois, $275 million.

Although a number of proposals involving a guaranteed federal income maintenance level for the poor have been advanced from various sources, none have ever come close to succeeding on a national level.

According to officials here, there is now a debate within the White House over whether to include welfare reform in the President's State of the Union Message to the Congress.

However, the President's budgetary officials are said to be opposed to anything that would mean adding additional billions to a federal budget that Republicans have promised to stabilize.

As legislative session opens

It's Brown vs. lawmakers

By DOUG WILLIS
AP Political Writer

SACRAMENTO (AP) — The Legislature opens its 1976 session this week with Gov. Edmund G. Brown again in the Capitol spotlight.

GOV. JERRY BROWN

The first major floor action could be a test of the 37-year-old governor's clout with his fellow Democrats.

Democrats control both houses of the Legislature, and Brown faces an override attempt on an unpopular veto.

By the end of the week,

Brown must deliver to the Legislature his spending proposal for the 1976-77 fiscal year.

It will be a record budget — probably $12.5 billion or more — but it will be balanced without new taxes, hints pieced together from administration sources say.

Wednesday, Brown will deliver his "State of the State" address to a joint session of the Legislature and a statewide television audience — laying out goals for his second year in office.

ALSO on the agenda are scores of unresolved issues from past years, ranging from school finance to gun control and from coastal land use to milk pricing.

This is the last session to convene in the 106-year-old west wing of the Capitol.

If reconstruction plans proceed on schedule, the lawmakers will move into a gigantic portable building in Capitol Park this spring.

That will allow workmen to start a five-year project of tearing down much of the original wing of the Capitol and rebuilding it with the same outside appearance to meet modern earthquake-safety standards.

This also is the start of

another election year for 100 of California's 120 state legislators. That usually means a little more partisan bickering and a little less action than in the odd-numbered, nonelection legislative years.

Here is a summary of the new legislative year, which starts Monday at 9 a.m.

BUDGET — The Constitution requires Brown to deliver his budget to the lawmakers by Jan. 10.

Brown's second budget message is already at the state printing plant, where printing is a top-secret project. Few hints of what is in the budget have filtered out. But a Pacific Business Magazine interview with Roy Bell, Brown's finance director and chief budget adviser, puts some probable limits on it.

Bell said the budget increase for 1976-77 "could be as high as 10 per cent. I don't think it will be much below 8 per cent."

That estimate indicates the budget will not be as tight as Brown's first penny-pinching proposal, but still tighter than the average of Republican Ronald Reagan's budgets.

VETO — The most unpopular veto among more than 100 issued last year by Brown killed a proposal by Sen. Arlen Gregorio, D-San Mateo, to increase state liquor taxes to raise $35 million a year more for alcoholism treatment.

Brown questioned the effectiveness of the alcoholism programs and vetoed the bill on grounds it was a general tax increase.

Since the veto override is being led by a Democrat, that splits the majority party ranks. If Gregorio can get Republicans — who normally would oppose tax increases — to go along with a vote that could embarrass the Democratic governor, he might get the two-thirds needed for the first override of a Brown veto.

STATE OF STATE — Brown's first State of the State address was his inaugural message last Jan. 6. In that seven-minute address he outlined a brief agenda of a dozen goals, including the landmark farm labor

Jan. 26 to 31.

Some observers give Reagan the edge over Ford in New Hampshire, which politically is one of the most conservative states outside the South.

Reagan has endorsements from current and past GOP governors and the state's only statewide newspaper. But he does not have the kind of precinct and town-level organization that Ford's committee claims.

Reagan's schedule this week is aimed at overcoming that problem with a lengthy series of meetings with small groups of Republicans.

He plans an extended charter bus tour of northern New Hampshire towns, with heavy emphasis on 20- and 30-minute coffee-and-rolls meetings with voters.

And at least one part of the trip is not in the Reagan style. As a candidate for governor, Reagan limited his schedule to two or three major appearances a day. But his New Hampshire schedule calls for one major appearance a night in a town-meeting format and he will average eight appearances a day.

SEN. ARLEN GREGORIO

legislation that was the major achievement of his first year.

He achieved all except one of those goals — collective bargaining for all public employees.

Brown has been silent about what will be in his second message, but likely areas include renewal of his no-new-taxes pledge for a second year, a jobs program, a look at coastal and statewide land use policies and changes in school financing.

GAS TAX — Numerous forces in the Legislature favor increasing California's 7-cents-a-gallon gasoline tax. They include legislators who want funds for local highway projects, those who want to stimulate the economy with more highway construction jobs and backers of mass transit who want to tap the gasoline tax fund.

There is one powerful foe — the governor. Brown opposes any general tax increase, and he says he doubts that the public really wants more highways.

LAND USE — The new coastal commission established by public referendum three years ago is finishing up the task that voters gave it, coming up with a plan to conserve coastal resources. This is the year the commission must report its recommendations to the Legislature.

NUCLEAR — A proposal that could halt nuclear power plant construction may be the top legislative issue of 1976 in California. But it is out of the hands of the Legislature. That issue will be decided by public vote on the Nuclear Initiative on the June 8 presidential primary ballot.

Reagan begins 15-day campaign trip Monday

By DOUG WILLIS
Associated Press

Ronald Reagan launches his first intensive campaign trip this week since he entered the race for the Republican nomination for president on Nov. 20.

The 15-day tour that begins Monday will take Reagan on a 12,000-mile swing through five key primary states. The emphasis will be on New Hampshire, where Reagan will meet President Ford head-on in the nation's first primary Feb. 24.

Reagan plans nine days of campaigning in New Hampshire this month, including a pair of three-day tours, an intensive effort in such a small state.

The former California governor traveled extensively in 1975 with speeches and press conferences in every major state. But this week's trip is his most intensive schedule of public appearances since the final weeks of his campaign for reelection as governor in 1970.

He has slated appearances in 21 small New Hampshire towns between Monday and Wednesday

afternoons. He will then fly to North Carolina, where the fifth of 30 presidential primaries this year will be held.

After seven days in North Carolina, Florida, Wisconsin and Illinois, Reagan plans to return to New Hampshire for three more days of campaigning, Jan. 15 to 17, before returning home for a week of rest.

His staff has made travel arrangements to take him back to Florida, North Carolina, New Hampshire and Florida

New laws across U.S. reflect needs of '70s

Associated Press

Dozens of state laws passed by legislatures in recent months became effective on Jan. 1.

Among the more progressive: Colorado became the 10th state with a law requiring insurance companies to sell alcoholism insurance. A Colorado law now can purchase coverage for treatment of alcoholism and of complications resulting from alcoholism.

On the lighter side: the Florida Legislature decided there was something not quite right about notary publics notarizing their own signatures. So as of last Thursday, a notary must have another notary notarize his signature.

THE first state to force companies to offer the alcoholism insurance was Wisconsin, back in 1972. Since then, Connecticut, Illinois, Louisiana, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, Mississippi and Washington have jumped on the bandwagon. The new state laws that came into effect on New Year's Day deal with everything from marijuana penalties to campaign contributions, from the cost of hunting licenses to banking regulations, from drivers' licenses for motorcycleists to contraceptive devices for minors. The latter, of course, is a California law.

'Twas the season for legislators to meet. To debate and to argue as to what to defeat. Then 'twas the season when bills turned to law. Some were progressive, others worth just a guffaw.

There was a noticeable movement for the rights of women. In Hawaii, lawmakers ruled that a woman is no longer required to take her husband's name as a legal surname. In Florida, state licensed hospitals with emergency rooms must now provide gynecological, psychological and other services for rape victims. The law was sponsored by Florida's only female senator.

COLORADO also passed a bill requiring nonprofit hospitals, health service organizations and health-maintenance organizations to offer the same maternity-care coverage at the same costs to all women, whether they are married or single.

The New York State Legislature voted to allow banks to open branches across the state. The issue was a controversial one. Opponents of the bill said the giant New York City banks would swallow up small banks across the state. Others said the big Manhattan banks would open only a few upstate branches and thus the law would have little effect.

Montana has nine new laws, including one restricting campaign contributions. For all offices other than governor or lieutenant governor, an individual may contribute no more than $750 per candidate, an independent political committee no more than $2,000 and the candidate and his immediate family no more than $6,000. For governor and lieutenant governor, the comparable figures are $1,500, $8,000 and $9,000 per candidate. Ceilings also were placed on total contributions.

California liberalized its marijuana law, following the lead of Oregon and Alaska, which previously had reduced penalties for marijuana convictions. Now marijuana possession in California is a misdemeanor at worst, punishable by fine. Under the old law, the judge decided whether a possession case was a misdemeanor or a felony punishable by prison.

The California lawmakers took a less sympathetic view of stronger drugs. Under another Jan. 1 law, prison is mandatory for persons convicted of selling a half ounce or more of a substance containing heroin.

The most populous state in the union also cracked down on persons convicted of using a gun during robberies and other major felonies. That, too, is automatic jail.

As for minors, the California Legislature decided that they can buy contraceptives now without consulting mom and dad.

A New York law requires that new sidewalks have ramps for wheelchairs at pedestrian crossings.

Jacobson candidate

By BOB HOUSER
Political Editor

Art Jacobson, 50, of Los Alamitos, an economist in engineering commercial advanced design with McDonnell Douglas, has announced his candidacy for the Republican nomination for Congress in the Long Beach-West Orange County 34th District, the seat now held by Democrat Mark W. Hannaford.

Jacobson said he will discuss his candidacy at a public meeting at 8 p.m. Jan. 15 in his campaign headquarters, 2752 Walker Lee Drive, Los Alamitos.

He also invited public requests for a position booklet he has written. Copies may be obtained at the headquarters or by phoning 430-1524. He said campaign volunteers are needed.

His candidacy is based, he said, on his perception of "a growing discontent with the quality and content of information made available to the voters by the candidates."

Jacobson has an M.A. degree in economics and political science from the University of Glasgow and a Ph.D. from the Sorbonne in Paris.

Frontier Demos

Cathy O'Neill, Los Angeles field representative for Sen. John V. Tunney,

D-Calit., will speak at the 11 a.m. Friday luncheon meeting of the New Frontier Democratic Club in Reed Williams' Restaurant, 730 E. Broadway.

Norwalk Demos

Dorothy Pryor has been elected 1976 president of the Norwalk Democratic Club.

Other officers are Charles Hewitt, first vice president; Robert Maddox, second; Arturo Sanchez, treasurer; Ethel Lang, secretary; Sue Hong, editor; Buan Lang, sergeant-at-arms and W.E. White, parliamentarian.

Margaret Montoya and Joe Berardino were elected executive board members-at-large.

The club will meet at 8 p.m. Tuesday, Jan. 20, in the Norwalk-La Mirada School District Board Room, 12820 Pioneer Blvd., Norwalk.

Can we afford another involvement?

Angola called mirror of Viet

By PETER ARNETT
AP Special Correspondent

Is Angola a mirror-image of Vietnam for the United States?

It depends on to whom you are listening. Secretary of State Henry Kissinger argues eloquently that it is different, yet uses language remarkably similar to that chosen by President Kennedy to justify U.S. aid to Vietnam in the early '60s.

Congressional critics declare that Angola and Vietnam are look-alikes, but concede some differences in time, place and politics.

What is the truth?

A LOOK AT both countries suggests that in some significant ways Asia's Vietnam and Africa's Angola are much alike, while in other ways they are markedly different.

Their histories began to merge in the Middle Ages. Portuguese adventurers were the first Westerners to reach both countries, exploring the coast of Angola in the 15th Century and sailing across the Indian Ocean to Vietnam 200 years later.

The Portuguese remained in Angola until last November. It was another European power, France, that eventually colonized Vietnam, finally departing in 1955.

The French found the Vietnamese to be a proud, nationalistic people with 2,000 years of written history and an elaborate governing system that was allowed to continue functioning under colonial rule.

The Portuguese found in Angola groups of warring tribes who in five centuries of rule were allowed few opportunities for self-improvement, and who entered independence impoverished and illiterate.

BOTH COLONIAL masters offered their subjects Christianity, and it was an ardent Roman Catholic, Ngo Dinh Diem, who formed the first government of South Vietnam in 1955.

The three leaders of the contesting factions in Angola are the sons of Protestant lay preachers and were educated in mission schools.

The independence of both countries was preceded by years of war against colonial rule. With self rule came civil war.

In Angola, as in the former Southeast Asian colonies of Burma, Malaysia, Indonesia and the Philippines, all the nationalist groups now competing for power fought against the colonial government and can lay claim to the revolutionary mantle.

Not so in Vietnam, where, during the long and bloody war against the French, the Vietnamese Communist Party under Ho Chi Minh completely took over the revolutionary movement. When the battle for South Vietnam began, the American-backed Saigon government found itself unable to shake the label of being a puppet of Western powers.

For Americans, Angola is a major issue largely because of the comparisons with Vietnam. In fact, the two countries are like and unlike.

It was the Communist Viet Cong that caught the imagination of the Vietnamese people.

THOSE ARGUING that the United States should leave Angola completely alone point to Burma, Indonesia and other Asian countries as examples of the possible future course of events.

With no political faction strong enough to take over complete power, these countries eventually evolved governments that were able to contain the Communist minorities.

Angola is seen as a similar situation. Even though the faction backed by the Soviet Union and Cuba — the Popular Movement for the Liberation of Angola, headquartered in Luanda — is seen as the likely victor if foreign support is dropped, many experts doubt this group can establish total, permanent power.

In Vietnam, the Communist Party harnessed Vietnamese nationalism for a real social revolution. But nationalism and ideology are less factors in Angola than tribal politics, and the civil war maps of today bear close resemblance to the colonial charts of tribal regions drawn up under Portuguese rule centuries ago. So central rule from Luanda most likely would be contested.

The geopolitical picture is vastly different.

THE SOUTH Vietnamese Communists, fighting first Saigon and then American troops, had the backing of North Vietnam, which secretly smuggled arms and men over jungle trails. North Vietnam was in turn supplied by her giant Communist neighbor, China. The Soviet Union also shipped war goods to the Vietnamese through China with relative secrecy.

But the Angolan group currently aided by the Soviet Union and Cuba has no such easy routes. In fact, the immediate Angolan neighbors of Zaire and Zambia support the two other factions — The National Front and the National Union — as does South Africa, which administers Southwest Africa on Angola's southern border.

Only the Congo has sympathy for the so-called Marxist group, and it has no direct access because the northern part of Angola is controlled by opposing factions.

The Soviet Union and Cuba must, therefore, move in supplies openly across international borders, as did the United States in the Vietnam war.

THE STRATEGIC situation of Angola today is seen as vital to U.S. interests, just as Vietnam and the rest of Indochina were more than a decade ago. Kennedy, on March 23, 1961, read a statement to a press conference about a small, remote nation called Laos where several factions were fighting for supremacy, one backed by the Soviet Union.

"It is this new dimension of externally supported warfare that creates the present grave problem ... We strongly and unreservedly support the goal of a neutral and independent Laos ... If these (Communist) attacks do not stop (the United States and others) will have to consider their response," Kennedy said.

Those comments, with the substitution of Angola for Laos, were almost the text of recent statements about Angola by Kissinger and President Ford.

U.S. government spokesmen also have been using the "domino theory" for Angola. They argue that if it should fall to the Communist-backed side, then Zaire, Zambia and ultimately South Africa might similarly be overwhelmed by leftist governments.

The same argument was used for two decades in Vietnam, with Thailand, Malaysia, the Philippines and Indonesia numbered among the falling dominoes. Events have proved this prediction wrong.

SUPPORTERS OF American involvement in Angola argue that victory for the Communist-backed side would give Russia a port in the South Atlantic and potential control of oil shipping routes.

That argument is an echo of the early Vietnam years when those supporting U.S. intervention argued that ports such as Da Nang and Cam Ranh

Bay were integral to the defense of the United States and should never be allowed to fall into Communist hands.

Just as the U.S. government has perceived the threat to American interests in Angola as similar to the threat it saw in Vietnam, it has reacted not only with similar rhetoric, but with similar actions.

Revelations that secret aid was channeled to Angola through the CIA in early 1975 had a historical ring to them. Similar secret aid was sent to anti-Communist factions in Hanoi in 1955, also through the CIA.

Covert American entry into the Angolan war has changed now to open requests for public support for that policy. But what took years to develop in Indochina has taken only months in Africa. The escalation of military help from all sides seems to be faster, too.

THE VIETNAM example has brought a new factor into the Angolan equation. That factor is the perception of foreign policy from within and outside government.

Whereas involvement in Vietnam received the unquestioned support of U.S. government officials for years, a senior official in the U.S. State Department quickly resigned only a few months after covert Angolan aid began because he disagreed with that policy.

Congressional criticism and debate quickly flowered when the CIA-Angolan connection was revealed, and the Senate has voted to cut off all aid. The House will consider the question this month.

Jeane Dixon sees new faces in politics

By JEAN DIXON

As the 1976 election approaches, I see new front-runners in the presidential race after the Florida primary in March. But the actual presidential nominations for both the Democratic and Republican parties will be hotly debated and will not be determined until the final minutes of the nominating conventions.

During next year's campaign, several members of Congress will forsake their present political loyalties to run as members of the opposition party.

THIS WILL BE a good year for President Ford, although he may not think so at the time. There will be further attempts on his life, perhaps in April and July, and especially in the fall. Only triple security procedures will keep him safe from harm. But even physical peril pales beside the professional danger he faces because of his family. I sense that a situation involving a member of his immediate family will bring him embarrassment and will force him to reconsider his political intentions. Certain persons who do not wish him well will try to use the circumstance to undo him.

FORMER California Gov. Ronald Reagan will certainly bring life, knowledge, wisdom and charisma to the Republican Party, but I do not yet see him capturing the Republican nomination for President.

GEORGE WALLACE'S, D-Ala., political activities this year will be limited by a sudden illness that most likely will be connected with a fall. However, this will not prevent him from playing a key role in campaigning for the candidate who will next occupy the White House. Next October will be a high-water mark of his influence, when he will not care how his opinions are received. This will set the stage for his own arrival in Washington in 1978, when he will land a new position.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

Forecast for Monday

Your birthday today: The progress you make this year is entirely up to you since little energy or pressure comes from external sources. Studies and travel are especially favored. Your base of operations expands and improves in quality. Relationships are the one area where others supply much initiative. Today's nations find many ways to promote visionary ideals, are gifted administrators.

Aries (March 21-April 19): You must spend more than your budget permits. For the few choices that are left open, reflect carefully before plunging in. Speculative ventures are full of surprises.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Be alert for apparently trivial changes in local conditions. Check out plans with those concerned, then stick to your original plans. Old problems are a step closer to their solution.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Speak up and sell your side if you find that discussions don't deal with ideas you want promoted. Take stock of your possessions; don't make more loans or promises.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Communication on special or technical topics is favored. Work sparks a wave of creativity. You've got more than your usual quota to do among groupy associates.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Wait until another day to bury that decorative hem. Study your regular schedules and work habits to see if a switch might yield greater rewards. Add to your savings.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): New approaches work if they aren't radically different from your previous efforts. Being aggressive only generates resistance and defeats your purpose. Try to compromise.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Friends give you more support than you expected. Your money disappears swiftly and leaves little to show for it once you start to compete. Socializing logically results in late night hours.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): It's an uphill day for your career efforts. Social contacts are complicated and subject to confusion. You spend more than planned for items you don't really want.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Before you blast off on an ambitious project that involves people close to you, find out how they feel about it and whether they agree among themselves.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): What you're doing seems like another round on a treadmill until you see subtle shifts of direction. Extra trips are urgent. Expect little of loved ones.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): You must revise your skills to meet current standards. Impersonal negotiations work out well, but emotional issues are met with opposition.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): People are easygoing unless the issue gets personal. Changes made now appear tiny but in time have many powerful repercussions.

GOV. BROWN, D-Calif., may anticipate personal advancement, but only with time will he realize how influential he could be at this moment and how many opportunities for achievement he is overlooking. Throughout 1976, he will be troubled by California's financial matters.

Another high office soon awaits him, but it is not the presidency, and he will only hold this position a few years. Thereafter, he will leave public life for about five to seven years.

PATRICIA Hearst will spend a long, long time in confinement but in a hospital rather than in prison.

NINETEEN seventy-six will be a year of tremendous changes and startling surprises for the United States although they may not be too pleasant. It will be a year of violence for many of our allies, especially in Africa and Asia.

THE FACTS behind the Watergate scandal have not yet been divulged. When the truth becomes known in a few years, it will be disclosed that a foreign influence hostile to the United States was the cause of that political tragedy.

AFTER the dust of the elections clears away, there will still be a deadlock between the President and the Congress on most important matters. This will cause still greater frustration and confusion among the American people, who will end their Bicentennial year in discord and dissatisfaction.

THERE WILL be no reduction in income taxes.

NO ACTION will be taken by the Congress, one way or the other, on the issue of court-ordered school busing to achieve racial integration.

JEANE DIXON
'Good Year for Ford'

VIGILANTES will return to many American cities via community organizations that will replace the police in keeping order within their neighborhoods.

The crime rate will continue to soar. Angry citizens will begin to punish suspected criminals before they are tried or convicted.

TWO WORLD leaders, who together rule more than one billion people, will relinquish their power in 1976. Both Mao Tse-tung of China and Leonid Brezhnev of the Soviet Union will leave office next year.

UNITED NATIONS Secretary General Kurt Waldheim will leave his post because of concern for its future.

THE SOVIET Union will try to expand its power in 1976 with six military or political torays within the Free World: one each in the Middle East, Far East, Central America and Europe and two in Africa.

THE CHAOS I predicted for Argentina is beginning already. By the end of 1976, President Isabel Peron will be forced out of office.

INFLATION will not be over this year. Prices will spiral in 1977; if not at the end of this year.

THE STOCK market will be sound in general, but not bullish. The major exception will be the stocks of large utility companies, several of which will decline sharply due to decisions made in Washington.

NOW readies ERA strategy

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Nevada, Missouri, Indiana and Florida were selected Saturday by the National Organization for Women to receive major efforts to gain ratification of the Equal Rights Amendment to the U.S. Constitution, according to Karen deCrown, NOW president.

Six states were picked to receive NOW's main effort, she said, but NOW representatives in the other two asked to have their states remain unpublished for tactical reasons. Sixteen states have not ratified the ERA, leaving the effort four short of the needed total of 38 of 50 to add the amendment to the Constitution.

Ms. DeCrown said after a national strategy meeting here that NOW would seek to defeat state legislators who oppose the ERA.

MERLE MCINTYRE, of Anaheim, cheerfully displays arthritis medication he buys in Mexico — "the only place I can get relief..."

Crew rescued after days at sea

MEXICO CITY (AP) — The coastal trader Kankun Saturday rescued 17 seamen who had been adrift in a lifeboat since their tug caught fire and exploded last Monday, according to the newspaper Ultimas Noticias.

It quoted the commander of the naval station at Progreso as saying the seamen were without food or water when they were spotted in the Gulf of Mexico off the Yucatan Peninsula.

'Risky business,' warns FDA U.S. arthritis victims find relief in Mexico

By MARC WILSON
Associated Press Writer

MEXICALI — It is dawn, and the amplified music from the nightclubs has finally stopped, the hucksters and pumps have deserted the streets and the wind that will later send tons of sand slashing through the Baja Desert is calm.

In a dusty alley 200 yards from the U.S. border, a long line of Americans wait outside the 2-story white medical clinic. Many in the line are elderly — all are in pain.

They wait long hours in the earliest light of day, like hopeful cripples waiting at a shrine for the gates to open and a miracle to happen.

THE "MIRACLE" these pilgrims seek is contained in a bottle — pills they claim give them their only relief from the agony of arthritis.

The pills, made from various compounds, including cortisone, are sold legally in Mexican pharmacies. But they're not authorized by the Federal Drug Administration for sale in the United States. The FDA acknowledges that the pills might reduce the symptoms of arthritis for a while. But in the long run, the FDA says, they can cause serious complications, even death.

"I don't care if the drugs are concentrated horse manure so long as they work," replies Mrs. Josie Janssch of Los Angeles, one of the women in line. "I've been coming to this clinic since 1963. I'm alive, aren't I? Isn't that proof enough it isn't poison?"

Apparently such "proof" is enough for about 80,000 of the 20 million U.S. arthritis sufferers who, according to the Arthritis Foundation have visited this clinic and others in the Mexican border towns of Piedras Negras, Juarez, Nogales and Tijuana.

PROBABLY the best known bordertown healer is Dr. Luis Carrillo, a man in his 40s. When Carrillo's clinic in Mexicali opens at 7 a.m., the patients swarm through a double door and are given numbers as high as 150. They are told an approximate time — as late as 7 p.m. — to return to see Carrillo and get their prescriptions for up to six-month supply. Carrillo charges his patients $10 to $15 a visit, the patients say.

Merle McIntyre, a 67-year-old retired airplane factory worker from Anaheim, was told to return late in the afternoon. He and his wife spent the rest of the morning and early afternoon in a cafe and in their motel room on the U.S. side of the border. They sipped coffee and talked about the pain that drove him to Mexico.

"BEFORE I came to Mexico, I had arthritis so bad in my arms and legs I couldn't sleep for more than 20 minutes at a time," he said.

"I used to bang my head against the bedroom wall, hoping it would knock me out so I wouldn't feel the pain and could rest..."

"The American doctors would just tell me to take aspirin, take aspirin, take enough aspirin until the pain goes away. If I'd taken that much aspirin — enough to kill the pain — it would have killed me, too. For a while back then I was ready for that, maybe. At least there'd be no pain."

"I hate coming to Mexico like this," McIntyre went on. "I feel foolish standing in line and living down here like this. I don't like Carrillo... but this is the only place I can get relief."

HE SAID he'd heard all the warnings of side effects before he came to Mexicali, but the only side effect he's noticed is a thinning of his skin.

"Look at this," he said, and squatted on the floor. "I can do deep-knee bends like this better now than when I was in high school. Back in 1960 I never thought this would be possible."

While McIntyre demonstrates his ability to do deep-knee bends, the FDA in the United States emphasizes the failures that come out of the Mexican clinics.

man whose death was at least partly caused by drugs obtained in Mexico. Henderson said the man visited the Piedras Negras clinic in September 1973.

"HE WAS given several shots and two bottles of pills," Henderson said. "In November he began having prostate troubles and was hospitalized and operated on in Kansas City. He recovered, but returned to Mexico in January 1974 and resumed the drug treatments. He became ill again and died in Kansas City in January 1974."

Henderson quoted the autopsy as listing the cause of death as "dehydration, shock-like acute gastroenteritis, possibly aggravated or caused by unknown drugs given for rheumatoid arthritis."

"We always hear about the so-called miracles performed at these clinics," Henderson said. "We don't hear about the mistakes. They get buried 6 feet under."

Something of a mystery surrounds the clinics, which have rebuffed efforts by American authorities to examine their procedures.

THE MINNESOTA Medical Association issued a report saying many of the drugs prescribed are "adrenocorticotrioid," known commonly as cortisone. American doctors can use cortisone, but they say it is used only as a last resort, in small doses and under close supervision.

Henderson said cortisone can cause internal bleeding, thinning of the bones, stomach ulcers, susceptibility to other diseases and a "heroin-like

The Minnesota Medical Association report identified other drugs used as tranquilizers, monomamine-oxide inhibitors, male and female hormones and dimethyl sulfoxide (DMSO).

"There is no doubt but that many of these drugs taken in large doses will 'cover up' much of the pain and discomfort of inflammatory arthritis... and even of degenerative joint disease," the report said. "The side effects, while varying from patient to patient, may be dangerous... There is little evidence to show that the massive drug therapy advised in these Mexican arthritis treatment centers is beneficial over the months or years which typify the course of chronic arthritis."

"There is considerable evidence that the results of such prolonged and massive steroid therapy are bad."

HENDERSON said the FDA knows that at least three drugs outlawed in the United States are being used in the pills prescribed at the clinics. The Mexican Health Ministry said the drugs or their equivalents are legally available to Mexican doctors.

Henderson said most of the other drugs, such as cortisone, are controlled drugs and U.S. doctors must use them cautiously.

Dr. Gerald Rodnan, president of the American Rheumatism Association and professor of medicine at the University of Pittsburgh, said he has discussed the "problem of border clinics with responsible Mexican doctors." He says they are equally upset about them.

"We checked it out earlier this year, and there's nothing that can be done to stop or curtail the clinics," Rodnan said. The Mexican Health Ministry says it considers the border arthritis clinics just like any other clinic that operate within the bounds of Mexican law.

FOR THE FIRST NINE MONTHS of 1975, ordinary life insurance sales amounted to $133.7 billion, compared with $133.9 billion for the same 1974 period, according to the industry sources.

For life insurance policies in general, including group and industrial policies — those on which premiums are paid weekly — some companies also report sharp declines in sales for the first nine months.

"This has been a very deep recession," said W. Roger Soles, chairman of the new American Council of Life Insurance, the main trade association of life insurance companies. He said that not only were sales been set back considerably last year primarily because of the economy, but also that the depressed economy has limited growth on premium income, a yardstick in the industry for measuring financial strength.

NOT SINCE 1949, when life insurance sales fell 1.1 per cent below the previous year's level, have sales slumped as they have this past year. Prior to last year they had been growing at an annual rate of about 7 per cent to 8 per cent for the last 10 years.

The Prudential Insurance Co. of America, the nation's largest life insurance company, reported a 2 per cent drop in sales for the first nine months of last year, compared with the same period in 1974. For the same period, several other major insurers reported the following results:

The Metropolitan Life Insurance Co., the nation's second largest life insurer, down 7.5 per cent; the New York Life Insurance Co., down 6.8 per cent; the John Hancock Mutual Life Insurance Co., up 0.2 per cent and the Equitable Life Assurance Society of the United States, down 1.1 per cent.

FOR THE FIRST 10 MONTHS of last year, the Travelers Insurance Co. reported an 0.2 per cent increase, and the Occidental Life Insurance Company of California reported a gain of 12.5 per cent.

The insurance industry executives and analysts said that a small portion of the loss in sales growth of ordinary life insurance policies is being offset by increased sales of relatively new lines of insurance.

Hospital gets new chief of staff

Kenneth E. Voss, M.D., who has practiced in the Bellflower area for 28 years, will serve as chief of staff at Woodruff Gables Hospital during 1976. He succeeds Dr. Wesley Masterjohn.

Born in Iowa, Voss received his B.A. from the University of Iowa and earned his M.D. from that school's College of Medicine in 1942. He is a member of the American Medical Association, Los Angeles County Medical Association and the California Academy of General Practice.

Elected to take over as the hospital's chief of staff in 1977 was Bernard Sherer, M.D., F.A.C.S., who has practiced in the community for 20 years. Since coming to the Bellflower area he has been associated with the Bellflower Medical Group.

A member of the AMA and the Los Angeles County Medical Association, Sherer is a Fellow of the American College of Surgeons. A graduate of Franklin and Marshall College in Pennsylvania, he received his medical degree in 1946 from Jefferson Medical College and interned in the Navy.

Returning as secretary to the Woodruff Gables Hospital staff is Dr. Albert S. Levy, a radiologist who earned his premed and medical degrees from Georgetown University in Washington, D.C.

AVCO hearing planned Tuesday

Inc., can continue to develop a 70-acre parcel of oceanfront property at Laguna Niguel.

The matter has been tied up in the lower courts for almost three years. David Stein, A.C.D. vice president and general manager of Laguna Niguel, said the project was approved for residential use in 1972 by Orange County.

It was to fit into the overall master plan for Laguna Niguel, a 7,900-acre new town designed to offer a balanced mix of housing, recreational and commercial facilities.

A.C.D. spent more than $6 million in completing rough grading, curb, gutter and storm drain facilities on the property, on the ocean side of Pacific Coast Highway near Niguel Beach Park, before further work was brought to an abrupt halt when the Coastline Commission came into being in 1973.

"We believed the project should have been given a vested rights exemption from the coastal permit process, as provided for in the Coastal Zone Conservation Act," Stein said.

City's frantic 'search for money' explained

By ROBERT GORE
Staff Writer

Three taxes have been raised and another two taxes created in the past six months by the Long Beach City Council as local officials scramble in what they term a critical search for money.

The property, business license and oil production levies were raised in June and real property transfer and sewer taxes both were approved in the past two weeks, although only one will remain by the end of the month.

If realtors succeed in their drive to thwart the transfer tax, then the council will impose the sewer tax.

The agonizing of the council—new and higher taxes are not voters' favorites—has spurred public interest in why the money is needed and where it is going, city officials say.

Comments and letters from citizens during the transfer-tax debate repeatedly questioned the need for several city programs or expenditures.

Councilman Don Phillips, exasperated at the attitude of the audience, retorted that "it's very unfortunate we're down here in the dirt, grubbing for a few pennies, but the city tax is the only one that you get your money's worth from."

Those people who are against higher taxes have got to quit beating the little guy (city government) down here and protest to Sacramento and Washington, where you're not getting your money back," he added.

What has happened to Long Beach city government? Why the desperate search for money—have costs gone up that much?

A comparison of the 1975-76 and 1965-66 municipal budgets provides some of the answers.

The city property-tax rate has climbed 21 cents, from $1.87 per $100 of assessed valuation to $2.08. However, Long Beach's share of the total county combined-tax rate actually has dropped from 20.5 per cent to 16.4 per cent.

Included in the combined rate is the county levy, which jumped from a 26.4 per cent share to 35.5 per cent; schools, a drop from 44.9 to 42.2 per cent; and special districts, a decrease from 8.2 to 5.9 per cent.

The county tax rate has climbed from $2.42 to $4.52 in the last decade.

Some of the biggest jumps in Long Beach city government costs have been:

—Police protection, from $6.9 million in 1965-66 to $23.3 million in 1975-76.

—Fire Department costs climbed from $1.4 million to $13.3 million.

—Park and recreation services went from $4.4 million to $10.3 million.

—Library costs grew from $1.5 million to $3 million.

—Community Development Department, from $97,000 to $3.1 million.

—City Manager's office, from $178,000 to $1.3 million.

Several other city departments, such as the city attorney, health and engineering experienced similar increases in costs, according to the two budgets.

The total general fund in 1965-66 was $37.6 million. By 1975-76, the general fund had grown to $91.5 million.

The total city budget, including tidelands oil funds, Harbor Department and municipal utilities, was $126.4 million versus $217.7 million for the current fiscal year.

Randall J. Verrue, executive assistant to the city manager, offered some explanations for the increases. Verrue served as budget director from 1969 to 1974.

Eighty-five police officers have been added, bringing the total personnel to 865, he said. Also, contributions to the retirement system were entered as a separate category in 1965-66 and now are included in each department's costs.

This added another $4 million to police costs. Federal grant programs, formerly budgeted separately, account for $2.8 million of the difference, he explained.

Salaries also have jumped and the Police Department has begun using computers much more extensively, he said.

The Fire Department has added 29 new members, bringing the total to 444, Verrue said. The switch in budgeting retirement costs and other items are behind the bulk of the increase, he said.

What to do when you need legal advice in a hurry

By TOM WILLMAN
Staff Writer

The phone rings like an alarm at 3 a.m. It's your son, and he's in trouble—serious trouble. He's under arrest and calling from the police station. What will you do?

What will you do when the other driver in that auto accident threatens you with a lawsuit? Or if you're faced with the bleak prospect of a divorce?

This is the first of three articles.

Most people know the answer to these questions: Get legal help. But how do you choose an attorney?

SURPRISINGLY, some 45 million Americans wouldn't know where to turn.

They represent one-third of the country's adult population and, according to findings from a 1975 American Bar Association study, they've never consulted an attorney.

If you're part of that group and looking for legal help, you'll probably ask a trusted friend or co-worker to recommend an attorney.

"The biggest way clients find attorneys is by word-of-mouth," says a longtime Long Beach criminal lawyer. "There's no getting around it."

BUT DEPENDING on a number of factors—the nature of your problem, your income level, or where you live, for instance—you might do better by considering the options first.

Those options may be hard to locate since the legal world traditionally has shunned advertising, partly on grounds that attorneys are members of a learned profession and their services don't belong in the marketplace.

Still, the alternatives exist, and they begin with the telephone book, in the yellow pages under the heading "Attorneys."

Attorneys are listed alphabetically there, but the listings are dishearteningly similar and uninformative since bar association advertising restrictions also apply to the phone book.

BUT IF your legal problem is one of a few types, you'll be able to narrow the field. Lawyers with state-certified specialties in maritime, taxation or workmen's compensation law can list that fact under their name.

Some attorneys also cite a relatively new certification in criminal law.

If you're looking for an attorney practicing somewhere else in the state or country, you can find one by checking any of several legal directories available at some municipal libraries or your local courthouse's law library.

The Martindale-Hubbell Legal Directory, which lists attorneys throughout the U.S., Canada and Puerto Rico, also provides a sort of rating system.

SOUTHLAND librarians, however, point out that the ratings are generally high and that some attorneys choose not to list themselves in this directory.

If you're an aspiring inventor, the phone book again will be a source. You can find legal candidates under the heading "Patent attorneys" in the yellow pages.

Also in the yellow pages you'll find the best substitute for the sound advice of a trusted friend: the ads for bar association referral services.

Bar associations exist in most courthouse jurisdictions. Strictly self-governed under state charter, they maintain lists of local lawyers who specialize in various legal fields.

THE LONG BEACH Bar Association has two referral lists, according to Executive Director Nila Alcock. One includes some 35

IT'S YOUR SON, AND HE'S IN TROUBLE . . .
You Need A Lawyer, But How Do You Find Him?

criminal attorneys. The other is composed of some 130 civil lawyers, sublisted by specialty.

The referral services won't recommend a specific attorney, she said.

Callers instead are referred to the attorney whose name has rotated to the top of the list, with assurances the name is confidently recommended.

There is no charge for the referral, Mrs. Alcock said, but most attorneys on the lists charge a prospective client $20 for the first half-hour consultation. Clients, however, are advised to ask about that initial charge.

Because criminal cases can be urgent matters, Long Beach's criminal law referral service can be reached 24 hours a day by phone, she added.

If you're a student at Long Beach City College or Long Beach State University and you have a legal question, campus officials may be able to point you toward an answer.

An hour or two each week, attorneys from the Barristers Club—the local bar's group of young lawyers—go to each campus for question sessions.

The Orange County Bar Association also operates an attorney referral service, according to Director Inge Wagner, and two new and innovative programs as well.

The first program is available

PEOPLE who can show they're eligible for the local program have only to pay a $2 registration fee, he said.

Legal Aid attorneys generally try to practice preventive law, settling problems before they reach the courts, and the attorneys won't handle cases such as lawsuits in which private lawyers would stand a chance of collecting a fee, said Rothschild.

Instead, Legal Aid's work usually consists of cases such as divorces, landlord-tenant disputes, consumer problems and the defense of uninsured drivers who've been in auto accidents, he said.

In criminal cases, the poor have a constitutional right to legal counsel. That role is filled by the county Public Defender's Office.

IF YOUR legal problem is a dispute over money and less than $500 is involved, you'll end up in Small Claims Court, where you're not allowed to have an attorney.

You'll find the forms and guidance you need, for either filing or responding to a small claims action, in the local courthouse.

If you're tackling any other sort of legal problem yourself, however, you should keep a standard attorney's warning in mind.

Acting "in pro per" you'll be responsible for your own mistakes. And if a complication or dispute with the other party arises, you may find yourself matching legal wits with an attorney.

Celery stalks the Big Top circuit between semesters

By BRAD ALTMAN
Staff Writer

Clown College, San Jose State. It's all in an academic year for Hilary Roberts. Between semesters: the Big Top, if she can find a vacancy.

At 21, she already has the distinction of being one of the few female circus clowns in America.

Female, and proud of it. Unlike other female clowns who dress to look neuter, Hilary refuses to disguise her gender. Wearing a colorful hoop skirt and pantalettes, she looks like a little girl in the ring. She dots each white grease-painted cheek with a dainty red heart.

A LIFELONG Long Beach resident, she was one of the first women to break the sex barrier when in 1974 she graduated from an eight-week course at the Venice, Fla., Clown College, sponsored by Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey Circus.

She was one of nine women and 39 men selected from 500 applicants nationwide to attend the college, after filling out a grueling application and passing tryouts held at the Inglewood Forum when the circus was there.

At the tuition-free Clown College she learned the tricks of the trade from some of the best circus performers in the country. A few months later she joined the Rudy Bros. Circus, a one-tent show, and toured 20 cities from April through October last year.

This week, she leaves for San Jose State to resume her college studies. Her earlier work at UCLA was interrupted by Clown College.

SHE ALREADY has mailed applications to several of the two dozen tent circuses now making the circuit in this country, letting them know she'll be available for summer work between semesters.

"I joined the circus thinking it would be romantic to run away, leave my problems behind," the perky and straightforward young woman says. "But then I realized I'd still be a clown 20 years from now, so I've decided to go back to school. I'm interested in upward mobility."

At UCLA, she studied theater arts. At San Jose, she'll study journalism. She wants to be a newspaper reporter.

Rudy Bros. Circus paid Ms. Roberts $175 a week. She says the circus was "a little bit better than tacky-bud" and adds that it is now defunct. She thought the salary was fine until she was told the circus management did not provide living, food or transportation expenses.

MS. ROBERTS and three other clowns entertained audiences from Bakersfield to Boston with pantomime and comedy acrobatics.

Along the way she picked up a clown name: Celery. "Someone asked at dinnertime, 'Celery, will you pass the Hilary.' The name stuck."

She traveled and slept in her 1970 Datsun. "Most girl clowns have a boyfriend or husband and I was single. Everyone says I had so much courage to travel alone. It has more to do with stupidity."

"I'll do it again. There's something exhilarating about traveling 900 miles in two days and performing on the third."

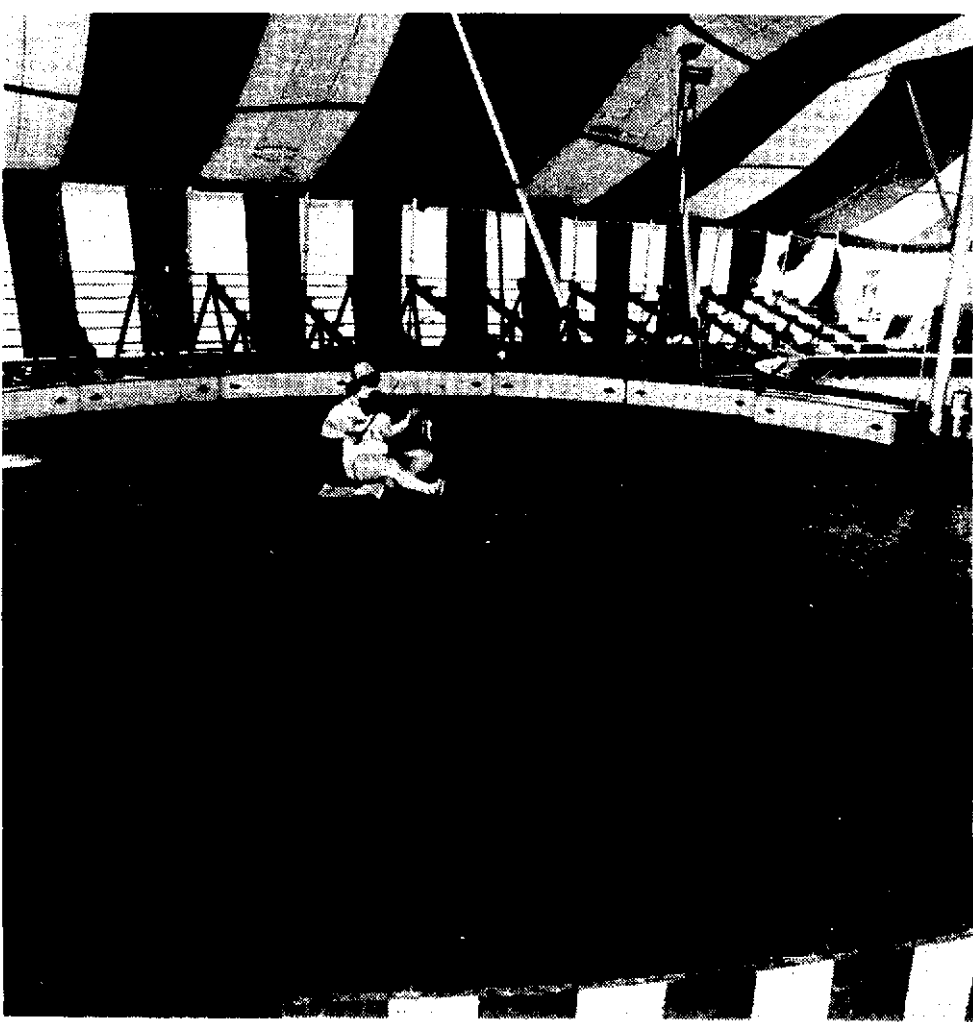

She says the most annoying part of circus life was the lack of bathing facilities. "I had to put on a bathing suit and wash up using buckets next to the elephants."

SHE DOESN'T plan on making clowning a career. "Being a clown is magical—people's faces light up when they see you. However, it's anonymous work and for me it's a very insecure feeling to be a non-name person. People say, 'Look! a clown!' They never say, 'Look, it's Celery!'"

She is a 1972 Poly High School graduate. Her father, Larry, is a postal clerk, her mother, Katie, a housewife.

What do they think of her clowning around?

"Looking back on last summer's tour, I think Hilary's lucky she wasn't raped or mugged," says Mrs. Roberts. "We really worried about her when she was on the road, but she says the experience was terrific. Besides, how many girls from Poly High ever become clowns?"

A chance to economize

Seven firemen who act as drivers for two battalion chiefs are being converted into ambulance drivers now that the city has taken over providing that public service.

The Long Beach Fire Fighters Union has asked the city council to appropriate money to hire seven more men to replace them and the council is scheduled to look at the problem again Tuesday.

THE ISSUE was first brought to the council by the union in mid-December. At that time, both City Manager John Mansell and Mayor Thomas Clark warned against opening the budget in mid-year for such purposes.

Clark said it would set a bad precedent. Mansell said he felt the jobs as drivers for the battalion chiefs should be abolished anyway as part of an austerity program.

Mansell indicated that after several months' experience he and Fire Chief Virgil Jones would take a look at the situation next spring and see if new men should be hired, or if more could possibly be cut.

Certainly the city won't suffer to any appreciable extent if such a trial period proves that the men should be replaced. If not, the cutback will save almost $200,000 — just for these seven drivers. Following the program to its logical conclusion — there are seven other such drivers on the payroll — has the potential of saving the taxpayers almost $400,000 yearly.

THE UNION argues that the seven men perform other duties in addition to driving the battalion chiefs, but we wonder if those duties can't be absorbed in some other way, as the city manager has suggested.

Here's a good chance for the council to prove it has more than just good intentions when it comes to saving money.

We hope the members follow the advice of the city manager and the mayor.

Vigilantes of the PTA

In Vacaville, Parent-Teacher Association members plan to make citizens' arrests of storekeepers who sell cigarettes to minors.

The plan strikes us as a bit of small-scale vigilantism that should not be copied elsewhere, and that might best be abandoned by the Vacaville parents.

Concern about teen-age smoking is legitimate, but the best policing would surely be provided by the parents of teen-agers who are tempted to smoke. Teen-agers determined to buy cigarettes will find vending machines. And by emphasizing to young people the forbidden nature of cigarette smoking, the PTA may only make the search for an unwatched vending machine more enticing.

The primary result of the PTA campaign is likely to be added trouble for merchants, who may feel compelled to ask for proof of identification from young customers, and added trouble for 18-year-olds buying cigarettes legally.

A date to remember

(From the New York Times)

When historians look back on the events of 1975, one day in particular will stand out as a turning point in the nation's affairs. On April 29, President Ford announced: "The evacuation (of all Americans from South Vietnam) has been completed." This action closes a chapter in the American experience. I ask all Americans to close ranks, to avoid recrimination about the past, to look ahead to the many goals we share.

The end had not come without a revival of those very delusions that marked the long years of America's tragic and costly involvement in Indochina's civil war. Until the last moment of South Vietnam's collapse, Mr. Ford and Secretary of State Kissinger had asked the American people to believe that one more infusion of United States arms could turn the tide. It was finally up to Congress, representing the mood and the will of the people, to reject such thinking, along with the dire predictions of a universal loss of faith in America.

AS THE CURTAIN fell on Saigon, the President gave expression to his own liberation from the myths that had for so long

Presidential job description

WASHINGTON — Maybe the first task in the presidential election of 1976, and also the most difficult, is to try to define the qualities of presidential character, intellect, and personality that are best suited to the trends and priorities of the coming years of the '70s.

A presidential election is not so much a judgment on the past as a bet on the future. The instinct of the American people for choosing the better of two candidates is as good as any other democratic country's, but historically it is not all that good. There is a long list of tragic blunders in the presidential election record because the people were looking to the past rather than to the future.

THE AMERICAN people, or so it seems here, were looking to the past when, tired of the First World War, they chose Warren Harding over James Cox in the election of 1920; when they chose the visibly dying Franklin Roosevelt over Tom Dewey in 1944; and Calvin Coolidge over John W. Davis in 1924.

You can still, of course, get an argument about all this, but the historians seem to agree that, for whatever reasons, the voters chose the wrong man for the wrong reasons when they elected Zachary Taylor over Lewis Cass in 1848, Ulysses S. Grant over Horatio Seymour in 1868, Herbert Hoover over Alfred E. Smith in 1928.

Voters interested in the accidents and caprices of history should read Irving Stone's study of the presidential also-rans, the clearly superior candidates who were defeated, and also the distinguished citizens who were never considered.

"Only by the merest margin," Stone concludes, in They Also Ran, "has democracy been able to prove that it has the discernment to choose the best man available for the most important office in the land."

IN THE LAST few weeks, the newspapers, magazines, radio and television, confronted by a battalion of candidates in '76, have done an excellent job of reporting the candidates' biographies, but we still have to try to draw a political map of the future, and a job-description of the presidency that is relevant to a rapidly changing world.

This is clearly a dicey business, but every family, institution, business and government has to make a few assumptions about the future. Some reasonable assumptions, at least for the purposes of debate, can be suggested for the next five years:

- It will be a period of new and immensely complicated economic, monetary and political problems between the nations, and among the federal, state and local governments at home.

- Accordingly, maybe three qualities will be essential in a president to grapple with these problems: the capacity to mobilize the most flexible and pragmatic talents of the nation, regardless of party, to analyze these puzzles; the political power to get the consent of the Congress; and the personal gift of speech to reduce all this diversity to some kind of identity.

- A reputation for being a whiz at foreign affairs, and knowing all the personalities in Moscow, Peking and the other major capitals may not be as important in the next five years as they were in the '60s and early '70s. The leaders in the Soviet Union and China will probably be gone by the end of 1976, and anyway, the security of the United States may depend more on restoring the confidence of the American people in the integrity and efficiency of their own institutions than in anything overseas.

- One assumption you can bet on. In the last years of the '70s almost half of the 215 million Americans will be under 40 and their most vivid political memories will be of the controversies of Vietnam, the scandals of Watergate and Chappaquiddick.

James Reston

THIS NEW rising majority of America, searching, disenchanted and increasingly self-concerned and even cynical, is not impressed by the New Deal policies of Humphrey, the Cold War combativeness of Jackson, the amiable good intentions of President Ford, or the smooth theatrical conservative nostalgia of Reagan. Maybe they don't know what they want, but they don't want the past, and whatever you think of them, they are a critical part of our future.

In the '60s and '70s, we have gone through a torrent of change at home and abroad, in which science and technology, popular education, racial tension and the massive growth of the cities, have challenged all our institutions, social conventions and traditional morality.

It has been a period of confusion, spiritual bewilderment, and appalling political and business corruption, in which our political leaders have told the people that it was their destiny to get more and more material wealth, and that the politicians who promise the most live and rule the longest.

BUT RECENTLY, there has been a turn. The most promising trend in Washington at the beginning of the new year is the decline of political promises. All the presidential candidates, except maybe the populist Fred Harris, have suddenly become fiscally responsible, because this is the new popular theme. None of them, however, has come forward with a program, a Cabinet, or a philosophy of reconciliation at home that deals with the coming years.

Everybody is for balancing the budget, caring for the poor, driving the wastrels off welfare, making peace with the Soviets and the Chinese, defending Israel without aggravation or losing the oil of the Arabs, but none of the candidates gives us a vision of the coming years or demonstrates the qualities to deal with them.

Maybe it is asking too much of the candidates, but if we are to get out of this past decade of drift and hallucination, somebody is going to have to define what lies ahead and what qualities we need in a leader.

Letters to the editor

On wrong trail

EDITOR:

Senator Frank Church, chairman of the Senate's Select Intelligence Activities Committee, which is slowly but surely rendering our nation's intelligence community inoperative, was incensed last week over a news leak from someone on his committee concerning alleged intimate and frequent contacts between former President John Kennedy and a woman with known Mafia connections.

I suspect most Americans would sleep better at night if the good senator were less concerned with the release of potentially defamatory information on the sexual promiscuity of a former Democratic president and more concerned over the recent brutal slaying of Richard S. Welch, CIA station chief in Athens, Greece. I suggest that Senator Church investigate for openers the group entitled itself "Fifth Estate," which CIA Director William Colby blamed for Mr. Welch's death by fingering him earlier as a CIA agent. The "advisory board" for this group reads like a Who's Who among the radical left chic: Philip Agee and Victor Marchetti, CIA turncoats; Anthony Russo, who helped Daniel Ellsberg "leak" (ha!) the Pentagon papers; and David Dellinger, one of the infamous Chicago 7 defendants.

Of course, Senator Church and his committee may have to conduct this investigation without the assistance of the FBI or the CIA. I wonder whether there's enough of those organizations left to even lend a hand?

Don't sue

EDITOR:

I wonder if anyone has come up with the following solution to the malpractice controversy?

Have the patient sign a waiver that under no circumstances would he sue the doctor for whatever surgery or treatment he is to receive. This way the doctor would not be required to buy any malpractice insurance which in turn should lessen his fees to the patient.

After weeding out the bad apple doctors, the patient's chances would be practically 100 per cent.

The only losers would be the lawyers and insurance companies, but haven't they already overflowed their pockets?

Fees too high

EDITOR:

I very strongly protest the raising of Animal Shelter fees, for I am sure I will be one of the first to lose my dog.

My son felt I needed a dog for protection and got me a year-old female German shepherd I do feel much safer with her in my house or yard, but she doesn't like being penned up. She has escaped six or seven times in the past two months, twice being picked up by the dog catcher. She unlocked the gate once, chewed her way out of the gate twice, knocked a fence board out once and the other escapes are still a mystery.

I think the high fees at the shelter are all right for those who turn their pets loose at dark (and many people do) or those who feel they must "walk" a dog to a nearby park or school or neighbor's yard. However, many of us try to obey the law and our pets just aren't as law abiding as we would wish. I'd also have my dog spayed if I could afford it, but since I can't, that will just have to wait.

Getting it right

EDITOR:

Several weeks ago I read the article in the I.P.T. referred to the LBSU branch of Harbor Bank as the first full-service banking office on a university campus in Southern California. Today, (December 27) the article "Harbor Bank Names Manager" states the same incorrect information.

More correctly, Cal State Los Angeles opened its $7 million university student union in April 1975 and on September 15, 1975 the Bank of America opened a full-service banking office in the union.

I work in Los Angeles, live in Cypress, and read the IPT. Sometimes the latter is embarrassing to admit. PAT METZGER

Andy who?

EDITOR:

I am sure in this day and age the Evening Final edition of the Press-Telegram for December 23 could have chosen a far more appropriate large headline than "Andy Messersmith Made Free Agent."

Not everyone follows baseball or the Dodgers for that matter, so I wonder how many people glanced at those lines with a big question mark of who's Andy Messersmith and what is a free agent attachment?

This should have been headlined in the sports section, Dear Editor.

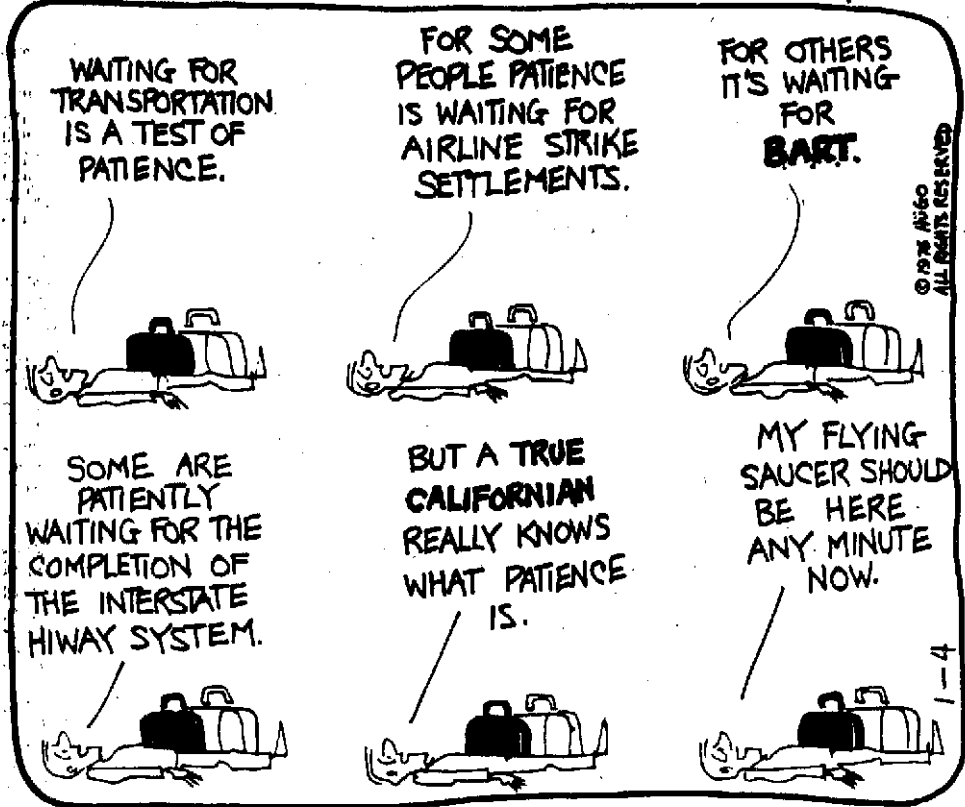

MILT NALIBOW

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Evening Final of the Press-Telegram clearly specifies, in the large green ear high on the right side of Page One, that it is the "LATE SPORTS-CLOSING STOCKS" edition. The precedent-setting award of free-agent status to Dodgers pitching star Andy Messersmith, implying as it did a major restructuring of professional baseball, was a significant sports story of interest to all sports fans and especially the large Dodgers following in this area.

A part of our heritage

Gone for a Soldier: The Civil War Memoirs of Private Alfred Bellard. Edited by David Herbert Donald. Little, Brown. 238 pages. $20.

By JONATHAN YARDLEY

If we absolutely must have a Bicentennial celebration — and it's too late, alas, to stop the thing now — it would be nice if we did it properly. There's not much evidence that we're going to; if we're to believe what we've seen lately on television, the celebration is going to consist of Mickey Mouse in a cocked hat and spectacular vulgarities of the half-time-at-the-Orange-Bowl variety. If you can believe that such displays have anything to do with the Founding Fathers, then doubtless you can also believe George Washington in a sequined leisure suit.

For a country as troubled as ours, the Bicentennial should be an occasion not for ostentatious self-congratulation but for thoughtful contemplation of the past. We could, for starters, reread the Bill of Rights and reflect upon the number of ways in which we acquiesce to the violation of those rights. On a less exalted scale, we could consider the lives of ordinary Americans of generations past who participated in the great events that shaped the nation.

ONE SUCH person was an 18-year-old New Jerseyman named Alfred Bellard, who in August 1861 enlisted in the Fifth New Jersey Infantry and served in it for three years. He was no hero, merely a soldier who did his duty — and who wrote about what he did and saw, leaving behind a memoir that proves to be a splendid Bicentennial document.

Throughout his service, Bellard wrote regular and detailed letters to his family, and he requested that they be saved. As a consequence, when he wrote this memoir some 15 years after the conclusion of the Civil War, he had firsthand observations from which to draw. The memoir disappeared after his death in 1891, and did not resurface until it was discovered in an antique shop in 1962 by Alec Thomas, a film maker. He recognized that he had found a manuscript of unusual interest, and brought it to the attention of Little, Brown — which, in turn, engaged the distinguished historian David Herbert Donald to authenticate and edit the memoir.

It is a remarkable, and valuable, piece of work, filled with marvelous detail about the lives of ordinary soldiers fighting an extraordinary war. It includes graphic descriptions of the fighting in such pivotal battles as Second Bull Run, Fredericksburg and Chancellorsville, but it is not a book about flanking maneuvers, grand strategy or momentous decisions. It is a book about how your run-of-the-mill Yankee dogface coped — about how he slept and ate, how he felt when the bullets started flying, what he did for R&R, how he kept warm and dry and alive. It is history on the human scale, and thus history to which we can most immediately and meaningfully respond.

PRECISELY WHY Bellard wrote the memoir is far from clear, but what is clear beyond dispute is that he did not write it to inflate his own role in the conflict. One could not ask for a more self-effacing narrator, nor could one ask for one more observant, humorous and succinct. Bellard was no prose stylist, and his spelling left a lot to be desired, but his text vividly recreates the daily life of men at war.

So, too, do the primitive sketches and drawings he composed on the scene; they are, in fact, as important to this beautifully produced book as the text itself.

The memoir, like war, is a mixture of daily routine and sudden horror. On the one hand there is the unending quest for sustenance: "Our crackers we used to fry, to make them more palatable soaking them an hour or two to make them soft. We fried them in pork fat and made a tasty meal." On the other hand there is death: "Dead men were laying in all directions. In walking over the field, some would be seen with their legs or arms shot off, others with the top or side of the head cut off as with a knife (which in this case was a piece of shell), while one man of our Regt. had his entire chest smashed in as flat as a board. In the fallen timber a reb was found who had one hand in the pockets of a union soldier and had been shot while leaning over a log rifling the pockets of his enemy. In a ravine that was so ably defended by the rest of our brigade, the dead rebels were piled one on the other."

By so matter-of-factly setting down what happened during his term of service in the Union Army, Bellard has more to say to today's readers than may at first meet the eye. We know a lot about the great generals who led the nation to freedom in the Revolution and those who led it to reunion in the Civil War. We know much less about the ordinary soldiers whose heroism lay not in legendary triumphs but in dogged endurance.

Generals may lead nations, but ordinary people make them. Gone for a Soldier is about such people, and thus it speaks directly to us during a year in which we honor our heritage.

Bring back the students

Without going into a frenzy of denunciation — and realizing that the reader may now be red-eyed from watching mercenaries slug, hit, react, second-effort and whatever else they do on the gridiron, grass or carpet — I would have to open the sermon by stating that after watching Woody Hayes of Ohio State for at least a decade the only conclusion to be reached is that the man is pathetic.

Who now should be surprised that Hayes would perform like an ass after getting it stuck to him in the 'Rose Bowl' game by a team, UCLA, that was presumed not to belong on the same field?

I have interviewed this slob myself and have found no redeeming characteristics. Unlike most, however, I find him as obnoxious in victory as in defeat. We all have different drummers, I guess.

But Hayes isn't the problem. He is the epitome of the big time, computerized Coaching God to whom a boys' game has become a business somewhere up there with Transamerica. He, as with his friend in Michigan Bo Schembechler, has mechanized teams, robots. I don't pay much attention to those frenzied prayer sessions

William G. Sumner

Ridder News Service

they have on the sidelines, for I suspect that Woodrow has told his mercenaries to jump and slap helmets and pads and yell or try to get scholarships in history or political science.

I have watched both of these mechanics, Hayes and Schembechler, get upset by schoolboy athletes in the Rose Bowl and it has always been a pleasure. You might forgive Hayes for the Stanford upset, for he was facing a superb passing quarterback and at least two good receivers when beaten by Jim Plunkett, but wasn't it a pleasure to watch Stanford's hippie quarterback beat Michigan the next year? I can't recall his name. No one can. He was a student.

But you see the Big Ten in Pasadena, coming on first with its bands, like Prussians with their precision and quick steps, and you are impressed: the machine that produced them must indeed be invincible.

You get the feeling that if the high-stepping drum major were to fall on his face he would be strung by the thumbs but, meanwhile, a sub would be rushed in.

There is even now restlessness among the schools of the Top 10, and among them I would put Southern California. They feel shackled by the minimal scholastic and "red-shirt" confines of their conferences and weak opposition and wish to form what, in fact, would be a semi-pro conference which would no doubt realize its ambition through lawsuit, forcing its way into Superbowl XIV.

This is not college football. Oh, really?

You are regarded as an innocent for saying it. But why in hell should it draw such hysterical adulation? I don't know. At each level, there is interest, up, I think, to neo-professional college football. There, you have to note, they constitute pro farm clubs, lacking only the experience five more years or so would provide and, as has been demonstrated pretty clearly, intelligence, emotion and esprit. Where have you gone, Dink Stover?

Post office mismanaged

WASHINGTON — Once again, the Postal Service has sought relief from its own mismanagement by increasing first-class rates. Thus the people who use the mails the least will continue to be charged the most.

In the past four years, the price of a first-class stamp has more than doubled. Yet the cost of handling a letter has risen only about 35 per cent.

THE FIRST-CLASS users might not mind paying a disproportionate share of the mail costs if their letters were delivered a little faster to the right mailboxes. But the delivery service seems to decline, unhappily, in direct proportion to the rise in mail rates.

Of course, the Postal Service has been quick to blame inflation for the need to increase rates and reduce service at the same time. But the real cause of the mail mess, in our opinion, has been bad administration.

We have kept a close watch on the Postal Service since it went on a business basis in 1971. We wrote a series of columns about mismanagement and misfeasance, which forced Postmaster General Ted Kasten to resign in the middle of his term.

From confidential postal files, we showed how the authorities had made costly mistakes, had handed out fat contracts to their friends and had squandered money on their own comforts. Kasten's successor, Ben Ballar, has made some improvements. But the mismanagement is so entrenched it would take a wholesale reorganization to correct it.

INFLATION MAY have aggravated the fiscal crisis in the Postal Service, but bad planning, boondoggles and cronyism were the cause. The question of who should pay for this mismanagement was brought before the Postal Rate Commission.

With unerring logic, an administrative law judge, Seymour Wenner, proposed that those who create the greatest burden for the Postal Service should pay the biggest share of the cost increase.

He called for a 2½-cent reduction in first-class rates and an increase in other rates. He suggested raising parcel post rates 57 per cent, second-class rates 100 per cent over five years, and third-class bulk rates by 7 per cent.

This brought howls from newspapers and magazines, who benefit from second-class rates. It also brought howls from the big corporations, which flood the Postal Service with third-class junk mail. This is mail that most recipients would rather not receive. Yet tons

Jack Anderson
with

of it, addressed to the anonymous "Occupant," are delivered every day by mailmen. You guessed it, the postal authorities were more impressed by the corporate howls than the private grumbling. First-class mail rates weren't reduced two cents, as Wenner urged, but were increased three cents.

THIS MEANS the individual letter writers will subsidize the corporations by helping to pay the mailing costs for their business solicitations. Or to put it another way, the anonymous aggrieved "Occupant" indirectly will help pay for the avalanche of junk mail he never wanted in the first place.

Congress voted to free the old Post Office from the fetters of the federal bureaucracy six years ago. The whole idea was to remove politics from the postal operation. The proponents in Congress promised that once the Postal Service was put on a businesslike basis, the mails would return a profit and government subsidies could be eliminated.

Instead, the postal deficit soared to an estimated $2.6 billion. Not that the efficiency experts failed to tinker with the postal machinery. They developed a streamlined, centralized Preferential Mail Network, which was supposed to speed up mail delivery.

Special sorting machines were built that were supposed to process letters speedily. But unfortunately, the infinite variety of envelopes, which come in all shapes and sizes, fouled up the works.

ANOTHER MACHINE scanned envelopes so fast it outpaced the antiquated machinery that served up the envelopes. The fancy machine constantly runs out of mail to process.

The Postal Service also invest-system that has turned out to be slower, more expensive and more damage-prone than the competing private service, United Parcel.

The bulk mail system is made up of 21 centers built near urban areas. They are supposed to serve as central clearing-houses for parcels in each area. This mechanization plan was supposed to replace hand sorting and provide speedier service.

Instead, the service has slowed and the deficit has risen. According to the Postal Service's own estimate, it takes more than eight days for the average parcel to make its way, for example, from Washington, D.C., to Los Angeles. The Pony Express made the trip from St. Joseph, Mo., to Sacramento in about six days in 1861.

THE DRAWBACKS of a centralized system didn't dawn on the postal planners until the energy crisis sent their fuel bills soaring. Suddenly, ferrying packages to a central processing plant became exceedingly expensive.

Here's how it works. A package mailed to a neighbor in a nearby village, for example, has to be shipped hundreds of miles to the nearest urban center for processing. Then it is shipped back again to the addressee. This process obviously slows the service, boosts the cost and increases the damage risk.

Congress notwithstanding, the Postal Service is a service, not a business. It is a service, moreover, that is costing the taxpayers about $1.5 billion a year to maintain. It's going to go on costing the taxpayers billions more than it should unless it is completely revamped. And the reorganization, in our opinion, will have to start at the top.

Market robbed of $10,000

Two men armed with a sawed-off shotgun robbed Ralph's Market at Compton and Atlantic Boulevards in East Compton of more than $10,000 Saturday afternoon, Lakewood Sheriff's deputies said.

The pair held office personnel at gunpoint and forced the manager to empty the safe, deputies said.

The two, described as blacks in their late teens, fled in an unidentified car after the 4:40 p.m. holdup, according to deputies.

Youth stabbed to death

A Watts teen-ager was stabbed to death late Friday while attempting to stop an argument in his home, police reported Saturday.

A police spokesman said Gilbert Perez, 16, was killed while trying to intercede in an argument between his mother and stepfather.

A spokesman said the couple, Angel Berto Ortega, 33, and his 35-year-old wife, Carman, were arguing shortly before 11 p.m. Friday when Perez tried to break them up and was stabbed once in the chest.

The youth was taken to Martin Luther King Jr. Memorial Hospital where he died at 1:15 a.m. Saturday.

Angel Ortega was arrested and booked on suspicion of murder, authorities said.

Burglar flees with rings

Jessie Mae McGill, 62, of 1015 Alamitos Ave., told police Saturday that a burglar who entered through her front door stole rings valued at more than $300 from her bedroom.

TV, cufflinks, coins stolen

Long Beach police said Saturday that a burglar who broke a bathroom window at the home of attorney Mark Lincoln Taylor, 218 W. Sixth St., stole a portable television set, cufflinks and foreign coins with a total value of about $124.

Tools worth $300 taken

A burglar who climbed over a chain-link fence in a maintenance yard of the Powerline Oil Co., 910 S. Windham Ave., stole wrenches, sockets and other tools valued at $300 from a tool cabinet on a truck, Long Beach police said Saturday.

Restaurant robbed of $50

Two bandits, one armed with a pistol, robbed the Taco Bell restaurant at 4103 Viking Way of $50, Long Beach police said Saturday.

An employee told police one of the bandits told him, "Get your hands up and don't touch the alarm," police reported.

The employee then told the bandit, "Show me a gun first," and the man drew a revolver from his coat pocket and pointed it at the employee.

Police said the suspects fled in a yellow pickup truck.

How to find reliable legal advice

most controversial—option you may consider in some cases also involves no attorney.

In the past two years, clinics operated by nonlawyers have opened in several Southland communities. They've been called "divorce clinics" since their business has been limited to simple, uncontested divorces.

A spokesman for one such clinic said they help people of moderate means to do their own divorces, and at prices below those charged by attorneys.

Clinics do that by providing clerical and document delivery services only, he said, since they'd be breaking the law if they offered any sort of legal advice to clients.

It's that issue that has kept the clinics in controversy. Some attorneys' groups have claimed that the clinic owners are, in effect, practicing law without a license and advertising illegally. Civil suits and criminal charges have been filed against California clinics on those grounds.

But while that legal war continues, both sides have won some battles and the clinics continue to operate.

In fact, the clinic spokesman said, some of the firms intend to expand their services soon to other common legal areas: bankruptcy, homestead, legal name change and simple adoption.

Such clinics are most easily located through their classified newspaper advertisements in the "Personals" or "Announcements" columns.

The spokesman stressed that reputable clinics turn down contested or complex cases.

"If it's a complicated situation, if it's a contested situation or if they have any legal question about the subject matter at all, then we recommend that the people have at least a consultation with an attorney," he said.

The spokesman added a warning to people who turn to the classified columns to locate a clinic: Ask enough questions to safeguard yourself from any "fly-by-night" business.

"Oftentimes these guys don't work out of an office, don't maintain phone service and they deliver to homes, so there's no accountability at all," he said. Reputable clinics, he added, won't mind inquiries.

Former pike carney to be honored

By CHUCK CHEATHAM
Staff Writer

Sam Boyd, owner of Sam Boyd's California Hotel and Casino in downtown Las Vegas, will be honored Tuesday evening as "Carney of the Year" by the Long Beach Pike Showmen's Association.

Boyd and his wife, Mary, will be guests of honor at the association's third annual dinner dance at the Golden Sails Inn, 6285 E. Pacific Coast Highway.

In 1924 Boyd started working after Poly High School hours on the pike at 10 cents an hour.

His first job, he recalls, was picking up baseballs players threw at targets. When a bull's-eye was hit, girls in bathing suits who sat on racks were dunked into the water.

Boyd was soon working at various other pike concessions, became a pitchman and worked in and operated bingo games. He also worked on gambling ships outside the three-mile limit and in Hawaii.

In 1941 Boyd and his wife went to Las Vegas to visit friends and ended up staying.

Starting with a penny roulette wheel, he studied the gambling profession as a dealer in several clubs and then worked as pit boss at the El Rancho, Flamingo Hotel, Cal-Neva Lodge and Thunderbird Hotel in Las Vegas. He held similar positions at the Cal-Neva Club in Reno and the Cal-Neva Lodge at Lake Tahoe.

In 1949 Boyd became a partner in the Las Vegas Sahara Hotel and then became executive vice president of the Sahara-Nevada Corp., which owned several gambling casinos in Las Vegas, including the Mint.

He was president and chief executive officer of the Union Plaza hotel, casino and transportation complex until he resigned to build and operate his new club, which opened New Year's Eve, 1974.

Albert S. Brown, schoolmate and fellow-pike worker with Boyd more than 50 years ago, was honored in 1974 as the first "Carney of the Year."

Brown, now manager of Life-O-Line game at W. Pike and Cedar Walk, will introduce Boyd and present him with a plaque for his outstanding contribution to the amusement industry.

Lloyd Hilligos, owner of Foley and Burke's traveling carnival, who started in the amusement field 30 years ago on the pike, was honored at the association's second annual event.

IT'S ONLY AN ANIMAL

Dying in a steel-jaw, leghold trap. An animal that feels pain much like we do. Imagine having your fingers crushed in a car door. Nobody opens the door for 24 hours. That's what happens in a steel-jaw trap. Less than half the states have laws requiring trappers to even check traps every 24 hours. No one has cared much. It's only an animal.

Every winter millions of fox, lynx, raccoons, minks, otters, muskrats, beavers, badgers, bobcats, skunks, and other animals suffer in these primitive traps. Why? Because humans think fur coats are "glamorous and chic." There is nothing glamorous about being clamped in a trap for hours or even days, exposed to the weather, without food or water, in pain and fear, waiting for the trapper and death. Some even chew or wring off their toes or paws to escape. But then, they're only animals.

This trap hasn't changed much since the days early fur traders and mountain men used it to nearly wipe out the beaver in this country. That was well over 100 years ago. Today trapping is a sport... a hobby... a recreation. Few people trap for survival. The reasons have changed but the trap has not. The pain and suffering it has inflicted on wild animals over the years is impossible to comprehend. Still, little has been done about more humane traps. Again, the victims are only animals.

It is time to change, time to stop making excuses for this needless suffering. It is time to outlaw the steel-jaw trap.

It is the only decent thing to do—for the animals. Please help.

College readies displays

Plans are nearing completion by Cerritos College administrators and faculty for the annual educational display extravaganza that opens in the Los Cerritos Shopping Mall Friday.

The college, in conjunction with the Regional Occupation Program and adult schools in the area, annually fills the giant, enclosed shopping center with booths, displays and demonstrations of educational opportunities available to everyone in the district.

More than 50 booths will be set up for the three-day program.

Displays and demonstrations will be offered from all of the college's nine academic divisions. Richard Whiteman, dean of vocational education at Cerritos, is coordinating the project.

The college's counseling division will be on hand to help would-be students apply for admission and register for classes.

Increased facilities and salaries have driven up library costs, he noted.

Community development, formerly a small section of the Administrative Management Department, has experienced probably the greatest increase.

Verrue said that several programs, brought on by a combination of new federal regulations and increasing community demands for services, have begun over the past 10 years.

Community relations didn't exist then, and neither did the three neighborhood facilities centers, he said.

"The purpose of the community-relations department is to attempt to bring the community closer to city hall and to serve as a liaison with various local organizations," Verrue said.

From a small department of two or three, community development has grown to 55 people. Two large federally supported housing programs, leased housing and housing assistance, have added 17 positions alone, he noted.

The department also services the three redevelopment projects now under way, Verrue said. The city manager's office actually has added only three people to the original staff of 13, Verrue explained, to take care of the increasing transportation needs of the public.

The reason for the big jump was that three departments, personnel, affirmative action and manpower affairs, have been shifted to the manager's office.

The expenses of the three departments have been added to the manager's budget.

"Everyone wants us to cut expenses, until we start to cut their pet program," Mayor Thomas

Clark told the audience at a transfer-tax hearing. "No one wants to tell us where to cut."

Car broken into Paul L. Colburn of Long Beach told police that burglars broke into his car while it was parked at 20 Chatwin Ave. and took tools and a spare tire valued at $352.

How to become a Secret Witness

Secret Witness seeks information from the public leading to the capture of fugitives and the arrest and conviction of criminals.

This is how the last page of your "Secret Witness" letter should look after you have typed or printed your information about a crime.

DO NOT SIGN YOUR NAME. Instead, select a code number for yourself. ... try some, as long as it's not your own ... and place it and a code number at the bottom of your letter. The code number should combine three letters and three numbers in any combination.

Teat off and keep a corner of the last page, with the code number and number on it. Mail your letter to "Secret Witness," P.O. Box 67, Long Beach, 90801.

George A123C3

anted fund of $100,000 has been established by the Independent, Press-Telegram to be used for rewards of varying amounts.

Identities of informants will be kept secret.

You will be paid a reward if the information you give Secret Witness results in the arrest and conviction of a criminal or the capture of a fugitive in cases publicized in this column. Rewards also will be paid for information given to Secret Witness resulting in arrests and convictions, or the capture of fugitives, in cases not published in Secret Witness.

To contact Secret Witness, telephone 438-2526 from 8 a.m. to midnight on weekdays, or from 3 to 11 p.m. on Saturdays and Sundays. Do not give us your name. Or write to: Secret Witness, P.O. Box 67, Long Beach, Calif. 90801.

Secret Witness Selected cases, rewards

The Independent, Press-Telegram's Secret Witness program has resulted in the arrest of 57 criminal suspects and fugitives from justice since the program was inaugurated on June 10, 1972, with rewards totaling $38,500 paid or committed on conviction of suspects waiting trial.

Additional reward money available for informants is specified in the caselist below, one of the selected and varying summaries of 10 Secret Witness cases printed in the Independent and Press-Telegram each Sunday and Thursday.

Cases are dropped from the summaries from time to time, but rewards will remain in effect for these until such cases have been closed by police or until notification in print that reward offers have been withdrawn.

Rewards also will be paid for information leading to the arrest and conviction of suspects in any other major criminal cases, whether covered in these summaries or not, and for the apprehension of fugitives from justice. These rewards will vary in amount depending on the seriousness of the offense.

To ensure eligibility for Secret Witness rewards, informants are required to channel all information directly through Secret Witness — that is, to notify Secret Witness first — either by calling the special Secret Witness telephone number or by writing in care of the Secret Witness post office box.

Today's summaries follow:

— A $2,000 reward is offered for information leading to the arrest and murder conviction of the slayer of Alfred R. Miller, 44, of Long Beach, shot down beside his car after leaving the Skylight Bar at 16133 S. Atlantic Ave. in Compton at 9:50 p.m. Nov. 16, 1975.

— A $500 reward will be paid for information leading to the arrest of fugitive Charles Mack, 23, wanted in connection with a series of apartment-house armed robberies throughout the Southland since last February, with bodily injury suffered in two of the robberies and the rape of a female manager in another. Mack is a black man, 5 feet 9 inches tall, 150 pounds, with black hair and brown eyes. In the event he is convicted on armed-robbery charges, the Secret Witness providing information leading to his capture will be eligible for an additional $500 reward.

— A $2,000 reward is offered for information leading to the arrest and murder conviction of the slayers of George W. Harrison, 50-year-old chef at Peppy's Steak House in San Pedro, found stabbed to death in his home at 261712 S. Pacific Ave. in San Pedro at about 7 p.m. on Aug. 22, 1975.

— A $2,000 reward will be paid for information leading to the arrest and murder conviction of the slayer of Douglas Rehphol, 32-year-old music teacher moonlighting as an Anaheim taxi driver, found stabbed to death near his cab on Sunset Road south of Ball Road in the Anaheim area on the night of Oct. 12, 1974.

— A $2,000 reward will be paid for information leading to the arrest and murder conviction of the slayer of Andrea "Trecey" Logan, 5-year-old Long Beach girl found strangled in an alley back of 136 Walnut St. near her home on May 7, 1974.

— A $2,000 reward is offered for information leading to the arrest and murder conviction of the slayer of Jose Ballesteros, 18, of Wilmington, stabbed to death by a group of young men as he was walking to his nearby home from a bus stop on I. Street near Lakme Avenue at 10:45 p.m. on March 17, 1975.

Historic house redone

By PATRICIA de LUNA
Staff Writer

General Phineas Banning was never a passive man. Even now, 90 years after his death, he still seems to inspire people to get things done. Banning, although he never made the school history books, is considered father of Los Angeles Harbor, a pioneer of Southern California.

"Banning is a great character who has been lost in history," says Oliver Vickery, an elderly man who has spent much of the last ten years researching Banning history. Banning was a big man, he says, known for his wit and hospitality.

Banning first arrived in California in 1851 from Delaware. He was 20-years-old and the kind of man to set his jaw to an idea and refuse to take no for an answer. He accomplished many things.

His most visible achievement perhaps was his three-story Greek revival home, built in 1864, which was turned over to the state in 1927 and has since been named an historical landmark.

More recently, Banning house has come under the care and attention of Dr. Robert Haas, head of extension arts at UCLA, and a team of interior designers and students, volunteer committees, and a new director, Beverly Bubar — all of whom are working on its restoration.

The stately 30-room house sits on M Street, Wilmington, surrounded by 20 acres of Eucalyptus trees in the middle of Banning Park. The park has long been popular with neighborhood residents for family picnics, tennis matches, and wisteria festivals, but until the restoration work began on the house there hadn't been that much to see on the tours. Much of the building had been closed to the public.

When restoration is completed the house will chronicle Banning, his achievements, the history and the culture of that period. Haas, an authority on Victorian houses, praises the high quality of the Banning structure compared to the few other existing California homes of the Civil War era and predicts that as a tourist attraction, Banning house could become as popular as Mt. Vernon.

"THIS HOUSE MARKS the beginning of the American era in the West," says Ms. Bubar. Many historical houses have become museums in the East, she says. Not so in the West. "Adobes have been restored but little that architecturally represents the American beginning."

"This house is similar to an upper New York State house of 1840. It is architecturally representative of the late Federal or Greek revival period." Banning house, says Haas, is probably the type of home Banning would have had in Delaware.

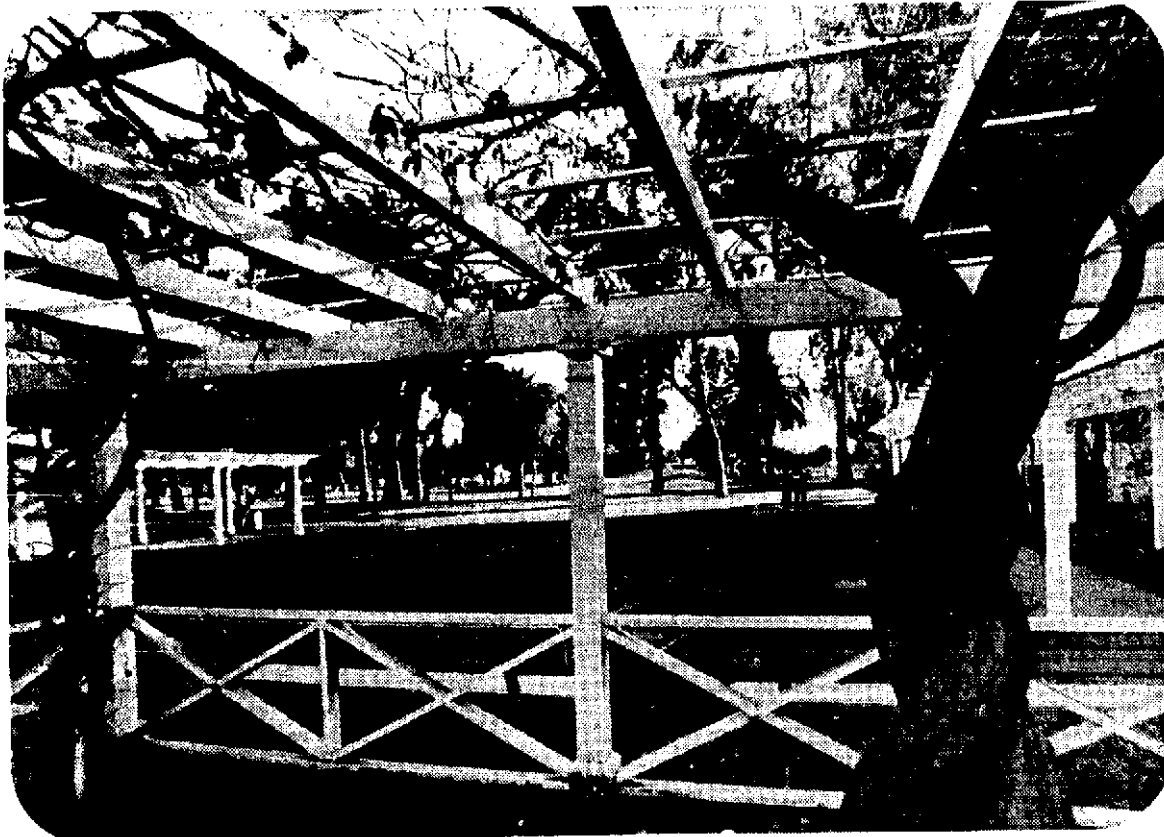

"There are no photographs of the interior so we don't know exactly how it was," says Ms. Bubar. But a committee of research designers and UCLA students have been delving into the past for any and all information on such things as the popular colors of the period and Banning's style of entertaining. "They're taking a look at how the family lived and how the West was. What sold in the stores and what was printed in the newspapers," says Haas.

"We're more interested in representing the peri-

Glad you asked that!

SIR Laurence Olivier — not from acting family.

SINGER Tom Jones — his baby has grown up.

ACTOR Steve McQueen — setting record straight.

Q: As part of his misspent youth, didn't superstar Steve McQueen serve a prison term? — Flo Variday, Indianapolis.

A: Not prison. But Steve did spend some time in Boys' Republic — a California school for troublemakers.

Q: How old is Laurence Olivier? And wasn't his father an actor too? And what's he going to do after filming "The Marathon Man" in New York? — Jill Williams, Queens, N.Y.

A: Sir Laurence signed a year's contract with Granada TV. And will be spending the winter as head of contemporary drama with that network. He'll also direct and, if the spirit moves him, appear in several productions. Born in England on May 22, 1907, the veteran was the youngest son of a minister, not an actor.

Q: Is it true that the U.S. is hiring Indian medicine men to help provide care to Indians? — L. Jackson, Portland, Ore.

A: So far, that's only a suggestion proposed by Herbert Fowler, M.D., director of the University of Oregon mental health project. A psychiatrist, Fowler believes "a medicine man can help bridge the gap between this world and the Indian world."

Q: I've heard that James Caan's co-star in "The Killer Elite" is a Vietnamese beauty. Is that true? — Franklin Spencer, Orlando, Fla.

A: Yes. Tiana is a Saigon-born Vietnamese actress who conceals quite a belt — a brown belt in karate. She studied the martial arts under Bruce Lee. He introduced her to writer-producer Stirling Silliphant — now her husband.

Q: Is panelist Peggy Cass married? And was she related to the late Mama Cass? Also, what is her age? — Mrs. E.S. Wiseman, Seattle, Wash.

A: To tell the truth, Mary Margaret Cass will hit 51 this May 21. She was no kin to Mama Cass — whose real name was Cass Elliot. Peggy was married and divorced from Carl Fisher and has no children.

Q: She must be kidding, but my girl says that Flip Wilson, when he suns himself, uses suntan lotion. Is this true? — M.P.O.R., Jersey City.

A: Why not? He uses it for the same reason everyone else does — to prevent a burn. "I've been using the stuff," Wilson flips, "ever since I got a painful sunburn in the Bahamas seven or eight years ago." He even did a TV commercial for one of the popular brands.

Q: Why the big mystery about the identity of Tom Jones's secretary? Is she a secret romance or something? — Sonja Risman, Cincinnati.

A: No. "she's" a he — Tom's son, Mark. The 17-year-old Jones boy is making his mark helping to handle his father's fan mail as well as some secretarial chores. Recently a gushing girl broke through the tight security in Caesar's Palace where Jones was appearing and screamed: "I want Tom Jones's baby — I want his baby!" Mark comforted her with this squelcher: "You've got him. I am his baby!"

hy gardner

Q: We thoroughly enjoyed those two new TV shows, "Medical Story" and "Doctors' Hospital." Since they were critical of the medical profession I supposed that the AMA used pressure to have them cancelled. Anything to this? — Dina Kennedy, Milwaukee.

A: Wrong diagnosis. Unhappily for both series, not enough viewers felt the way you did. Accordingly the shows expired from low-pressure ratings — not high pressure from the AMA.

Q: Actor Donald Sutherland used to be a real busy political activist. What are his thoughts about politics in this country today? — Gloomy? — Harold Knight, Pittsburgh.

A: No — groovy. "In the U.S." Don's observed, "you get the very worst and the very best of politics ... I believe strongly that the most exciting new political moves and the biggest changes for the better will eventually come out of America."

Q: Somebody must be pulling my leg — swearing that there are two virgins on the Miami Dolphins. Check, please. — Betsy Doniker, Coconut Grove, Fla.

A: You heard right! They're brothers — Herbert and Charles Virgin, the Dolphins' team of team doctors.

TV PANELIST Peggy Cass — different from late Mama Cass.

COMEDIAN Flip Wilson — seeks slow burn from sun.

ACTOR Donald Sutherland — former political activist believes in U.S. system.

Shy as herself, she's confident in any other role

By BERNARD GAVZER

Once upon a time, there was this really ugly kid — not just ugly, but uhgggily — all blonde hair and pug nose and lantern jaw and braces bracketed by fat lips who was born in Passaic, N.J., no less, and whose granny would touch her on the head and say, "Duzo rozni!"

Which, as any Polish person would know, means: "Grow tall!"

And when she did, she was 5 feet 6 inches and her name was Loretta Jane Swit, but she was no longer an ugly duckling.

Instead, she was sexy enough and blonde enough and comphy-dumb enough to be the gulleful, predatory Major Margaret "Hot Lips" Houlihan of M*A*S*H. Which she still is.

She has also stepped admirably into the role of Doris, in the two-character Broadway comedy hit, "Same Time Next Year." Prospects are that she'll remain in the show until the call comes to do 1976-77 season segments of M*A*S*H.

The memory of her grandmother's benediction came like a flashback as she spoke recently of what had placed her on the headlong path to the theater. "Everytime she saw me, my grandmother on my mother's side would touch me and say, 'Duzo rozni.' I know that it literally means, 'Grow tall.' But it means much more. It means 'sprout'; 'fly.' I took it for granted," she said.

PERHAPS THE moment of realization, or fulfillment, came when she packed her bags and said, goodbye Passaic, hello New York, which was shortly after graduation from Pope Pius High and sometime before taking drama courses with Gene Frankel and her first chance on stage as understudy for the key role in "Any Wednesday."

And when interviewers ask her what was her first break, her standard reply is: "Leaving Passaic."

But it's not as though Loretta has any umbrage for the town or its folks. "My family just didn't understand me," she said. "There's nothing that would have made them so happy as for me to get married, have a flock of kids and live a block away. That would still make them happy."

There appears little prospect of Ms. Swit becoming Mrs. anything, she says, because right now there isn't anybody who comes within two light years of being the right Mr.

"I don't want to talk about that," she said, "that" being any part of her romance, past or present.

Besides sex, she doesn't like to talk about politics or a long litany of insecurities she possesses. Although on stage or in TV she seems strongly in command, she confesses to a vulnerability that is almost frightening.

"I guess I tend to hide," she said.

INDEED, MEETING the press, she said, is always an ordeal. "It's a great struggle for me to assume that someone is really interested in me personally. I worry that I will say things that I know aren't clever or witty or interesting."

"Maybe that comes out of my family life. I come out of parents who told me that anytime you begin a sentence with 'I,' you are boring," she said.

Her family came to see her in the role created by award-winning Ellen Burstyn, and later, backstage, her mother complimented her, saying, "It's nice. You make people laugh."

LORETTA SWIT, "Hot Lips" in M*A*S*H series, and Ted Bessell star in Broadway production "Same Time, Next Year."

"Now I think I have a great sense of humor," she said. As she did, that tone of self doubt and instability vanished. Whenever she talks about acting or her passionate affair with the theater, she suddenly lands on very firm ground.

"People I work with tell me that. But they don't have to. I know I do because I like to laugh and I do laugh," she said. And as she talked it became clear that her comedic sense ranges from an appreciation of bad oneline gags to a subtle — and very cerebral — wit.

Some of that emerged as she talked of the value of having been "funny-looking," as she put it, or of not being sensationally beautiful, in the manner of, say, Catherine Deneuve. Like most aspiring actors and actresses, Loretta assumed that one requirement for success was possessing looks that could set folks off ahhing and oohing.

"I grew up wanting very much to be beautiful," she said. "But I discovered that the meaty roles go to the unclassically looking people. If I'd looked like Catherine Deneuve, I couldn't ever have done Gooch."

Gooch was the Agnes Gooch of "Mame," a juicy, sought-after role that spelled instant attention, and Loretta played it in the national company of the play.

HER LATEST COUP, landing the role of Doris in the Broadway hit "Same Time Next Year," is an exquisite one for any comedic talent. Unlike the broad comedy inherent in playing Gooch, or the slightly slapstick zaniness of "Hot Lips" Houlihan, Doris' charm and power lies in the heart of the play, in the script.

In the play, she and her lover, George (played by Ted Bessell), are on stage throughout the play. No other actors appear. The story is that of two rather middle class, average, essentially decent human beings, who happen to find themselves entangled in a romantic episode while away from their respective spouses. They find something different in one another, but the magnetism of it is not strong enough to pull them together and pull apart their marriages.

It is strong enough for them to meet again the following year, while he ostensibly is attending to income tax work for an old-time buddy and she ostensibly is attending a retreat. And they meet the next year and the next and the next. And never for more than a brief, few days together.

Through it all, they age. And so the audience sees a kaleidoscope of changing fashion in dress and furnishing and manner in the 24 years through the decades of the 1950s, 1960s and into the 1970s. There are births, deaths, kids off to school, kids and the tooth fairy, and through it all there runs the recognizable thread of real people having lived through a real period.

And in the hands of Loretta Swit and Ted Bessell there is much pleasure and laughter in those years. It is a thoroughly delightful comedy.

Doing those roles (Gooch, "Hot Lips" Houlihan, Doris), made me understand that classical beauty is a handicap," she said. "I am still the same me I was as a child; the same too-much hair and pug-nose and jaw and what you call 'generous' lips. But that's what is me."

Loretta may be no classical beauty, but she IS a person of appetizing demeanor, agreeable and pleasant, warm and friendly and very nice to behold.

She made a "Hot Lips" Houlihan kind of smile as though revealing a secret: Loretta Jane Swit is the best Polish joke around.

ADVICE TO THE TAXLORN

Future gains uncertain

Dear Mr. Smith: I own some preferred stock. The dividend is not taxed but deducted from the cost of the stock. I figure that in ten years the cost of the stock will approximate "0". Thereafter, the dividends are taxed as capital gains. Is this a sound idea for reducing inheritance tax if there is no need for the cash? — S.R.

The dividends are not taxed because the company is not earning taxable income. Circumstances could change so that the dividends, if continued to be paid, may become taxable. Furthermore, due to frequent changes in the tax laws there is no certainty that your dividends will continue to be non-taxable when received. In the meantime, you are obviously paying less income tax.

However, under the present tax law, except for the effect upon market value, there is no reduction in federal estate tax (and, I believe, all state inheritance taxes), since all assets are valued at death at their market value, not at income tax basis.

Dear Mr. Smith: I was involved in a non-injury car accident where my car had considerable damage. It took over three months to get the car repaired. During this period, I paid $500 for a rental car. May I claim the rental car fee as part of a casualty loss? Also, the insurance company refused to pay part of the mechanical damage. — M.A.

If you use your car for business, deduct all the expenses you mention in the same way that you deduct your other car expenses.

If you do not use the car 100 per cent for business, enter the personal portion as an itemized deduction and deduct the amount of the loss over the $100 deductible.

Only the amount not reimbursed by your insurance company may be deducted. If anyone at IRS questions the $500 paid out for renting a replacement car, ask the agent: "Why not?" — because temporary living expenses incurred when a family's residence burned down have been allowed.

Dear Mr. Smith: I am going to receive $6,138.36 for my I.D.A. installment certificate, at maturity. I would like to know if I would have to pay IRS when I get same, since the face amount is $5,000. — S.H.

To avoid error, wait for Form 1099, or other instructions. If not received by January 31, 1976, write to the company and request it.

Dear Mr. Smith: My wife passed away Aug. 6, 1975. During our 40 years of marriage, we acquired valuable real estate, jointly owned. We had a will that upon my death all properties would be my wife's and upon her death all properties became mine. Could you please inform me if the survivor is liable for estate or inheritance taxes? — E.D.S.

Yes, however, there will be no federal estate tax if the combined value of all your assets is $120,000 or less. As to state inheritance tax, your state allows a $30,000 exemption on the property you inherited from your deceased wife.

I believe you will benefit if you seek out a competent professional to handle these matters.

Dear Mr. Smith: I am 73. I am not working but I get a pension that must be reported as income. I have interest on savings and certificates. Do I have to file an income tax report for 1975? — M.M.L. and W.R.R.

A single individual over 65 need not file a federal return for 1975 unless gross taxable income is at least $3,100. In the case of a married couple, both over 65, the amount would be $4,900 for 1975.

The instant it happened

Bill Warneke was late, but that's what you get for being a nice guy.

Warneke had been assigned to cover the departure of New York's Mayor William J. Gaynor from Hoboken to Europe, August 9, 1910. Pretty routine stuff for Joseph Pulitzer's New York World which liked to stress the improbable.

Just as Warneke was leaving, a colleague came in with a problem. The city was replacing its fire horses with motor-driven fire engines and the World city desk wanted a shot of a horse having a last laugh. But how do you get a horse to laugh?

Warneke said he would try something on his way to Hoboken. He stopped off at a fire house and tried all the sure fire things that make horses laugh. None worked. Then an idea: he fed the animal some caramel candy. Trying to get the goo off his teeth, the horse wriggled his lips and Warneke clicked. After all, no one had to HEAR the laugh.

So, by the time Warneke boards the SS Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse, all the other photographers have come and gone. The Mayor is talking to several newsmen so Warneke takes a picture, then changes holders for just one more, your Honor.

At that moment, a man named J.J. Gallagher walks up, pulls a pistol and jerks the trigger six inches from Gaynor's head. The gun misfires. The man fires twice more, hitting the Mayor both times. He staggers as aides rush up. The would-be assassin is overpowered by 300-pound "Big Bill" Edwards, the Street Cleaning Commissioner. Gaynor, who will survive, is carried off on a stretcher and Warneke has a classic of photo journalism, proving again that it can be better late than never. And who ever heard of a laughing horse, anyway?

THE FORMULA

Cost warms your heart

If you mix a batch of this formula, you'll need very little kindling, if any, to get your fire started. And it's especially great when logs are damp.

Most lumber dealers cut lumber to their customer's specification which results in the accumulation of a goodly amount of sawdust. This waste material usually can be had for the asking, which certainly makes the price right.

The next time you have the oil changed in your car, save the used DRAIN OIL. Place about five pounds of the SAWDUST in a metal container that has a tight fitting cover. Now pour about two quarts of the oil over the sawdust and mix thoroughly with a wooden paddle or board. Note: this is a combustible mixture and should always be stored in an air-tight container.

There has never been a how-to book so practical and helpful as THE FORMULA BOOK. Hundreds of easy recipes put savings and fun into the making of your own personal and home care items. Over 200 pages of recipes, diagrams and instructions on ingredients and equipment, in a large paperback format, for only $5.95. Send to THE FORMULA BOOK, Independent Press Telegram, P.O. Box 2218, Shawnee Mission, Kan., 66201.

HOLIDAY EXCITEMENT at the Los Carrios home of Don and Edna Montague. Their daughter, Louise Athearn, flew in from her home in San Francisco for a visit and flew right out again headed for New York and the New Year's Day Ball and Debutante Assembly at the Plaza Hotel.

Louise has not one but TWO daughters being presented at the 54th annual ball — Cynthia Anne and Meredith Louise Rohner, also daughters of Franklin Rohner of Beverly Hills.

Louise, a Long Beach native daughter, recently had her fourth book published.

For Harry Simon and Councilwoman Renee who took daughter, Amy, and spent the holidays in Barcelona, Spain, where son Matt is studying with the UC Santa Cruz campus abroad.

MORE TRAVELERS.

Lillian Mosher took a 71-day pre-holiday cruise aboard the Royal Viking Star.

The fly and cruise vacation departed from Fort Lauderdale, Fla. and took Lillian through the Panama Canal and along the coast of Mexico before stopping at Los Angeles.

Jimmie and Sylvia Way spent 43 days aboard the S.S. Prisdendam cruising to the Orient via Alaska.

HOME AGAIN after a month mixing business and pleasure in Hawaii and New Orleans is Marty Martinez.

PEOPLE HAD December anniversaries, too.

Such as the 25th wedding anniversary of John and Rosemary Loftus.

First they renewed their wedding vows at Mass in St. Anthony Catholic Church with Msgr. Ernest Gualeron officiating.

Family and guests then adjourned to the Loftus' home for a party hosted by their children, Bob, Joni, Christy and Toni Ann Crotty and husband, Tom.

Some 50 guests dined, danced and admired the gifts of jewelry exchanged by the couple.

A silver and diamond pendant shaped into an "R" for Rosemary and a monogram ring with initials J and R entwined for John.

THIS ONE was a surprise...

Other daughters, Kathy and Stacy, co-hosted the fete for 100 friends and family members including Ray's mom, Mildred Reed.

Highlight of the party was cutting of a four-tier anniversary cake made and decorated by Lori.

The honorees received two tickets for a Hawaiian vacation from the party goers.

IN-SIGHTS

Many monitor police radio calls

What's the most popular radio station in town?

I asked that of a number of my friends recently, and none of them guessed the right answer. Yet in cities large and small, the answer can be predicted with consistency.

Of course, most radio stations vie mightily to attract listeners, because their advertising income is greater with greater listenership. Not this station, however; it is not a commercial station. And you can't receive it on your regular radio.

Figure it out yet? No, it's not the new rage — the "CB," or citizens' band radio. While there has been a surge of interest and sales (and subsequent thefts) of CB radios, that's not the right answer. The correct answer: the police radio.

Whether you check the sales to private citizens of the "scanner" units which pick up all the police band transmissions, or whether you just talk to the police department, you'll find that the listenership is striking and growing by quantum jumps. Many stores can't keep a supply of the police radio scanners in stock.

The following menus will be served in Long Beach elementary schools in the week of Jan. 5-9. All lunches include milk.

MONDAY: Hot dog, peas, sliced pears with cherry garnish, sugar cookie.

TUESDAY: Char-broiled beef patty in a bun, pickle slices, potato salad, orange wedges.

WEDNESDAY: Chicken fried steak, mashed potatoes, strawberry-rhubarb sauce, peanut butter sandwich.

THURSDAY: Taco, carrots, applesauce, whole wheat bread.

FRIDAY: Turkey in gravy on mashed potatoes, green beans, chocolate marshmallow pudding, muffin bread.

JUNIOR-SENIOR HIGH

MONDAY: Chicken fried steak, mashed potatoes and gravy, garden peas, peach half, whole wheat bread.

TUESDAY: Chopped steak on mashed potatoes, to the constant barrage of calls and the steady activity of the police, he was much more supportive of the budget proposals. He had no idea they were kept that active.

What's so intriguing about the police radio? For some people it is a way to keep in touch, but in touch in a special way. Many of the listening senior citizens report that they feel more secure and reassured by the constant police activity they hear. They like knowing the police are on the job and available to help them should anything come up.

The constant conversation of the "helping" police at work is also another way to cut through the isolation and loneliness so prevalent these days. In spite of the population explosion, people do feel more estranged from one another, especially in the large cities. (This points to an attraction of the ci-zens' band radio, where you can do more than just listen; you can talk to others and exchange messages.)

EQUALLY significant with the police radio may be the sense of being on the inside, hearing about all the things the police are attending to — accidents, criminal investigation, errands of mercy. It's like tuning in on a secret report of "important" events as they are happening, well before the regular radio stations get the news.

And it is always exciting to eavesdrop. That's what you are doing with the police radio. The messages are in no way intended for a separate listening audience. Of course, the police are aware that there are lots of people listening in, and that sometimes complicates their work. For the citizen, there is the titillation and intrigue of overhearing someone else's conversation, picking up potential "gossip." But you aren't listening to just anybody, you're listening to the police.

We all have feelings about the police. They are the authority figures who are charged with keeping us all behaving on the right side of the law.

SINCE MOST of us are sure that the police are always watching us to see if we make a misstep, it can be particularly satisfying to have the tables turned and eavesdrop on them without their knowledge. It's like tuning into your conscience, without it being able to get back at you. Perhaps you'll catch it in a mistake, and thus feel a bit vindicated about yourself.

dr. walt menninger

ments of many senior citizens, the radio is turned on in the morning and plays all day. The same is true at my neighborhood service station.

The chief noted that one year when they were having trouble with the police department budget appropriations, the city auditor happened to get a police band radio. After listening

Rodin show now at Getty

By ELISE EMERY
Arts Editor

"Rodin's Rodin," on loan from the Maryhill Museum of Fine Arts in Washington, may be seen at the J. Paul Getty Museum through Jan. 28. The special collection of bronzes, plaster and watercolors by French sculptor Auguste Rodin is uniquely "Rodin's Rodin" because most of the pieces on display were gifts from Rodin to his friends.

"Unlike art purchased by collectors, the items in this exhibit reflect Rodin's personal taste and, perhaps, can give us a glimpse into his genius," said Dr. Jiri Frel, the museum's curator of antiquities.

He added that the exhibit is particularly interesting when seen in conjunction with the Getty Collection of classical Greek sculpture because Rodin used the basic principles of sculpture established by the Greeks.

Often called the father of modern sculpture, Rodin sometimes would separate hands, feet, arms and even heads from finished figures and then would transfer the pieces to other torsos, or would isolate the fragments to give them meaning of their own.

There is no charge for admission, but advance reservations are recommended for the museum, 17985 Pacific Coast Highway in Malibu. It is open from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Tuesdays through Saturdays.

WAUGH SMITH was first winner; Vesta Carton, second; and Dorothy Black, third, in Long Beach Art Association's January Membership Show.

You may see the exhibit until Jan. 22 at the LBAA Gallery, 800 E. Ocean Blvd. Wilbur F. Broderick, instructor of art at Long Beach City College, made the selections. He also awarded honorable mentions to Loyce Carhart, Roger Frey, Charlotte Robertson, James Benedict, Mal Morehart and Barney Boies.

Gallery hours are noon to 4 p.m. Wednesdays through Sundays.

All artists are invited to submit their work for the Long Beach Art Association's Annual All-media Open Juried Show. More than $400 in prizes will be allotted to winners selected by Helen Wurdemann, art administrator and collector, director of the Los Angeles Association Galleries and art critic for the magazine, Art in America.

Entries will be received Monday, Jan. 26, from noon to 7 p.m. The show will run from Feb. 1 through 27.

Thursday concert by Avanti Players

Four talented young women who comprise the Avanti Players will perform the fourth chamber music program of the season which Long Beach Museum of Art presents. Featured are Mary Ann Ringgold, violinist; Lynn Subotnick, violinist; Selene Hurford, cellist; and Joan Elardo, oboist.

The program will begin Thursday at 8 p.m. in Burnett Branch Library, 560 E. Hill St. There is no admission charge. The Players have chosen music by Beethoven, Mozart, Britten and Francaix.

Sidney Stafford directs this series, now in its 24th season.

MIMES Sophie Wibaux and Bert Houle in expressive movement from program to be given at Long Beach City College.

Mime: motion that says it all

Mimes Bert Houle and Sophie Wibaux will be artists-in-residence at Long Beach City College Tuesday through next Sunday giving three public performances and conducting lecture-demonstrations and workshops for dance and theater students.

The free-of-charge, open to the public performances will be presented in the LBCC Liberal Arts Campus Auditorium, Clark Avenue and Harvey Way, Friday and Saturday at 8 p.m. A special children's performance will be given in the auditorium next Sunday at 2 p.m.

Their Long Beach stay is made possible by a grant from the National Endowment for the Arts' dance touring program and the LBCC office of community services.

Houle and Wibaux met in the Paris studio of Etienne Decroux, whose former students include Marcel Marceau. The two became a mime team and currently are resident artists with the Loretto-Hilton Theater, St. Louis.

THEY WILL DO three types of mime: comic, or traditional; symbolic, which is more dramatic and intended to portray inner, invisible forces in man; and illusory mime, where the performer uses the art to create illusion of objects or movement.

"They do some very unusual types of mime in addition to mime, which is the slapstick," said Reynolds who teaches mime to college's advanced theater students.

"Houle and Wibaux do a pantomime which appears to be on dance. Both mime and dance: movement, but mime uses movement to create an illusion; dance is concerned with movement itself. He is a more dramatic form — dance very symbolic, it's not specific, more technique. In mime, what you're doing is re-creating things found in normal life. You play more character mime."

THE COLLEGE has scheduled the lecture-demonstrations and workshops so that theater classes can participate. Although both are open to the public, workshops are limited to 30 persons and all openings already have been filled. In the lecture-demonstrations, He will explain a facet of mime, then demonstrate it. These, to which the public is invited, will take place Tuesday at 4 p.m. in the auditorium on the Liberal Arts Campus; Wednesday at 8 p.m. in the gymnasium on the Pacific CoCampus, 1305 E. Pacific Coast Way; and Friday at 11 a.m. in the Liberal Arts Campus Auditorium.

Houle and Wibaux met in the Paris studio of Etienne Decroux, whose former students include Marcel Marceau. The two became a mime team and currently are resident artists with the Loretto-Hilton Theater, St. Louis.

Books to assure reading pleasure

MALCOLM LOWRY: Psalms and Songs. Edited by Margerie Lowry. New American Library. $5.95.

This is really not one book but five. It contains some of Lowry's early stories, a handful of reminiscences of Lowry by others, part of a doctoral thesis, "The Luminous Wheel: The Evolution of Malcolm Lowry's Style," by A. C. Nyland, some of Lowry's last stories, and his novella, "Lunar Causid," with an introductory note by Conrad Knickerbocker.

The book's editor, Lowry's second wife, a writer herself under her maiden name of Margerie Bonner, explains that the Psalms of the subtitle are the stories, while the Songs are the recollections.

I suppose I most enjoyed the latter. This may argue a weakness for literary gossip on my part, or it may derive from a fascination with Lowry's life as a study in transcendence. How, for one thing, given the drunkenness that blanketed so much of his life, did he get anything at all written, let alone the painstakingly textured "Under the Volcano," itself an enigmatically redemptive inferno?

Neither the early stories nor the late, nor even the novella, although it is not a negligible effort, represent Lowry at his best — it's possible that only one book does — but the themes and methods with which he wrestled throughout his career are plainly in evidence, perhaps too plainly.

The mixing of voices, of signs and symbols, the restructuring of autobiographical incidents that gradually took on paradigmatic significance for the author — everything is here, but it is a little like encountering a couple of extra Mona Lisas, one earlier, one later, one with a grin, one with a frown.

If you have read "Under the Volcano," I doubt there's any need to sell you on this volume; if you haven't, I'd suggest you read it first. "Under the Volcano," and, because of it, Malcolm Lowry, are with us to stay. — Gerald Loklin, English Dept., California State University.

Charles F. Lummis: The Man and His West. By Turbese Lummis Fiske and Keith Lummis. University of Oklahoma Press. $17.50.

Charles Fletcher Lummis (1859-1928) walked, in 1885, from Cincinnati to Los Angeles, over 3,500 miles, and became the editor of the Daily Times, a position he held until stricken by paralysis in 1887. Born in Lynn, Mass., and graduated from Harvard, he had become editor of the Scioto Gazette, in Chillicothe, Ohio.

The disease sent him to the dry country of New Mexico where his travels among the Pueblo Indians initiated what was to become an undying interest in the ancient and contemporary culture of the Southwestern Indians. In 1897-1894 he participated in an ethnological expedition to Peru and Bolivia, and in 1894, in Los Angeles, he founded the magazine Land of Sunshine, which later became Out West.

It was Lummis who established Los Angeles' Southwest Museum. He was not a professional ethnologist or archaeologist, but his well-written, absorbing books about New Mexico and Arizona aroused nationwide interest in the people who had so captivated his own imagination. His books on the Southwest, among them "The Land of Poco Tiemo," "Mesa, Canon and Pueblo," "Pueblo Indian Folk Stories," "The Man Who Married the Moon," "Spanish Song of Old California" (two volumes), were immensely popular.

He established the Sequoia League to aid the Indians and the Landmarks Club to restore the California missions. He did much to reveal the Southwest's culture to the world. He became blind, but despite that took part in a New Mexico "dig" sponsored by the Southwest Museum.

Two who knew him intimately have given us this splendid colorful biography of Lummis — his daughter, and his youngest son, Keith, who completed the book after her death. Included is a wealth of Lummis' own writings, and the volume is rich in photographs, many taken by Lummis. — NAT HONIG

Pablo Cruz and the American Dream: The Experiences of an Undocumented Immigrant from Mexico. Compiled by Eugene Nelson. Introduction by Julian Samora. Illustrations by Carlos Cortez. Peregrine Smith. $8.95.

An immigration officer who had arrested "wetbacks" once sadly told this reviewer: "I can't blame them; I'd do the same thing." One such illegal immigrant, Pablo Cruz, tells in this moving book, the most thorough first-person account of the Mexicans who furtively cross the border in their attempt to escape dire poverty and seek work in the United States.

Pablo, torn between loyalty to his country and the need to improve his lot, recounts his desperate wanderings north, sometimes on foot, sometimes by freight train, always protected by darkness. Smugglers of "wetbacks"; crooked border officials and police loom large in his story, as do his stint in a California prison for illegal entry, his experiences in a California farm labor camp where the workers were kept as virtual slaves in a ceaseless alcoholic haze; his meeting with a sympathetic woman who becomes his wife; his decision to become a United States citizen, and the achievement of a relatively stable life by his family in a small town in central California. — THOMAS TURNER

Blockage of blood aids kidney tumors

KIDNEY TUMORS may succumb to blockage of blood supply to the tumor by injection of extremely tiny beads.

Los Angeles surgeons say the procedure calls for injection of ferrosilicone colloids. These are iron microspheres suspended in liquid silicone, and they are injected into the blood supply of a kidney tumor.

The microspheres are held in place with a portable external magnet until begun, according to a report in the Lancet, a medical journal. A summary of the report appears in Skin & Allergy News, a newspaper for doctors.

USE OF THE DRUG Amantadine in pregnant women may be risky, a case report suggests.

The drug customarily is used to control Parkinson's disease (shaking palsy) and against one type of influenza.

Three doctors at the University of Colorado Medical Center, Denver, report they recently saw an infant with a heart defect. The baby's mother had taken Amantadine during the first three months of pregnancy — which encompasses the vulnerable period of formation of the heart.

The 25-year-old mother had been taking Amantadine for a movement disorder similar to Parkinson's.

The report is in the journal Lancet.

A DRUG CALLED Hydergine can bring about improvement in no fewer than 18 symptom areas among elderly nursing home patients, according to a new report.

Dr. Arthur Thibault conducted a study involving 48 institutionalized patients in Victoriaville, Quebec, Canada.

Patients treated with Hydergine experienced symptomatic relief in such areas as restlessness, appearance, initiative, fatigability, sleep difficulties, dizziness, appetite, mobility, irritability, mood, memory, interest in activities, and degree of nursing time required.

Details of the study are reported in the journal Current Medical Research and Opinion.

MORE THAN 1,000 patients have received nuclear-powered heart pacemakers in the past five years.

Dr. William M. Chardack, associate professor of surgery at State University of New York, Buffalo, says that the high initial cost of the pacemaker — about $5,000 — makes it impractical for most patients.

For selected patients, the nearly indefinite life of the power supply should make use of these units economically attractive, says Dr. Chardack, a pioneer in the development of artificial pacemakers.

Details are in Modern Medicine, a periodical for physicians.

A HEADACHE, sometimes severe, often follows a spinal tap. And it is usually worse on arising in the morning.

Dr. Elliott Liff of San Francisco says this is probably because sleeping in a flexed position raises intraspinal pressure. And this increases the likelihood of a spinal leak.

So, Dr. Liff tells his patients with post-spinal headache to sleep in a fully extended position, using pillows if necessary to keep from curling up during the night.

The report is in the journal Consult-

DR. RAND says the technique can be used for any solid tumor on the brain.

The technique can be used for any solid tumor on the brain, says its developer, Dr. Robert W. Rand, professor of neurosurgery at UCLA.

Blocking the tumor tissue causes eventual tissue death, and this causes the patient some pain and perhaps low-grade fever and loss of appetite. But these can be controlled by medications. Dr. Rand has seen no serious toxic effects from the procedure.

Details about the procedure appear in the Journal of the American Medical Association and also in the Journal of Urology.

OBESE is a major maternal risk factor and accounts for about one-fifth of maternal deaths, researchers report.

Three Minneapolis doctors say that most of the maternal deaths in their series were caused by pulmonary embolism — a clot that has traveled to the lung area.

Seven obese pregnant women died of lung clots, they report in their study of 24 maternal deaths. (All the women in the series weighed more than 175 pounds before pregnancy.)

Hemorrhage was the cause of death in six. In five the bleeding was due to a ruptured uterus (womb).

Giving anticoagulant drugs might be considered in those with a history of phlebitis (an inflammation) and in the immediate period following delivery, the doctors say. That would reduce the risk of clots and dislodgement.

The report is in the journal Obstetrics and Gynecology.

A COMBINATION of the drugs broxyquinone and broxaline may be effective in the treatment of leprosy, says Dr. S. Gangadhar Sharma of India.

When these two drugs were administered five times a day, 13 leprosy patients showed significant improvement, the doctor says.

Improvement was noticeable three to four months after treatment was

Weighing value of insurance charts

Those insurance charts are beginning to get on my nerves. You know, the ones that list what you should weigh if you have a small, medium or large frame.

I lie about my weight on my driver's license, my passport, and my application for work. What makes them think I don't lie about my weight when I apply for insurance...if only to raise the average?

The truth is, I have never found anyone who could explain to me what constitutes a small, medium or large frame. Are we to believe that life stops after a large frame? Is there nothing else beyond large? Not even "I don't want to talk about it"?

When I check the charts, I figure I'd be a fool to admit to a small frame. They're only allowed 108-116 for my height, which is 5-2. (Face it, I weighed 102 at birth and I was premature. The medium frame gives me a 110-122 leeway. I always opt for the large frame which gives me a break: 121-138 pounds.

ONE OF THE biggest jokes is the calorie number, or the little blurb on the chart that asks the musical question, "How many calories do you need?"

To calculate my caloric needs, I had to figure out if I was moderately active (since I send my oven to be cleaned I answered yes.) That meant I needed 15 calories a day per pound to maintain my body weight.

Now the chart said, "Determine how much you want to weigh." That was easy. I always wanted to weigh 102 pounds/or hang a handbag on my hipbone/whichever came first.

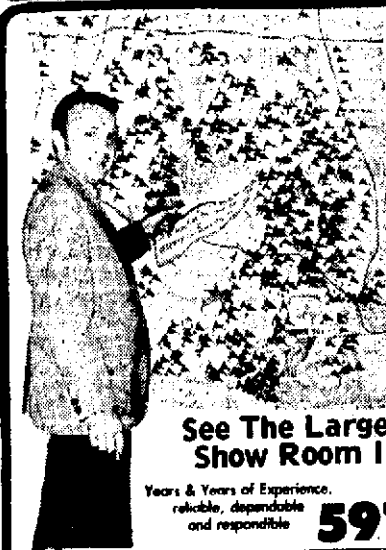

Now, multiply this by 15 which gives me 1,530. Then subtract 500, the number of calories I want my body to withdraw from my store of fat reserve.

FLEA MARKET FINDS 'Bread' in old baskets

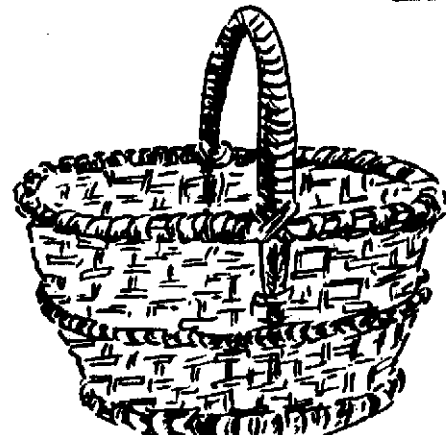

By DAN D'IMPERIO

Q. "Old baskets fascinate me, but aren't they becoming scarce?" — Faye, Phoenix, Ariz.
A. American basketmakers utilized various types of materials such as splint, straw, rattan, grass, pine needles, willow and vines. The splint types are most common. As a dating guide, the earlier types were held together by natural binding materials. Handwrought or square cut nails are other indications of an early example. Later factory made baskets usually had wire nails or metal bail handles. Finely crafted baskets disappear off flea market tabletops swiftly particularly those attributed to American Indians, Shakers or the Pennsylvania Dutch. Value guide: Early Pennsylvania splint type, woven handle $80.

Q. "When was Vaseline glass popular?" — Mrs. R. L., Gainesville, Fla.
A. This greenish yellowish glass was the rage of the late 1800s. Because its color resembled that of petroleum jelly, it was dubbed Vaseline glass. However, some antiquers persist in referring to it as Canary glass. It was made by various American glasshouses, and some pieces originated in France. Ornamental and utilitarian articles won customer approval. Knowledgeable buyers rarely permit a piece of Vaseline glass to slip through their fingers. Value guide: Spooner, wildflower pattern, $30.

Q. "Do St. Louis World's Fair, 1904, items warrant collector attention?" — Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Springfield, Mo.
A. Souvenir hunters had a marvelous time acquiring small remembrances at this noteworthy fair. The trifles they purchased are now treasured pieces of Americana. St. Louis World's Fair value guide: Cup and saucer, Education Building, $16; paperweight, Palace of Transportation, $25; plate, Festival Hall and Cascade Center, $20; playing cards, Fair-ground views, $30; tumbler, ruby stained, $24.

Q. "Please discuss old pot lids." — Doris, Troy, N.Y.
A. Because the majority of colored pot lids originated at the F. & R. Pratt firm of Staffordshire, England, they are often referred to as "Pratt pot lids." However, many other major and minor potteries produced them in the 19th century. The Pratt factory won a medal for their display of box covers at the Exhibition of 1851. These small round, oval or oblong boxes with colorful lids were made as receptacles for pomade, fish paste, shrimp and other products. Many Pratt pot lids bear the signature or initials of talented artist and engraver Jesse Austin. Collectors have discovered plenty of profits in old pot lids. Value guide: Village Wedding, $70.

KEEPING TRACK: Psychiatric clinic for children needs volunteers to keep track of appointments and post charts.

ROBERT L. GETMAN

CHEF OF THE WEEK Has number of abilities

Whether his is the voice that you hear on the other end of the line when you've reached a wrong number, we're not sure. We ARE sure, however, that whether it was your mistake, or the faulty wires attached to your phone, today's chef of the week, Robert L. Getman, can fix it.
He's service manager for the General Telephone Company, Long Beach Division. He started with the company in 1948, as an instrument shopman.
Getman grew up under the protection of the Statue of Liberty on Staten Island, N.Y., where he was born. Following graduation from high school there, he entered the U.S. Army Signal Corps, where he served for 4 1/2 years during World War II. He was a master sergeant in the signal section of Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters.
One of the most important events in his war experience took place in Brisbane, Australia. It was there that he met June Petrie of Toogoolawah, mildred flannery

Queensland, Australia. She was working in the Defense Department in Brisbane. They have been married 31 years.
Following his discharge from the army, he and his bride moved to New York City where he worked briefly for a brokerage house. They couldn't forget Long Beach, however, so they decided to make this their permanent home, and the telephone company his place of business.

Getman and his wife have two married daughters. Kay and her husband live in Lakewood, while Melanie and her family live in Huntington Beach. There's also a little granddaughter, 3 1/2, named Melange Michelle. The family is living in anticipation of the month of February, when another grandchild will make its debut.

GETMAN IS A MEMBER of the Downtown Lions Club which he joined in May of '73, and has two years perfect attendance.

His hobbies include the whole family, their greatest interests are camping, fishing and traveling. At the present time they have a mobile home in Palm Springs and spend most weekends there. They love to swim, bicycle, and our chef has been trying to upgrade his game of golf for the past two years. Yes, he's optimistic about it!

June says he doesn't cook too much, and is relatively conservative around the kitchen. Well, after all, we'll bet their telephones are operating perfectly.

Today, his recipe is for Beef Olives.

BEEF OLIVES
Cut (1) round steak in strips approximately 6 inches long and 2 inches wide — and bacon in similar size strips. Place bacon on each piece of round steak — roll and secure with toothpicks. Dip in flour and brown each "olive" in oil to cover bottom of saucpan. add medium size onion, chopped, salt and pepper to season. When all "olives" are browned, add water to cover and simmer until tender. (Serve with mashed potatoes and a green vegetable). (Serves 4)

Aces on bridge

ira corn

Dear Mr. Corn:
Recently you answered a problem and suggested a raise to four hearts with this hand and after this bidding:

Opener	Opener Re-	sponder
4 K 8	INT	24
4 9 7 2	24	39
4 A J 7 3	49

My question is what if responder had bid three spades instead of three hearts?

Sorry in Wassau Wassau, Wisc.

Answer: I would bid three no trump, but would have some apologies ready in case the opponents rattle off too many hearts. Some good tidings might happen over three no trump.

Responder might bid four spades with a six card suit or he might bid a minor suit. If he passes, there's always the chance that hearts won't run, that partner has them, and if I'm lucky, they might not even be led!

Dear Mr. Corn:
Opener bid an every day one club and responder bid one diamond with:

4 Q 6 4 3	148
4 J 6 2
4 J 10 6
4 A J 3

What was the purpose of the one diamond response

on a three card suit?

Wondering Jo Dallas

Answer: Responder had three reasonable choices: one spade, one no trump and one diamond. One spade would be the popular choice; one no trump in the minority.

One diamond is a non-committal bid and postpones a decision. It forces for one round, does not imply a good spade suit and leaves the door open after any rebid by opener.

There is little risk in misleading opener, but he would rarely insist on playing diamonds.

Dear Mr. Corn:
Who's responsible for announcing the score at the beginning of each deal? I've been told it's the dealer. Is that right?

Sleeping Beauty Indianapolis

Answer: The laws assign equal responsibility to all players. A scorekeeper or dealer is under no obligation to keep his opponents awake.

od and styles rather than a specific time and person," adds Ms. Bubar.

"We had thought," says Haas, "that Banning lived on an ordinary level. The house is big but we thought that Banning was not lavish. Family records in the Huntington Library, however, show that the family lived in a better style than we thought. Banning cut a wide swath, much like Stanford in San Francisco."

In the dining room of the white frame home sits the original Banning table, a large mahogany oval, around which Bannings dined for 60 years. Phineas Banning liked to entertain. He would invite the socially elite of the day to fiestas and galas to celebrate the Fourth of July and Washington's Birthday and use these occasions to indulge his penchant for flowery speeches.

BANNING STARTED his career in California only one year after its admission to the union. He opened a stagecoach line and by the end of one year, he had 500 mules, 40 wagons and 15 stages, says Vickery.

But to continue against his competitors he built the first railroad in Southern California and was instrumental in bringing the Southern Pacific Railroad to the area. He succeeded in making a fortune in transportation.

During his lifetime, which ended accidentally in 1885 during a business trip to San Francisco, Banning became an admiral of the port — he also had lobbied successfully for harbor development funds — became a general in the militia, and a senator. He had 11 children, two wives, fought slavery, and founded the town of Wilmington — named after his own hometown.

The story goes that he purchased 2,400 acres of land at low cost from the Dominguez estate and virtually gave it to anyone willing to help build a town.

Banning also made ingenious use of the materials at hand to get his house built. Few carpenters, except for those sailors skilled in woodworking, could be found in California in those days. So Banning devised a trade-off. He convinced the captains of various ships to lay over for several weeks to make repairs after their rough sea voyages. He would provide the tar to caulk the seams and cracks — bringing the tar down in large barrels by wagon from the La Brea pits — in return for the labor of the ships' carpenters.

The carpenters did a fine job. In fact, Vickery likes to contrast the sturdiness of Banning House with the less sturdy main building of Banning High School, built nearly 50 years later, which had to be demolished after it failed to meet earthquake standards.

BANNING HOUSE has its original pine floors, a spiral staircase in the back of the house to the lower level, rounded balusters reminiscent of similar posts on ships, and a cupola atop the third floor where it is assumed Banning retreated with telescope to watch the harbor.

The reception room, the only room completely restored at the moment, is dedicated to the Greek revival period of the 1840's. It has a wallpaper copied from an 1850 Boston design, a flooring with the Greek key painted around the edges, period draperies, and two chairs which were found in a back bedroom and which are considered fine examples of Greek revival furniture. Another larger chair, which has a telltale stripe down the back, is a product of "one of the great furniture makers," according to Haas. The stripe represents a major breakthrough in the making of laminated wood.

"People will come to visit the Banning house just to see this chair," says Haas.

The Greek revival influence can be found also in the dolphin arms, lions paw and cornucopia design on the couch, the columns of a desk and mirror, and in the clock on the mantel.

"We put all the furniture which related in style in one room and planned around it." Much of this antique furniture was scattered throughout the house, moldering away in upper level rooms which had been closed for several years; much has come from Banning descendants, and much has been donated, including a sofa provided by Debbie Reynolds.

"We've been extremely fortunate," says Haas. "We couldn't afford to go out and buy this furniture."

WHEN RESTORATION work began four years ago, the Banning home had long been idle. "There were dead rats in every room. Mattresses were crawling with little animals."

"Volunteers came and shoveled out the debris and burned it," says Haas. "Everything had to be cleaned or washed and labeled. This took time. The rooms were badly arranged. A harness was in the living room. The rooms were chaos."

The entire interior had to be cleaned and painted — walls were painted white and the wood floors were given a darker stain. Money for this was raised by students at UCLA. "They gave terrible spaghetti dinners — which we all attended — to provide money for paint and paper," says Haas.

Great care is given to every detail. "We had 14

rugs in the reception room, but none would do what it was supposed to do." The search continues for the proper rug.

Other rooms in process of restoration include the living room, the dining room, a library which will be used as meeting room for the Board of Recreation and Parks Commissioners for Los Angeles which is in charge of Banning house, Banning's study and bedroom, his wife's bedroom and bedrooms of the various Banning children.

The library (originally constructed as two bedrooms according to Ms. Bubar) is being redecorated as a music room and family room "typical in those days." Extensive research went into the precise way to group the furniture in the long room, in planning shutters rather than draperies for the windows; in knowing that plants trained to wind around the windows would also be in keeping with the time, and in searching out family portraits for the walls.

"We may find that some of this furniture was made in California. There were few furniture makers here this early," says Haas. "It all takes lots of study."

THE DISTINCTIVE house has been used for filming "Gone with the Wind," "The Littlest Rebel," starring Shirley Temple, and more recently for television shows such as Bronk and an as yet unnamed film with Cliff Robertson. "Unfortunately," says Ms. Bubar, "none of those funds came to the restoration project."

An estimated $160,000, in addition to the $138,000 already expended by the Recreation and Parks Department on the restoration, and the $50,000 worth of donations already made, will be necessary to complete the refurbishment and start a planned educational program at the site, according to Friends of Banning Park, the nonprofit group trying to raise funds for the project.

Educational plans are for seminars on Victorian crafts, furniture restoration and cooking, a memorabilia display, and a photographic museum in what was once the Banning ballroom.

Banning house property includes one of the first carriage houses in Southern California, one of the first artesian wells, and a milk house. It is open to the public on Sundays from noon to 4 p.m. by appointment with Ms. Bubar.

DEAR ABBY

Decisions don't come easy

DEAR ABBY: This problem has bugged me for 25 years. It concerns my husband's inability to cope with anything unpleasant. I would call it his problem, only it doesn't seem to bother him. I'm the one it bothers, so that makes it MY problem, right?

When we receive bills, they could lay six months, and he'd never open them. If he gets a call from someone who wants some information he promised to company while she sits, and I said it would be all right.

Lately, both my husband and I suspect that they have been using our home as a rendezvous for improper behavior. (We have no proof — just a feeling.)

Should we now tell her that we do not want her to have any male company in our home in our absence?

If something unfortunate were to happen in our home, we would feel responsible. Are we wrong? And how should we handle it? — "THE W'S"

DEAR "W'S": You are not wrong. Tell the girl that you have changed your mind about allowing her to have her boyfriend keep her company while she sits. Because you have no "proof," and are proceeding only from a "feeling," make no accusations.

DEAR ABBY: What is your opinion of people who wear dark glasses indoors? (I don't mean "tinted" — I mean DARK, which makes it impossible to see their eyes.)

I have a friend who comes to visit me, and she never removes her dark glasses the entire time she is here. I like to make eye contact with people I talk with and I find this very frustrating.

Am I being picky? I have never made my feelings known to her.

Should I mention it? — WONDERING

DEAR WONDERING: People wear dark glasses indoors for a variety of reasons. Some do so because they have an eye problem. On the chance that this is the reason, it would be a kindness to refrain from mentioning it.

CONFIDENTIAL TO MY READERS: If you or a relative has spent three months or more in a mental hospital, please tell me what problems were encountered after returning to the community. You need not disclose your identity. Thank you. — ABBY have ready but didn't get around to, he doesn't return the call.

He puts things off indefinitely. Needless to say, this drives me up a wall.

He is a dear, sweet, loving man, and I love being married to him. He has the disposition of an angel, and he's kind and generous and everything a wife could want in a man, but his irresponsible attitude about matters that I consider important makes me want to scream.

What do you advise me to do, Abby? — "E" IN MO.

DEAR E: Face it. You'll never change this dear, sweet, loving, generous man, so roll with the punches.

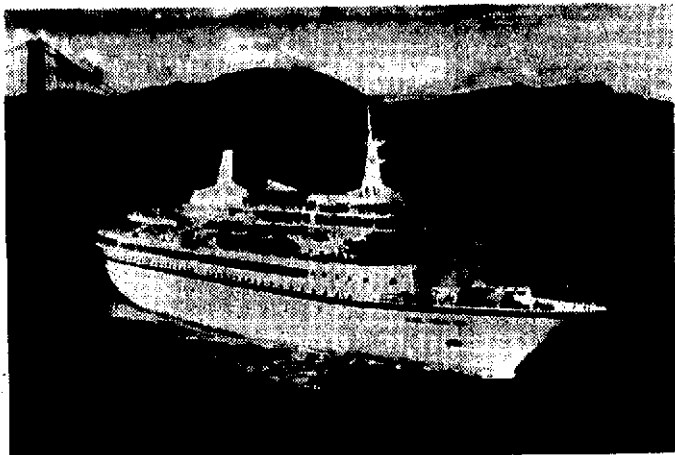

Why not take over the household bills? He may welcome the idea, and you'll know they're paid. Don't nag him. Nobody's perfect, and his faults are minor compared to some he could have.

DEAR ABBY: A high school neighbor girl sits with our children about two nights a week. She is a pleasant, quiet girl and the children love her.

She asked if her boyfriend could keep her

Sailing on charter yacht

Terre de Haut, French Antilles

We came to anchor here in a rose and blue evening. The western Caribbean was swallowing the pirates' gold sun. The little fishing village lay silent in shadows.

Les Saintes are five tiny islands in a cluster that gives them the finest harbor I've ever seen. They are too small to be pin pointed on most maps. Modest offshore satellites of the main French islands — Guadeloupe and Martinique.

Napoleon encouraged Norman and Breton fishermen to come here. The mixture with slaves from Africa has produced islanders like no others in the islands: Light chocolate skin and many blond heads.

THE CRUISE ships don't come to Les Saintes. The government says proudly that tourist business is up in Martinique and Guadeloupe — 171,000 by air, 231,000 by cruise ship last year.

The result has been to raise native made straw hats from $2 to $10. Island rum from $1 a bottle to $2 a drink. (The same St. James rum is shipped halfway around the world to French Tahiti where it sells for half as much.)

You come to these islands by yacht. We are aboard the chartered ketch Sealestial. It's 71 feet. Sleeps six, each paying $100 a day — $4,200 total for the week.

The charter people feel this is no more than cruise ship prices. They say eight of ten of their passengers have never sailed on small boats before.

"Friends of ours sat at the Captain's table on a cruise ship. Is there some way you arrange this in advance?"

If you know somebody important that does business with the shipping line, they can arrange it. The Captain's table is a public relations thing. Invitations go to people who can do the company some good.

Don't despair. A seat at the Captain's table shows you have social muscle, but the people can be stuffy. There are other officers' tables: The Staff Captain. The Chief Engineer. Sometimes the Chief Radio Officer and the ship's Surgeon.

The liveliest table is the Purser's. He gets the advance passenger list and doesn't let himself get cluttered up with stodgy people. If there are any good looking single girls, they'll be at the Purser's table — that's sly dog.

General table seating is done on sailing day by the Chief Steward. This is as chancy as roulette. You have to analyze your table swiftly.

If it looks like 14 days of boredom, split right now. Ask the Chief Steward for another table. Stay with it for three meals and it's hard to get out.

Some ships don't have

chief officers' tables. Too much headache assuring people that the Staff Captain's table is just as important as the Captain's. (Because it isn't. That's why Chief Stewards are gray-haired.)

"Our cruise line advises us to buy our shore excursions before we sail. We can buy them on the ship at each port. What do you think?"

There's a chance a shore tour might be full if you try to buy it the night before landing. I've never seen it though.

Shore tours are run by local people who stay flexible. They know there are a lot of last minute people like you. They aren't about to let you sail away with all that money.

"How should I dress the evening we board ship? Is it very formal?"

Sea going rule: No dress up the first night out of port, last night coming in to port. Wear flat shoes.

There's often a heavy ground swell as you're getting out to sea. The ship rolls. Hang onto railings. Wedge bottles into corners or you'll come back from dinner to find everything on the floor.

The holiday travel crush has ended and space is now available on nearly every flight.

As 1976 starts off it is a great time to start planning for your business and pleasure travel.

Air-sea combination packages and cruises are becoming more and more popular and space is already selling heavily on Alaska, Mexico, and Caribbean Cruises.

European and Orient tours are equally popular and often feature all-expense trips that assure you total enjoyment at fixed prices within everyone's budget.

We strongly urge our readers to plan early for best tours at the lowest prices. Usually a small down payment will protect your space on that long awaited trip you've been thinking about.

Start the year off right by stopping in for a friendly visit with our trained staff at any of our 3 offices. Happy New Year!

Long Beach area travel agents and the Independent Press-Telegram will co-sponsor a 14-day Royal Viking Lines Alaska-Canada cruise starting from the Port of Los Angeles June 14.

Two lucky readers will win free passage aboard the luxurious Royal Viking Sea in the I.P.T. Grand Prix Race Game contest announced elsewhere in this edition. Readers also will share $7,800 in cash during the 13 weeks of the contest.

Winners of the 12 $50 prizes to be awarded weekly will be included with several hundred other contestants drawn at random for the Grand Prize drawing in April, giving them a chance at both cash and the cruise for two.

The cruise will be the maiden voyage to the Pacific Northwest of the Royal Viking Sea, newest of the three sister ships in the Viking fleet. Festive welcoming ceremonies will greet the vessel in ports at either end of its voyage through Canada's Inside Passage to Alaska.

THE HIGHLIGHT of the cruise will be the full-day visit to spectacular Glacier Bay on June 21. Twenty frozen rivers converge here to form a rugged coastline reminiscent of the fjords of Norway. A blast of the ship's whistle may trigger avalanches from the wall of ice ringing the bay.

Ports of call en route to the frozen frontier include Victoria, British Columbia; Juneau, the picturesque capital of Alaska, and Haines, a center of Alaskan Indian arts, crafts, music and dances. The Eskimo outpost of Sitka marks the beginning of the return voyage to Los Angeles via Prince Rupert, B.C.; Vancouver, the western Canada metropolis, and a Sunday stop in San Francisco.

In port, the Royal Viking Sea serves as palatial hotel, gourmet restaurant and base for optional land tours. While cruising at sea, I.P.T. party members will have leisurely days to set an active or relaxed pace of their choice. Shipboard facilities include deck sports, swimming pool, gymnasium, sauna, card rooms, night club, film theater and lounge with live entertainment.

In addition to other shipboard activities, the Royal Viking Line features an educational program conducted by experts in a wide variety of fields ranging from history to the space program and from opera to fashion. Passengers may meet informally with lecturers in discussion groups or after-dinner meetings.

The 22,000-ton Norwegian flag vessel offers all first class accommodations for approximately 500 passengers. Cost of the 14-day I.P.T. Alaska-Canada cruise starts at $1,330 per person for an outside double stateroom.

STEVE TSIPSTIS
Glorious Sunday champagne brunch

IT'S A GLORIOUS way to go on Sunday. It's the colorful, multiple-dish gourmet brunch in Hugo's restaurant at the Edgewater Hyatt House, a perfect place to relax after church or 18 holes of golf.

The Edgewater is a large hotel at 6400 E. Pacific Coast Highway. Hugo's can't be seen from the highway, since it's inside the hotel. Nevertheless, that imaginative buffet has been discovered by scores of happy people who know it's served every Sunday between 10 a.m. and 3 p.m. They return again and again to sample the delights, including a glass of champagne, assorted fruit juices, sliced fresh fruit, a variety of cold cuts and different salads and such hot entrees as eggs Benedict, scrambled eggs, sausage, bacon, chicken crepes a la reine, fresh chicken livers sauteed with mushrooms, hashbrown potatoes, rice pilaf, twist rolls, blueberry muffins and perhaps such special European additions as quiche Lorraine, a pastry shell with French stuffing.

The brunch is $3.95 for adults and $2.95 for children. The artistic buffet display is the result of careful planning by Steve Tsipstis, the hotel's food and beverage manager; Antonio Jacobo, its extremely accomplished executive chef, and Frank Jimenez, Hugo's talented maitre d' who was recently promoted to manager of Hugo's and the hotel's coffee shop.

Hugo's is a glamorous restaurant with the kind of elaborate table settings one finds in the finest, traditional restaurants of Europe, New York or San Francisco. It is named in honor of Hugo (Skip) Friend, a top executive with the Hyatt corporation, a man who is described by his friends as "a superhuman being."

Hugo's starts serving its beautiful dinners on Sundays at 5:30, including its classic beef Stroganoff. Hugo's is the only restaurant in this area that creates its Stroganoff on a cart at the guests' table. The action is beautiful to see as the waiter or maitre d' Frank makes it "from scratch" using fresh mushrooms, the choicest slices of beef, sour cream, butter, onions and wine. It's $7.50 on the complete dinner, which is unusual because it includes such a variety, ranging from relish tray to garden salad, a little cone of tart sherbet to refresh the tastebuds between courses, the freshest vegetables, mixed brown rice or potatoes, a selection of freshly cut fruits and after-dinner liqueurs such as cordials or warm plum wine.

Also featured are such entrees, $5.50 to over $9, as the "catch of the day," sauteed halibut with pecan butter, filet of sole saute meuniere, giant sauteed prawns, the best prime rib au jus, double French lamb chops, choice steaks and lamb shish kebab.

WHEN HE FIRST became part of the French Riviera restaurant's staff two years ago, women guests occasionally nudged one another and whispered: "Look at that handsome man. I wonder who he is..."

His name is Orson Kapri and he's one of the owners of the French Riviera, South Street near Paramount Boulevard, one of Long Beach's most amazingly successful restaurants because it serves such outstanding luncheons and dinners at such unbelievably low prices. Orson is the quiet owner, soft-spoken and gracious, always handsomely dressed. His partner is Mehmet (Frenchy) Gunsay, who ranges from quiet to occasionally explosive. Mehmet is just as gracious as Orson, but he has a completely different style. A rapid-fire machine gun cannot speak as rapidly as Mehmet.

The third and newest partner at the French Riviera is Arthur Garcin, the executive chef. He is a prize, an award-winning Frenchman who knows all the secrets of creating wondrous soups, the best salad dressings and veal, seafood and beef creations with the richest, most delectable wine sauces. You'd think that with a chef like Arthur on the premises the French Riviera would raise its prices. But no! Mehmet, Orson and Arthur don't wish to offend anyone; they insist on serving the French Riviera's specialties at those quaint prices reminiscent of the early 1960s.

Among the dinner treats at the F.R. is pan-fried whitefish, merely $2.45 with tureen of soup for complimentary second helpings; salad, rice, deep-fried zucchini (wonderful!) and loaf of the freshest hot bread with butter. It's such a splendid value it would cost at least $4.50 elsewhere. Other beauties on that big dinner include such continental creations as filet of sole Marguery, $3.25, with a white sherry sauce; veal Monterey with avocado, $3.25; a small (but very popular) filet mignon, $3.25; prime rib au jus, $3.45, and frog legs provencale (Cal Worthington's favorite), $3.95.

Dinner is served starting at 2 p.m. Sundays. Monday through Friday, dinner starts at 2:30; on Saturdays it is served from 4 on. Luncheon is Monday through Friday, 11:30 a.m. to 2:30. The luncheon prices are remarkable, such as the veal Monterey, $1.95 with soup and salad. Others include the French dip sandwich for $1.50 with soup and salad and hot bread, and the fancy Monte Cristo sandwich with soup and salad, $2.25.

The French Riviera has a loyal clientele who happily follow the house rules: children under 5 aren't admitted, and the guests try not to waste food, helping to keep the prices low.

Marked man

Dallas quarterback Roger Staubach, whose last-minute pass beat Minnesota last week, will be marked man today at Coliseum in NFC title game. Rams are favored by five to beat Dallas. One reason is Fred Dryer, shown pursuing Staubach in earlier game this season.

Rams Super-bound?

Harris starts against Dallas

By RICH ROBERTS
Staff Writer

"It's going to be a dogfight," they say with heavy sighs. "Dallas is always tough," comes the clenched-teeth response. Phooey!

Today's 1:05 game at the Coliseum to determine the National Conference champion of the National Football League should be only as difficult as the Rams allow it to be.

They are only talking themselves into trouble—and out of the Super Bowl—if they get carried away with the Cowboy mystique. The way to watch this one (Channel 2, thanks to the Southern California Ford Dealers Association) is to relax, make some sandwiches and don't worry on third down. A six-pack should do it.

ONE MUST keep in mind that if the visitors were called the Podunk Paupers instead of the Dallas Cowboys, they would be regarded as just a pretty good second-place team—and the Rams already have whipped the team that finished first in the NFC East, 35-23.

True, the St. Louis Cardinals don't play much defense, but the Cowboys gave up almost as many points in the regular season—268, nearly twice as many as the Rams' 135, and were burned for 20 touchdowns.

There are other considerations.

JOHN DIXON, Sports Editor
SUNDAY, JANUARY 4, 1976

In the past two weeks the Rams have beaten the defending Super Bowl champion Pittsburgh Steelers, 10-3, and the winners of the NFC's strongest division without two offensive starters, quarterback James Harris and left tackle Charlie Cowan, who will be with them today.

If there is some doubt about the condition of the bruised right shoulder that has restricted Harris' passing, it may be dismissed as a factor.

Ram coach Chuck Knox promised that he wouldn't start Harris "unless he is 100 per cent," and Harris proved to these eyes that he was sound when he reared back and pitched a perfect bomb to tight end Terry Nelson in practice at Blair Field Friday.

Ron Jaworski will play only if Harris experiences the difficulties he had in the league opener at Dallas last Sept. 20 when the Rams' own ineptitude did them in, 18-7.

Harris threw three interceptions that day. He hasn't done that since. Two of the steals—by veteran cornerback Mel Renfro, who grabbed only four all season—led directly to nine Cowboy points on a 24-yard TD drive and Toni Fritsch's 19-yard field goal.

A poor punt snap by center Bob DeMarco gave Fritsch another of his four field goals, and when Ron Jessie beat the defense only to flat-out drop what should have been an 81-yard touchdown pass from Harris, the Rams knew it wasn't their day.

Without those abnormal occurrences, the score would have been Rams 14, Cowboys 6.

Even Dallas coach Tom Landry admits, "That wasn't a true measure of the kind of team Los Angeles has. I'm sure they weren't especially high for the game, not when you consider they beat us, 35-7, in pre-season . . . and I think we surprised ourselves by the way we played."

THAT GAME first established Landry's latest innovation, the shotgun formation, as mankind's greatest weapon.

Again, phooey!

UCLA was up for the Irish

By GARY RAUSCH
Staff Writer

Gene Bartow, wouldn't come right out and say it, but UCLA's decisive 86-70 victory over Notre Dame Saturday afternoon took the weight of the world of the Bruin head coach's shoulders.

How would you feel if the opposing coach spent five minutes before the biggest game of your season to date talking with your predecessor. But, lo and behold, there was Digger Phelps and John Wooden conversing like long, lost fraternity brothers in Section 4A of Pauley Pavilion.

With spirited defense, sparkling shooting plus an unexpected assist from Digger himself, UCLA streaked past the Fighting Irish and extended its home court winning string to 91 games.

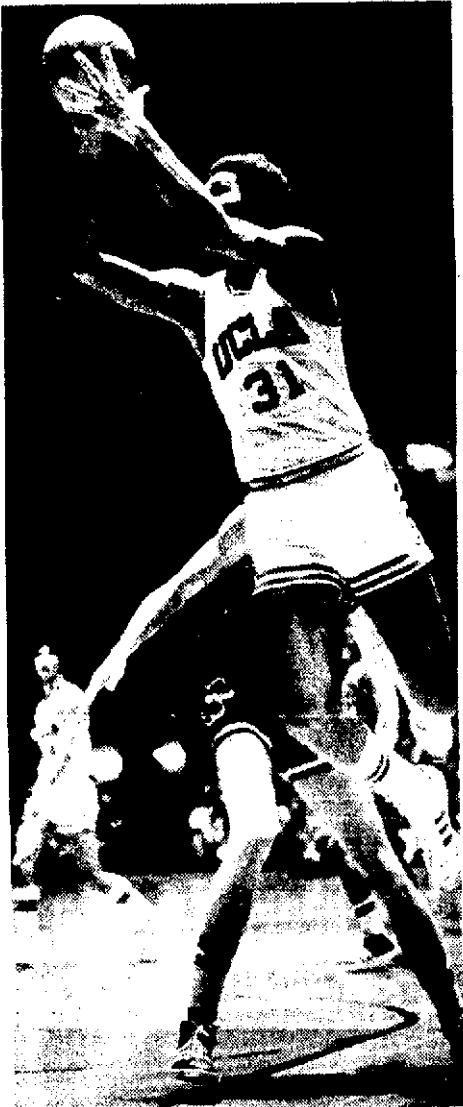

Knowledgeable fans in the crowd of 12,741 and a nationwide television audience give Bartow the benefit of the doubt over the season-opening loss to Indiana (84-64). It was not a fair test for the new coach or his young players.

Notre Dame was.

The Irish arrived with only a three-point defeat at Indiana and two-point slip against Kentucky in Louisville to mar their seven-game season. If Bartow was ever to get the wolves off his back, Saturday was the time.

He matched muscle against muscle in pitting his all-America forward Marques Johnson with Notre Dame's all-everything, Adrian Dantley. His theory was that Dantley would get his points (28.7 average), but try and contain him as best as possible and really concentrate on the other four starters.

It worked to perfection.

Two for the total

UCLA's Richard Washington climbs invisible ladder and pumps through 17-foot jump shot in first half of Pauley Pavilion game against Notre Dame Saturday. Washington canned 10 of 16 floor attempts and was Bruins' top scorer with 24 points in 86-70 victory.

Lakers fall asleep

Weekend sweep for Warriors

By DOUG IVES
Staff Writer

OAKLAND—A promising start turned into a miserable finish for the Lakers Saturday night.

Leading by 16 points early in the second period, the Lakers gave Kareem Abdul-Jabbar a rest. It signaled 34 minutes of slumber time as the Golden State Warriors outscored them 108-63 the rest of the way to post a 130-99 victory.

By sweeping the Lakers Friday and Saturday the Warriors improved their record to 25-8, best in the NBA, and opened up a 6½-game lead over the Lakers in the Pacific Division.

With a home game against Portland tonight preceding a seven-game road trip, the Lakers must now concern themselves with the threat of losing second place to onrushing Seattle and Phoenix.

Golden State made only 6 of 27 shots in the first period, trailing 32-20. But the scoring was sensational after that (more than 60 per cent) until the final five minutes when coach Al Attles poured in his reserves.

SUBS for the Warriors don't necessarily mean a letdown, however. In fact, it was sizzling reserve guard Gus Williams, a rookie from USC, who marshalled the Warriors' rally.

Williams scored 13 in the second period, lifting the Warriors to a 56-56 tie, then he started the third quarter and pumped in eight points to boost his team into an 87-79 lead.

The fourth period was a joke, at least as far as the Lakers were concerned. The Warriors scored 43 points, 29 by the subs. Golden State's bench provided 38 points for the night compared to 14 for the Lakers.

Williams finished with 27

LBSU dedicates the win to Jones

By JIM MCCORMACK
Staff Writer

It was a strange dedication.

"That one was for the coach," Larry Hudson smiled Saturday night, moments after he and his Long Beach State teammates had rallied to subdue the Colorado Buffaloes, 67-64.

"Coach (Dwight) Jones is really intense," Hudson continued, "and we don't like to see him getting so excited."

There was a lot for Jones, and the 3,060 49er partisans in the Long Beach Arena, to get excited about.

Among the high, and low, lights were:

- A four-point play that enabled the 49ers, who had never led, to take a 30-27 halftime advantage.

- An 8-2 spurt opening the final 20 minutes that resulted in a heady 37-29 lead for Long Beach.

- A 5:43 drought in which Long Beach was outscored, 19-2, resulting in a nine-point deficit.

- A nerve-shattering rally that enabled Long Beach to regain the lead, 65-64, on a free throw by James Dawson with 59 seconds to play and then secure its 90th victory in its last 92 home appearances.

"I still don't understand it," Jones mumbled after the 49ers had improved their season standard to 5-6.

"We got the eight-point lead by being patient on offense," the 49er coach continued, then we forgot how we'd gotten the lead and became careless.

"Our next three times down court we took terrible shots."

On each of the tactical errors, Colorado collected baskets and suddenly Colorado was on an offensive avalanche.

The six points trimmed Long Beach's lead to two and then Dave Logan got the Buffs (3-8) even at 37 with a pair of free throws

Rookie Boston goalie hands Kings 3-0 blank

By AL LARSON
Staff Writer

Who needs Bobby Orr and Phil Esposito?

The Boston Bruins proved they don't when they handed the Kings their first shutout at home

this season, 3-0, Saturday night before a sellout crowd of 16,005 at the Forum.

With 28-year-old rookie goaltender Dave Reece repulsing 31 shots, the Bruins ran their unbeaten record to 13 games (nine wins, four times)—longest in the NHL this season—while increasing their division lead over the idle Buffalo Sabres to four points.

"The big thing is we're working as a team now," said Bruin coach Don Cherry. "We've lost only three of our last 26 games since the trade. Every guy thinks of the team. If there's anyone who's selfish, he won't be playing."

Cerritos beaten, 73-61

LBCC earns some revenge

By PAUL McLEOD
Staff Writer

With 28 seconds remaining in a rematch with Long Beach City College, Cerritos' 6-9 center, Willie Howard, took a half court pass and, all alone at the Cerritos end of the Falcon gym, casually stuffed the basketball through the hoop to the delight of a partisan Falcon crowd.

The play had little to do with Saturday night's final score, 73-61, in favor of Long Beach, but it released all the frustration of the night for both Howard and Cerritos, now 11-5, and enabled the Falcon crowd to salvage something from their teams' performance until the defending South Coast Conference champions open defense of their title on Saturday.

The Falcons, who reached the finals of the state tournament last season with some uncanny shot selection, were stone cold from the field, hitting just 39 per cent from the floor for the game — and that was a 14 per cent improvement over the first half when they made just 7-of-28 field goals.

"That's definitely what put us out of the ball game," admitted Cerritos coach Bob Foerster, whose team entered the game averaging 53 per cent. "We were considerably off. Our shooting worries me, but I think it's just a temporary thing."

Viking coach Bill Fraser had a different view.

"I was really pleased with the way our defense played," he explained. "We kept making the big play and we didn't need to use the press. Our defense kept them away from the good shot."

For Howard, it was a performance of particular disappointment. The 6-9 walk-on of a year who dazzled the South Coast Conference, had scored 75 points in his last three outings, yet got only four in the first half (2-of-6) and finished with 19 points after adding several buckets in the waning minutes. He blocked four shots and grabbed nine rebounds.

The teams began the game with ice on their fingers. Cerritos managed only five points in the first 12 minutes as Long Beach fought off its own 2-for-10 performance in the early going and mounted a 12-0 blitz to lead 20-5 with 8:35 remaining in the half.

Only a total of 13 points were scored in the first 7:31 of the game. Until Long Beach found the groove with 12 minutes remaining, the Falcon court resembled a rifle range for amateurs with the teams aiming for everything and hitting nothing. With eight minutes gone LBCC led by four, 9-5.

Long Beach, despite a rocky start that sent them into the locker room hitting just 41 per cent from the floor, used its defense effectively and allowed the Falcons just three field goals in their first 18 tries. Not until Cerritos' Darrell Lane connected on a 17-footer with 7:30 remaining in the half did the Falcons put together a semblance of offense. Of the Cerritos' 17 first half points, Lane netted seven (41 per cent of the team total).

LBCC led by as many as 21 points in the second half as Rod Dalton, the leading scorer for both teams with 21 points, hit

Need a miracle? Here's your man

Drew Pearson keeps authoring frantic finishes

DREW PEARSON...miracle worker

"There's no knack to it or anything like that. It's just being lucky and in the right spot at the right time." — Drew Pearson.

If this keeps up, he'll be invited to tour with his father-in-law, who is Marques Haynes of the Harlem Globetrotters.

If this keeps up, Jerry West will relinquish his pseudonym, "Mr. Clutch."

If this keeps up, not only will spectators be frisked for hidden whisky bottles but Drew Pearson will be searched for hidden footballs, and they'll be saying that the late, great columnist was named after him.

"That would be a nice change," says the Dallas Cowboys' wide receiver, whose incredible catch last Sunday beat the Minnesota Vikings, 17-14, and rattled windows around the National Football League.

The Rams packed away their cold-weather gear for at least another year.

The Rams' offices were stormed by excited mobs... and, for the first time in memory, nobody had a rope.

The Vikings were relieved to learn that they wouldn't have to lose another Super Bowl.

THE NAME Drew Pearson became a household word in football as it once was in journalism. For his next trick... well, don't expect him to produce his last-minute lightning every week, not even against the Rams in today's National Conference title game at the Coliseum. He's already done it to them once.

"I remember that vividly," Pearson says. "It was my rookie season, my first playoff game and I'd caught a touchdown pass earlier in the first period. Then to catch that one was really a big thrill to me—the biggest thrill of my career at the time. Now this one comes ahead of that."

Ram fans haven't forgotten, either. It was the 1973 first-round playoff game in Dallas when the Rams had come back to 17-16 after a bumbling start and appeared ready to take command. Then Roger Staubach, scrambling desperately, saw Pearson flashing across the middle, launched a prayer into the Texas sky, a Ram defender fell down, taking another out of the play, Pearson caught the ball and completed an 83-yard touchdown play.

Pearson struck again the following season when he caught a 56-yard pitch from Clint Longley to beat the Washington Redskins in the last 35 seconds, 24-23.

CLEARLY, PEARSON is a tremendously talented athlete—he was all-pro last season—but he doesn't mind his feats being called "miracles."

"I don't resent it," he says. "You call it that because of the situation. Everything seems hopeless and all of a sudden you come up with a play that wins the game for you."

"I know I was lucky to be able to catch the ball. There's no knack to it or anything like that. It's just being lucky and in the right spot at the right time."

The Cowboys pride themselves on building from the draft—running back Preston Pearson (no relation) is the only player not originally signed by the club—but the fact is that they didn't draft Drew at all.

At New Jersey's South River High, he was an all-state center-fielder, an all-county forward in basketball and a quarterback in football. He didn't switch to wide receiver until his junior year at Tulsa University, and then the team ran the ball most of the time.

"I didn't have the opportunity to make any plays such as I've made in professional football," he says.

BUT THE COWBOYS took him to their Thousand Oaks training camp as a free agent and he worked his way into the starting lineup in time to do in the Rams in the playoffs.

Will he do it again? Pearson usually is as surprised as anyone by the spontaneity of his act.

"We're that kind of team," he says. "We try to do whatever it takes to win."

At Minnesota, Pearson hadn't caught a single pass until the final drive, when he caught four for 91 yards.

"It had been frustrating all day," Drew says. "He hadn't thrown any passes to me. My team was losing. The season was about to end... and I was a little upset that I hadn't made the Pro Bowl team again."

"Roger had asked me earlier what I was getting open on. I told him I was loose on the corner route, and we hit it for that big play on fourth down. Then I thought I could get loose on a streak route."

"I gave him (Minnesota cornerback Nate Wright) a little inside fake but he didn't bite. The ball hit right in my hands. Then he (Wright) hit my arm and the ball slipped but stuck between my elbow and my hip. It was a lucky catch. I thought I'd dropped it. I just pulled it up and ran into the end zone."

THE VIKINGS are still screaming that Pearson pushed off illegally on Wright, who wound up on the ground.

"I don't think I pushed off,"

says Drew. "It's hard to say. I was trying to get back to an under-thrown ball and he was, too. He might have pushed me; I might have pushed him. I knew there was some type of contact."

"After I caught the ball, I saw an orange come out of the stands and I thought it was a penalty flag. I thought I might get pass interference. It could have gone either way."

Pearson has not seen Dallas films of the play.

"We didn't watch it," he says. "We've just been getting ready for Los Angeles. The only time I saw it was on the news Monday night, and it wasn't a very good angle."

His wife Marsha, daughter of the Globetrotter, "was over at some friends' house and they couldn't believe it," Drew says. "A friend of hers kept saying, 'Keep the faith'—and, sure enough, something happened. They couldn't hear what the announcer was saying because they were yelling so much. They get very excited."

PEARSON CAN thank his father for meeting Marsha.

"I had a chance to sign a baseball contract out of high school but my father wanted me to go to college," Drew says.

There he met Marsha, who was a senior in a Tulsa high school at the time.

Drew also could thank his father for his name. Dad was a big fan of the former author of the nationally syndicated political column, The Washington Merry-Go-Round.

"He used to read it every day," says Drew, whose three brothers and three sisters were given "just regular names."

"I've been getting it ever since grade school, so I'm kind of used to it."

Football fans are, too. Drew Pearson? Sure, he writes miracles for the Dallas Cowboys.

The Cowboys surprised Renfro

Should old acquaintance be forgot?

Most surprised man in Dallas that the Cowboys are in today's National Football Conference championship game is Mr. Mel Renfro, one of the Cowboys' oldest veterans and a five-time all-pro.

The cornerback, who was selected to the Pro Bowl his first 10 years in the NFL and missed only the last such affair because of a season-long foot injury, claims he thought the Cowboys would be lucky to finish with a 7-7 record this past campaign.

"We lost so many great players — Bob Lilly, John Niland, Cornell Green, Walt Garrison — that at the start of the pre-season schedule, I did think we'd be lucky to finish 7-7," said the defensive back, who was contacted in Dallas the night before the Cowboys enplaned to Southern California.

At the time, the former U. of Oregon all-America halfback and world-class trackman was celebrating his 34th birthday by cooking dinner for his three children.

"My feeling that we were in for a long year was strengthened when the Rams beat us pretty good in the first pre-season game in the Coliseum," continued Renfro.

"Then things changed. We beat the Steelers in our last pre-season game and followed with good wins over the Rams and Cardinals in our first two league games. That's when I changed my thinking and became very optimistic."

"But I sure had no championship, or Super Bowl, game thoughts that first week in August when we first met the Rams."

RENFRO, WHO OWNS and manages real estate in Dallas, feels that the regular season opener against the Rams (won by Dallas, 18-7) was his best game this season, but he expects an entirely different game today.

"I intercepted two passes and made some great plays against the Rams in the opener at Dallas, but my play then won't mean a thing in Sunday's rematch," claimed the Houston native who grew up in Portland, Ore.

"This game will be entirely different. Neither team knew what to really expect back in September, but we both do now. For that reason I look for a low-scoring game. It should be a defensive battle...real tough front-line stuff."

The Cowboys have been in the playoffs nine of the past 10 seasons. How does the thoroughly seasoned Renfro approach today's showdown affair?

"No differently than the others," replied the Cowboys' all-time interception and kickoff return leader. "All playoff games are tough. You always have your work cut out for you. I'm loose as can be, but we have a lot of youngsters and I hope they don't get tight and make mistakes."

WILL THE COWBOYS' playoff experience be a beneficial factor today?

It's been a hair-raising season

Mel Renfro, Dallas' veteran cornerback, is also veteran wig-wearer as you can plainly see. Renfro admits he is surprised by

"It will work to our advantage in that we're hungry for playoff wins. We've lost quite a few, you know. But you've got to remember also that a lot of the fellows who got us into the playoffs are gone, so extensive playoff experience applies only to a small number of us."

A second round Cowboy draft choice in '64, Renfro played at safety his first six NFL seasons, then cornerback the past six. What difference, if any, is there in the two positions?

"Playing safety is more fun because you're on your own and can go where the ball is. As a cornerback you have to protect your zone and there's an awful lot more pressure at that spot."

"After I switched to cornerback in 1970, I realized that I probably didn't have the attitude or the guts to play cornerback my first few years. I had the ability, but I don't know if I could have stood the pressure right away. At the corner, you have to have nerves of steel. Just ask Eddie McMillan and Monte Jackson."

WHAT DO YOU THINK of the Rams? "They are good! Look at all the injuries they have, but they still win. I have a lot of respect for their defense. They're not easy to defend, either, because they have outstanding offensive personnel. The Rams run right at you, then throw an occasional pass. They make everything work. We caught them off guard in that first league game, but we won't now."

Who do you expect to keep you the busiest today?

"Ron Jessie and Harold Jackson will be the guys coming at me. But we have to control the Ram game up front. We have to stop (Lawrence) McCutcheon and force the Rams to pass. If we put good pressure on the Ram passer, that will help all the Dallas defensive backs."

Does it make a difference to you if James Harris or Ron Jaworski is at quarterback?

"No difference at all. I've seen films of both and they both can throw the ball. Any man who throws the ball well is trouble for a defensive back."

HAS ANYONE influenced your career?

"Coach (Tom) Landry has done quite a bit for me. He is an outstanding general. I admire his ability to produce a winner. My worst game this season was when we lost in overtime (30-24) in Washington. I had some foot problems and some critical passes were completed on me. I was way down, but Landry made me shake it off. I feel that he is one of the great coaches of our time."

Have you been healthy this season?

"I had a bone chip in my foot the last two regular season games, but the rest did me good and I felt like my old self against the Vikings last week. I felt great when I intercepted that pass in Minnesota. I think I could have intercepted a couple more but (Fran) Tarkenton didn't throw enough to my side."

Three years ago you started wearing a hairpiece that you claimed made you look seven years younger. Are you still wearing it?

"I wear it quite a bit in the off-season. But you've got to wear it consistently and it becomes a headache putting it on and taking it off during the season. You become quite funny to others when one day you wear it and the next day you don't. I'm good-natured, but I don't like being the butt of hairpiece jokes."

Get that, Jackson and Jessie? No hairpiece jokes today or you're liable to find your teeth in your throat when you go into the Dallas secondary after a Harris or Jaworski bomb.

Should old acquaintance be forgot and never brought to mind? Should old acquaintance be forgot and days of Auld Lang Syne...

As the glasses are raised in this new year, the toast is to the good guys from the world of fun and games who left us during the 12 months just passed. The world was better off for having known them and their acquaintance will not soon be forgotten.

Should old acquaintance be forgot...

Of all the wonderful things about Casey Stengel, the most memorable was that he was a little boy to the end and right now he's at a great big playground. He's got a baseball cap on sideways and he's hitting fungoes and laughing and talking in Stengelese... "Can't anybody here play this game?"

Casey was Skippy and Spanky and Charlie Brown. When God put games on this earth, he meant them for guys like Casey Stengel.

And never brought to mind...

Alvaro Pineda was too young to die...freak accidents create rage within you...there is terrible remorse that he couldn't get out of the gate alive.

But wherever Alvaro is there are nine races today and nine more tomorrow and the weather is always clear and the track is always fast. Alvaro Pineda is in the winner's circle again and smiling.

Should old acquaintance be forgot...

Mark Donohue went to the other side of the world to perish in a grinding crash. Bill Pearson hit the wall at Riverside. Graham Hill wasn't even in a race car.

These guys didn't laugh at death but they chose to ignore it, and they would deplore sad songs. Still, you sing them.

And days of Auld Lang Syne...

Steve Prefontaine was only 24. The seven national distance records he held were secondary to enjoying life.

"You can't beat fun," he once said. Damned if he wasn't right.

For Auld Lang Syne, my dear...

Ged, how the youth was taken. George Stewart, the Trojan football player, was only 20 when he pitched forward with a heart attack while lifting weights.

Ron Copeland was not yet 30 and it was a miserable injustice that he had to go the way he did. Just jogging, just running. Free.

For Auld Lang Syne...

Gary Sanders was only 25 summers along. The awful killer that eats away at strong young bodies took him, but it was not without a fight.

But then, those who played against Gary will tell you he never gave anybody anything on the golf course. Now the fairways are wide and the drives are straight and greens curl toward the cup.

We'll take a up of kindness yet...

Ezzard Charles lost the big bout to the same disease that once took Lou Gehrig. Champions also get counted out.

For Auld Lang Syne...

Jacque MacKinnon lived for 36 autumns and played professional football for 11 of them. He was taken too soon like so many of the others.

Should old acquaintance be forgot? And never brought to mind...

No, not this year. Or any other.

A big win for Bruins

Dantley scored 25 points while his four teammates were held to a combined total of 17—more than 12 below their norm. It didn't hurt the Bruin cause when Dantley was saddled with three offensive fouls, nor that 14 of his markers came in the final 9:46.

UCLA never trailed by fewer than 10 points during that span and the credit goes to Johnson, Richard Washington, Ralph Drollinger, Andre McCarter and especially Raymond Townsend.

Washington led the Bruins in scoring with 24 points, hitting 10 of 16 from the floor. Johnson added 16 points, Drollinger eight clutch rebounds and McCarter five assists and an outstanding floor game.

The afternoon's loudest cheer went to Townsend, who Johnson a Bruin iron-man with 39 minutes of playing time. Raymond scored in nine field goals, added a free throw for 19 points and passed out five assists.

His 24-foot jump shot with 13:33 to play ignited a 10-2 Bruin blitz from which the Irish never recovered. Dantley followed with an offensive foul, Drollinger blocked a shot that led to a Washington basket and N.D. guard Ray Martin double-dribbled.

Bing, bing went two Washington jumpers around a Bill Paterno fielder for the Irish. Then Townsend shook the nets again and Notre Dame was all but beaten.

"It was my first start in a big game, but I was never more relaxed," Townsend said. "My job was to take Dantley high and Marques took him low. Our philosophy was quickness outside and strength inside. A.D.'s always going to get his points."

The only player who troubled the Bruins besides Dantley was center Bill Laimbeer, the 6-11 freshman from Palos Verdes. He scored 10 of his team's last 21 points to end the first half, but picked up his fourth foul 3:11 into the second half and was benched for over five minutes. He lasted less than three minutes upon his return.

The Bruins' next biggest assist was Notre Dame refusing to attack its 2-1-2 zone the final 5:13 before intermission. The Bruins were leading by five, 34-29, but Notre Dame had outscored them, 11-6, over a 4 1/2-minute span and had all the momentum.

"WE WENT into the zone because a couple of our players (Drollinger and Townsend) had two fouls and we didn't want them taking a third before halftime," said Bartow. "Digger had (Toby) Knight with three and I guess he thought it best to stall."

"I don't know if there's ever been an advantage to both teams, but he seemed happy to go in five points down and we were definitely happy to be five up."

BENGALS IN STITCHES

CINCINNATI (AP) — Six members of the Cincinnati Bengals of the NFL are scheduled for surgery in the off season.

Offensive guard John Stenersen underwent surgery for shoulder problem Friday.

Quarterback Ken Anderson will have a hernia operation after playing for the American Conference in the Pro Bowl.

Others scheduled for operations are: center Bob Johnson, ankle bone spur; tight end Bob Trumpy, elbow calcium; tight end Bruce Coslet, knee surgery; and wide receiver Chip Myers, big toe problem.

RAMS MEET DALLAS—

Like George Foreman, there is the suspicion here that the shotgun's punch is over-rated.

Even in the win over the Rams, the Cowboys netted only 80 yards in the air and averaged only 2.8 yards per pass play. Bud Goode, the computer man, will tell you that is strictly a loser's statistic—except the Rams sank to 1.0 that day.

Also, the Cowboys' passing efficiency has not improved appreciably over last season when Roger Staubach was operating as a standard T-formation quarterback—7.42 yards per pass to 7.54, the same average, incidentally, that Harris had this season.

In fact, Staubach threw one more

interception this season—16—although he has been sacked nine fewer times—36.

So how did the Cowboys get this far?

Well, for one thing, they were the best of a sorry lot of runners in the NFC, and then there was the Staubach-to-Drew Pearson "miracle" at Minnesota against a Viking team that was generally described as "lethargic" by comparison.

The foregoing are words written to be eaten, but this is not to imply that the Cowboys are here on a pass, which they are. They are a well-coached team of talented players who played with enthusiasm, and they will attack Ram fullback Lawrence McCutcheon, who is the heart of the Rams' ball-control philosophy.

THE RAMS' greatest concern is not the shotgun but how efficiently they will be able to move the football without the blocking of tight end Bob Klein and tailback Jim Bertelsen, both gone for the season with knee injuries.

McCutcheon was asked to carry it 37

times against St. Louis and responded with an NFC playoff record 202 yards. The Cowboys will not allow that to happen again.

The Rams' game plan is, as always, based on not making mistakes, as they did in Dallas.

The biggest mistake they could make this time would be to take the Cowboys' too seriously.

RAMBLING: Statistics from the first game show the Rams netting only 135 yards—115 rushing and 20 passing. Dallas netted 277—197 rushing but only 80 passing, but the Cowboys controlled the ball 77 plays to the Rams' 51. Staubach threw no interceptions but was sacked four times and scrambled seven times for 56 yards. The Rams tied with the New York Jets in leading the league with only eight lost fumbles. The Cowboys lost 18. One key season statistic is that the Rams' pass defense allowed 4.2 yards per pass play (including sacks and yards lost on sacks) while they averaged 6.0—a differential of 1.8. Dallas' differential, based on 6.2 gained and 4.9 allowed, is 1.3. Goode cites that as the single most important figure in football.

Dallas has two Pro Bowl selections—free safety Cliff Harris and offensive tackle Rayfield Wright. The Rams have eight. St. Louis had nine, including the infamous Conrad Dobler. "We don't have any Conrad Doblers on the field this Sunday," says Jack Youngblood, the Rams' all-pro defensive end who will oppose Wright in the day's classic matchup. But Dallas' former all-pro middle linebacker, Lee Roy Jordan, says, "Something is mighty wrong when people like Roger Staubach, Jeffery Hugh and Blake Nye don't make the team. Jordan didn't make it either. The Rams' Jack Reynolds got the nod from the league's coaches, instead."

Only one wild card team has reached the Super Bowl—Kansas City, which won it in 1970—and that was before realignment and inter-league play. Fritsch set a Dallas record with 22 field goals and tallied 104 points, tops in the NFL. The Rams lead the series, 5-4-0, and have won the last two in L.A., 24-23 in 1968 and 37-31 in '73. The Cowboys' last win in the Coliseum was in '62, 27-17.

The Rams set several NFC playoff records against St. Louis last week, including most rushing attempts (37) and most rushing yards (202) by McCutcheon. Others were most first downs, 26; most net yards gained, 440; most interception return yardage, 130; and most touchdowns on interceptions, 2.

Across the plain

When the terrain is flat or shooting to an elevated green or one lower than the tee or if the green is in shadows...well, you can see that judging distance is like observing a showgirl's curves. Seeing is one thing; believing is another.

Half the golfers wear glasses, and the other half can't see. They don't consider undulations, pin placements or elevations in selecting a club.

AMATEURS ought to try to knock the ball over the green. Only the top ones hit enough club. Paul Runyan was hitting 3-woods to Sam Snead's 4-irons in the 1938 PGA championship, but nobody called Paul a puffball huffer when he won, 8-7.

Briefly, a hole looks closer when trees are behind a green. It appears further when it's in shadows. Also, add yards when shooting to an elevated green, subtract if the green is below you.

Those half-acre greens can mean a difference of three or four clubs in judging distance. It depends on whether the flag is on the front (use a wedge) or back (hit a 7-iron).

There's more to a hole than scorecard distance. Check the rolls and waves in the fairways before choosing a stick.

Glenz cards a 70, leads Lynx by 3

MONTEREY (AP) — David Glenz, a touring professional from Coos Bay, Ore., fired a one-under-par 70 Saturday at the Laguna Seca Golf Ranch to open up a three-stroke lead going into the final round of the $65,000 Lynx Invitational Pro-Am Golf Championship.

Glenz, 27, playing out of Miami, Fla., posted a 54-hole total of 205 to lead Bob Risch of Diamond Bar who had a 73 Saturday for a 208 total.

Glenz, who had back-to-back eagles in shooting a course-record 65 at Corral de Tierra Friday, opened the tournament with a one-under-par 70 at nearby Rancho Canada.

Bob Wynn, last year's runner-up, was tied at 212 with Dave Cogdell and Gary McCord.

Can Raiders finally win a big one?

New York Times Service
PITTSBURGH — A recent newspaper headline read, "Raiders win asylum in Algeria." If the Raiders, Oakland variety, don't win the American Conference championship game today (Channel 4, 10 a.m.), they'll have to seek asylum in a far more distant land than Algeria to escape the wrath of Al Davis.

The political terrorists, though, didn't have to play the Pittsburgh Steelers and Davis's Raiders do. Davis is Oakland's managing general partner and he has grown tired of seeing his team lose in the AFC championship contest, a feat they've accomplished the past two years and five of the last seven. The only time they won was in 1967 and then they went on to lose the ultimate game, the Super Bowl.

However, the Oakland coach, John Madden, denied that he was frustrated at the championship game failures, the latest of which was last season's 24-13 loss to the Steelers who went on to defeat Minnesota in the Super Bowl.

"FRUSTRATED, NO: teed off a little, yes; thankful to be back, yes," the stout redhead said.

Possible snow and 20-degree weather are forecast for the AFC game at Three Rivers Stadium, the winner of which will take on the Ram-Dallas winner Jan. 18 in the Super Bowl in Miami.

The Steelers, one-touchdown favorites, appear to be in better shape physically than the Raiders.

Terry Bradshaw injured his knee in the divisional playoff game against Baltimore last week but is ready to start. If he aggravates the ailment, Terry Hanratty will replace him although he has been in only two plays this season.

Joe Greene, the awesome defensive tackle, should start after having sat out most of the past seven games with a pinched neck nerve and a groin pull.

Madden declared Fred Biletnikoff, wide receiver; Willie Brown, cornerback, and Tony Cline, defensive end, out of the starting lineup although not necessarily out of the game. All suffer from leg injuries.

THE GAME, however, doesn't figure to turn on these physical deficiencies but on Oakland's success in penetrating the seemingly impenetrable Pittsburgh defense. In last year's AFC title game, the Raiders ran for only 29 yards in 21 attempts. The Steelers' defensive effort stunned the Raiders and even surprised their own coach.

"I don't know of many teams that are held to 29 yards rushing," said Noll, whose team then held Minnesota to 17 yards in the Super Bowl. "You hope to hold a team down, but you don't expect to hold them that low."

Jack Ham, one-third of Pittsburgh's all-star line-backing trio, said the key to this game again would be the Raiders' running attack.

"We have to shut down their running game," Ham explained. "If they get four, five yards a crack, we're in for a long afternoon."

This is the fourth successive year the Raiders and Steelers are meeting in the playoffs. The only time Oakland won was in 1973. Because of the growing rivalry between the teams, neither has had difficulty preparing themselves psychologically for today's match.

"They're excited," Noll said of his players. "You can tell because they're talking a lot in the locker room. You can't shut them up."

Dallas 25 19 174 186 41-17-19 119 145 33-13-19 +8
Dallas got here on a miracle, but that's not to say that the Cowboys aren't for real. Landry has turned in his finest coaching job ever. The Cowboy defense is a very solid & cohesive unit. The veteran 2ndary knows just what it's doing. The linebacking department is manned by quick, savvy, seasoned athletes. . . . defends short passing game well. It held a more versatile offense than the one it will face here to one legitimate touch-down last Sunday. The pivotal player here, however, is Dallas QB Staubach. He possesses the spontaneity so vital in combating the tremendous quick & mobile Ram defense; one of the truly great units in NFL history. But it is a defense most perplexed by the ad-lib type quarterbacking proffered by the Staubach-Tarver variety.
Dallas played a near-perfect game when it upset Los Angeles 18-7 at the season opener, only 6 weeks after Los Angeles crushed a reorgan-ized Dallas 35-7 in a preseason encounter. But that was long ago, and many injuries ago. The Rams enter this game with their all-purpose back Bartolone or any NFL quality light end. And rookie QB Jaworski has shown only one scoring aerial in his pro career. Sore-armed QB Harris remains? Victory over St. Louis was chiefly administered by their great defense, which scored twice and helped set up a third TD. One cannot compare the defensive pressure Jaworski faced last Sunday with that which he will encounter from the hard-nosed Cowboys, who have been chastened by a particularly demanding schedule.
One has to believe Los Angeles' wounded offense will be more ex-posed here than it was against the more permissive Cards. Dallas will apply enormous pressure on the handicapped Ram offense. The Cowboys will key on McCutcheon & force Jaworski into a passing game. That's an early rough assignment for one so young & limited in experience.
The Los Angeles defense is an admirable force, & must be reckoned with. But Staubach has the ability & instincts to keep it off balance to a degree. The Rams won't be able to tee off on him like they have with more conventional quarterbacks, i.e., Hart last week.
The game revolves around this crucial matchup. We believe Staubach will better overcome the defensive pressure in a championship game than will his young adversary Jaworski, or the idling Harris. One should not minimize the underrated Cowboy running attack with Newhouse. Pearson & Denson. The receiving corps is also talented. The youthful image of Dallas, with its highly advertised 12 rookies, is deceiving. The athletes who do the playing are veteran professionals, many of whom are in their 10th or 11th years. And they will demonstrate their tenacity against Los Angeles. There is nothing but offensive weapons.
PREDICTION: DALLAS 17 - Los Angeles 13.

AFC CHAMPIONSHIP GAME
PITTSBURGH VS. OAKLAND at Pittsburgh
OFFENSE (Regular Season Only) DEFENSE
TEAM PP PA YR YP T-R-P YR YP T-R-P ToS
Pittsburgh 27 18 184 171 48-22-21 130 131 18-8-3 +6
Oakland 27 18 184 171 48-22-21 128 137 32-15-14 -7
According to sources in a position to know, Oakland has an almost paranoid mentality when it contemplates playing Pittsburgh. Maybe it began with that incredibly lucky ricochet pass that Harris caught in the 1972 AFC Divisional Playoff that gave the Steelers a miraculous 13-7 victory. Or perhaps this year's look rise in the devastating fashion Pitts-burgh dismantled the Raiders in last year's AFC Championship game. That was the last time those two antagonists met. Pitt's Steel Curtain defense totally destroyed the high-octane Oakland running game, holding it to 29 yards in 21 carries. Whatever its origin, the intimidating factors remain.
Equally important is the fact that Oakland is just not a solid football team this season. This is not to imply that it is a weak one. It definitely isn't. But the quality of competition at this championship level, in such a data team with any real flaws is likely to get its ears pinned back by an opponent not faulted by those imperfections. Pittsburgh is that team. The Steelers are superior in every department, at play except depth at the running position. There is just no comparing their defenses. The Pitt defense is simply awesome.
As mentioned, a stronger Raider squad was manhandled in their last meeting. First of all, Staubach was the NFL's premier quarterback at that time. He wasn't plagued by a gimpy knee then. Biletnikoff was healthier. Cline was also available. Furthermore, this will be Oakland's first away game in six weeks.
At one time, Oakland boasted an offensive edge to offset Pittsburgh's defensive superiority. But because of the aforementioned injuries, and Bradshaw maturing as a leader, plus Pitt's superb receiving corps, to mention Harris who just may be the best big back in all of foot-ball, Pittsburgh has gained preeminence in that facet of play as well. The facts are: Pitt's front four can handle Oakland's offensive line; its hard hitting line-backing & 2ndary can cope with Oakland's primary strength — a fine receiving corps; and basically the same people who out-gauged off before will be facing each other again here.
The Raiders have the high-octane Oakland running game, but too damn phsy-cally strong. The evidence suggests they are probably right.
PREDICTION: PITTSBURGH 27 - Oakland 13.

SEATTLE SEAHAWKS HIRE JACK PATERA AS NEW COACH

SEATTLE (AP) — Jack Patera, defensive line coach of the Minnesota Vikings the past seven years, was hired as head coach of the fledgling Seattle Seahawks of the National Football League Saturday.
Patera, 42, also had served as defensive line coach with the Rams and New York Giants.
Seahawks general manager John Thompson said a major factor in choosing Patera was that "he has been associated with winning football teams."
"Many times we were impressed by coaches not associated with winning teams, but we were more or less stuck to the original plan (to pick a coach with a winning background)."
Thompson said the fact that Patera was a defensive specialist was another factor in his selection.
"Every serious contender with whom we spoke agreed that you built a team first with defense," Thompson said.
Thompson said he talked to Patera the day Minnesota was eliminated from the playoffs and was impressed with his self control in spite of the disappointment.
Patera graduated from the University of Oregon, where he played under Len Casanova from 1951 through 1954.
The new coach played professionally with the Baltimore Colts for three years starting in 1955, the Chicago Cardinals for two years, and the Dallas Cowboys for two years. He retired in 1961.

Soccer tournaments continue today

Lynwood is no cinch in tough SGVL

By GARY ELLIS
Staff Writer

Lynwood High, nearly conceded a second successive San Gabriel Valley League basketball title at the outset of the season, apparently will face a bitter scramble for the championship.

Warren, Downey and La Mirada have all emerged as serious threats to Lynwood with Bellflower and Cerritos applying pressure to the top four clubs.

The SGVL could be the best 3-A basketball league in the CIF. Lynwood's Darrell Allums is a quality rebounder and scorer; Tom Freeman may be the best junior forward in Southern California, and guard Tyren Nauls is among the top five sophomores.

But La Mirada counters with 6-8 Doug Widdfield; Downey with Tom Day and Steve Driessen while Warren enjoys a balanced attack from six players. That Warren depth was demonstrated during its first seven game when a different player led the team in scoring each night.

LYNWOOD—Allums, Freeman and guard Dave Mullins are returning starters while Nauls was the sixth man last season. "Freeman and Allums are definitely all-CIF candidates," said coach Bill Nolley. "We have sound guards in Mullins and Nauls." Experience, along with superb talent, should aid the Knights in the run for the title. "It's an easier team to coach," admitted Nolley. "The players know what to expect and they know what they can do as a team." Nolley admits depth could be the problem. "We're basically a seven-man team." Howard Henderson (forward) is the fifth starter. Robert Hardy (forward) replaced Freeman when the latter was injured. John Ligon is the third guard.

WARREN—Jay Young collected his 300th victory early in the season and has faith his club can win the title. Three Bears return from last season—Jim Kramer (guard), Brian Lumsden (forward) and Jeff Kerbest (forward). A pleasant addition to last year's club is Mark Mullane, a 6-4 junior. "We have very good shooters," said Young. "A team can shut one guy down but others will score." Hustle and discipline, trademarks of Young-coached teams, are other positive strengths. Depth, including seniors Gary Haynes (6-5), Chris Marsh (6-4), Chris Carter (6-2) and John Howard (6-0), is a strong point.

LA MIRADA—Widdfield, a 6-8 center, is the best big man in the league. "I've never seen anyone his size do the things he does," said coach John Moore. "He can pass, rebound, shoot and run." Jeff Brewer, a 6-2 forward, has developed into a potent scorer in recent weeks and will take some of the pressure off Widdfield. Perhaps La Mirada's most significant weakness is a true forward. "We really have only seven players and lack a big forward," said Moore. Mark Belowski is the court general and Jeremy Steddom is the other guard. Bruce Hansen and Mike Delman are the other forwards.

DOWNEY—Day and Driessen will be the Vikings' double-death squad. "Day's matured, put on weight and strength, and is playing solid defense," said coach Gary Ernst. "Driessen is really a strong rebounder for his size; his shooting has developed and he's a consistent scorer now." A transfer, Herb Harper (6-2), and Santa Ferrante (6-3 guard) are other starters. Ernst credits his bench as a major factor this season. "The key to our success is that we've been able to use the bench well. One game, our bench scored 38 points."

CERRITOS—Ian Desborough's team won the Suburban League last season but the Dons transferred leagues. "We'll have to play smart basketball and run like all get-out," said Desborough. "We'll have to set the tempo this year." Rodney Miller (guard) and Mark Smith (forward) are returning starters. Mike Bressner and sophomore Todd Hamlett will be utilized as forwards. Eric Arnold, Phil Wilson or Rich Konishi will fill in the other guard position. "I don't think we can hold the ball this year," said Desborough. "I just hope we can shoot the lights out."

BELLFLOWER—The Bucs will be young, but under Jim Greenfield's tutoring, representative. Three juniors—Karl Herbst, Mike Anderson and Kevin Farman—will start along with seniors Steve Campbell (center) and Jeff Rogers (forward). "Herbst is for real," said Greenfield. "He's shooting 54 per cent and could be one of the best forwards in the league." "We'll try to get people to play our type of game," said Greenfield, whose coaching style has given opponents fits. "Every game is different to a degree. You have to play a different style each game to win, whether it takes holding the ball or running. At least we're in every game." This season will be no exception.

PARAMOUNT—For the first time in four seasons, the Pirates are not favored to win the title. Lack of size and experience are the major factors against Bob Rittenger's team this season. "We'll be playing four underclassmen," noted Rittenger. "Everyone knows the odds are against us but we'll be scrappy." Al Alcaraz (guard) and Tom Riskey (center) are starting seniors. Sophomore Ken Korver will run the offense and Randy Barwell is the other guard. Keith Korver and Gary Le Fevre are the other forwards. "We may get outrebounded but we'll certainly scrap in each game."

NORWALK—The Lancers return only one player, 6-2 senior Jeff Faught, the team's tallest. Experience and size, will be working against Bob Douglas' club. Brian Hinsley and Paul Meadows are the forwards and John Gates, Darrell Klein and Randy Antry are the guards. "If we had some height..." Douglas' voice trailed off. Sophomore twins Mark and Mike Davis and Jim Gardner will share seventh-men duties.

LUSK LEADS WEST TO 21-14 SHRINE VICTORY

STANFORD (AP) — Long Beach State's Herb Lusk scored two touchdowns and quarterback Craig Penrose of San Diego State gave his team an edge in passing as the West scored a 21-14 victory over the East in the 51st Shrine game Saturday.

Lusk scored on a pair of two-yard runs and Wyoming's Lawrence Gaines ran five yards for the other West touchdown before a Stanford Stadium crowd of 75,000, biggest in the history of the college football all-star game. California's all-America Chuck Muncie gained 106 yards rushing.

The West led 21-7 late in the third period and was in position to score again, but Muncie fumbled and Wisconsin's Steve Wagner recovered at the East eight-yard line.

Following another fumble recovery, the East drove 31 yards and scored on a quarterback sneak by Jeff Grantz of South Carolina in the opening minutes of the final period.

Grantz threw a nine-yard touchdown pass to Gary Fencik of Yale in the third quarter to cut a West lead to 14-7.

Shortly after Grantz' touchdown sneak, Duke linebacker Dave Meier intercepted a pass by Penrose and returned the ball 17 yards to the West 27. But the West defense held, and Lonnie Perrin missed his fourth field goal attempt of the game, from 50 yards away.

Penrose completed 16 of 28 passes for 187 yards and New Mexico quarterback Steve Myer added six completions and 62 yards to the West passing attack. Tight end David Hill from Texas A&I caught seven passes, with two receptions setting up touchdowns, and Steve Rivera of Cal snared six passes.

Guenther wins Ford bowling

Johnny Guenther stopped three opponents Saturday to take the championship in the $75,000 Ford Open Bowling Tournament at Bowling Square in Arcadia.

The title was the 11th for the Seattle pro in Professional Bowlers Association (PBA) competition. He received an $8,000 first prize and use of a motor van for a year.

Guenther clinched the title by beating top-seeded Jimmy Certain of Huntsville, Ala., 227-199, after disposing of Dennis Lane of Kingsport, Tenn., and Roy Buckley of Columbus, Ohio.

There was little doubt of the outcome against Certain as Guenther struck in five of the first six frames. Meanwhile, Certain couldn't get lined up, suffering two open frames in the first four. He was down by 47 pins after five frames, and even though he strung together four strikes midway, he couldn't make up the difference.

Guenther won easily over Lane, opening with five strikes while Lane struggled, and swept to a 235-160 verdict.

His first win, over Buckley, was more difficult. He was down by 21 pins early but gained the lead when Buckley failed to pick up a 4-7-9-10 split in the fifth frame. When Buckley didn't strike on his first ball in the 10th frame, Guenther was assured of a 224-211 win.

Buckley, who has finished in the top five in six of the last seven PBA tournaments, defeated Marty Anderson of Los Angeles 240-196.

Doug Johnson of Long Beach finished 20th and won $1,000.

LBSU cagers hope to start year right

By ELAINE RISINGER
Staff Writer

If Fran Schaafsma and her Long Beach State basketball team found a few moments New Year's Day for any first-of-the-year commitments, they may well have resolved to begin 1976 in the same style they ended 1975. The 49ers pocketed their first three wins and a tournament title at the recent Cal Poly Pomona Invitational and hope to continue their undefeated pre-season record this weekend at the Chico State College Tournament.

Long Beach State opened Thursday evening by overpowering UC Davis, 71-43. Other schools competing at Chico include Sacramento State.

WOMEN IN SPORTS

"We beat them in the semi-finals of regionals last year," University of Nevada at Las Vegas. "They recruited heavily and play a physical game." Fresno, which LBSU downed, 86-44, at the Cal Poly event, and San Jose State. Lynn Stith, who has been bothered by low back problems, was unable to make the trip. At the Pomona tournament, Lynn scored 14 points against Fresno and 12 points when LBSU toppled Cal Poly in the finals, 55-53.

The 49ers pulled out the final Cal Poly win despite missing two other varsity players—Angie Avery, ill with a strep throat, and Trish Reis, who had suffered a sprained ankle. Both players are in the lineup for this weekend.

Long Beach State will open its regular season Jan. 17 against USC at the L.A. Sports Arena. The game will precede the Trojan men's Pac-8 game with Stanford, USC, which Fran says is "much improved," lost to LBSU, 70-65, in the semi-finals at Cal Poly.

The Long Beach State women also have a double-header scheduled in conjunction with the men's team Feb. 7 against California State University, Fullerton.

It's also interesting to note that LBSU has been ranked 20th in Basketball Preview, a Street and Smith publication dealing primarily with men's basketball. Cal State-Fullerton was placed third and UCLA, ninth. Fran expects to prove the magazine's ranking to be on the low side for the strong 49ers.

VIEWERS who tuned into ABC's Wide World of Sports telecast Saturday should have noticed some familiar names and faces. The Russian gymnasts, in the Los Angeles area for the recent exhibition at the Sports Arena, toured Disneyland with members of the SCATS gymnastic Team of Westminster.

A visit to the SCATS gym had been scheduled, but a delayed plane arrival caused cancellation of that part of the tour. The afternoon provided one of the few social contacts by the Russians with an American peer group. The young people exchanged momentos with each other, and the following evening SCATS members presented the Russians with flowers and Cathy Rigby watches during intermission time at the exhibition.

Bogey comes to life in Allen play

By RALPH HUNMAN JR.
Staff Writer

If you are among those who delight in Woody Allen's antics and pleasantly remember Humphrey Bogart's "Casablanca," or if you just enjoy sparkling comedy well performed, by all means catch Community Playhouse's "Play It Again, Sam."

In all candor, however, I must confess to a bit of trepidation prior to Friday night's opening.

Woody, in the first place, wrote himself into a highly complex show. And on top of that, how many actors are available these days who can believably recreate on a contemporary stage?

But I need not have worried.

Carl Nelson doing the almost typecast central figure, Allan Felix, was to the T the neurotic 29-year-old movie buff Woody portrayed for us, complete with innumerable hangups, sexual and otherwise. Paul K. Bonnell, who physically resembles Bogey, does a brilliant job of accentuating that resemblance as he comes on stage to advise Woody-Allen-Carl on the fine art of seduction.

Exceptionally strong support is provided by Jo Gannaway as Allan's recently divorced wife, appearing only in his imagination; from Celeste Clinton doing Allan's best friend's wife and sex object; and Gary Brunson, the cuckolded boyfriend. Lesser supporting roles, the many objects of Allan's fantasies, are handled neatly by JoAnn MacKnight, Jane Scott, Jodie Lund, Donna DiLoreto, Cathianne Noble and Judy Marshall. Guest director Glenn Bradley deserves high praise for a job well done. Friday and Saturday are performances at 8:30 p.m. through Feb. 7, 5021 E. Anaheim St.

White sea bass off Baja Flats

One of my New Year's surprises was a telephone conversation with an old friend, Eddie McEwen, skipper of the Pacific Queen at San Diego. Would you believe that Eddie and his wife enjoyed a baked albacore dinner on New Year Day and that the alby was fresh from the ocean.

No, Eddie didn't catch it on his boat. A commercial fishing friend, operating a jibboat somewhere near Guadalupe Island, found a small school of albacore, caught some and returned them to San Diego. He gave Eddie one and said: "Happy New Year!"

Eddie didn't go so far as to say that it means an early run of albacore. Rather, he remarked, the longfins are holdovers from the August-September run of '75 and they haven't sense enough to know that they should be on their way back to the other side of the Pacific Ocean.

Eddie has a trip scheduled for Jan. 10-17 when he will take some scientists and students on an ecology cruise far down the Baja California coast. He told me that he would rather be fishing for yellowtail, but those gamey fighters have not started to show in any numbers.

The commercial fishermen who use small 18-foot skiffs and outboard motors have been catching white sea bass through most of December, but the runs are spasmodic at best and he doesn't see any justification for Coronado Island trips.

THERE ARE SOME SPORTFISHERMEN who complain about the way the commercial men do their white sea bass fishing, claiming that it's illegal and that it ruins fishing for them (the sportsmen?). Perhaps all that occurs at The Coronado Islands and on the flats between there and the Mexican state of Baja isn't legal, but those fishermen are making a living for themselves and their families. At least they are not seining anchovies within the three-mile limit.

Their method of fishing might be unorthodox, but it gets results when the white sea bass are there and hungry. The commercials simply put out two or three dozen floats. Attached to each float is a heavy line and a big white jig. Any white jig will do. Many Candy Bar jigs are used and, if colored, painted white.

The floats bob up and down with the waves and oddly enough, the white sea bass will attack the jigs viciously if they are looking for food. Eddie told me that he knew of one such fisherman who put out 25 jigs. Each time he saw a jig go under water he went after it. He ended the day with 17 white sea bass. The jigs have sharp hooks and the floats are buoyant enough to pull the fish back to the surface time after time.

One sportfishing boat went out of Fisherman's Landing in San Diego and tried to get into the white sea bass just before Christmas. Only two small yellowtail were caught.

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA TROUT anglers may start making their plans for Irvine Lake. Russ Cleary, operator of that popular resort and also Anaheim Lake, announced at year-end that Irvine would be opened on Jan. 16. Prior to that date between 4,000 and 6,000 privately reared rainbow trout will be stocked in Irvine and then there will be a weekly stocking of 2,000.

Boat and motor reservations will be taken for the opening weekend only. After that, there will be a no-reservation system for the balance of the season, which normally runs into September.

Because of the heavy stocking and the close proximity of Irvine, it often has been called Southern California's "Lake Crowley." In past years anglers have been known to line up their vehicles 12 to 14 hours before the lake gates open at 6 a.m.

When trout are planted at Irvine, there always are bonus-size fish (from four to six pounds) in the hatchery load that comes from Northern California. In addition to the trout, Irvine boasts a natural population of large-mouth bass, crappie, bluegill and channel catfish.

Facilities at the Orange County reservoir, situated seven miles east of Orange via the Santiago Canyon Road, include a 300-boat rental fleet, private boat-launching ramps, snack bar, tackle and bait shop, picnic area, restrooms and a paved parking area. There is no overnight camping.

OPENING OF IRVINE LAKE will take some of the pressure off Anaheim Lake, which has been yielding many limits of planted trout, plus a few lunkers, since it was opened in the fall. It will remain open through the winter and spring and will continue to receive weekly plants of rainbow trout.

There are no other fish in Anaheim Lake except the trout. It is a domestic water reservoir for the City of Anaheim.

In fishing either Irvine or Anaheim, it might be well for anglers to remember that most of the fish, particularly the large ones, are caught on such lures as Mepps spinners, Dardavies and Phobos. That is not to say that the fishermen using worms, salmon eggs, floating cheese baits and marshmallows don't catch fish. Every angler has his own pet method; some come home with limits while others return with just rod, reel and a tackle box.

If you don't catch fish in Anaheim Lake, try the Kids' Pond at the Sports, Vacation and Recreational Vehicle Show at the Anaheim Convention Center. That show opened Saturday to record-breaking crowds and a lot of the kids rushed to the Trout Pond immediately. It's really a great place to take a child who is showing interest in fishing for the first time. Once he catches the fishin' fever at the Kids' Pond, he may be ready for Anaheim, Irvine or some other trout lake. The show, incidentally, will be open through next Sunday.

WITNESS THE THIRTY-TWO THUNDERING HOVES OF THE BUDWEISER® CLYDESDALES POUNDING OUT PRIDE!

JANUARY 10-11, 17-18, AND 24-25, 1976. AT BUSCH GARDENS.

Over the years the Budweiser Clydesdales have become an American institution, appearing at parades, rodeos, fairs and, of course, on T.V. commercials. And for three consecutive weekends in January at Busch Gardens, you'll be able to see this famous 8-horse hitch step high and mighty pulling a 3½-ton antique beer wagon with feathered feet. (Some feat!) It's a picture of the past.

CLOSED DURING THE WEEK. BUT OPEN ON WEEKENDS. 10 A.M. TO 6 P.M.

As of January 3, 1976, Busch Gardens converts to its winter weekend-only schedule until the summer when we go back to our daily full-time knee-slapping fun operation.

YOU'LL HAVE FUN LIKE THERE'S NO TOMORROW.

Because this year at Busch Gardens fun is a thing of the past. Enjoy the "Good Old Days." It's the theme that runs through the entire empire of festivities, the focus of which is the re-creation of "Old St. Louis." You can shop at nostalgic gift shops. Snap pictures of our Friendly Eagle and all his colorful costumed pals. Take a ride on the Bumper Cars at the "Old St. Louis" Transit Company.

THE PRESENT IS NEVER VERY FAR AWAY.

But should you want to take a break from the past we can always bring you back to the present with our multitude of regular rides and attractions. Have a barrel of fun on the "Busch Barrel Flume Ride." Get an eagle's-eye view of Busch Gardens 40 feet up on the fantastic Sky Trolley. Or you can simply relax altogether at the Strand Theatre while you enjoy our multimedia extravaganza entitled "The Eagle Within."

REFRESHMENTS TO REVITALIZE.

After you've packed in all that great fun, you can pack down some great fun food. Like honey-dipped fried chicken with steak-size french fries. Giant Hoagie sandwiches. Or beer-basted ribs. And you can top that all off with our creamy old-fashioned hand-dipped ice cream. So come to Busch Gardens and experience something new—"The Good Old Days."

THE GOOD OLD DAYS ARE HERE BUSCH GARDENS LOS ANGELES
Open weekends and holidays, 10 a.m. to 6 p.m., as of Jan. 3, 1976. Take your horseless carriage on the San Diego Freeway to the Roscoe Exit.

IP-T GRAND PRIX RACE GAME RULES — READ CAREFULLY

SAVE THESE RULES FOR HANDY REFERENCE THROUGHOUT THE CONTEST

1. The contest will consist of 13 weekly games beginning Sunday, January 4, 1976. Participants will be required to determine the finishing order of ten race cars. Official entry blanks will be published on successive Sundays for each week's contest.

Each Sunday, contestants will be given the names and numbers of 30 race cars, plus an entry form. Then, on Monday thru Friday, puzzles will appear in these newspapers which, when solved, will show which cars finished in the first thru tenth place.

TO SOLVE THE PUZZLES: Each day, Monday thru Friday, two puzzles will indicate the finishing place of two race cars, the number of letters in the cars' names, plus the correct positioning of at least one letter in each name (e.g. — — — T —). From the list of 30 cars, entrants must then properly determine the car's name that fits that particular blank. On any given day, more than one car name may fit a puzzle, but when all ten puzzles for the week are completed, there will be only one proper solution. It may be necessary at times to have the entire set of ten puzzles before the winning solution is apparent. No car's name will be used more than once in each set of weekly puzzles.

When all ten puzzles are completed, only one solution will give you the correct finishing order of the ten cars. Entrants will then place the correct car number on the cars shown on the entry form, to indicate which car finished first, second, and so on through 10th place.

2. HOW TO ENTER: Mail your completed race entry form, neatly trimmed, to: Independent Press-Telegram Grand Prix Race Game P.O. Box 420 Long Beach, CA 90801 or hand deliver your entry form, enclosed in an envelope, to the Independent Press-Telegram main offices at 604 Pine Ave., Long Beach.

IMPORTANT: Across the end of the envelope, you MUST indicate the race number you are entering as shown in the sample to the right.

Each race course entry form will show the weekly contest deadline. All entries must be in the possession of the Independent Press-Telegram on or before that date. The Independent Press-Telegram cannot be held responsible for entries delayed or lost in the mails.

Individual contestants are limited to one entry per week. Only one entry may be enclosed in an envelope.

Do not mail in the Monday thru Friday puzzles. Only mail the Sunday race entry form.

It is not necessary to subscribe to or buy the Independent Press-Telegram to enter. Contestants may make hand-drawn copies of the official race entry form to enter. These must be legible and of the same size and style as those appearing in the newspapers. Entry forms reproduced by any mechanical or photographic means will not be accepted.

3. PRIZES: Weekly Cash Awards: The Independent Press-Telegram will award twelve cash prizes of $50.00 each week. The twelve weekly cash winners will be drawn at random from the total number of correct entries received for that week's contest.

Grand Prize: The Grand Prize winner will receive a Royal Viking 14-day Alaska/Canada cruise for two aboard the Royal Viking Sea, commencing June 14, 1976. The Grand Prize drawing will be held the week following the close of the weekly contests.

All weekly winners become eligible for the Grand Prize Drawing. In addition to all weekly winners, an additional 200 correct entries will be drawn from each week's contest to be included in the Grand Prize Drawing. No notification will be made of those drawn.

No substitute prizes will be awarded. Applicable federal, state, and other taxes imposed on any prize will be the sole responsibility of the prize winner.

All prize winners will be contacted by mail. When weekly cash winners' names are published in these newspapers, they will appear on the Wednesday following each contest deadline.

4. WHO MAY ENTER: The contest is open to anyone 18 years of age or older, except employees of the Independent Press-Telegram and members of their immediate families; employees of Knight-Ridder Newspapers, Inc., any of its affiliated companies and members of their immediate families; and Independent Press-Telegram distributors, and members of their immediate families.

5. JUDGING: The decisions of the contest judges will be final in all cases. Upon entering the contest, entrants agree to abide by all rules set forth here. Entrants not conforming to all rules shall be automatically disqualified.

6. The Independent Press-Telegram reserves the right to alter the contest rules or discontinue the contest at any time.

7. NO TELEPHONE INFORMATION REGARDING THE PUZZLES WILL BE GIVEN.

TRY THIS SAMPLE PUZZLE OF THE IP-T GRAND PRIX RACE GAME

From the list of car names, determine which name fits each blank. While more than one name may appear to fit some blanks, when completed there is only one possible solution. Each name can only be used once. Not all car names will be used.

34 EAGLE	A	1st place
95 TIGER	—	2nd place
23 DOVE	O	3rd place
14 RAVEN	V	4th place
77 BOLD	D

Once you've determined which car finished in which place, all you must do is transfer that car's number to the entry form from the previous Sunday. The correct answers for this sample would be: 1st, Car # 34; 2nd place, Car # 23; 3rd place, Car # 14; 4th place, Car # 77.

Since, EAGLE, car # 34, was first place finisher, place a 34 in the white space of the first place car.

HOW TO ADDRESS YOUR ENTRY

Your entry must be in the possession of the Independent Press-Telegram no later than the deadline shown on the entry form. It must be enclosed in an envelope addressed as the example below. YOU MUST INDICATE WHICH RACE # YOU ARE ENTERING ON THE OUTSIDE OF THE ENVELOPE:

Andorra Village open

New architectural design will be introduced to Rossmoor Leisure World here with the Grand Opening of Andorra Village today.

The new section will include 42 Villa Nueva and 26 Hacienda residences, a total of 68, said Elm Weingarten, vice president/marketing.

The newly designed Villa Nueva is available in four floor plans with one bedroom, bath and a half; two bedrooms, two baths; and three bedrooms, two baths. All are fully carpeted.

Each has a separate dining area and in three of the plans the kitchen includes an eating area. Prices are from $38,400 to $61,400.

ALL VILLA NEUVAS have an entry hall, a 15 foot by 7 foot patio/balcony, fully equipped kitchen with range and double oven, dishwasher, waste disposer, frost-free refrigerator/freezer, luminous ceiling and natural finish hardwood cabinets. Three plans have a pantry.

Baths have Corian vanity tops, luminous soffit in the master bath and luminous ceiling in the second bath, stall shower in master bath, tub with "telephone-type" shower in second bath, grab bars and electric heat lamp with timer switch.

Additional features include prewiring for telephone and cable TV, fully insulated exterior walls and ceilings, sliding glass door to patio or balcony, electric radiant heat and double shelves in wardrobe closets.

HACIENDAS IN Andorra Village are available in three floor plans, all in one story buildings. Prices are from $59,900 to $74,900. The Cabrillo has three bedrooms, two baths, a living room, dining area, entry hall, oversize double garage, 32 foot long patio and a private entry court.

The Casa Rosa has two bedrooms, two baths, living room, dining area, entry hall, oversize single garage, 27 foot long patio, and a second covered patio off the dining area. The Villa Fuente has two bedrooms, two baths, a living room, dining area, entry hall, oversize single garage and joined patios off the living room and master bedroom.

All electric kitchens in each Hacienda have luminous ceilings, natural finish hardwood cabinets, Corian countertops, pantry, range with two ovens, frost-free refrigerator/freezer, dishwasher and waste disposer. Baths have luminous soffit, Corian vanity top, built-in medicine cabinet, stall shower and double lavatory in master bath, tub with "telephone-type" shower in second bath, grab bars and electric heat lamp.

Additional features in all Haciendas are forced air heating, pre-wiring for telephone and cable TV, fully insulated exterior walls and ceiling, sliding glass doors to patios.

ROSSMOOR LEISURE World was established nearly 11 years ago and now has a population of about 18,000.

The entire community is walled and guarded by 250 security officers. Recreation and education facilities are available in five clubhouses and include a 27-hole golf course, tennis courts, riding stables, shuffleboard, lawn bowling, a theatre, swimming, numerous arts and crafts rooms, 150 free adult education courses and 170 membership clubs.

Leisure World is for adults aged 52 and over. A Model/Design Center at the El Toro exit of San Diego Freeway about midway between Los Angeles and San Diego, is open daily to 5:30 p.m.

THREE MODELS OFFERED IN ANDORRA VILLAGE

Peacock Ridge model

A new model has been completed for Peacock Ridge, a townhome village located on top of a hill overlooking the Santa Monica Bay and the lights of Los Angeles.

The model was conceived and implemented by Pati Pfahler Design Associates of Canoga Park.

"The new model was necessitated by a customer who insisted upon purchasing the existing model and taking possession immediately," said Arthur Ehrlich, exclusive sales agent.

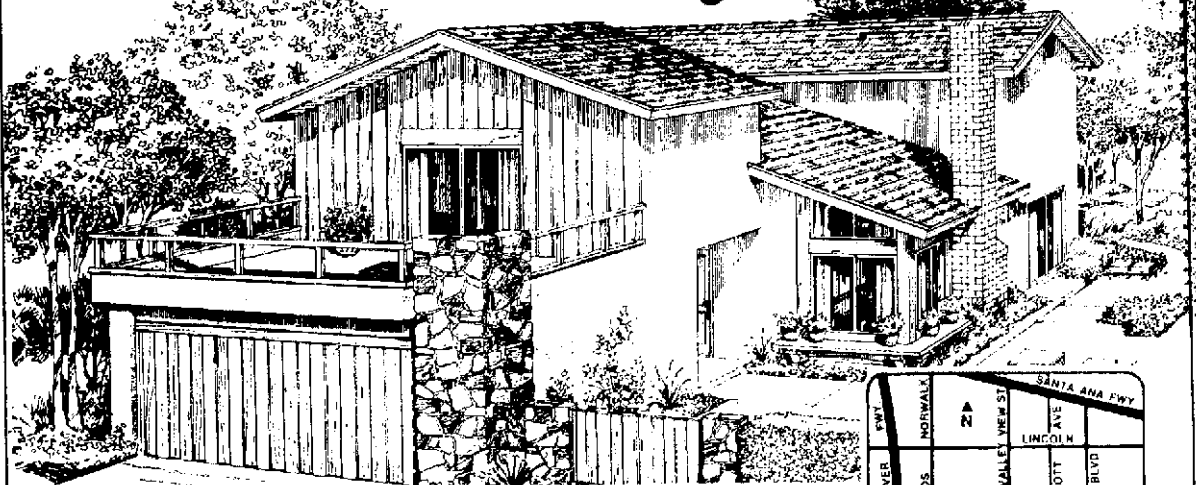

Built by IDM Corp., Peacock Ridge has only nine homes remaining from 44 with two plans available. One is a massive three bedroom and den tri-level, the other a large two bedroom plus den. Prices are under $79,950.

The development is located at the top of a hill on a cul-de-sac at the end of Peacock Ridge Road. "This is the final condominium offering in this area."

The homes offer cathedral ceilings, custom fireplaces and mezzanines.

Take Hawthorne Boulevard to High Ridge Road, south on High Ridge to the hill-top village at 5987 Peacock Ridge Road.

REMEMBER HODGES SPANS FROM
DOWNEY TO SAN JUAN CAPISTRANO

WHEN YOU ARE THINKING OF BUYING

CALL REX L. HODGES . . . AND YOU WILL DISCOVER WHAT 46 YEARS OF LEADERSHIP WILL DO FOR YOU. We are proud of the fact that we are there BEFORE, DURING and MOST IMPORTANTLY AFTER THE PURCHASE . . . THINK ABOUT IT. Financing is still the key and at Hodges We Specialize in:

- VETERAN LOANS (GI Sales)
- FHA FINANCING
- 5% DOWN
- 10% DOWN
- GOVERNMENT REPOSSESSIONS
- LOW INTEREST ASSUMABLE LOANS
- BUY NOW, SELL LATER

SO . . . why not take a few minutes and call one of Hodges numbers and

1. Specify type home
2. Amount of cash you desire to invest
3. Special Requirements

WHEN YOU ARE THINKING OF A CAREER

If you are now licensed or enrolled in a Real Estate school you owe it to yourself to call (213) 437-1251. Ask for Bernie Jones. We have several choice openings and what's more important Hodges pays more, trains better, and sees you as a person. We believe Rex. L. Hodges is a great place to work.

Better still, stop in one of our offices and inquire as to how our associates feel — probably the best testimony.

Remember we have been growing since 1929, that's 46 years. Someone once said, "LITTLE THINGS MEAN A LOT." At Rex L. Hodges we are always concerned with the little things.

HAPPINESS IS WORKING FOR HODGES!

TELEVISION LOG OF THE INDEPENDENT-PRESS-TELEGRAM AND THE EVENING NEWS

Midseason bringing more cops, comedies

By BOB MARTIN
TV-Radio Editor

Ready for a new television season?

What's that you say — anything would be an improvement over the present one?

January marks midseason on the television calendar, and the networks get a second chance. They have resolved to do better, but whether they will or not remains to be seen.

Of 26 new series introduced by the three major networks last fall, 16 have gone down the tube — or will soon. One returning series — ABC's "That's My Mama" — also has gotten the ax.

Replacing the canceled shows will be new series that may not seem very much different. Only the names and the faces will be changed in some cases; the content probably will turn out to be just about the same.

JAMES COCO, GERALDINE BROOKS

Situation comedies are being replaced by situation comedies and cops 'n' robbers by cops 'n' robbers. But, then, those two types of shows apparently are the favorites of TV viewers as America enters its Bicentennial year.

It's just that some comedies and some cop shows are more popular than others, and the networks hope their new offerings will have greater appeal than the ones they've killed off.

Three sitcoms already have made their bow as midseason replacements — NBC's "Grady" and "The Cop and the Kid" and CBS' "One Day at a Time." Coming up soon will be four others.

They are: "Popi" (CBS), starring Hector Elizondo as a Puerto Rican father who is raising his two sons; "Laverne and Shirley" (ABC), a spinoff of "Happy Days," starring Penny Marshall and Cindy Williams as two working girls in the 1950s; "The Dumpings" (NBC), a Norman Lear production starring James Coco and Geraldine Brooks as a couple who operate a luncheonette in New York

City; and "The Practice" (NBC), starring Danny Thomas as a Park Avenue doctor.

Additions to the long list of series dealing with police officers or private eyes will be "City of Angels" (NBC), starring Wayne Rogers; "Jigsaw John" (NBC), starring Jack Warden; "Superstar" (ABC), starring Paul Sorvino; and "The Blue Knight" (CBS), which made its bow in December with George Kennedy as the star.

Howard Cosell will be gone, if not missed, but midseason will bring two new variety hours — "Donny and Marie" on ABC, featuring the Osmond youngsters, and "The Rich Little Show" on NBC. And, on CBS, "Cher" will become "The Sonny and Cher Show" as the singer brings back her ex-husband to try to improve her sagging ratings.

Joining the prime-time lineups for the second half of the 1975-76 season will be three dramatic series:

DONNY AND MARIE OSMOND

"Rich Man, Poor Man" (ABC), based on Irwin Shaw's novel and starring Peter Strauss, Nick Nolte and Susan Blakely; "The Bionic Woman" (ABC), a spinoff of "The Six Million Dollar Man," with Lindsay Wagner in the title role; and "Sara" (CBS), featuring Brenda Vaccaro as a frontier schoolteacher.

ABC will revive "Almost Anything Goes," last summer's series involving wacky athletic competition. And CBS already has moved its news-magazine-type program "60 Minutes" into the 7-to-8 p.m. Sunday slot.

Starting dates of upcoming series:

TUESDAYS — "Popi," Jan. 20; "Laverne and Shirley," Jan. 27; "City of Angels," Feb. 3.

WEDNESDAYS — "Bionic Woman," Jan. 14; "The Dumpings," Jan. 28.

FRIDAYS — "Donny and Marie," Jan. 23; "The Practice," Jan. 30; "Sara," Feb. 13.

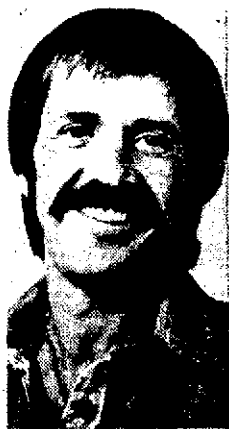

SATURDAYS — "Almost Anything Goes," Jan. 24; "Superstar," Feb. 21.

'Upstairs' returns tonight; the era is World War I

By KAY GARDELLA
New York News

NEW YORK — Now that CBS' "Beacon Hill" has gotten its comeuppance, a programming experiment that ended after 13 episodes, it's time once again to return to its prototype, the Mobil-funded "Upstairs, Downstairs," and revisit with the Bellamy family at 165 Eaton Place and see how World War I is affecting the lives of the people in this contained British household.

The newest batch of episodes from across the Atlantic, 13 in all, begins tonight on the Public Broadcasting Service. These new programs, which begin in London in 1914, are the best in the series so far.

Once again they are meticulously researched and produced by John Hawkesworth and his script-editor partner, Alfred Shaughnessy. They subtly show the slow disintegration of the rigid social structure in the Bellamy household as its members grapple with the problems of war. The pace, especially, is good.

SO ENGROSSED were we with these future hours that we've practically viewed our way through the entire series. In weeks to come, if we may give you a quick glimpse into the future, you'll see what changes the outbreak of war has made on the snobbish, arrogant James Bellamy (Simon Williams), who is a poor reflection of his father, Richard Bellamy.

He's back in uniform as a guards major fighting in France and Hazel (Meg Wynn Owen), his wife, doesn't like it very much.

Lady Georgina Worsley (Lesley-Anne Down), will surprise you with her serious dedication to nursing. Then there's maid Daisy's heartbreak when Edward the footman (Christopher Beeny) is practically shamed into donning uniform and serving as a front-line soldier.

EVEN HUDSON, who is too old to enlist, does his bit for the war effort by becoming a part-time special police constable. And Rose (Jean Marsh), the maid, shocks Mrs. Bridges by declaring one day that she collects fares on the buses.

Played against these day-to-day seemingly trivial occurrences is always a much greater underlying theme, one always brilliantly articulated by Alistair Cooke on this "Masterpiece Theatre" series. It's the larger view, the historical backdrop, that is always provided by the urbane host.

In his detailed introductions, covering the various military strategies and supplying viewers with an historically accurate account of what was taking place outside of the Bellamy household, he would say, as an example, "that 80,000 Belgian refugees got into France, and the British shipped in 100,000 refugees from Belgium."

Then, in an episode of the series you will see what happens in the Bellamy household when they accept lice-infested refugees, who are made to stay below with the servants by orders of Richard Bellamy.

THIS SPLENDID English gentleman, who is the essence of good breeding, is, of course, played by David Langton, a suave, gray-haired, 53-year-old actor who was born for the part.

Obviously in tune with the finer things in life, and an admirer of the man he portrays, Langton credits the success of this superb series to producer Hawkesworth. Said he: "He comes from a very grand background, he was a colonel in the guards, a good painter, and he writes well. He's a very good producer, one who functions like a headmaster of a school."

"He thoroughly understands the English background of 'Upstairs, Downstairs' completely. He's a man who rides the hounds. He's a most extraordinary man as a producer, one who found the synopsis for the program and developed it into a series.

"He cast it very carefully, checking on what people were like and their backgrounds and how they reacted to things. Plus, he was wise in not being too ambitious and keeping the action close to the house.

It's a story about a family and its servants."

THERE IS much speculation why "Beacon Hill" failed so miserably, while "Upstairs, Downstairs" continues along its successful path all over the world. Langton has his own theories.

"In 'Beacon Hill,'" he said, "they tried to make you believe there was an upstairs and a downstairs. But there was never enough discipline below stairs. Everyone seemed to be having a good time, and I found it hard to believe a chauffeur could have an affair with Lassiter's granddaughter and continue to work there."

"By contrast, in England there was a tremendous discipline. People were sacked and would be thrown out on the street with no redress at all. If they didn't have a reference from a master or mistress they didn't work again and they didn't have relief."

MEG WYNN OWEN plays Hazel in "Upstairs, Downstairs," which returns to Ch. 28 at 9 p.m. Sunday.

E. G. MARSHALL portrays President Truman and Henry Fonda plays Gen. Douglas MacArthur in the ABC Theatre drama "Collision Course," on Ch. 7 at 9 tonight.

Gen. MacArthur, Truman clash drama's theme

By LEE MARGULIES
Associated Press

For a 40-year-old Englishman, Anthony Page has been part of a lot of American history.

First it was the capture and torturous incarceration of the Pueblo crew, then the Cuban missile crisis and now the dramatic showdown between President Harry S. Truman and Gen. Douglas MacArthur.

Not that Page has been present for those occasions the first time around. But he has gotten to relive them as director of three so-called "docu-dramas," documentary-like dramatizations of historical events.

Following in the footsteps of the highly acclaimed "Pueblo" and "The Missiles of October," Page's latest undertaking, "Collision Course," airs tonight on ABC-TV. Henry Fonda portrays MacArthur and E. G. Marshall plays Truman.

IT SEEMS odd that an Englishman would be so intimately involved with projects that not only were decidedly American in content but also dealt with events he knew practically nothing about at the outset.

Yet the tall, balding director says being British actually has been an asset.

"I'm not so steeped in all sorts of lore that you're saturated with in America," he explained. "It helps me to see things clearer — at least maybe the essential things."

Quality material isn't achieved through ignorance, obviously. Page may not have known much about the three topics when he started, but in each case he said he did detailed research before the cameras rolled.

For "Collision Course," for example, he read Truman's memoirs, MacArthur's memoirs, numerous biographies of each man and several historical accounts of their controversy and the Korean war.

"I READ as much as I can about it," Page said in discussing how he prepares for a "docu-drama."

Bolster Your Medicare

Get Companion Care.
Now with $300,000
major medical.

Blue Cross Companion Care fills many of the gaps in Medicare. And now it includes $300,000 coverage for major medical-type expenses, such as in-hospital private duty Registered Nurse and outpatient prescription drugs. Today inflation and the recent rise in Medicare deductibles make it especially important to have the added protection of Companion Care.

But to qualify you must inquire by Jan. 31.

Companion Care is designed to supplement both Part A and Part B of Medicare. And it will cover you while traveling outside the United States.

As another benefit, Companion Care is part of the nationally recognized nonprofit Blue Cross organization. It's just good sense to buy health coverage from a long-established company that you know and trust.

To qualify for this protection for yourself—or for a friend or parent—you must inquire by Jan. 31. Mail the coupon today for an application and easy-to-understand folder detailing coverage and limitations.

CONSUMER INFORMATION: This coupon is a request for additional information, without obligation. It is not an application. To qualify, you must inquire by Jan. 31, 1976, be a resident of Southern California, aged 65 or over. Pre-existing conditions are not covered for six months. By state regulation, this offer cannot be repeated for at least three months.

Producer named to paramedic unit

Executive producer Robert A. Cinader of NBC's "Emergency!" series has been appointed to the Los Angeles County Paramedic Commission by the County of Los Angeles Board of Supervisors.

He was recommended for the post by Supervisor Peter F. Schabarum. The term of office will extend until Jan. 23, 1978.

RICHARD MASUR plays David Kane, who's in love with the divorced mother of two daughters, on the new comedy series "One Day at a Time," on Ch. 2 at 9:30 p.m. Tuesdays.

"Emergency!" is credited by fire departments across the nation with having created a favorable climate for the establishment of paramedic units in more than 15 states.

Fire episode set on 'The Waltons'

"The Burn Out," a special two-hour segment of "The Waltons," during which a fire rages through the family home, has been scheduled for Thursday evening, Jan. 22, on CBS-TV, according to Andy White, producer of the series.

'Collision Course' drama on Truman, MacArthur

have to know quite a lot because — I mean, the point of view, how something is to be interpreted — the more background knowledge you have the better."

He also was screened newsreel footage of the primary participants in each story to gain additional insight on their personalities.

"Collision Course" covers the period from June 1950 to April 1951, when Truman made the decision to relieve MacArthur as commander of U.S. troops in Korea, a decision which threw the country into controversy and saw the President hanged in effigy.

The only undocumented segment of the film deals with the historic meeting of the two men on Wake Island on Oct. 14, 1950. But even here writer Ernest Kinoy has based his dialogue on what each man reported happened and the transcript of notes made by a military secretary outside the door.

The emphasis is on fairness to each man's position, and, Page says, "this will not radically change anyone's mind, except that people who don't know anything about it might reach an opinion."

PAGE, who is best known in his homeland for his work with the Royal Court Theater, says directing these "docudramas" is extremely touchy because to misinterpret a speech or a scene or a motivation is to give millions of viewers an incorrect view of history.

"The whole thing is fraught with danger," he says. "Things can be interpreted so many ways, some are bound to be prejudicial one way or another."

Intuition finally comes to play a key role in the process, the director said, because even though a scene may be constructed on an actual transcript, the transcript doesn't say how the words were spoken and how the people looked as they spoke.

That's when his research really pays off, Page said, "because I don't want to do something that's just dramatic and isn't true."

The BIBLE Says

J.T. Smith

QUESTION: "Dear Sirs, In your Bible article of Sunday, October 19th, you stated that Mary Baker Eddy believed she would never die — but she did. Would you please print in your column the name of the book and the page number where you found this information?" (R.W.S.—Long Beach)

In Mary Baker Eddy's book Science and Health, Page 253 she said, and I quote, "I hope, dear reader, I am leading you into the understanding of your divine rights, your heaven-bestowed harmony, — that, as you read you see there is no cause (outside of erring, mortal, material sense which is not power) able to make you sick, or sinful; and I hope that you are conquering this false sense. Knowing the falsity of so-called material sense, you can assert your prerogative to overcome the belief in sin, disease, or death." I thought surely since Mrs. Eddy wrote this she believed it.

QUESTION: May one's sins be forgiven by being baptized as an infant. E.E.F.

In the first place, that which the denominational world calls baptism is not. They call sprinkling water on a person baptism. However, there, is nothing in the word "baptize," nor in the Bible's teaching concerning the one being baptized, that would include an infant or sprinkling.

The word baptize as is used in the New Testament is defined by God as "being buried in baptism" (Rom. 6:3-6). Also in these verses he says it is a "planting." Thus in Acts 8 when Philip and an eunuch went both down into the water, Philip baptized (buried him) — the eunuch — in water.

Also, an infant is not the proper subject for baptism. Jesus told his apostles, "Go into all the world, and preach the gospel to every creature. He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved; but he that believeth not shall be damned" (Mark 16:15-16). Thus, the subject for baptism is the one who is capable of hearing the gospel and believing it. Needless to say, the infant is not — hence not subject to the instructions of Christ.

Wants spending lid next year

President dangles July tax cut, if ...

By EILEEN SHANAHAN
WASHINGTON — President Ford plans to use his State of the Union message to tell the American people that they can have a tax cut of $10 billion, starting July 1, if Congress will hold government spending for the coming fiscal year to the $395 billion level.

In that message, scheduled for the evening of Jan. 20, Ford will be reopening the debate on the issue of taxes and spending, which he sees as one of his strongest for the forthcoming election campaign.

EXCLUSIVE
N.Y. TIMES SERVICE

The tax cut Ford will recommend would, if enacted, reduce withholding taxes by $2 to $4 a week for most families with incomes between $7,500 and $20,000 and give smaller cuts for those above and below these incomes. A heavy majority of the electorate has incomes in the $7,500-to-$20,000 range.

Ford's tax-cut proposal will include an increase in the personal exemption from $750 to $1,000 and some reductions in tax rates for individuals and corporations.

An increase in the personal exemption is particularly popular with the voters. Many members of Congress report there is no issue on which they regularly receive more mail, year after year.

The tax-cut proposal that Ford will announce will repeat in most, and possibly all, respects the program he originally proposed last October. He then asked Congress to enact $28 billion in tax reductions, effective Jan. 1, 1976, and a matching $28 billion in spending cuts that would not have started going into effect until Oct. 1, 1976.

Instead, Congress approved a stopgap tax bill, continuing the 1975 withholding tax rates for the first six months of 1976 and refused to make a commitment on spending reductions until it had seen the details of Ford's budget for the fiscal year 1977, which begins Oct. 1. The 1977 budget will go to Congress Jan. 21.

As the administration calculates things (it compared the 1976 tax rates with those in effect in 1974, not those in effect for 1975), the stopgap tax bill involved a tax reduction that would amount to $18 billion if continued in effect for a whole year. Thus, according to Ford's philosophy, there is room for an additional $10-billion tax cut, provided Congress agrees to his goal of slowing the growth of government spending by imposing a spending ceiling of $395 billion for the fiscal year 1977.

There appears to be no prospect that Congress will agree to any such ceiling, which would require substantial cutbacks in many major governmental programs.

Budget and tax experts in Congress, including some key Republicans, are, however, prepared to argue that it would be sound economic and budgetary policy to give $1 of tax reductions for every $1 by which Congress holds the total of spending in the

Detente defended by Ford

By BERNARD GWERTZMAN
New York Times Service

WASHINGTON — President Ford said Saturday that he would not abandon his support for detente with the Soviets, adding that any presidential candidate who urges such a change in policy "will be the loser in the long run."

In an interview taped by the National Broadcasting Co. and made public by the White House, Ford said again that the large-scale Soviet military involvement in Angola was "inconsistent with the aims and objectives of detente."

He added cryptically, however, that "we are making some headway" with Moscow toward an end to foreign involvement in Angola, "but I can't say categorically that the end result is what we want it to be at the present time."

Ford, interviewed for a special NBC show on foreign affairs scheduled for broadcast Monday night, seemed somewhat more conciliatory to the Soviets than he was after the Senate vote last month against further American secret funding to Angolan factions opposed to the Soviet-backed group.

At that time he said that Soviet actions in sending $100 million in aid to the Popular Movement for the Liberation of Angola had not improved the chances for the continuation of detente. Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger said a few days later that tensions in Soviet-American relations could increase as the result of Angola.

The strong administration response to the Soviets — said to have been heightened by frustration with the opposition on Capitol Hill to further American involve-

Kennick won't seek reelection to Senate

By BOB HOUSER
Political Editor

State Sen. Joseph M. Kennick, D-Long Beach, an 18-year-veteran of the Legislature, announced Saturday that he would not be a candidate for reelection.

Kennick, 70, gave no specific reasons for his decision other than his feeling that the district "would best be served by a new person."

The announcement, about a month before the Feb. 2 opening of filing for legislative offices, erases the prospect of a battle royal between Kennick and State Sen. George Deukmejian, R-Long Beach, in the Long Beach area's reapportioned 31st Senate District.

They shared city representation in their old 33rd and 37th Senate districts, respectively. Reapportionment put them in the same district, which includes all of Long Beach plus Lakewood, Carson, Signal Hill and Hawaiian Gardens.

Kennick underwent major surgery last May for a blood clot in a neck vein, but quickly returned to his legislative post. He has maintained an active schedule since, and last month helped chair a Senate committee hearing in Long Beach.

He said Saturday that his decision to retire at the end of 1976 "is both a source of sadness and satisfaction. I will deeply miss working

LONG BEACH Police Chief Ralph G. Kortz uses diagram during a press conference Saturday to describe to newsmen how Gene Lowe was shot to death by police.

Police chief 'regretful' L.B. man slain giving up

By MIKE JELF
Staff Writer

Long Beach Police Chief Ralph G. Kortz said Saturday that Gene Lowe, one of two brothers killed New Year's Day after a policeman was slain in an apparent ambush at their Long Beach home, was shot by a police sharpshooter who didn't realize the victim was surrendering.

The chief said the officer who fired the fatal shot was at the opposite end of a wall from the officers to whom Gene Lowe was surrendering and couldn't see the other officers.

Kortz said that, while he was "extremely regretful it happened," the officer who fired the fatal shot was "not going to be suspended. There's no reason to."

Lowe was in a crouching position when Special Training and Rescue (STAR) team member J.S. Harmon fired the shot from a distance of about 100 feet, Kortz said. According to the description of events given by the chief, Lowe would have been facing away from Harmon when the shot was fired.

Harmon apparently couldn't see Lowe's hands, which were raised only to shoulder level, and thought the victim was trying to jump the fence to escape, the chief said.

The chief said a police investigation indicated the tragedy was the result of a "setup or ambush by a mentally disturbed person."

Kennedy Lowe, Gene's older brother who was also slain in the shootout, "somewhere... got the idea that everyone was out to get him," Kortz said.

At an afternoon press conference in his office at the Public Safety Building, the chief made these disclosures:

—As far as was known Saturday from the "not yet finished" investigation, Gene Lowe, 28, took no part in the ambush or shootout.

—Officer Gary Elkins, 34, was the victim of what police believe to be an ambush rigged by Kennedy Lowe, 33.

—Elkins and his partner, Officer S.W. Housden, arrived at the Lowe house at 2816 Easy Ave. after four telephone calls to the police station reporting a prowler. The first call came from a boy, the next three from a man.

The calls were made at 2, 5:12, 5:19 and 5:27 a.m. Elkins and Housden arrived about 5:45 a.m. In the last call the man talking said he was a Long Beach police officer named Lowe and that he needed assistance.

Kennedy Lowe, according to investigators, had talked to a police detective the day before the shootout, the chief said, and seemed to fear that some persons, possibly policemen and possibly Black Muslims, were after him.

Two years earlier Kennedy was seriously wounded in a shotgun attack that killed a companion as they sat in a station wagon in the driveway of the Lowe home.

After Thursday morning's shootout, police found several rounds of shotgun ammunition "carefully laid out" near the front door and beside a kitchen window of the house, the chief said.

Kennedy Lowe's body was found inside the house near the front door, and a shotgun lay near his body.

"It was later found that five rounds of shotgun ammunition were fired by Kennedy Lowe, one a round of shot and four deer slug rounds, all of which were found to have struck Elkins," Kortz added.

Kortz's statement gave this account of how Gene Lowe died:

The first of 13 weekly contests in the Independent Press-Telegram's $10,000 Grand Prix Race Game begins today. Contestants will be competing for $600 in weekly cash prizes and a 14-day vacation cruise for two to Canada and Alaska. Complete instructions and an official entry form appear on Page S-12.

Federal welfare takeover urged

By RONALD SULLIVAN
New York Times Service

TRENTON, N.J. — Contending that the national welfare system is "out of control," the governors of four major states have called on President Ford to espouse a federal takeover of state and local welfare programs.

"The current patchwork of federal, state and local welfare programs is not working," the governors said in a joint telegram sent to the President. "It is time for a fundamental reordering of our approach to income maintenance; mere tinkering with existing programs is not enough."

The telegram was signed by Govs. Brendan T. Byrne of New Jersey, Hugh L. Carey of New York, Milton J. Shapp of Pennsylvania and Patrick J. Lucey of Wisconsin, all of them Democrats.

Last month, Lewis B. Kaden, Byrne's chief counsel, conferred with White House officials on the prospects of a White House initiative toward a federal welfare takeover. Soon afterward, Byrne solicited the support of governors from other big urban states in attempting to exert further pressure on the Ford administration. Friday's telegram represented one measure of Byrne's success.

Asking for a White House meeting to discuss welfare reform, the four governors proposed the following:

—Consolidation of existing federal programs for the poor into a "single, federally financed cash system providing a floor to the income available to every family." The proposal would consolidate the federal food stamp program, the Supplemental Security Income program for the aged and disabled, and the principal federal welfare program, Aid to Families with Dependent Children.

—A federal welfare program that would provide equality to divided or fatherless families as well as to united ones.

—The preservation of work incentives and a "fair level of assistance to the poor." According to New Jersey officials who helped draft the proposals, a minimum income of about $4,000 a year would be guaranteed to a family of four.

—A uniform and easily understood benefit-reduction schedule, gradually reaching a "zero point of no benefits and no income taxation" when actual family income reached about $7,500 a year.

—Retention of state responsibility for a number of social services for the poor and the elderly, elimination of a means test for the elderly and institutions of a "reasonable," federally funded, cost-of-living increase.

Although the four governors did not say what a federal takeover of welfare programs would cost, New Jersey officials estimated that it would total from $5 billion to $7 billion a year for the federal government. At the same time, they estimated, the elimination of duplication, red tape and fraud would save the states more than the additional federal expenditure.

In seeking the President's support, the governors acknowledged that their proposal was "neither simple in concept nor easy to implement." In an effort to eliminate the fraud and ineffectuality that has marked welfare programs at every level, the governors suggested that the program might well be better administered outside the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

While the governors made no specific recommendation on what agency should handle a federal program, New Jersey officials here said that the federal Internal Revenue Service might be the best administrative vehicle, recognizing, as the governors said, "The problems of stigma associated with traditional welfare programs and the need for fraud prevention."

"The harm done by the existing system has been well documented," the governors said. "It tolerates unacceptable variations between different parts of the country which cannot be explained by regional differences in the cost of living."

"It encourages family instability and disintegration. It does too little to help the working poor while it permits excessive levels of ineffectuality and fraud. It is unworkable for the family in need and is fast

$2,000 reward in killing of officer

Long Beach police Officer Franke Neal Lewis had parked his car in his driveway after finishing a duty shift at 2:50 a.m. on Dec. 14 when he apparently saw or heard a disturbance nearby and went to investigate.

His wife, inside their home, heard a gunshot and looked out the window to see her husband's car in the driveway and his body lying in the street down the block.

Investigators found that the 28-year-old officer had been killed by one gunshot wound in the head. Detectives said Lewis apparently had been trying to aid a man who was being beaten in his car.

A police dragnet was spread for a suspect whose identity was revealed by a tipster. This suspect surrendered after learning of the widespread search, but was released after detectives determined he was not involved in the shooting — and police now are without a suspect.

Secret Witness will pay $2,000 for information leading to the arrest and murder conviction of the slayer of Officer Franke Neal Lewis.

If you have such information, call Secret Witness at 436-2526 between 8 a.m. and midnight on weekdays, or from 3 p.m. to 11 p.m. on Saturdays and Sundays. Or write to Secret Witness, P.O. Box 67, Long Beach, Calif. 90801. (Selected summaries of other Secret Witness cases are on Page B-5.)

Keys, Jacobs make history, matrimonially

Combined News Services

U.S. Reps. Martha Keys of Kansas and Andrew Jacobs Jr. of Indiana were married in Topeka, Kan., Saturday, becoming the first sitting members of Congress to wed each other.

"I am the happiest woman in the world today," the bride said after the mid-afternoon ceremony. She said she will retain her last name and would prefer to be called Representative Keys. The bridegroom said the personal significance of the event was more important than its historical or political significance.

Both Jacobs, 43, and Rep. Keys, 45, are Democrats and both have announced they plan to seek reelection this year. It is the second marriage for each.

The wedding was performed by the Rev. Jack Bremer, pastor of University United Methodist Church, at the home of the bride's Topeka administrative assistant, James Buchele. After the ceremony, the newlyweds attended a private reception and appeared briefly before photographers.

The couple planned to then fly to Indianapolis today to visit Jacobs' friends and relatives. They said they would honeymoon in "some warm country," but declined to reveal their destination. Rep. Keys said she and her husband would return to Washington before Congress resumes session on Jan. 19.

She was elected to Congress in 1974. Jacobs served four terms in the House between 1965 and 1973 and ran successfully again in 1974.

Room at top for abuse

"It's good to be back home," Joe Strezishar said Saturday after completing a 34-day stay in a tree house atop a flag pole in Morton Grove, Ill.

Strezishar, 23, who collected more than $7,750 for muscular dystrophy research, was greeted by Illinois Gov. Daniel Walker as he climbed down from the shack over the parking lot of a discotheque where he works as a bouncer.

"All I could think about was my girlfriend," the Des Plaines resident said. "You know we're engaged and the cold. Boy, was it ever cold the last two days."

With temperatures near zero and winds of more than 20 miles an hour, Strezishar's two space heaters were not enough in the final hours. Otherwise, he was well equipped. Before making his descent at 3:45 p.m., he used a rope to lower his furniture: a television, stereo and portable toilet.

He also had a telephone in the shack and endured occasional crank calls. He also suffered from snowball attacks and had a black eye after being hit with a rock. "An experience like this can change your whole outlook on things," Strezishar said. "You find out who your friends really are."

Belated thanks

Three-year-old Stephen Sheldon gave his pediatrician's nurse a handkerchief for Christmas and the boy received a thank you note in return on New Year's Eve — 17 years after it was mailed.

Sheldon, now 20 and a student at Duke University in Durham, N.C., received the yellowed envelope Dec. 31, 1973, at his parent's home in Cincinnati, Ohio.

The letter, mailed Dec. 30, 1958, was addressed to "Master Stephen Sheldon," by Mrs. Linda Charley Moore. Mrs. Moore has long since left the doctor's office and works at a Cincinnati hospital.

The envelope, according to letter carrier Thomas Rottinghaus, had been found in an old mail sack at the U.S. Post Office. It was stamped "Found in Supposedly Empty Equipment."

"I couldn't believe it," said Rottinghaus, who hand delivered the letter. "I told Stephen, 'It's not my fault. I haven't been with this outfit that long.'"

"I'm going to contact her and let her know I got the thank you note," said Sheldon, "a little belatedly."

That's progress!

Forty years ago, it took T.D. Smith's uncle one day, to carry the mail in a Model T the 30 miles between West Plains, Mo., and Viola, Ark., including intermediate stops.

Today, a letter mailed between the two Ozark Mountain communities travels nearly 460 miles.

"We went from Model T days to airplane days, and now we're going backward," Smith said. "I think there are more people or machines handling the mail today and it's costing us more money."

First-class mail usually is still delivered the same day, "but how many people handle it before it gets to me?" said Smith, a 44-year-old retired Army officer who operates a combination service station and grocery in Viola, a community of 200. "This is the biggest duplication of effort I've seen."

A first-class letter posted for Viola first is trucked to Springfield, Mo., a distance of about 110 miles. There, it is put on an airplane and flown to Little Rock, 200 more miles. Then, after processing, it is trucked another 100 miles to Batesville. Batesville is about 50 miles from Viola. Eventually, it is worked to Viola.

The reason for the circuitous route, says the U.S. Postal Service, which last week got a rate hike because it said it was losing $7 million a day, is to concentrate mail volumes so more mail can be worked by machinery.

"We used to have only two post offices handle it — one on each end," Smith said.

'Singing Sam'

Singer Irving Kaufman, a pioneer radio and recording artist, died Saturday of heart complications at Indo Community Hospital. He was 85.

Kaufman first recorded for Thomas Edison, inventor of the phonograph, in 1912. Since then he had made more than 6,000 recordings, said Henry Tobias, a cousin and family spokesman.

Kaufman made many of his recordings under the names of "Singing Sam, the Singing Man" and "Lazy Dan, the Minstrel Man," among others. He recorded with such notables as Bing Crosby and his Rhythm Boys and Tommy and Jimmy Dorsey. Kaufman's "I'm Nuts About the Good Old U.S.A.," which he wrote and recorded, was one of his biggest hits.

Ecumenical

When deputies gave Paul Covey an opportunity to make one telephone call from the Akron, Ohio, jail after his arrest Saturday on a charge of reckless driving, Covey dialed the person he thought might be in the best position to help him — the Pope.

Deputies said Covey, 21, dialed several numbers unsuccessfully and then made a connection. He had been talking for five to eight minutes when a deputy picked up an extension and discovered that Covey was talking with a secretary at the Vatican.

Covey never got to speak with the Pope, but he will get the phone bill. Deputies said they advised the overseas operator to charge the call to Covey's home.

Weekend rates from Akron to the Vatican are $5.10 plus tax for the first three minutes and $1.70 plus tax for each minute thereafter.

Menninger 'fair'

Dr. Karl Menninger, psychiatrist and cofounder of the Menninger Foundation, underwent surgery at St. Mary's Hospital in Rochester, Minn., Saturday for removal of a tumor on the back of his head.

A spokesman for the foundation in Topeka, Kan., said the 82-year-old Menninger was in fair condition Saturday night, improved from the critical state in which he was described before surgery.

Menninger, chairman of the Menninger Foundation's board of trustees, co-founded the Menninger Clinic and the foundation more than 50 years ago with his father and brother.

Fink Olympics

The nine folks in Fink, Tex., are planning to stage the Fink Olympics during the annual National Fink Week, June 20-26. Mayor Patricia Albright says the North Texas community is trying to attract a different type of athlete than the real Olympics.

"Anyone who wants to take a crack at breaking a Guinness World Record is welcome to compete," the mayor said. "I see no reason why we can't have competitors in such events as baby carriage pushing, brick carrying, hand clapping, hoop rolling, house of cards building, rocking, see-sawing, shoe shining, skipping and others."

Mayor Albright said she is in training to enter the standing-on-one-foot contest. The record is five-plus hours.

'Mazeltov' on record

In an auditorium packed with enthusiastic church members, friends and visitors at the Birmingham, Mich., Unitarian Church, the Rev. Robert Marshall set a new world's record for nonstop preaching Saturday.

Marshall, who started his sermon at 12:01 a.m. New Year's Day, wound up the 60-hour, 31-minute marathon at 12:32 p.m., minutes after one of the congregation serving as timer called out, "You've made it, Bob."

The 55-year-old minister had topped by six minutes the world record set 18 months ago by an Irish Unitarian minister.

When the timer announced the new record, the congregation cheered. Marshall removed his glasses, wiped tears from his eyes and, when the tumult died down, raised his arms over his head and called out, "Mazeltov. Let that be the final word."

"Mazeltov" is a Yiddish term of congratulations that means literally "good luck."

ELSBETH VAN RIJN
By Rembrandt

$1-million painting recovered

BOSTON (AP) — Months of negotiations and investigation by law officers have led to recovery of a stolen Rembrandt masterpiece — a portrait believed to be of his sister. It was damaged slightly.

"There are no deals being made," U.S. Atty. James Gabriel said Saturday. "No money has been involved in this transaction whatsoever."

The 313-year-old oval portrait of a sober-faced, curly-haired Dutch woman, valued at more than $1 million, was wrapped in a threadbare old brown quilt when recovered at a secret meeting Friday night with an unidentified man in a restaurant parking lot.

"I THINK all the art world will be elated," said Jan Fontein, acting director of the Museum of Fine Arts, where the painting was stolen last April 14.

He said there appeared to be only slight damage to the 24-by-18-inch painting — two or three rubs or scrapes from the upper right to the lower left. The frame was damaged extensively.

The portrait, entitled "Elsbeth van Rijn," was painted when Rembrandt was 26, living in Amsterdam and beginning to gain prominence for his unusual use of light and mood.

Public Safety Commissioner John Kehoe said recovery of the portrait will not end the case.

"The investigation is continuing in an effort to identify, apprehend and prosecute the men who entered the Museum of Fine Arts and stole this painting," he said.

No stone left unturned by genealogists

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — OK, folks, you've shelled out upwards of $5 for your Pet Rock, and he or she is home safe in a vented, straw-lined box.

But who is the little critter? What's its background? Who were the parents? Were they the "right kind" of rocks?

For $1, the Oregon Department of Geology and Mineral Industry will tell you all this, and more. They'll prepare a genealogy.

Tens of thousands of the pet rocks have been purchased recently. Ralph Mason, deputy state geologist, says without the genealogy, the pet rocks are only faceless pebbles.

If you take your rock to the department in the State Office Building here, a state geologist will tell you the history and origin of the little fellow. Sandstone turned to quartzite, ocean ooze changed to slate, or morsel of a lava flow from millions of years ago.

"With a genealogy," Mason said, "a pet rock becomes a part of the story of the restless Earth."

Father of dead boy pleads

'Please, no more letters'

DECATUR, Ill. (AP) — A bereaved father made a nationwide plea Saturday: "Please don't send any more get-well letters. My son has been dead for seven months."

"My wife and I just can't take it any longer. We are being torn up. I've got to let all of my son's letter friends know that he died last June," said Charles Ryan.

The son, Mark, 13, fought cancer for five years. A story of his crippling plight appeared in a national weekly publication last May. The article said Mark would like to receive letters and the family's address was given.

"A week later Mark passed away," said Ryan. "In that time we received 5,400 letters, including a personal one from Sen. Edward Kennedy whose son's cancerous leg was amputated. Since Mark died, we have received 6,000 more pieces of mail. We are getting about 40 letters a week now."

Ryan said he screens the mail and tries to answer as many letters as possible.

"Mark has letter friends all over the country and many in Canada," said Ryan, who has three older children living at home. "I try to answer as many letters as I can to let people know that Mark is dead."

Ryan said about 200 packages also have been received containing games, reading material and religious matter.

"We received 24 Bibles, $300 in cash and even a coin collection," said Ryan who works for the Decatur Public Library. "We got a dozen boxes of gifts that I am going to take to St. Jude's Children's Hospital in Memphis."

Mark was stricken with bone cancer when his father was stationed at Fort Hood, Tex., and was treated at the Scott and White Clinic in Temple, Tex.

"It started to spread to his lungs," said the father. "I retired from the Army and we went to Tucson where he began cobalt treatments at the University of Arizona Medical Center. Mark never knew how bad his condition really was. We learned it was just a matter of time. He was a brave little boy."

'Police Story' drama cited

NBC's "Police Story" series has been named to receive the National Rehabilitation Association's annual award for "outstanding effort on behalf of the handicapped." Actor David Birney and executive producer Stanley Kallis were cited by the association for their work on the segment entitled "Captain Hook."

Birney and Kallis are the first representatives of the entertainment industry to be so honored in the 26-year history of the award.

Emergencies said 'normal' at hospitals

By KRIS SHERMAN
Staff Writer

County hospital emergency-room employees geared up Saturday for a barrage of patients left doctorless by the physicians' slowdown in protest of rising malpractice-insurance premiums.

But as the protest neared the end of its third day, officials at four large public hospitals said their emergency rooms were "not much busier than normal, especially considering the holiday weekend."

Officials of two of the hospitals, UCLA Medical Center and County-USC Medical Center, reported late Friday that they were "swamped" with patients seeking emergency treatment.

They added, though, there was really no way to determine how many of the patients were using the public facilities because their own doctors refused to treat them.

"We're usually busy on a holiday weekend, and I'm not sure you could say this one has been any different," said a nursing supervisor at UCLA.

SHE ADDED that the emergency staff treated 205 patients Friday, compared with a normal average of 150 over a 24-hour period. The staff treated about 135 persons from midnight Friday to 5 p.m. Saturday, the supervisor said.

A supervisor at County-USC, meanwhile, said the number of emergency cases there was running "only slightly above normal." Supervisors at Harbor General Hospital in Torrance and Martin Luther King Jr. Hospital in Los Angeles said their emergency rooms were handling "about the normal number of patients."

Earlier Saturday, doctors and state officials emerged from a marathon meeting at Brotman Memorial Hospital in Culver City with little to report.

Dr. Daniel Lang, medical director at the facility, called the 10-hour meeting "a meaningful exploration of the issues." Other doctors refused comment on the meeting.

THE CONFERENCE between Deputy Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare Robert Gnaizda and several leaders of the doctors' slowdown focused on a state proposal to operate a doctor-funded insurance pool.

Dr. Sanford Marcus, president of the Union of American Physicians in California, warned his colleagues not to be confused about rumors of an impending solution to the insurance crisis.

He said any agreement reached by Gov. Edmund G. Brown's representatives and doctors' groups would require legislative action "that could take months to achieve."

Marcus also said the union would not sign any agreement with state officials until it is submitted for written ratification by all of the state's doctors.

"We will no longer let self-appointed spokesmen deal for us," he said. "The doctors of California must now have a direct voice in approving any decisions in their name."

Stress on detection, treatment and post-hospital care Intestinal-cancer clinic set

By BEN ZINSER
Medical-Science Editor

A weekly outpatient clinic for persons with colostomies, ileostomies or urinary diversions will open Jan. 14 at Long Beach Community Hospital to serve those who need post-hospital care.

The new service, to be known as the stoma rehabilitation clinic, will be sponsored by the hospital and the Long Beach Harbor-Southeast Unit of the American Cancer Society.

The term stoma refers to a surgical construction of an artificial opening to the bowel or bladder.

Colo-rectal cancer, the most common internal cancer, is the primary cause for most colostomies.

Stomas also may be required because of ulcerative colitis, congenital defects or incontinence.

Authorities with the American Cancer Society estimate that as many as 36,000 new stomas are created annually in the United States, with 7,500 of that number in California.

THE STOMA clinic will be conducted by a hospital-based enterostomal therapist.

The stoma service will be only clinic for such patients in the Greater Long Beach area.

It is one in a series of cancer detection and treatment programs developed over the past three years by Community Hospital at a cost of nearly $2 million.

Appointments will be accepted starting Monday for the Wednesday clinic. Fees will range from $15 to $25. Most major medical insurance will pay at least a percentage of the fee.

Patients may be referred by their private physician or by community agencies such as the American Cancer Society.

Rhoda Spoungle, R.N., the clinic's enterostomal therapist, has more than 12 years of experience in the field, all in the Long Beach area. She was formerly in private practice and made between 80 and 100 patient calls monthly. She is one of only 500 enterostomal therapists in the United States, Canada and Australia, and is the first registered nurse to practice enterostomal care in California.

MRS. SPOUNGLE is a member of the board of directors of the International Association of Enterostomal Therapists and also serves on the board of directors of the local unit of the American Cancer Society.

In addition to her clinic duties, she will provide counseling and instruction for all of Community Hospital's stoma inpatients and their families.

She will also be available for telephone consultations at no charge to patients in the hospital of the clinic. Home visits may be scheduled for patients unable to come to the clinic.

Currently Mrs. Spoungle is conducting training programs for Community Hospital's nursing staff regarding the care of stoma patients. She will update nurses and physicians from time to time on innovations in stoma care and on new prostheses as they become available.

DISCUSSING her role, she says:

"My goal is to provide continuity of care. . . I also try to help the patient accept the social and emotional implications of the surgery."

"We discuss their life prognosis and any sexual problems. In many cases these patients don't have anyone else they feel free to talk to about their fears."

"I want to eliminate their feelings of being dropped at the hospital door after their acute care is completed."

The clinic is also open to outpatients who experience problems with fistulas (abnormal ducts or passages from hollow parts of the body to the surface or other hollow organs); surgical wound openings and drainage; skin ulcerations, and bowel problems following any type of surgery.

EXAMPLES of surgically created stomas include:

Ileostomy: An artificial opening of the small intestine on the abdominal wall.

Colostomy: An artificial opening of the large intestine on the abdominal wall.

Funding for the stoma clinic will be based on declining payments by the American Cancer Society with assumption of complete fiscal responsibility by Community Hospital at the end of two years.

The cancer society also will provide patient literature for the clinic and transportation when needed.

The Ostomy Association of Long Beach has unanimously endorsed establishment of the stoma clinic.

Area bloodmobile visits scheduled

President Ford has proclaimed January as National Blood Donor Month to honor those who donate blood for public benefit.

The President noted in a proclamation that, "In this first month of our Bicentennial year, it is most appropriate that we dedicate ourselves to the achievement of an all-volunteer supply of blood to meet the nation's needs."

Locally, according to William C. Barnes, Red Cross Blood Program chairman, the Greater Long Beach Red Cross is seeking to provide the total supply of blood needs for 29 area hospitals for 1976.

The first will be at Latter Day Saints Church of Long Beach, 3701 Elm Ave., Jan. 5 from 3 to 8 p.m.

Others scheduled for Jan. 7, will be at Kaiser Hospital of Bellflower, 9100 Rosecrans Blvd., from noon to 4:30 p.m.; Masonic Service Bureau of Long Beach, 3610 Locust

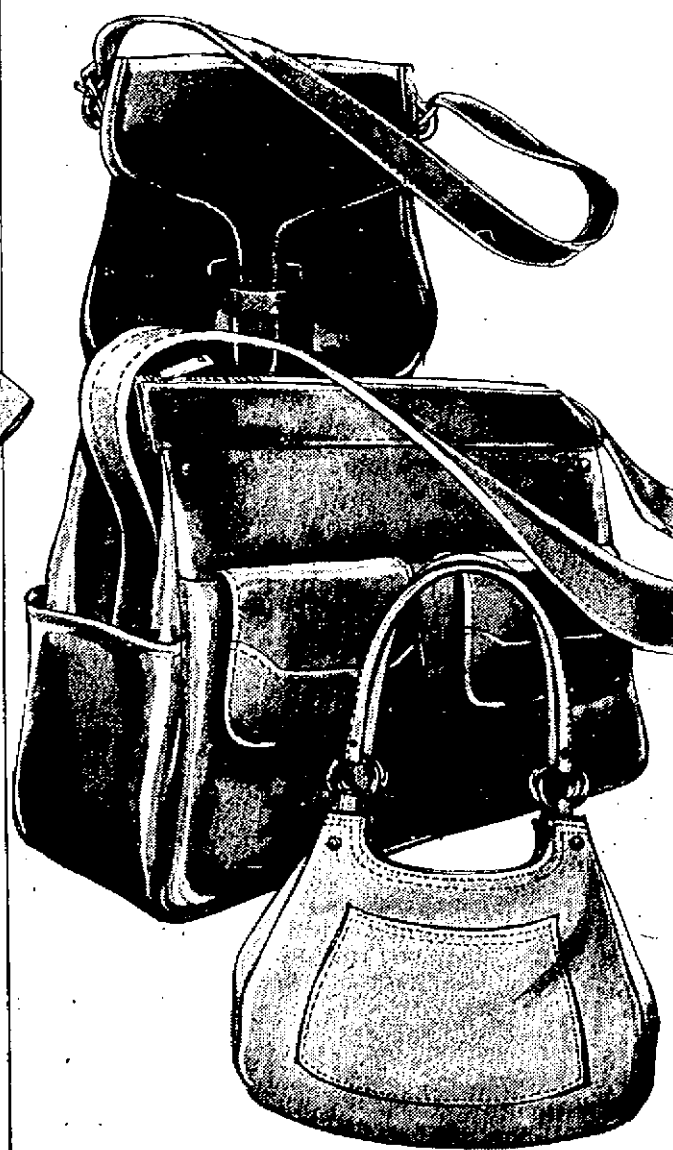

Ave., from 3 to 8 p.m.; St. Joseph's Catholic Church of Long Beach, 6220 E. Willow St., from 22 to 7 p.m., and East Side Christian Church of Long Beach, 568 Obispo Ave., from 3:30 to 8:30 p.m.

Appointments may be made in advance by calling the Red Cross at 595-6446.

SLA con blames parole 'stall' on refusal to snitch

SOLEDAD (AP) — Jailed radical Willie Brandt says his parole is being held up because he won't snitch on friends associated with the Symbionese Liberation Army.

Brandt, 28, said authorities seem interested in his prison visitors, including sports activist Jack Scott, sportswriter Jay Weiner and SLA-linked fugitives Michael Kilgore and Kathy Soliah.

"They were my friends on the street and I see no reason to abandon them now," Brandt said, adding that none has visited him since any terrorist activities attributed to the SLA occurred.

"What they (parole board) want me to do is snitch," Brandt told the San Francisco Examiner in an interview published today. "That's a common tool. If you snitch, you get less time. But normally, you don't get more time for not snitching."

BRANDT was sentenced in 1972 to up to 15 years in prison for possessing components for an explosive device and intending to use them. Soledad prison officials called him a model inmate, but two weeks ago the Adult Authority recommended a parole date of March 28, 1977. Brandt has filed suit in Monterey County Superior Court challenging the date.

"The parole board wrote that predicting his future behavior 'is difficult because subject was evasive and refused to discuss details of his associations and activities. Subject associated with known revolutionary radicals.'"

"My case has got worse and worse as I've been sitting in prison," Brandt said. "I sort of got promoted to field marshal just sitting here doing nothing." (Field marshal was a rank used by SLA leaders.)

Brandt, a native of Pennsylvania, was arrested

in March 31, 1972, after police found an explosives cache in a Berkeley garage. Two companions, Michael Bortin and Paul Rubenstein, pleaded to lesser counts and received one year and 10 months respectively in the Alameda County Jail.

A FOURTH indicted conspirator was Wendy Yoshimura, then Brandt's girlfriend. She went underground for three years and was arrested in San Francisco with Patricia Hearst last September. She now faces trial on the explosives charges.

"The reason I got involved in what I did was Vietnam," Brandt said. "I was convinced the country was in the grip of an anti-democratic dictatorship and there was no other way of fighting it."

"If I got out on the streets now, I would be interested in political struggle rather than a military one," he added.

"As long as the present situation exists, I favor going through the channels. The whole idea is to institutionalize revolutionary power."

Fire hits 10 nearby structures

SANTA MONICA (AP) — Eleven structures were burned — ten severely — in a fire that started in an unoccupied condominium Saturday, fire officials said.

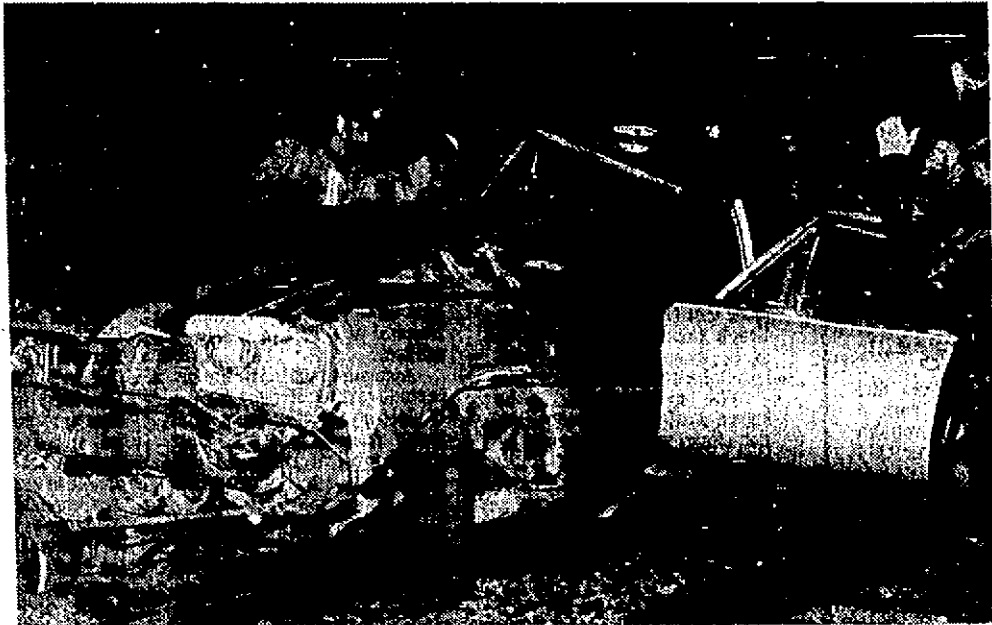

One man was hurt, scores of residents were evacuated and damage was estimated at about $750,000 from the blaze, which officials said started under "suspicious circumstances."

The cause of the fire was under investigation, but arson was suspected because some youths had been seen by neighboring residents during the week playing in the vacant structure.

The afternoon fire was brought under control within 45 minutes by six Santa Monica fire units and three units from the City of Los Angeles.

Winds carried sparks and embers from the blaze to adjacent buildings, including apartments and single-family houses. One person was injured trying to help people get furniture out of their home.

Jerry Charklin, 29, of Santa Monica was treated for smoke inhalation at Santa Monica Hospital, officials said.

Three die in train-car crash

Rescuers work to free one of three youths killed when their auto was dragged 200 feet by an eastbound Santa Fe train in La Mirada Saturday at about 7:20 p.m. Witnesses said the car was traveling about 60 miles an hour on Valley View Avenue, ran a stoplight at the intersection of Stage Road, plunged through the track barrier and was struck by the train. John Campbell, 21, and his brother James, 18, both of 14718 Florita Rd., La Mirada, were dead at the scene and the third victim, Michael Ross, 20, of 9614 Cedar Ave., Bellflower, was dead on arrival at La Mirada Community Hospital.

'The Orange Phantom'

Cyclist survives freak mishap

ORANGE (AP) — Highway Patrolman Jerry Ellison was chasing a motorcycle on the Newport Freeway when the motorcycle crashed at 120 miles per hour — and the cyclist disappeared.

"He was maybe 400 yards ahead of me when I saw this gigantic shower of sparks," said Ellison of the New Year's Eve incident. "It was a steel motorcycle being ground to bits on a concrete freeway."

Ellison found the wrecked motorcycle and 240 feet of skid marks at Lincoln Avenue, but no rider. Traffic was stopped while officers searched for the body of the Orange Phantom, as he was called because of his orange helmet and brightly colored motorcycle.

Several minutes later, a breathless motorist told officers he had an odd experience.

John Wokurka of Santa Ana said he was driving on the freeway at 55 mph when something slammed into the rear of his car. He looked in the rear-view mirror and saw a man in dark clothing and an orange helmet sitting on the trunk of his car.

Wokurka said he slowed to 10 mph, and the Phantom rolled off the trunk, scrambled over the freeway divider fence, ran across the opposite lanes and disappeared.

The next morning at 10 a.m., Ellison and an Orange County sheriff's deputy knocked on the door of Gerry Easton's apartment, a mile from the wreck.

Easton, 25, had reported the motorcycle stolen an hour after the crash.

Easton said at first Easton maintained the helmet was stolen along with the bike, but finally revealed himself as the Orange Phantom.

Easton told officers that when he put on his brakes the motorcycle skidded and "it pitched me right onto the trunk."

"I guess you could call it a miracle," said Easton, who said he was on his way to church when Ellison caught up with him.

Easton was booked on a traffic warrant, said the Highway Patrol.

Record lows in some areas

Cold snap damages Cal. crops

Combined News Services

VISALIA — A fourth straight night of bitter cold has caused "considerable damage" to Tulare County's $100-million citrus crop, Agriculture Commissioner Clyde Churchill said in Visalia.

Record lows were recorded in many parts of the California's farm-rich San Joaquin Valley, but Tulare County, the state's main citrus-producing county with 100,000 acres, probably will suffer most from it.

"It will run into a considerable amount of money," Churchill said in a weekend report. "In the cold spots, some ranchers may lose everything."

Churchill said in some ripening orchards temperatures hovered around 24 degrees or lower for eight hours Friday morning. Most citrus fruits begin freezing by the time the thermometer reads 27 degrees.

Churchill said it takes several days for freeze damage to become evident in citrus fruit, so no accurate estimate of the damage was expected until next week.

In neighboring Fresno County, Commissioner Ed Corn said a warm-air inversion may have protected much of the county's $28.5-million citrus crop.

The cold snap is reminiscent of a year ago when three periods of heavy frost virtually wiped out some central California citrus growers.

Rural areas of Riverside and San Bernardino counties also were hit by frost, forcing citrus farmers to stoke up their smudge pots to protect their crops.

Some crop damage was expected in western Riverside County, said a spokesman for the Fruit Frost Warning Service.

Scattered variable high clouds and cool temperatures with a high of only 60 was forecast for Long Beach today. Saturday's high reading was 66. Overnight lows will continue to range in the high 30s.

Weekend sailors will tack into westerly winds of 8 to 14 knots this afternoon and pitch across wind waves of two to three feet, forecasters said. Only light, variable winds are expected offshore this morning.

Those who look to Southland deserts for warmth might as well stay home, according to forecasts. Temperature highs are expected to range from 53 to 66 in desert areas, with overnight lows ranging from 26 to 36.

Though cool, these temperatures represent a warming trend from Saturday's desert cities' temperature range of 10 to 63 degrees.

Mountain areas will have highs today of 48 to 55 and 52 to 58 Monday.

Ex-chief hits Cal. information staff

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Elaborate newsletters, fat budgets and unneeded employees typify the state's information services, says California's first chief information officer.

The report by Harvey Yorke, quoted in Saturday's Sacramento Bee, recommended that the 150 full-time state information officers be reduced to about 100 and redistributed.

Yorke, appointed by Gov. Ronald Reagan as chief of information services, was replaced last November by Gov. Edmund G. Brown's appointee, Fred Epstein. His report to Brown will be forwarded to the Legislature.

The state spends about $4 million a year on information services, with "little or no apparent relation between the communication needs of the various programs and the staff authorized," Yorke said.

He added that some departments had far too many officers and others far too few. For example, until recent cutbacks, the Department of Transportation had 20 information officers and the Department of Consumer Affairs

one. The report also said: — Besides its own printing plant, the state has at least 10 duplicating centers employing 186 persons.

— Many publications cost too much because of expensive printing, artwork and photographs. The Department of Corrections spent $3,600 for 1,100 copies of its 32-page annual report.

— Many department newsletters are elaborate and costly and contain too many feature articles.

— The state has more photographic equipment than it needs. In addition, the state has a complete motion picture and videotape studio at the Department of Water Resources, but Yorke said he heard complaints that private filming would be cheaper.

— Information officers appear to spend about half their time on administrative tasks.

The report said it wasn't clear how much of the material published by the state is needed. It recommended that departments share information officers and that Brown put limits on the state's information services.

Religious events 'good business' at Knott's

Associated Press

The sound of religious music and impassioned "witnesses" have been reverberating through Knott's Berry Farm in Buena Park recently, and park officials say religion has proved to be good business.

On at least four occasions, religious music events have brought 20,000 persons to the park, which annually draws the third largest crowds in the country, behind Disneyland in neighboring Anaheim and Disney World in Florida.

"We've always had the freedom to make statements — be they political like my grandfather has done in the past, or religious, through the musical programs," says Darrell Anderson, one of 11 general partners and a grandson of Walter Knott, the 86-year-old founder of the park.

"We provide the business support for those who want to minister," Anderson says, but adds that the groups have to both entertain and "seriously involved in ministry."

2 masseuses found slain

MONTEREY (AP) — Police are searching for clues in the execution-style slayings of two masseuses whose bodies were found bludgeoned, bound and gagged in a field near Salinas.

Yong Suk Hollman, 27, and Kim McConnell, 42, both natives of Korea and residents at the Oriental Health Spa in Monterey, had been asphyxiated and struck over the head with a blunt instrument, a coroner's spokesman said. Their mouths were taped.

There were no signs of sexual molestation, the spokesman said.

Most inherited their wealth

22 U.S. representatives millionaires

By RICHARD LYONS
New York Times Service

WASHINGTON — Amid increasing pressures from both inside and outside of Congress for fuller disclosure of financial holdings, partial records show that the House of Representatives has at least 22 millionaires among its 435 members — and possibly more.

Despite a recent trend toward "sunshine bills" that make the activities, financial holdings and certain activities of members of Congress more open to the public than in the past, there is no law that requires members of the House or the Senate to make public their total net worth.

But financial statements on file with Congress and government ethics committees in a dozen states, plus voluntary disclosures made by the representatives, have disclosed the presence of at least 22 millionaires in the House, as well as many other members with considerable wealth.

PREVIOUSLY, The New York Times reported that 22 members of the Senate were millionaires.

At present, members of the House must file with the House Committee on Standards of Official Conduct the sources of some of their income. These include the names of companies that do "substantial business" with the federal government and companies subject to federal regulatory agencies.

But according to the House rules, neither the exact number of shares nor their total value need be made public. Estimates of their worth must be filed with the committee, but this material is not made public.

The partial disclosure rules were passed by the House in 1968. But some members now complain that these rules do not require sufficient disclosure to free members from potential charges of conflict of interest during the handling of legislation affecting financial matters.

REP. Morris K. Udall, D-Ariz., has introduced a bill calling for more complete reporting of personal financial records. "The public has a right to know the financial involvement of congressmen in the legislative issues that come before them," he said.

In addition to the records on file, some members of the House have voluntarily made public either income-tax records or statements of net worth to avoid potential charges that they might have something to hide.

Rep. Millicent H. Fenwick, R-N.J., not only has acknowledged a net worth of more than $5 million, but also has repeatedly volunteered the information during her political campaigns. In contrast, most of her moneyed colleagues seldom call attention to their wealth, doubting that voters want to vote the wealthy into office.

Most of those representatives who are millionaires inherited family wealth as did Mrs. Fenwick, whose father, Ogden Hammond, was a wealthy banker and diplomat. Members of other famous families include the following:

—Pierre S. du Pont IV, R-Del., the great-grandson of the founder of the chemical empire that now is duPont de Nemours & Co.

—H. John Heinz III, R-Pa., a descendant of the founder of the H.J. Heinz food conglomerate.

—Alphonso E. Bell, R-Calif., whose family founded the Bell Petroleum Corp., who also has interests in ranching and real estate.

—W.S. Stuckey Jr., D-Ga., whose family founded a chain of restaurants and hut shops.

—James T. Broyhill, R-N.C., heir to a family furniture business.

Other millionaires in the House whose families' fortunes are the basis for their wealth are: Richard L. Ottinger, D-N.Y.; Jonathan B. Bingham, D-N.Y.; Robert W. Daniel, R-Va.;

Gilbert Gude, R-Md.; Robert C. Krueger, D-Tex.; Richardson Preyer, D-N.C.; Philip E. Ruppe, R-Mich.; Fortney H. Stark, D-Calif.; Charles W. Whalen, R-Ohio; Edward Hutchinson, R-Mich.; and William S. Moorhead, D-Pa.

Members of the House who have become millionaires mainly as a result of their own efforts include:

James M. Collins, R-Tex., who has run a number of successful insurance and electronic ventures; James H. Scheuer, D-N.Y., who has been successful in real estate operations in New York and Washington; Don Edwards, D-Calif., who founded a successful title insurance company; and Jack Brooks, D-Tex., who has become wealthy through banking and real estate. Stocks in financial institutions are a favored means of investment for congressmen. The National Committee for an Effective Congress, a liberal lobbying and fund-raising group with headquarters here, conducted a survey of representatives' financial interests three years ago and found that 107 members had held either an interest in or derived income from either banks, or savings and loan associations or bank-holding companies. In addition, 28 members then reported holding interests in insurance companies.

Of the 107, nine were members of the Banking and Currency Committee, while six others were on the Ways and Means Committee, which initiates legislation dealing with taxes paid by banks. In addition, 37 of the 107 named in that survey indicated they had a management position with a financial institution such as being either an officer or a director, or both.

Among the favored forms of investment by representatives in 1972 were oil and gas companies by 42 members, power and light companies by 31, broadcasting companies by 22 and drug companies by 20.

Several members of the House have married women who are millionaires in their own right, including James A. Haley, D-Fla., whose wife at one time owned the Ringling Brothers Barnum and Bailey Circus.

Other members whose wives are wealthy, although probably not millionaires, include Barber B. Conable, R-N.Y., and Richard Bolling, D-Mo. Representatives who are not known to be millionaires but whose wealth is believed to be about $500,000 include: John J. Rhodes, R-Ariz.; Teng Roncalion, D-Wyo.; Glenn M. Anderson, D-Calif.; Bill Archer, R-Tex.; Bobb Casey, D-Tex., who has announced his intention to resign from Congress to take a post with the Federal Maritime Commission; William Lehman, D-Fla.; Henry S. Reuss, D-Wis.; Shirley Pettis, R-Calif.; James C. Cleveland, R-N.H.; Harold Runnels, D-N.Mex.; G.V. Montgomery, D-Miss.; and I.J. Pickle, D-Tex.

TV MOVIE TIPS

TODAY

"Zulu" (1964), 3 p.m.
Ch. 7. True story of a small band of British soldiers who defend a So. African garrison against a horde of Zulu warriors. Stanley Baker, Jack Hawkins, Ulla Jacobson. Foreword narrated by Richard Burton.

"Story of Will Rogers" (1952), 3 & 7:30 p.m., Ch. 9.
Factual film of Rogers' rise to fame, fortune and his marvelous influence on others. Will Rogers, Jr., plays his father, Jane Wyman, his wife; also stars Eddie Cantor.

"Fanny" (1961), 6 p.m., Ch. 11.
Musical drama, based on the Marseilles Trilogy by Marcel Pagnol, of a pregnant young girl in love with a boy who leaves her for the sea. Maurice Chevalier, Leslie Caron, Charles Boyer.

"The Borgia Stick" (1967), 11:40 p.m., Ch. 2.
Suspenseful drama about a supercrime syndicate involved in the U.S. economy and two pawns who try to break with the organization. Don Murray, Inger Stevens, Barry Nelson, Fritz Weaver.

"Winchester '73" (1950), 8 p.m., Ch. 9.
Good cast and old-time western action of two enemies settling an old score by gunplay. Tony Curtis, James Stewart, Shelly Winters.

"Come Fly With Me" (1963), 11:30 p.m., Ch. 2.
A light-hearted comedy of three overseas airline hostesses who engage in some complicated romancing on a trip to Paris and Vienna. Dolores Hart, Pamela Tiffin, Lois Nettleton, Hugh O'Brien, Karl Malden.

TUESDAY

"Cover Girl" (1944), noon, Ch. 11.
Academy Award-winning musical comedy centering around the life a glamorous model, the dancer she loves and a wealthy editor. Rita Hayworth, Gene Kelly, Phil Silvers, Otto Kruger, Eve Arden.

"First Men In The Moon" 3:30 p.m., Ch. 7.
Adaptation of an H. G. Wells novel of three astronauts' meeting with an aged discoverer who tells them the story of the first landing on the Moon. Edw. Judd, Lionel Jeffries, Martha Hyer, Erik Chitty.

"Saraloga Trunk" (1946), 8 p.m., Ch. 9.
Elaborate but lengthy drama based on Edna Ferber's novel of a beautiful woman with Creole past who returns to New Orleans to lord it over the upper crust. Gary Cooper, Ingrid Bergman.

WEDNESDAY

"Forever Amber" (1947), noon, Ch. 11.
Kathleen Winsor's novel, set in the 17th Century, of a country girl who attains success in the Court of Charles II at the cost of the true lover she sought. Linda Darnell, Cornel Wilde, Richard Greene, George Sanders.

"How To Succeed In Business Without Really Trying" (1967), 8 p.m., Ch. 9.
Wonderfully-scored musical comedy from the Broadway hit of a window cleaner who uses glib talk and a book to become Chairman of the Board. Robert Morse, Michele Lee, Rudy Vallee.

"The Count of Monte Cristo" 9 p.m., Ch. 4.
Richard Chamberlain is the star of this 2-hr production based on the novel by Alexandre Dumas. Also stars Trevor Howard and Louis Jourdan.

"Tribute To A Bad Man" (1956), 11:30 p.m., Ch. 2.
James Cagney stars as a ruthless land baron whose one passion is for horses and who will stop at nothing in his treatment of rustlers.

TONY CURTIS, who stars as suave con artist "McCoy" on "NBC Sunday Mystery Move," finds himself with women at every turn in a caper he engineers on the episode airing at 9 p.m. Sunday on Ch. 4. Pictured with Curtis are Bernadette Peters (left), who dons disguises to aid in McCoy's hoax; Natalie Schafer (center) as the naive widow he tries to help, and Tony's real-life wife, Leslie (right), as an aviator.

THURSDAY

"Lust For Gold" (1949), noon, Ch. 11.
Story of the famous Lost Dutchman gold mine, and a scheming woman who even kills her husband to win its riches. Ida Lupino, Glenn Ford.

"Invasion Earth 2150 A.D." (1967), 3:30 p.m., Ch. 7.
A small band of resistance fighters fight to free Earth from an invasion of super-intelligent robots from outer space. Peter Cushing, Bernard Cribbins, Ray Brooks, Andrew Keir.

"Mister Roberts" (1955), 8 p.m., Ch. 9.
Misadventures of a U.S. Navy cargo ship during WWII and its beloved 2nd Officer who longs for combat. Henry Fonda, James Cagney, Jack Lemmon.

FRIDAY

"So Young, So Bad" (1950), 1 p.m., Ch. 5.
Female delinquents in a N.Y.C. home for wayward girls; those in charge battle over usage of traditional methods versus revolutionary new ideas. Paul Henreid, Anne Francis.

Play by priest set for 'Barnaby Jones'

"Shadow of Guilt," a teleplay by a Jesuit priest about a ghetto priest, has been set by producer Philip Saltzman as an episode of Quinn Martin Productions' "Barnaby Jones." The author is Father Terrance A. Sweeney. Christopher Stone will play the ghetto priest.

Buddy Ebsen and Lee Meriwether star in the series.

"Night Gallery" (1969), 8 p.m., Ch. 9.
Rod Serling wrote and introduces three separate supernatural tales. Joan Crawford, Barry Sullivan, Roddy McDowall.

"Super Cops" 9 p.m., Ch. 2.
Known as Batman and Robin — two policemen find their wild exploits lead them into conflict with the criminal world and even with their own department. Ron Leibman, David Selby star.

SATURDAY

"Smoky" (1946), 10 a.m., Ch. 11.
Based on Will James' classic story of a man's love for a horse and the woman who shared his heart. Fred MacMurray, Anne Baxter.

"Seven Thieves" (1960), 1 p.m., Ch. 5.
A comedy of a strange assortment of thieves who gather in Monte Carlo to combine their efforts and pull off a daring 4-million franc robbery. Edw. G. Robinson, Rod Steiger, Joan Collins, Eli Wallach.

"A Star Is Born" (1955), 8 p.m., Ch. 9.
Rise of an unknown girl to stardom and the tragedy which results in her personal life. Judy Garland at her best. (Movie will be run uncut.) Also stars James Mason, Charles Bickford, Jack Carson. Directed by George Cukor.

"Oregon Trail" 9 p.m., Ch. 4.
Rod Taylor portrays the head of a pioneer family who leave their home in search of a better, freer life out west.

"The Female Instinct" (1972), 11:30 p.m., Ch. 2.
Helen Hayes and Mildred Natwick ("The Snoop Sisters"), star as quaint sisters who write murder mysteries for fun and profit, and become involved in an actual murder.

Icy road turns into 'junkyard'

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) — A chain-reaction collision that involved 52 vehicles and injured 65 persons was triggered when a tractor-trailer jackknifed on ice-slicked Interstate 81, police said Saturday.

The pileup occurred Friday night as the cars and trucks topped a banked hill and swerved to avoid a disabled rig sprawled across both northbound lanes. In less than 90 seconds, the super-highway turned into a sea of battered cars.

"I knew we were going to hit, but I couldn't stop. It was just too icy," said Joseph O'Donohue of Bay-side, Queens. He was hospitalized with head injuries after his car slammed into a guard rail.

Sixty-five of the more seriously injured were taken to four hospitals, where 13 remained in fair or good condition Saturday.

Injuries included broken noses, fractured jaws and ribs, neck sprains, knee injuries and cuts and concussions suffered when motorists banged their heads against the wind-

Police Chief Thomas Sardino said Carl Smith of the Oswego County community of Parish was the most seriously hurt and had to have a leg amputated. He was in fair condition while his wife, Elizabeth, was being treated for hip injuries and shock.

Fifty-one other persons who suffered minor cuts and bruises were bused to the Syracuse Public Safety Building, where they were treated by volunteers in an auditorium and released.

"All of us in this auditorium are lucky people," said Ron Ajemian of suburban Liverpool. "The road really froze up all of a sudden. It was raining and then crunch."

He said he saw a state police patrol car "slide by and be demolished." Trooper Peter Patterson escaped with minor injuries.

"This is when it happened," said Bill Walker, 18, of Liverpool. He held out his arm, which showed a cracked watch stopped at 10:53 p.m.

Fifty-two battered vehicles were towed from the scene. Seventy Syracuse police officers, sheriff's deputies and other law-enforcement officials worked to free persons trapped in the vehicles. Police pressed citizens into action, telling them to "just dig in."

The accident on the busy north-south highway that cuts through the heart of Syracuse occurred at the Liverpool exit about five miles from the downtown area.

Many motorists were headed home from a North American Hockey League game.

Mrs. Melvin Arthro of East Stroudsburg, Pa., said she was going to visit her daughter in Canada when her husband lost control of the car while attempting to avoid hitting a vehicle in front of him.

The car just went sideways and another one crashed into my door," said Mrs. Arthro, who received leg and arm injuries.

Officials sent fire trucks and pumps to handle other medical emergencies in the area, and in one instance had to use a hook and ladder truck to pluck a heart attack victim from the wreckage.

Still no sign

PLACERVILLE (AP) — Air and ground crews continued a fruitless search Saturday for a light plane that disappeared Dec. 23 with three Fallon, Nev., residents aboard. Civil Air Patrol Capt. Betty Storey said the search would be dropped after today.

End to Viet era sought

Clemency issue lingers

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Justice Department still is trying to wind up the cases of almost 2,000 deserters and draft evaders from the Vietnam war who applied for presidential clemency.

The Presidential Clemency Board closed shop more than three months ago and President Ford assigned the Justice Department to tie up the loose ends of the clemency program.

The board received almost 20,000 applications. Full pardons have been given to 5,831. Pardons conditioned on completing a period of work in public service jobs were given to 6,446. Among the others, some 5,000 were found not eligible for the clemency program and pardons were denied to about 700. Almost all assigned work were given less than a year. The maximum is two years.

Before the door was closed March 31, the clemency board took applications for pardons from men who had been punished for desertion or draft evasion during the Vietnam War era.

Unpunished deserters were processed to draft offices for jobs by the military and unpunished draft evaders were processed by the Justice Department.

However, the dropout rate from the job program among the 4,530 men processed by the military has continued to rise — to 2,820 — since the Associated Press reported last August that 2,035 had quit their jobs or were kicked out for not performing satisfactorily.

In addition, another 1,000 men processed out by the military never reported for jobs at all. Job assignments have been completed by 170.

Of the 732 processed by the Justice Department 70 have left their jobs and 38 completed the work. Of the 2,067 clemency board assignments 68 have terminated and 49 completed job assignments.

Lawrence Traylor, pardons attorney for the Justice Department, said that of the 2,000 cases left over from the clemency board, 1,000 are cases on which the board did not have enough information to act.

Involved in the remaining cases are many "hard cases" whose records show other kinds of felonies besides draft evasion or desertion, Traylor said.

'Food-stamp money often used illegally'

WASHINGTON (AP) — A preliminary Agriculture Department survey of food-stamp vendors has shown that some of them are failing to make prompt deposits of receipts from stamp sales and may be illegally misusing some of the money, the Washington Star reported today.

The Star said department investigators thus far have located 18 vendors with undeposited receipts totaling $8.7 million. Some of the money may have been deposited since investigators began checking in November and December, the newspaper said.

A source close to the investigation was quoted as saying that some of the money would probably be recovered but some would not.

Vendors are required by law to deposit receipts of $1,000 or more from food-stamp coupon sales within 24 hours. The money is to be deposited in federal reserve banks.

Investigators told the Star that some vendors were using the money for their own purposes for several months before depositing it.

The report said the investigators have not determined the uses to which the money was being put.

Food-stamp coupons are sold to the public by 6,700 banks, credit unions, check-cashing outfits and other agencies.

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A terrorist group claimed responsibility Saturday for the Dec. 30 bombing of a Berkeley branch of Bank of America.

More airports shut down in wake of bomb threats

Associated Press
Several of the nation's airports have continued to close their terminals in response to bomb threats after an explosion that killed 11 persons last Monday at La Guardia Airport in New York.

There in response to a telephoned bomb threat. Both facilities were searched, and no bombs were found.

At La Guardia itself, the passenger terminal was closed twice Friday, once after an anonymous telephone call and again after an X-ray scan showed an unattended case spotted by an Eastern Airlines baggage handler contained a suspicious looking device.

No bombs were found, and it was determined the case contained only camera equipment.

At New York's Kennedy airport, three teen-agers were accused of criminal nuisance after they frightened travelers by running through the Eastern Airlines terminal shouting, "It's going to blow up."

It created considerable excitement among the patrons, a police official said.

In Kansas City, some 200 persons were evacuated from the United terminal after a regional reservation line received a call from a man who said, "There's a bomb set to go off in the terminal."

The terminal was searched by officers and police dogs for about 50 minutes.

The Port Columbus airport was closed at 11 p.m. after a caller told Trans World Airlines in Pittsburgh that a bomb was set to go off at the Ohio facility at 1 a.m. Saturday. After a search, the airport was reopened at 1:15 a.m.

Police in New York say they still have no clues in the La Guardia bombing. Eleven persons were killed and some 75 injured by the explosion at 6:33 p.m. in a baggage-claim section.

MERCURY, Nev. (AP) —The nation's first underground nuclear test of the new year jolted a wide portion of Western Nevada and Eastern California on Saturday and was felt in Las Vegas, 110 miles to the south.

The test, first set for Dec. 29 but postponed due to adverse weather, was conducted at 11:15 a.m. at Pahute Mesa in the northern reaches of the Nevada Test Site.

The weapons-related test, code-named "Muenster," had a yield of 200,000 to 1 million tons of TNT, said Dave Miller, a spokesman for the Energy Research and Development Administration.

It produced a long rolling motion that lasted for about 10 seconds at the command post, which is about 30 miles from ground zero, Miller said.

"In Las Vegas it was felt most strongly at the Aladdin towers, Circus Circus, Valley Bank and the Mint Hotel," he said.

The blast was felt strongly at Ridgecrest, Calif., located on the eastern side of the Sierra Nevada, about 125 miles from the test site. "It was a pretty hard shake. It swung the chandeliers and made a table move," said one woman.

The nuclear device was buried at the foot of a vertical shaft 4,600 feet beneath the hard rock surface of Pahute Mesa, Miller said. The usual dust cloud was absent, he added, because "we had a lot of snow and rain up here in the past week and everything's pretty damp."

Miller said the shock was felt at the El Rancho Club at Beatty, just north of the test site. The historic adobe tavern had been evacuated for the test.

WALTER SCOTT'S Personality Parade

Want the facts? Want to learn the truth about prominent personalities? Want informed opinion? Write Walter Scott, Parade, 733 3rd Ave., New York, N.Y. 10017. Your full name will be used unless otherwise requested. Volume of mail received makes personal replies impossible.

Q. In your opinion who is smarter—Gerald Ford or his wife?—Trudy Schwab, New York City.
A. His wife, but that of course is open to argument.

Q. Isn't Spiro Agnew starting a "rehabilitation program" to prove that he was innocent? Wasn't he guilty as hell of being on the take?—T.K., Baltimore.
A. George Beall, former U.S. Attorney from Maryland who prosecuted Agnew, suggests that people who doubt Agnew's guilt should read the 40 pages of evidence released by the government on the day Agnew resigned pleading "no contest" in October, 1973. Elliot Richardson, who was then U.S. Attorney General, says, "I think it was fortunate in the circumstances that we didn't precipitate a trial [of Agnew] in the Senate at the same time impeachment [of Nixon] was going forward in the House." Richardson says he knew "the result would leave him [Agnew] in a position to make whatever self-serving statements he wanted," but it was worth the price to get Agnew out of office and the case against him on the public record.

Q. Is it on the level that Peter Falk is quitting the "Columbo" TV show? If so, why?—Marsha Weinberg, Chicago, Ill.
A. It's true. Falk says he wants to concentrate on full-length motion pictures.

JULIE CHRISTIE

RYAN O'NEAL

Q. I understand that Julie Christie has turned in Warren Beatty for Ryan O'Neal. What's the story?—R.T., Ventura, Cal.

A. It is impossible to track the sex records of Julie Christie, Warren Beatty and Ryan O'Neal. Suffice it to say that O'Neal and Christie have been dating, but these acting people are not known for their constancy.

Q. Is Mamie Eisenhower giving up the Eisenhower farm in Gettysburg? Is she really moving into a senior citizens complex for military widows in Washington, D.C.?—Ann Kent, Baltimore, Md.

A. Mamie Eisenhower, 79, says she has no intention at this point of moving into a housing complex for senior citizens. "They're too small," she declares. "I want space. I'm used to it." She will continue to reside on the Eisenhower farm in Gettysburg, Pa.

Q. Can you please explain to me what a "cruise missile" is? I read about them all the time, but I don't know what they are.—Patience Welles, Cambridge, Mass.

A. A cruise missile is a pilotless airplane, about 18 feet long and 18 inches wide. Cruise missiles are equipped with sophisticated computer guidance systems, can fly at heights of 200 feet and conceivably escape detection by enemy radar. They can be launched from planes, submarines, surface vessels, trains and tanks. They are having a revolutionary impact on SALT II discussions with the Soviets.

Q. Why would attorney Louis Nizer represent clients like Moe Dalitz and Allard Rosen, formerly of Las Vegas and now involved with Rancho La Costa, Cal.?—T.O., San Diego, Cal.

A. Possibly for several reasons: (1) money (2) legal challenge (3) Nizer's fundamental belief that every man is entitled to the best legal counsel he can obtain. Louis Nizer is a lawyer of the highest principles. No lawyer should be judged by the background of his clients. Edward Bennett Williams, for example, one of the nation's outstanding criminal lawyers, defended gangster Frank Costello, labor leader James Hoffa and former Texas Gov. John Connally.

Q. When Sen. Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania retires from the U.S. Senate, who takes over as the Republican leader?—D.H.H., Lancaster, Pa.

A. Either Sen. Robert Griffin of Michigan or Sen. John Tower of Texas.

Q. Once and for all, did Marilyn Monroe have an affair with the late President John F. Kennedy or did she not?—F.T., Albany, N.Y.

A. There are only two people who know the answer to that question. Both are dead. Marilyn told a few of her most intimate friends, among them columnist Sidney Skolsky, that she was trysting with Kennedy. Some chose to believe her; others did not.

Q. I was told that Pat Boone at one time joined a far-out religious group, that he took dope, that he and his wife separated because of it. What is the truth?—Anna E. Guaragna, Modesto, Cal.

A. Not a word of truth to that rumor. Boone has always lived a clean, wholesome, religious, Christian life with his wife and four daughters.

PAT BOONE AND HIS WIFE SHIRLEY
FLANKED BY THEIR FOUR DAUGHTERS

Q. Read recently that Muhammad Ali, the heavy-weight champ, was going to make his film debut for Columbia Pictures in the story of his life. Didn't Ali have a part in "Requiem for a Heavyweight" many years ago?—Lana Barnsdale, Ft. Worth, Tex.

A. Yes, under his old name, Cassius Clay, he appeared in a boxing sequence opposite actor Tony Quinn.

Q. Who or what is SAVAK?—Peter Hackett, Seattle, Wash.

A. SAVAK is an acronym for Sazemane Attalat Va Anmiyate Keshvar, the state security and intelligence organization of Iran. It is headed by the Shah's favorite general, Nematullah Nassiai, 68. Iran is an absolute monarchy, a one-party dictatorship. The function of SAVAK is to seek out and destroy dissenters. Other security and intelligence organizations in Iran are J2 and the Special Intelligence Bureau.

FLOOD WATERS from the River Elbe in Hamburg, Germany, surround home, isolating it from the harbor dock. Flood was caused by heavy storm.

At least 38 dead Europe lashed by windstorm

Associated Press
A storm with 100 mile-per-hour winds whipped across Western Europe Saturday, killing at least 38 persons, destroying crops, disrupting shipping and threatening floods in Holland, Denmark and Germany.

Gusts ripped roofs from buildings, swept automobiles from highways and people from sidewalks. Power lines were blown down and ships tossed dangerously along the coast.

In the British Isles, 24 persons were reported killed, most in accidents involving winds that reached 105 mph. A London weather center spokesman called it Britain's worst windstorm in 29 years.

West Germany reported 10 storm-related deaths, the Netherlands two and France and Belgium one each.

In the Netherlands and in Denmark's Jutland Peninsula, authorities kept an anxious watch on dikes that hold back the North Sea from hundreds of thousands of low-lying farmland acres.

More than 20,000 persons were evacuated from their homes in southwestern Jutland as the sea strained at the dikes. But police said the immediate danger was over by late Saturday afternoon as high tide ebbed with no serious breaches in earthen seawalls.

The mass evacuation by car, bus, train and ambulance was conducted without panic, loss of life or injury. Volunteers joined home guard and civil defense units in patrolling the dikes and shoring up minor gaps.

Residents began moving back to their homes in southwestern Jutland Saturday evening, but the area remained in a state of flood alert. Authorities said the dikes had been badly battered and there would be new danger if another storm hit in the next few days.

Several deaths in Britain occurred on the roads. A Royal Automobile Club spokesman said many areas of the country were "like a giant bowling alley with trees littered like ninepins all over the roadway."

At least two motorcyclists were killed in separate incidents when their cycles smashed into fallen trees. At Kiltiernan near Dublin, Ireland, a falling tree crushed a 19-year-old youth on a bicycle.

West German naval helicopters plucked 22 seamen from storm-tossed ships in the lower Elbe River, where the winds peaked at 112 mph.

The hurricane-force winds blew an elderly woman from her balcony in Holland. Winds ripped the roof from a house in Lower Saxony and sent the chimney crashing down on a 29-year-old woman. Officials said both women died.

A man and woman were reported killed near Leeds in northern England when their trailer home was blown over.

The storm disrupted air and train services, shipping and ferry services in the southern North Sea and English Channel and cut off electrical power in many areas as trees toppled onto power lines.

But it bypassed northern and eastern Scotland, and a coast guard spokesman at Aberdeen, on Scotland's northeast coast, said it posed no danger to the many North Sea oil rigs in the area.

British truck farmers who raise lettuce, tomatoes and other salad foods in greenhouses called the high winds "catastrophic." A National Farmers Union spokesman said greenhouses were smashed throughout the English Midlands, the main growing area.

In the Netherlands, authorities in the North Sea province, of Zeeland said they hadn't faced such danger since 1953. On Jan. 31 of that year 437,750 acres of farmland were flooded, and 1,400 persons, 25,000 cows and 1,500 horses drowned in the swirling tide.

Arson likely in big Tel Aviv blaze

TEL AVIV (AP) — Police said they suspected arson in a fire at a Tel Aviv newspaper Saturday, and reported that 14 men had been detained for a shoot-and-run machine gunning of a police club in the heart of the city Friday.

The shooting, and the suspected arson were just two incidents in a recent flurry of law-breaking that has stirred growing apprehension in Israel about organized crime.

The fire at the daily Haaretz, the largest blaze in the city's history, was the "possible" work of protection racketeers, said police spokesman Avinoam Kahane.

He said the group held in the police attack was caught with a cache of guns and ammunition that also indicated involvement in the underworld.

Kahane denied reports from Beirut that Palestinian guerrillas either were responsible for the police-club attack or indirectly involved in the Haaretz fire, which injured no one but caused millions of dollars in damage. There also were no injuries in the police-club attack.

The club assailants, who sprayed 15 bullets at the building from a speeding car, used the Israeli-made Uzi submachine gun, he said, and may have been out to avenge the arrest of a friend on a drug charge.

Kahane called two other fires in Tel Aviv in the past week possible arson. He said a suspect was being held in a blaze at a furniture store that newspapers speculated was retribution from protection racketeers who could not intimidate property owners into making payments.

Fire inspectors said the square-mile Haaretz fire "showed every sign of arson" and resembled the two earlier blazes.

"The protection game is nothing new in Tel Aviv or any other big city in this world," Kahane said. "We've just made more arrests lately and it's looked worse."

Jerusalem police announced Friday they had caught four racketeers using electronic eavesdropping equipment. And another gang of 14 was arrested in an exclusive Tel Aviv suburb in December after wringing protection payments out of coffee shops, and bars.

Letter to Hanoi aired Kennedy for aid to Viets

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy has told a high North Vietnamese official that U.S. reconstruction aid to Vietnam would "reflect the feelings of many Americans," according to Hanoi Radio.

Kennedy, D-Mass., also expressed hope America would "contribute meaningfully toward healing the wounds of war in Vietnam," Hanoi Radio said Friday night, quoting what it said was a Nov. 17, 1975, letter from the senator to Nguyen Day Trinh, deputy vice premier minister and minister of foreign affairs.

The broadcast said Kennedy also suggested visits to Vietnam by "respected U.S. experts in health, agriculture and other areas to help improve relations between the two countries."

Hanoi Radio said the Kennedy letter expressed "personal gratitude" for North and South Vietnam's recent repatriation of several American and foreign nationals and asked for more information on U.S. servicemen missing in action, including two Marines killed in the U.S. evacuation of Saigon.

Cpl. Charles McMahon Jr., of Woburn, Mass., and Lance Cpl. Darwin L. Judge of Marshalltown, Iowa, were killed April 29, 1975, by a rocket blast while loading passengers on aircraft at Tan Son Nhut Airport.

The radio broadcast quoted Trinh's reply to Kennedy in which he said the two Marines' burial places had been found.

"We think that there will be no obstacle in your sending your people to Vietnam to undertake the repatriation of these remains," he said.

Kennedy said last Tuesday, when he released a copy of Trinh's letter, that he had talked with families of both Marines and arrangements were being made to return the bodies to America.

Trinh thanked Kennedy for "closely following up our Vietnamese people's efforts to heal the wounds of war and reconstruct the country after 30 years of destruction."

400 men assault Lebanese prison, free 24 convicts

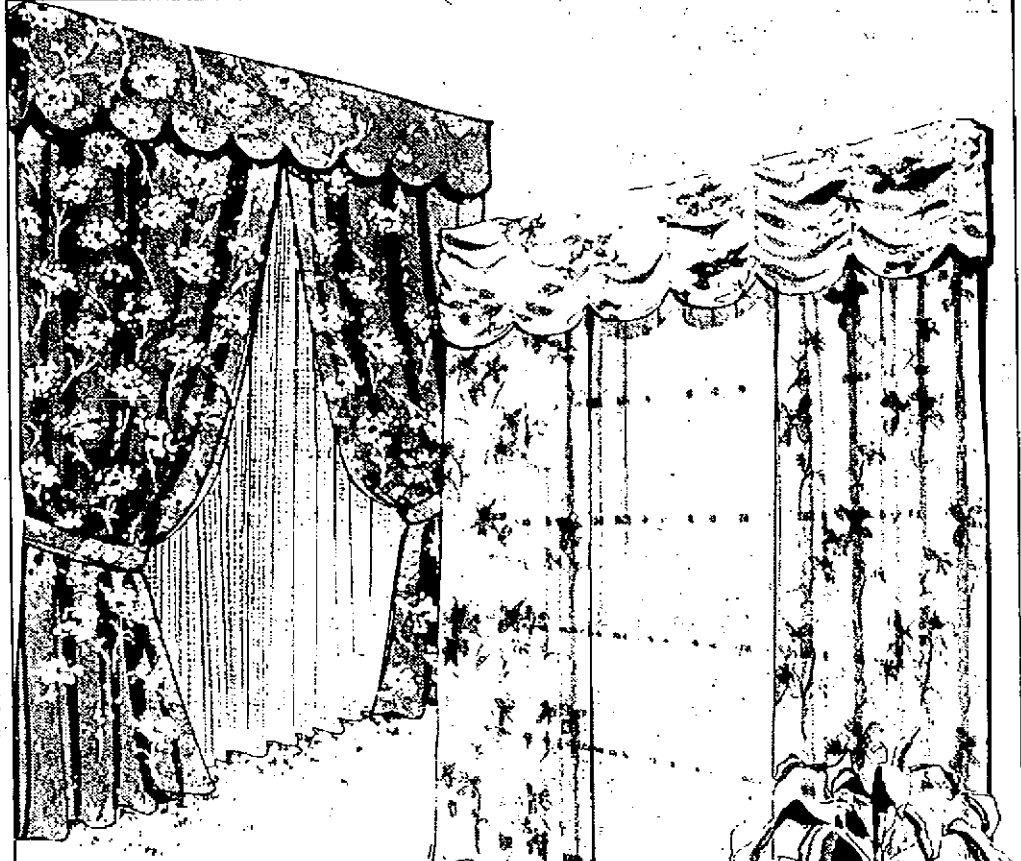

New York Times Service
BEIRUT — More than 400 armed men assaulted a prison north of Tripoli early Saturday and, after a 90-minute battle with prison guards, freed 24 convicts, police sources reported.

At the same time, another armed band of about 100 men and women attacked a police station in the hill town of Alei, east of Beirut, and released a Moslem, Abdo Shakin, who was accused of having murdered two Christians.

The attacks on the jails — a phenomenon that began last fall and appears to be growing — underscored the spreading lawlessness in Lebanon, where the line between gangsterism and politics is not always perceptible.

The truce between armed factions in Beirut, which has been punctuated by occasional outbreaks of sniping, machine-gun fire and rocket exchanges, continued to hold, but scattered shooting was reported in the suburbs.

In failure to provide more judgeships

Burger scores Congress for inaction

By WARREN WEAVER JR.
New York Times Service

WASHINGTON — Chief Justice Warren E. Burger of the Supreme Court, accused Congress Saturday of failing to meet demonstrated needs for more manpower on the federal bench that were submitted to the lawmakers four years ago.

In an unusually blunt year-end report on the state of the judiciary, Burger warned that judges in the federal district courts and the courts of appeals were being flooded with steadily increasing caseloads without any relief from Congress.

WARREN E. BURGER
Files Year-end Report

"THE Judicial Conference and the judges can do nothing more, except wait on Congress and urge prompt action," Burger declared. "Action taken in 1976 on 1972 needs and projected needs is hardly a reasonable response."

The chief justice noted that, in 1972, as required by statute, the Judicial Conference, the administrative agency of the federal courts, told Congress that the federal district courts needed 52 new judgeships and the courts of appeals 13. Despite some preliminary action, no new seats have since been created.

"The same act of Congress that required submission of these figures four years ago...now requires that we submit in 1976 the figures to measure the needs for 1976-80. What can be expected by way of congressional action to meet 1976-80 needs when the 1972-76 needs have not been met is problematical," the chief justice observed.

To back up his accusation, Burger noted that during the 1974-75 fiscal year, 402 cases had been filed in federal district court for each sitting judge, "an unrealistic number for one judge." This was an increase from 317 in 1970, the last year that additional judgeships were created.

THE CHIEF justice predicted that this workload would increase to 450 by the end of the current fiscal year next June 30.

Through new procedures and longer hours, district court judges have been able to increase the average number of cases disposed of in a year from 292 in 1970 to 371. But, at the same time, the rising number of cases filed increased the number awaiting disposition per judge from 285 in 1970 to 355 in 1975.

The Burger statement was clearly designed to put pressure on Congress to complete action on some pending judicial legislation. A bill creating seven new seats on the court of appeals has been approved by the Senate but still is in committee in the House.

A bill establishing 45 new federal district court judges has been cleared by the Senate Judiciary Committee but has not yet reached the floor.

Frequently such legislation is held up for long periods when different political parties control the White House and the Congress, pending arrangements on a division of the new judgeships between Republican and Democratic candidates.

Not weighing any such political considerations, Burger emphasized that the number of judges on the federal bench is "an obviously crucial element in our ability to provide the kind of justice the public expects."

Union members' trials delayed at newspaper

New York Times Service

WASHINGTON — A federal judge Saturday obtained a voluntary postponement of the union disciplinary trials of more than 300 members of the Newspaper Guild who have remained on duty at the Washington Post during a bitter 13-week strike by the newspaper's pressmen.

The Guild trial board

proceedings were originally scheduled to begin Monday, hearing charges that the working Post employees had violated the national union's constitution by crossing another union's picket line against the order of local guild officials. Members of other craft unions at the Post have honored the pressmen's picket lines.

Ford, Kissinger, Congress suffer 'put-down' in poll

Combined News Services

NEW YORK (AP) — A nationwide NBC News poll shows most people feel that the government does not care about them, that Congress is doing a poor job and that they do not have much confidence in President Ford's ability to improve the economy.

The telephone poll of 2,836 adults, conducted between Dec. 16 and Dec. 21, was done as part of a news special on "What America Thinks," to be broadcast at 4:30 p.m. Monday.

In addition, the poll showed public approval of Secretary of State Henry Kissinger's performance has fallen steadily over the past year, particularly among Americans who describe themselves as very liberal or very conservative.

THE POLL also found a substantial decline in the numbers of Democrats choosing Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., as their prime candidate for the 1976 presidential nomination. This is in line with the findings in other polls, a trend that political observers view as an indication that more people are taking seriously Kennedy's denials that he intends to run.

Sixty per cent of those contacted said they feel that "most people in government today don't really care about people like me" and 56 per cent said they disapprove of the job being done in Congress.

Fifty-five per cent feel Ford cannot improve the economy and 51 per cent approve of the way the President is handling his job. This last item was down 17 per cent from a poll taken Sept. 23.

The decline in Kissinger's popularity was attributed to liberal disapproval of the U.S. policy toward Angola, which gained heavy attention in the news media the week the poll was taken, and a continuing distrust of the pursuit of detente with the Soviet Union.

THE POLL, found that even Kissinger's supporters, by a 3-to-1 margin, felt that the Soviet Union "cannot be trusted" to live up to agreements reached in the interest of detente. Kissinger critics felt the same way, 4 to 1.

The decline in first-choice presidential support for Kennedy, which has gone from 42 per cent in July to 35 per cent in October in Gallup Polls of Democrats and independents, and from 28 per cent in early November to 21 per cent at present in NBC polls of Democrats, has been a boon to Sen. Hubert Humphrey, D-Minn.

The NBC poll indicates that, if Kennedy does not run, the bulk of his support would go to Humphrey, with Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., Sen. Henry Jackson, D-Wash., and Gov. George Wallace of Alabama picking up smaller shares.

IN PART, analysts attributed the support for Humphrey to his identification with economic issues, a matter that evoked considerable concern from those polled by NBC.

A substantial majority of those questioned reported it was "harder to make ends meet" than a year ago, and less than a third expressed confidence in Ford's ability to improve economic conditions.

As to how well Ford is handling his job, NBC found a substantial decline in the past three months.

Among registered Republicans, the NBC poll found Ford and Ronald Reagan of California favored almost equally for the presidential nomination.

In other areas the poll showed 75 per cent of those questioned feel they have a better life than their parents; 38 per cent think the economy will stay the same this year; and 51 per cent feel that there is no justification for violating the rights of an individual by wiretaps or opening mail.

However, 55 per cent of those interviewed have the same amount of confidence in the FBI as they had five years ago.

Early warning test for diabetes

WASHINGTON (AP) — Researchers at Georgetown University report they have developed a simple method for early detection of diabetes and potential diabetes in adults.

Dr. Melvin Blecher said the results of tests at the school have provided the earliest sign of a potential problem in people with no diabetic symptoms.

He said the study involves glucagon and insulin, the two hormones involved in diabetes.

By looking at the interaction between these and white blood cells "we were able to determine who was normal and who had diabetes or potential diabetes," he said.

TO PREDICT early that this man or woman would become a diabetic means they are alerted to have checkups, watch their diet and avoid obesity in an effort to control the disease if it develops and to prevent serious complications," Blecher said.

This was the second report in less than two months of the development of an early-detection test for diabetes. Last November, Dr. Joseph R. Kraft of St. Joseph Hospital in Chicago announced a test making it possible to detect diabetes before it is serious enough to be discovered by the standard test.

Kraft's test has been adopted at a number of other medical centers around the country and was first used in 1971.

Diabetes is a disorder in which sugar is not broken down properly in the body and an abnormally high content of sugar accumulates in the blood. If not controlled, the disease can lead to blindness, circulatory problems, coma and death. University officials estimated that nine million Americans suffer from the disease.

Blecher said the study concentrated on adult diabetes, where the individual has sufficient insulin but it does not work correctly. In childhood diabetes the individual simply does not produce insulin.

He said the problem appears to be on the surface of the individual cells where chemicals are present that recognize a hormone and attach it to the cell.

In normal individuals, the researchers said, there was good reception of both insulin and glucagon to the cells, while in diabetes there was diminished ability to bind either hormone to the cell.

THEY reported they also tested individuals who had no diabetes symptoms but had a family history of diabetes and also found lessened cell ability to receive the hormones. This could serve as an early-warning sign for potential diabetes, the researchers said.

Working with Blecher on the project supported by the National Institutes of Health were Dr. Steven Goldstein and Dr. Richard Binder of Georgetown and Dr. Pasquale V. Perrino and Dr. Lillian Recant of the Washington Veterans Administration Hospital.

In Peking, Gerald Ford, Chinese Vice Premier Teng Hsiao-ping and Henry Kissinger: Until the U.S. changes its China policy, ending recognition of Taiwan, U.S. leaders' trips to Peking are essentially little more than window dressing.

China expert John Service on our China policy: "We're sitting on a time bomb."

The U.S. and Two Chinas

WASHINGTON, D.C.

by Lloyd Shearer

One of the major reasons Henry Kissinger and Richard Nixon established relations with the People's Republic of China in 1972 was to provide the U.S. with leverage in Soviet-American affairs.

The Soviets have long felt that with 800 million people, the Chinese would be able to tolerate a nuclear attack and that eventually Chinese armies might sweep across Siberia and advance to the gates of Moscow.

The Chinese, on the other hand, have long believed that a Soviet attack is inevitable, which is why they have dug deep tunnels beneath their cities.

Building on those fears, Kissinger and Nixon attempted to make the U.S. the fulcrum in the balancing of power. If the Soviets got too uppish, the U.S. would become more friendly with China. If China became too forward, the U.S. would tilt towards the Soviets.

What has gone wrong with that policy is this: The Soviets simply do not believe that the U.S. would join forces with the Chinese or help them defeat the Soviets. They see no indication of any U.S. implementation of the so-called "Shanghai Agreement," which the U.S. signed with the People's Republic of China in 1972. In that agreement we acknowledged "that there is but one China and that Taiwan is a part of China."

Peking believes that normalization with the U.S. will be accomplished only when the U.S. breaks diplomatic ties with Taiwan, the U.S. withdraws its men from Taiwan, and the U.S. abrogates its 1954 Mutual Security Treaty with Taiwan. Until then, visits to Peking by Kissinger and Ford essentially constitute window dressing. Surely, they have little or no effect on restraining offensive Soviet foreign policy.

Worry over future

Several weeks ago, John Stewart Service, an expert Sinologist, one of the old China hands and one of the Foreign Service victims of the McCarthy era, told a Stanford University audience "we're sitting on a time bomb," insofar as America's two-China policy is concerned.

According to Service, basically "nothing has changed" in the U.S. relationship with Peking since the Nixon visit of 1972.

"We have established a liaison office in Peking, and we have exchanged a series of personnel, but we have done nothing to unfreeze Mainland assets in the U.S. nor have we established a most favored nation treaty."

Service pointed out that the Chinese are buying more goods from us than we are buying from them. He also noted that we are building two nuclear plants on Taiwan. "What happens," he asked rhetorically, "if they [the Taiwanese] develop their own A-bomb and declare their independence?"

Since signing the "Shanghai Agreement" in 1972, the U.S. has given Taiwan 85 fighter planes, four destroyers, more than 100 tanks, has helped build a factory in which the Taiwanese can produce additional F-105 fighters.

Large investment

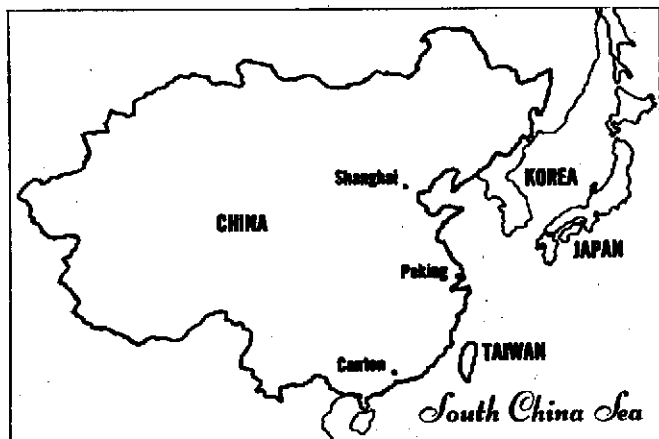

Moreover, U.S. industry and government agencies have invested more than $500 million in Taiwan. We now have eight branches of U.S. banks in Taiwan, six more than we had in 1972, and the U.S. Export-Import Bank extends Taiwan unlimited credit.

All of this constitutes a direct challenge to the People's Republic of China, and the only reason the PRC tolerates our two-China policy is fear of the Soviet Union.

"Secretary of State Kissinger sees all foreign relations as a bargaining process," Service maintains. "Washington wants them [Mainland Chinese] to get so mad that they'll bargain, but the Chinese won't play that game."

President Ford, obsessed with domestic politics, fearful of Ronald Reagan on the Republican right, is afraid of breaking with Taiwan this year and normalizing U.S. relations with the People's Republic of China. If he waits too long, he risks the danger of a thaw between the Soviet Union and the People's Republic of China.

We will then face the ugly, threatening specter of the world's two largest, most powerful Communist nations in league against the United States.

Only 110 miles separate the island of Taiwan from Mainland China. U.S. and Japanese aid has given Taiwan a strong economy and a well-equipped army.

As legislative session opens It's Brown vs. lawmakers

By DOUG WILLIS
AP Political Writer

SACRAMENTO (AP) — The Legislature opens its 1976 session this week with Gov. Edmund G. Brown again in the Capitol spotlight.

GOV. JERRY BROWN

The first major floor action could be a test of the 57-year-old governor's clout with his fellow Democrats.

Democrats control both houses of the Legislature, and Brown faces an override attempt on an unpopular veto.

By the end of the week,

Brown must deliver to the Legislature his spending proposal for the 1976-77 fiscal year.

It will be a record budget — probably $12.5 billion or more — but it will be balanced, without new taxes, hints pieced together from administration sources say.

Wednesday, Brown will deliver his "State of the State" address to a joint session of the Legislature and a statewide television audience — laying out goals for his second year in office.

ALSO on the agenda are scores of unresolved issues from past years, ranging from school finance to gun control and from coastal land use to milk pricing.

This is the last session to convene in the 106-year-old west wing of the Capitol.

If reconstruction plans proceed on schedule, the lawmakers will move into a gigantic portable building in Capitol Park this spring.

That will allow workmen to start a five-year project of tearing down much of the original wing of the Capitol and rebuilding it with the same outside appearance to meet modern earthquake-safety standards.

This also is the start of

another election year for 100 of California's 120 state legislators. That usually means a little more partisan bickering and a little less action than in the odd-numbered, nonelection legislative years.

Here is a summary of the new legislative year,

which starts Monday at 9 a.m.

BUDGET — The Constitution requires Brown to deliver his budget to the lawmakers by Jan. 10.

Brown's second budget message is already at the state printing plant, where printing is a top-secret project. Few hints of what is in the budget have filtered out. But a Pacific Business Magazine interview with Roy Bell, Brown's finance director and chief budget adviser, puts some probable limits on it.

Bell said the budget increase for 1976-77 "could be as high as 10 per cent. I don't think it will be much below 8 per cent."

That estimate indicates the budget will not be as tight as Brown's first penny-pinching proposal, but still tighter than the average of Republican Ronald Reagan's budgets.

VETO — The most unpopular veto among more than 100 issued last year by Brown killed a proposal by Sen. Arlen Gregorio, D-San Mateo, to increase state liquor taxes to raise $35 million a year more for alcoholism treatment.

Brown questioned the effectiveness of the alcoholism programs and vetoed the bill on grounds it was a general tax increase.

Since the veto override is being led by a Democrat, that splits the majority party ranks. If Gregorio can get Republicans — who normally would oppose tax increases — to go along with a vote that could embarrass the Democratic governor, he might get the two-thirds needed for the first override of a Brown veto.

STATE OF STATE — Brown's first State of the State address was his inaugural message last Jan. 6. In that seven-minute address he outlined a brief agenda of a dozen goals, including the landmark farm labor

Reagan begins 15-day campaign trip Monday

By DOUG WILLIS
Associated Press

Ronald Reagan launches his first intensive campaign trip this week since he entered the race for the Republican nomination for president on Nov. 20.

The 15-day tour that begins Monday will take Reagan on a 12,000-mile swing through five key primary states. The emphasis will be on New Hampshire, where Reagan will meet President Ford head-on in the nation's first primary Feb. 24.

Reagan plans nine days of campaigning in New Hampshire this month, including a pair of three-day tours, an intensive effort in such a small state.

The former California governor traveled extensively in 1975 with speeches and press conferences in every major state. But this week's trip is his most intensive schedule of public appearances since the final weeks of his campaign for reelection as governor in 1970.

He has slated appearances in 21 small New Hampshire towns between Monday and Wednesday afternoons. He will then fly to North Carolina, where the fifth of 30 presidential primaries this year will be held.

After seven days in North Carolina, Florida, Wisconsin and Illinois, Reagan plans to return to New Hampshire for three more days of campaigning, Jan. 15 to 17, before returning home for a week of rest.

His staff has made travel arrangements to take him back to Florida, North Carolina, New Hampshire and Florida

Jan. 26 to 31.

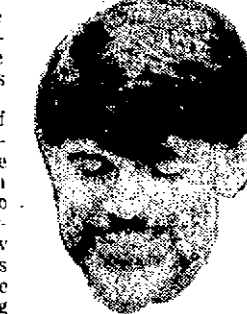

Some observers give Reagan the edge over Ford in New Hampshire, which politically is one of the most conservative states outside the South.

Reagan has endorsements from current and past GOP governors and the state's only statewide newspaper. But he does not have the kind of precinct and town-level organization that Ford's committee claims.

Reagan's schedule this week is aimed at overcoming that problem with a lengthy series of meetings with small groups of Republicans.

He plans an extended charter bus tour of northern New Hampshire towns, with heavy emphasis on 20- and 30-minute coffee-and-rolls meetings with voters.

And at least one part of the trip is not in the Reagan style. As a candidate for governor, Reagan limited his schedule to two or three major appearances a day. But his New Hampshire schedule calls for one major appearance a night in a town-meeting format and he will average eight appearances a day.

SEN. ARLEN GREGORIO

legislation that was the major achievement of his first year.

He achieved all except one of those goals — collective bargaining for all public employees.

Brown has been silent about what will be in his second message, but likely areas include renewal of his no-new-taxes pledge for a second year, a jobs program, a look at coastal and statewide land use policies and changes in school financing.

GAS TAX — Numerous forces in the Legislature favor increasing California's 7-cents-a-gallon gasoline tax. They include legislators who want funds for local highway projects, those who want to stimulate the economy with more highway construction jobs and backers of mass transit who want to tap the gasoline tax fund.

There is one powerful foe — the governor. Brown opposes any general tax increase, and he says he doubts that the public really wants more highways.

LAND USE — The new coastal commission established by public referendum three years ago is finishing up the task that voters gave it, coming up with a plan to conserve coastal resources. This is the year the commission must report its recommendations to the Legislature.

NUCLEAR — A proposal that could halt nuclear power plant construction may be the top legislative issue of 1976 in California. But it is out of the hands of the Legislature. That issue will be decided by public vote on the Nuclear Initiative on the June 8 presidential primary ballot.

New laws across U.S. reflect needs of '70s

Associated Press

Dozens of state laws passed by legislatures in recent months became effective on Jan. 1.

Among the more progressive: Colorado became the 10th state with a law requiring insurance companies to sell alcoholism insurance. A Colorado law now can purchase coverage for treatment of alcoholism and of complications resulting from alcoholism.

On the lighter side: the Florida Legislature decided there was something not quite right about notary publics notarizing their own signatures. So as of last Thursday, a notary must have another notary notarize his signature.

THE first state to force companies to offer the alcoholism insurance was Wisconsin, back in 1972. Since then, Connecticut, Illinois, Louisiana, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, Mississippi and Washington have jumped on the bandwagon. The new state laws that came into effect on New Year's Day deal with everything from marijuana penalties to campaign contributions, from the cost of hunting licenses to

It was the season for legislators to meet. To debate and to argue as to what to defeat. Then 'twas the season when bills turned to law. Some were progressive, others worth just a guffaw.

banking regulations; from drivers' licenses for motorcycleists to contraceptive devices for minors. The latter, of course, is a California law.

There was a noticeable movement for the rights of women. In Hawaii, lawmakers ruled that a woman is no longer required to take her husband's name as a legal surname. In Florida, state licensed hospitals with emergency rooms must now provide gynecological, psychological and other services for rape victims. The law was sponsored by Florida's only female senator.

COLORADO also passed a bill requiring nonprofit hospitals, health service organizations and health-maintenance organizations to offer the same maternity-care coverage at the same costs to all women, whether they are married or single.

The New York State Legislature voted to allow banks to open branches across the state. The issue was a controversial one. Opponents of the bill said the giant New York City banks would swallow up small banks across the state. Others said the big Manhattan banks would open only a few upstate branches and thus the law would have little effect.

Montana has nine new laws, including one restricting campaign contributions. For all offices other than governor or lieutenant governor, an individual may contribute no more than $500 per candidate, an independent political committee no more than $2,000 and the candidate and his immediate family no more than $8,000. For governor and lieutenant governor, the comparable figures are $1,500, $8,000 and $9,000 per candidate. Ceilings also were placed on total contributions.

California liberalized its marijuana law, following the lead of Oregon and Alaska, which previously had reduced penalties for marijuana convictions. Now marijuana possession in California is a misdemeanor at worst, punishable by fine. Under the old law, the judge decided whether a possession case was a misdemeanor or a felony punishable by prison.

The California lawmakers took a less sympathetic view of stronger drugs. Under another Jan. 1 law, prison is mandatory for persons convicted of selling a half ounce or more of a substance containing heroin.

The most populous state in the union also cracked down on persons convicted of using a gun during robberies and other major felonies. That, too, is automatic jail.

As for minors, the California Legislature decided that they can buy contraceptives now without consulting mom and dad.

A New York law requires that new sidewalks have ramps for wheelchairs at pedestrian crossings.

Jacobson candidate

By BOB HOUSER
Political Editor

Art Jacobson, 50, of Los Alamitos, an economist in engineering commercial advanced design with McDonnell Douglas, has announced his candidacy for the Republican nomination for Congress in the Long Beach-West Orange County 34th District, the seat now held by Democrat Mark W. Hannaford.

Jacobson said he will discuss his candidacy at a public meeting at 8 p.m. Jan. 15 in his campaign headquarters, 2752 Walker Lee Drive, Los Alamitos.

He also invited public requests for a position booklet he has written. Copies may be obtained at the headquarters or by phoning 430-1524. He said campaign volunteers are needed.

His candidacy is based, he said, on his perception of "a growing discontent with the quality and content of information made available to the voters by the candidates."

Jacobson has an M.A. degree in economics and political science from the University of Glasgow and a Ph.D. from the Sorbonne in Paris.

Frontier Demos

Cathy O'Neill, Los Angeles field representative for Sen. John V. Tunney,

D-Calif., will speak at the 11 a.m. Friday luncheon meeting of the New Frontier Democratic Club in Reed Williams' Restaurant, 730 E. Broadway.

Norwalk Demos

Dorothy Pryor has been elected 1976 president of the Norwalk Democratic Club.

Other officers are Charles Hewitt, first vice president; Robert Maddox, second; Arturo Sanchez, treasurer; Ethel Lang, secretary; Sue Honig, editor; Buan Lang, sergeant-at-arms and W.E. White, parliamentarian.

Margaret Montoya and Joe Berardino were elected executive board members-at-large.

The club will meet at 8 p.m. Tuesday, Jan. 20, in the Norwalk-La Mirada School District Board Room, 12820 Pioneer Blvd., Norwalk.

Can we afford another involvement?

Angola called mirror of Viet

By PETER ARNETT
AP Special Correspondent

For Americans, Angola is a major issue largely because of the comparisons with Vietnam. In fact, the two countries are like and unlike.

It was the Communist Viet Cong that caught the imagination of the Vietnamese people.

THOSE ARGUING that the United States should leave Angola completely alone point to Burma, Indonesia and other Asian countries as examples of the possible future course of events.

With no political faction strong enough to take over complete power, these countries eventually evolved governments that were able to contain the Communist minorities.

Angola is seen as a similar situation. Even though the faction backed by the Soviet Union and Cuba — the Popular Movement for the Liberation of Angola, headquartered in Luanda — is seen as the likely victor if foreign support is dropped, many experts doubt this group can establish total, permanent power.

In Vietnam, the Communist Party harnessed Vietnamese nationalism for a real social revolution. But nationalism and ideology are less factors in Angola than tribal politics, and the civil war maps of today bear close resemblance to the colonial charts of tribal regions drawn up under Portuguese rule centuries ago. So central rule from Luanda most likely would be contested.

The geopolitical picture is vastly different.

THE SOUTH Vietnamese Communists, fighting first Saigon and then American troops, had the backing of North Vietnam, which secretly smuggled arms and men over jungle trails. North Vietnam was in turn supplied by her giant Communist neighbor, China. The Soviet Union also shipped war goods to the Vietnamese through China with relative secrecy.

But the Angolan group currently aided by the Soviet Union and Cuba has no such easy routes. In fact, the immediate Angolan neighbors of Zaire and Zambia support the two other factions — The National Front and the National Union — as does South Africa, which administers Southwest Africa on Angola's southern border.

Only the Congo has sympathy for the so-called Marxist group, and it has no direct access because the northern part of Angola is controlled by opposing factions.

The Soviet Union and Cuba must, therefore, move in supplies openly across international borders, as did the United States in the Vietnam war.

THE STRATEGIC situation of Angola today is seen as vital to U.S. interests, just as Vietnam and the rest of Indochina were more than a decade ago. Kennedy, on March 23, 1961, read a statement to a press conference about a small, remote nation called ed Laos where several factions were fighting for supremacy, one backed by the Soviet Union.

"It is this new dimension of externally supported warfare that creates the present grave problem. We strongly and unreservedly support the goal of a neutral and independent Laos. If these (Communist) attacks do not stop (the United States and others) will have to consider their response," Kennedy said.

Those comments, with the substitution of Angola for Laos, were almost the text of recent statements about Angola by Kissinger and President Ford.

U.S. government spokesmen also have been using the "domino theory" for Angola. They argue that if it should fall to the Communist-backed side, then Zaire, Zambia and ultimately South Africa might similarly be overwhelmed by leftist governments.

The same argument was used for two decades in Vietnam, with Thailand, Malaysia, the Philippines and Indonesia numbered among the falling dominoes. Events have proved this prediction wrong.

SUPPORTERS OF American involvement in Angola argue that victory for the Communist-backed side would give Russia a port in the South Atlantic and potential control of oil shipping routes.

That argument is an echo of the early Vietnam years when those supporting U.S. intervention argued that ports such as Da Nang and Cam Ranh

Bay were integral to the defense of the United States and should never be allowed to fall into Communist hands.

Just as the U.S. government has perceived the threat to American interests in Angola as similar to the threat it saw in Vietnam, it has reacted not only with similar rhetoric, but with similar actions.

Revelations that secret aid was channeled to Angola through the CIA in early 1975 had a historical ring to them. Similar secret aid was sent to anti-Communist factions in Hanoi in 1955, also through the CIA.

Covert American entry into the Angolan war has changed now to open requests for public support for that policy. But what took years to develop in Indochina has taken only months in Africa. The escalation of military help from all sides seems to be faster, too.

THE VIETNAM example has brought a new factor into the Angolan equation. That factor is the perception of foreign policy from within and outside government. Whereas involvement in Vietnam received the unquestioned support of U.S. government officials for years, a senior official in the U.S. State Department quickly resigned only a few months after covert Angolan aid began because he disagreed with that policy. Congressional criticism and debate quickly flowered when the CIA-Angolan connection was revealed, and the Senate has voted to cut off all aid. The House will consider the question this month.

Jeane Dixon sees new faces in politics

By JEANE DIXON

As the 1976 election approaches, I see new front-runners in the presidential race after the Florida primary in March. But the actual presidential nominations for both the Democratic and Republican parties will be hotly debated and will not be determined until the final minutes of the nominating conventions.

During next year's campaign, several members of Congress will forsake their present political loyalties to run as members of the opposition party.

THIS WILL BE a good year for President Ford, although he may not think so at the time. There will be further attempts on his life, perhaps in April and July, and especially in the fall. Only triple security procedures will keep him safe from harm. But even physical peril pales beside the professional danger he faces because of his family. I sense that a situation involving a member of his immediate family will bring him embarrassment and will force him to reconsider his political intentions. Certain persons who do not wish him well will try to use the circumstance to undo him.

FORMER California Gov. Ronald Reagan will certainly bring life, knowledge, wisdom and charisma to the Republican Party, but I do not yet see him capturing the Republican nomination for President.

GEORGE WALLACE'S, D-Ala., political activities this year will be limited by a sudden illness that most likely will be connected with a fall. However, this will not prevent him from playing a key role in campaigning for the candidate who will next occupy the White House. Next October will be a high-water mark of his influence, when he will not care how his opinions are received. This will set the stage for his own arrival in Washington in 1978, when he will land a new position.

YOUR HOROSCOPE BY JEANE DIXON

Forecast for Monday

Your birthday today: The progress you make this year is entirely up to you since little energy or pressure comes from external sources. Studies and travel are especially favored. Your base of operations expands and improves in quality. Relationships are the one area where others supply much initiative. Today's natives find many ways to promote visionary ideas, are gifted administrators.

Aries (March 21-April 19): You must spend more than your budget permits. For the few choices that are left open, reflect carefully before plunging in. Speculative ventures are full of surprises.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Be alert for apparently trivial changes in local conditions. Check out plans with those concerned, then stick to your original plans. Old problems are a step closer to their solution.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Speak up and sell your side if you find that discussions don't deal with ideas you want promoted. Take stock of your possessions; don't make more loans or promises.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Communication on special or technical topics is favored. Work sparks a wave of creativity. You've got more than you need. Look for more groupy associates.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Wait until another day to bury that decorative item. Study your regular schedules and work habits to see if a switch might yield greater rewards. Add to your savings.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): New approaches work if they aren't radically different from your previous efforts. Being aggressive only generates resistance and delays your purpose. Try to compromise.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Friends give you more support than you expected. Your money disappears swiftly and leaves little to show for it once you start to compete. Soaring logically results in late night hours.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): It's an uphill day for your career efforts. Social contacts are complicated and subject to confusion. Stock up on your supplies for items you don't really want.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Before you blast off on an ambitious project that involves people close to you, find out how they feel about it and what they agree among themselves.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): What you're doing seems like another round on a treadmill until you see subtle shifts of direction. Extra trips are urgent. Expect little of loved ones.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): You must revise your skills to meet current standards. Impersonal negotiations work out well, but emotional issues are messy. Look for more groupy associates.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): People are easygoing unless the issue gets personal. Changes made now appear tiny but in time have many powerful repercussions.

may anticipate personal advancement, but only with time will he realize how influential he could be at this moment and how many opportunities for achievement he is overlooking. Throughout 1976, he will be troubled by California's financial matters.

Another high office soon awaits him, but it is not the presidency, and he will only hold this position a few years. Thereafter, he will leave public life for about five to seven years.

PATRICIA Hearst will spend a long, long time in confinement but in a hospital rather than in prison.

NINETEEN seventy-six will be a year of tremendous changes and startling surprises for the United States although they may not be too pleasant. It will be a year of violence for many of our allies, especially in Africa and Asia.

THE FACTS behind the Watergate scandal have not yet been divulged. When the truth becomes known in a few years, it will be disclosed that a foreign influence hostile to the United States was the cause of that political tragedy.

AFTER the dust of the elections clears away, there will still be a deadlock between the President and the Congress on most important matters. This will cause still greater frustration and confusion among the American people, who will end their Bicentennial year in discord and dissatisfaction.

THERE WILL be no reduction in income taxes.

NO ACTION will be taken by the Congress, one way or the other, on the issue of court-ordered school busing to achieve

JEANE DIXON

racial integration.

VIGILANTES will return to many American cities via community organizations that will replace the police in keeping order within their neighborhoods.

The crime rate will continue to soar. Angry citizens will begin to punish suspected criminals before they are tried or convicted.

TWO WORLD leaders, who together rule more than one billion people, will relinquish their power in 1976. Both Mao Tse-tung of China and Leonid Brezhnev of the Soviet Union will leave office next year.

UNITED NATIONS Secretary General Kurt Waldheim will leave his post because of concern for its future.

THE SOVIET Union will try to expand its power in 1976 with six military or political forays within the Free World: one each in the Middle East, Far East, Central America and Europe and two in Africa.

INTELLIGENCE REPORT

BECAUSE OF VOLUME OF MAIL RECEIVED, PARADE REGRETS IT CANNOT ANSWER QUERIES ABOUT THIS COLUMN.

SLEEPER MISSILES

One of the newest American secret weapons, designed to strike fear into the hearts of the Soviets, is the SIAM--the Self-Initiated Antiaircraft Munition.

Supposedly the SIAM consists of a cluster of small missiles with an independent firing and guidance brain. The SIAMs are dropped from the air around enemy airfields. They lie dormant on the ground until a plane takes off. As soon as it does, the plane's noise activates the sensitive electronic ear of the SIAM. When the noise reaches a level which indicates the plane is within range, the SIAM goes into action, homing in on the heat from the plane's exhaust and blowing the plane to bits.

News of this sophisticated weapon appears in the latest edition of "Jane's All the World Aircraft," which sells for around $70 a copy.

John Taylor, editor of the so-called "Aircraft Bible," says, "SIAM is a top secret program in the U.S., highly classified. We aren't able to say too much about it."

WHAT PRICE ALCOHOL

There are roughly 9 million citizens with serious drinking problems in the U.S.

More than 25,000 alcohol-related traffic fatalities, 15,000 alcohol-related homicides and suicides, 20,000 deaths from alcohol-related diseases, 20,000 fatalities due to alcohol-related accidents, and 2 million arrests for simple drunkenness are recorded annually.

One out of every 10 U.S.

workers is an alcoholic or has a serious drinking problem, resulting in an estimated $25-billion-a-year drain on the economy. More serious is that fewer than 10% of all citizens who have drinking problems receive any treatment.

THE WORLD'S CATHOLICS

Although the number of Roman Catholics in the world has grown to almost 690 million, the number of priests, monks, and brothers has decreased.

The Vatican Statistical Yearbook for 1973, containing the latest available figures, shows that 688,991,000 Roman Catholics constitute 18.3% of the world's total population of 3,803,999,000.

The largest concentrations of Roman Catholics are in South, Central and North America.

The yearbook reveals that the number of diocesan priests and male members of religious orders decreased from 417,774 in 1972 to 413,672 in 1973.

DIGEST FEAR

The Swiss people, conservative, industrious, and thrifty by nature, fear communism more than anything else.

A survey commissioned by "Weltwoche," a Zurich newspaper, reveals that 62% of the Swiss regard communism as their greatest threat.

After that, they most fear extremists of any type, then the Soviet Union, the Arabs, the Chinese, multinational corporations, and progressive organizations. According to the poll, the United States constitutes for the Swiss their ninth greatest threat.

BING CROSBY IN ENGLAND

GOOD TURN

When Bing Crosby was in England last summer, recording with Fred Astaire, he spent some of his spare time as a guest of Godfrey Bostock, who owns a shooting lodge in Yorkshire. Bing had such a good time that without any publicity he contributed $2000 to the Playing Field Fund at Kirkby Malzeard, near Ripon.

When the people in this little English village heard about Bing's generosity, one of them said, "He's not only a fine singer, he's a fine gentleman."

SOCIAL SECURITY NEWS

Starting this year the maximum amount that a Social Security beneficiary can earn and still obtain all his benefits will increase to $2760 a year. Last year the figure was $2520.

People who earn more than $2760 in 1976 may still receive some benefits, but for every two dollars above $2760 they earn, they may lose one dollar in their benefits for the year.

BEWARE BREAST INJECTIONS Small-breasted women who want larger breasts, do not let any physician inject liquid silicone into your bust!

Such injections can be lethal.

The Oct. 20 issue of the "Journal of the American Medical Association" carried an article in which three New York physicians report on several cases of serious illness and one death among individuals who had been injected with liquid silicone to augment breasts.

Two were transsexual men and the others were women. Dr. Richard Ellenbogen of Stony Brook Medical School, East Meadow, N.Y., and his colleagues reported that granules of the silicone had migrated through the body and had entered the liver.

In one case a woman died 10 hours after she was injected under each breast with large doses of silicone. The drug was found in her lungs, kidneys, liver, brain and blood.

There is nothing harmful, however, about the surgical implantation technique of breast augmentation. In this method, silicone gel within a silicone rubber sac is implanted beneath the breasts. There have been at least 100,000 such surgical implantations since 1962 with no adverse effects. The sac or envelope prevents the silicone from wandering. The wandering is apparently what causes the trouble.

Some plastic surgeons have been using small amounts of silicone for wrinkle removal. They inject silicone with a fine needle above a wrinkle and let the silicone fill the crease. Dow Corning of Midland, Mich., manufacturers of silicone, have applied to the Food and Drug Administration for a new drug license regarding silicone, but as of this writing it has not been granted.

Dr. Ellenbogen and his team write that "adverse systemic effects of silicone injections suggests that considerable ongoing clinical research is needed before release of this potentially lethal and debilitating substance into general clinical use."

'Risky business,' warns FDA U.S. arthritis victims find relief in Mexico

By MARC WILSON
Associated Press Writer

MEXICALI — It is dawn, and the amplified music from the nightclubs has finally stopped, the hucksters and pimps have deserted the streets and the wind that will later send tons of sand slashing through the Baja Desert is calm.

In a dusty alley 200 yards from the U.S. border, a long line of Americans wait outside the 2-story white medical clinic. Many in the line are elderly — all are in pain.

They wait long hours in the earliest light of day, like hopeful cripples waiting at a shrine for the gates to open and a miracle to happen.

THE "MIRACLE" these pilgrims seek is contained in a bottle — pills they claim give them their only relief from the agony of arthritis.

The pills, made from various compounds, including cortisone, are sold legally in Mexican pharmacies. But they're not authorized by the Federal Drug Administration for sale in the United States. The FDA acknowledges that the pills might reduce the symptoms of arthritis for a while. But in the long run, the FDA says, they can cause serious complications, even death.

"I don't care if the drugs are concentrated horse manure so long as they work," replies Mrs. Josie Janscish of Los Angeles, one of the women in line. "I've been coming to this clinic since 1963. I'm alive, aren't I? Isn't that proof enough it isn't poison?"

Apparently such "proof" is enough for about 80,000 of the 20 million U.S. arthritis sufferers who, according to the Arthritis Foundation have visited this clinic and others in the Mexican border towns of Piedras Negras, Juarez, Nogales and Tijuana.

PROBABLY the best known bordertown healer is Dr. Luis Carrillo, a man in his 40s. When Carrillo's clinic in Mexicali opens at 7 a.m., the patients swarm through a double door and are given numbers as high as 150. They are told an approximate time — as late as 7 p.m. — to return to see Carrillo and get their prescriptions for up to six-month supply. Carrillo charges his patients $10 to $15 a visit, the patients say.

Merle McIntyre, a 67-year-old retired airplane factory worker from Anaheim, was told to return late in the afternoon. He and his wife spent the rest of the morning and early afternoon in a cafe and in their motel room on the U.S. side of the border. They sipped coffee and talked about the pain that drove him to Mexico.

"BEFORE I came to Mexico, I had arthritis so bad in my arms and legs I couldn't sleep for more than 20 minutes at a time," he said.

"I used to bang my head against the bedroom wall, hoping it would knock me out so I wouldn't feel the pain and could rest."

"The American doctors would just tell me to take aspirin, take aspirin, take enough aspirin until the pain goes away. If I'd taken that much aspirin — enough to kill the pain — it would have killed me, too. For a while back then I was ready for that, maybe. At least there'd be no pain."

"I hate coming to Mexico like this," McIntyre went on. "I feel foolish standing in line and living down here like this. I don't like Carrillo... but this is the only place I can get relief."

HE SAID he'd heard all the warnings of side effects before he came to Mexicali, but the only side effect he's noticed is a thinning of his skin.

"Look at this," he said, and squatted on the floor. "I can do deep-knee bends like this better now than when I was in high school. Back in 1960 I never thought this would be possible."

While McIntyre demonstrates his ability to do deep-knee bends, the FDA in the United States emphasizes the failures that come out of the Mexican clinics.

man whose death was at least partly caused by drugs obtained in Mexico. Henderson said the man visited the Piedras Negras clinic in September 1973.

"HE WAS given several shots and two bottles of pills," Henderson said. "In November he began having prostate troubles and was hospitalized and operated on in Kansas City. He recovered, but returned to Mexico in January 1974 and resumed the drug treatments. He became ill again and died in Kansas City in January 1974."

Henderson quoted the autopsy as listing the cause of death as "dehydration, shock-like acute gastroenteritis, possibly aggravated or caused by unknown drugs given for rheumatoid arthritis."

"We always hear about the so-called miracles performed at these clinics," Henderson said. "We don't hear about the mistakes. They get buried 6 feet under."

Something of a mystery surrounds the clinics, which have rebuffed efforts by American authorities to examine their procedures.

THE MINNESOTA Medical Association issued a report saying many of the drugs prescribed are "adrenocorticosteroid," known commonly as cortisone. American doctors can use cortisone, but they say it is used only as a last resort, in small doses and under close supervision.

Henderson said cortisone can cause internal bleeding, thinning of the bones, stomach ulcers, susceptibility to other diseases and a "heroin-like

MEXICALI CLINIC is a mecca for arthritis sufferers from the United States who are unable to obtain drugs at home strong enough to relieve their pain.

addiction." The Minnesota Medical Association report identified other drugs used as tranquilizers, monomaine-oxide inhibitors, male and female hormones and dimethyl sulfoxide (DMSO).

"There is no doubt but that many of these drugs taken in large doses will 'cover up' much of the pain and discomfort of inflammatory arthritis... and even of degenerative joint disease," the report said. "The side effects, while varying from patient to patient, may be dangerous... There is little evidence to show that the massive drug therapy advised in these Mexican arthritis treatment centers is beneficial over the months or years which typify the course of chronic arthritis."

"There is considerable evidence that the results of such prolonged and massive steroid therapy are bad."

HENDERSON said the FDA knows that at least three drugs outlawed in the United States are being used in the pills prescribed at the clinics. The Mexican Health Ministry said the drugs or their equivalents are legally available to Mexican doctors.

Henderson said most of the other drugs, such as cortisone, are controlled drugs and U.S. doctors must use them cautiously.

Dr. Gerald Rodnan, president of the American Rheumatism Association and professor of medicine at the University of Pittsburgh, said he has discussed the "problem of border clinics with responsible Mexican doctors." He says they are equally upset about them.

"We checked it out earlier this year, and there's nothing that can be done to stop or curtail the clinics," Rodnan said. The Mexican Health Ministry says it considers the border arthritis clinics just like any other clinic that operate within the bounds of Mexican law.

FOR THE FIRST NINE MONTHS of 1975, ordinary life insurance sales amounted to $133.7 billion, compared with $133.9 billion for the same 1974 period, according to the industry sources.

For life insurance policies in general, including group and industrial policies — those on which premiums are paid weekly — some companies also report sharp declines in sales for the first nine months.

"This has been a very deep recession," said W. Roger Soles, chairman of the new American Council of Life Insurance, the main trade association of life insurance companies. He said that not only were sales been set back considerably last year primarily because of the economy, but also that the depressed economy has limited growth on premium income, a yardstick in the industry for measuring financial strength.

NOT SINCE 1949, when life insurance sales fell 1.1 per cent below the previous year's level, have sales slumped as they have this past year. Prior to last year they had been growing at an annual rate of about 7 per cent to 8 per cent for the last 10 years.

The Prudential Insurance Co. of America, the nation's largest life insurance company, reported a 2 per cent drop in sales for the first nine months of last year, compared with the same period in 1974. For the same period, several other major insurers reported the following results:

The Metropolitan Life Insurance Co., the nation's second largest life insurer, down 7.5 per cent; the New York Life Insurance Co., down 6.8 per cent; the John Hancock Mutual Life Insurance Co., up 0.2 per cent and the Equitable Life Assurance Society of the United States, down 1.1 per cent.

FOR THE FIRST 10 MONTHS of last year, the Travelers Insurance Co. reported an 0.2 per cent increase, and the Occidental Life Insurance Company of California reported a gain of 12.5 per cent.

The insurance industry executives and analysts said that a small portion of the loss in sales growth of ordinary life insurance policies is being offset by increased sales of relatively new lines of insurance.

Hospital gets new chief of staff

Kenneth E. Voss, M.D., who has practiced in the Bellflower area for 28 years, will serve as chief of staff at Woodruff Gables Hospital during 1976. He succeeds Dr. Wesley Masterjohn.

Born in Iowa, Voss received his B.A. from the University of Iowa and earned his M.D. from that school's College of Medicine in 1942. He is a member of the American Medical Association, Los Angeles County Medical Association and the California Academy of General Practice.

Elected to take over as the hospital's chief of staff in 1977, was Bernard Sherer, M.D., F.A.C.S., who has practiced in the community for 20 years. Since coming to the Bellflower area he has been associated with the Bellflower Medical Group.

A member of the AMA and the Los Angeles County Medical Association, Sherer is a Fellow of the American College of Surgeons. A graduate of Franklin and Marshall College in Pennsylvania, he received his medical degree in 1946 from Jefferson Medical College and interned in the Navy.

Returning as secretary to the Woodruff Gables Hospital staff is Dr. Albert S. Levy, a radiologist who earned his premed and medical degrees from Georgetown University in Washington, D.C.

AVCO hearing planned Tuesday

LAGUNA NIGUEL — The State Supreme Court has set a hearing date Tuesday to decide if Avco Community Developers,

Inc., can continue to develop a 70-acre parcel of oceanfront property at Laguna Niguel.

The matter has been tied up in the lower courts for almost three years.

David Stein, A.C.D. vice president and general manager of Laguna Niguel, said the project was approved for residential use in 1972 by Orange County.

It was to fit into the overall master plan for Laguna Niguel, a 7,900-acre new town designed to offer a balanced mix of housing, recreational and commercial facilities. A C.D. SPENT more than $6 million in completing rough grading, curb, gutter and storm drain facilities on the property, on the ocean side of Pacific Coast Highway near Niguel Beach Park, before further work was brought to an abrupt halt when the Coastline Commission came into being in 1973.

"We believed the project should have been given a vested rights exemption from the coastal permit process, as provided for in the Coastal Zone Conservation Act," Stein said.

FACTS AND FIGURES

More than 18 million Americans were unemployed at some time during 1974, almost 4 million more than in 1973.

One-third of all construction workers and one-fifth of all factory workers were unemployed some time during 1974.

Five million, 600 thousand workers were unemployed for 15 weeks or more in 1974, compared with 4.3 million in 1973.

The inflation rate from September, 1974, to September, 1975, was 7.8%, which means a worker bought more with his average weekly take-home pay 10 years ago than he does today.

WOMEN ARE STRONGER

Why is it that women run less risk of suffering heart attacks than men--especially between the ages of 18-50? Dr. William Kannel, the heart specialist from Framingham, Mass., feels the reason for less susceptibility of the female sex lies in their hormonal difference.

ECLIPSE-CHASERS

If you're looking for an unusual trip--for an even more unusual purpose--you might consider joining an eclipse-chasing group. Such expeditions have become the latest vogue among travelers, amateur astronomers, photographers and others in search of adventure and suspense.

The adventure comes from journeying to the site where a total solar eclipse will be visible. These celestial events have a habit of taking place in remote zones like northern Kenya (1973) and southwestern Australia (1974). The suspense comes from the gamble of viewing the eclipse at all, because if clouds roll in at the last minute the whole show may be blotted out.

Prof. Frederick E. Trinklein, a teacher and author from Brookville, N.Y., thinks the thrill of seeing an eclipse outweighs the possible frustration of making so long a jaunt for nothing. "I've led four eclipse-chasing expeditions all over the world for the past five years," says Trinklein. "I've only had one wash-out, over Quebec Province in July, '72."

The unofficial amateur eclipse-watching record is held by Harry Grahl, a semi-retired businessman from New Jersey. Since 1924 he's been on hand for the event nine times, and only once did the weather ruin the show. "Each one is different," says Grahl.

Everyone agrees that a total eclipse--with the moon moving between the sun and the earth, thus turning a narrow area dark for up to five minutes or so--is one of the most awesome natural spectacles to be seen in a lifetime. In fact, eclipses used to scare the daylights--so to speak--out of people before they knew what caused them.

The computer has made it possible to predict with total accuracy the place and time of eclipses far into the future. In case you want to make your plans early, here's the schedule for the next eight years:

COMING TOTAL SOLAR ECLIPSES

1976, Oct. 23	Africa, Australia	4.9 min.
1977, Oct. 12	Northern S. America	2.8 min.
1979, Feb. 26	Northwestern U.S.A., Canada	2.7 min.
1980, Feb. 16	Africa, India	4.3 min.
1981, July 31	Siberia	2.2 min.

REFUGEES ON RELIEF

Approximately 53% and possibly many more of the refugees from Southeast Asia who settled in California are on welfare. The percentage of welfare refugees may even reach 80% by the end of this month when Mario Obledo, state secretary of health and welfare, obtains the latest data.

JEAN BELL AND RICHARD BURTON

BURTON, THE GRATEFUL

Many actors are tightwads, which is understandable when one considers the transiency of their fame and the insecurity of their occupation.

At 50, however, Richard Burton, if anything, is generous to a fault, especially to the women and children in his life.

Latest example of his kindness involves a black actress from Los Angeles who prefers to call herself Jean Bell. It was she who looked after Burton when he was on the bottle in Italy some months ago. Burton was then depressed, having fallen out with the two Elizabeths -- Taylor, to whom he is again married, and the Princess of Yugoslavia, with whom he had a fast fling.

Before Burton departed from Jean Bell, he performed a most generous and thoughtful act. He suggested that she enroll her 13-year-old son, Troy, in Geneva International School in Switzerland. He would pay the tuition and expenses, which come to $5000 a year.

Miss Bell agreed and sent her son off to Geneva, where he made friends with Leighton Taylor, Elizabeth Taylor's 15-year-old nephew from Kauai, the garden island of the Hawaiian chain.

Word comes now, however, that young Troy Bell, lonesome and unable to adjust to the Geneva boarding school, has returned to his mother in Los Angeles.

If there is some other prep school he prefers, Troy need do little more than get in touch with Burton. The actor will see to it that tuition is paid. Richard Burton has not forgotten Jean Bell's care and kindness.

City's frantic 'search for money' explained

By ROBERT GORE
Staff Writer

Three taxes have been raised and another two taxes created in the past six months by the Long Beach City Council as local officials scramble in what they term a "frantic search for money."

The property, business license and oil production levies were raised in June and real property transfer and sewer taxes both were approved in the past two weeks, although only one will remain by the end of the month.

If realtors succeed in their fight to thwart the transfer tax, then the council will impose the sewer tax.

The agonizing of the council—new and higher taxes are not voters' favorites—has spurred public interest in why the money is needed and where it is going, city officials say.

Comments and letters from citizens during the transfer-tax debate repeatedly questioned the need for several city programs or expenditures.

Councilman Don Phillips, exasperated at the attitude of the audience, retorted that "it's very unfortunate we're down here in the dirt, grubbing for a few pennies, but the city tax is the only one that you get your money's worth from."

"Those people who are against higher taxes have got to quit beating the little guy (city government) down here and protest to Sacramento and Washington, where you're not getting your money back," he added.

What has happened to Long Beach city government? Why the desperate search for money—have costs gone up that much?

A comparison of the 1975-76 and

1965-66 municipal budgets provides some of the answers.

The city property-tax rate has climbed 21 cents, from $1.87 per $100 of assessed valuation to $2.08. However, Long Beach's share of the total county combined-tax rate actually has dropped from 20.5 per cent to 16.4 per cent.

Included in the combined rate is the county levy, which jumped from a 26.4 per cent share to 35.5 per cent; schools, a drop from 41.9 to 42.2 per cent; and special districts, a decrease from 8.2 to 5.9 per cent.

The county tax rate has climbed from $2.42 to $4.52 in the last decade.

Some of the biggest jumps in Long Beach city government costs have been:

- Police protection, from $6.9 million in 1965-66 to $23.3 million in 1975-76.

- Fire Department costs climbed from $4.4 million to $13.3 million.
- Park and recreation services went from $4.4 million to $10.3 million.
- Library costs grew from $1.5 million to $3 million.
- Community Development Department, from $97,000 to $3.1 million.
- City Manager's office, from $178,000 to $1.3 million.

Several other city departments, such as the city attorney, health and engineering experienced similar increases in costs, according to the two budgets.

The total general fund in 1965-66 was $37.6 million. By 1975-76, the general fund had grown to $91.5 million.

The total city budget, including tidelands oil funds, Harbor Department and municipal utilities, was $126.1 million versus $217.7 million for the current fiscal year.

Randall J. Verrue, executive assistant to the city manager, offered some explanations for the increases. Verrue served as budget director from 1969 to 1974.

Eighty-five police officers have been added, to bring the total personnel to 865, he said. Also, contributions to the retirement system were entered as a separate category in 1965-66 and now are included in each department's costs.

This added another $1 million to police costs. Federal grant programs, formerly budgeted separately, account for $2.8 million of the difference, he explained.

Salaries also have jumped and the Police Department has begun using computers much more extensively, he said.

The Fire Department has added 29 new members, bringing the total to 444, Verrue said. The switch in budgeting retirement costs and other items are behind the bulk of the increase, he said.

What to do when you need legal advice in a hurry

By TOM WILLMAN
Staff Writer

The phone rings like an alarm at 3 a.m. It's your son, and he's in trouble—serious trouble. He's under arrest and calling from the police station. What will you do?

What will you do when the other driver in that auto accident threatens you with a lawsuit? Or if you're faced with the bleak prospect of a divorce?

Attorneys are listed alphabetically there, but the listings are dishearteningly similar and uninformative since bar association advertising restrictions also apply to the phone book.

BUT IF your legal problem is one of a few types, you'll be able to narrow the field. Lawyers with state-certified specialties in maritime, taxation or workmen's compensation law can list that fact under their name.

Some attorneys also cite a relatively new certification in criminal law.

If you're looking for an attorney practicing somewhere else in the state or country, you can find one by checking any of several legal directories available at some municipal libraries or your local courthouse's law library.

The Martindale-Hubbell Legal Directory, which lists attorneys throughout the U.S., Canada and Puerto Rico, also provides a sort of rating system.

SOUTHLAND librarians, however, point out that the ratings are generally high and that some attorneys choose not to list themselves in this directory.

If you're an aspiring inventor, the phone book again will be a source. You can find legal candidates under the heading "Patent attorneys" in the yellow pages.

Also in the yellow pages you'll find the best substitute for the sound advice of a trusted friend: the ads for bar association referral services.

Bar associations exist in most courthouse jurisdictions. Strictly self-governed under state charter, they maintain lists of local lawyers who specialize in various legal fields.

THE LONG BEACH Bar Association has two referral lists, according to Executive Director Nila Alcock. One includes some 35

IT'S YOUR SON, AND HE'S IN TROUBLE . . . You Need A Lawyer, But How Do You Find Him?

criminal attorneys. The other is composed of some 130 civil lawyers, sublisted by specialty.

The referral services won't recommend a specific attorney, she said.

Callers instead are referred to the attorney whose name has rotated to the top of the list, with assurances the name is confidently recommended.

There is no charge for the referral, Mrs. Alcock said, but most attorneys on the lists charge a prospective client $20 for the first half-hour consultation. Clients, however, are advised to ask about that initial charge.

Because criminal cases can be urgent matters, Long Beach's criminal law referral service can be reached 24 hours a day by phone, she added.

If you're a student at Long Beach City College or Long Beach State University and you have a legal question, campus officials may be able to point you toward an answer.

An hour or two each week, attorneys from the Barristers Club—the local bar's group of young lawyers—go to each campus for question sessions.

The Orange County Bar Association also operates an attorney referral service, according to Director Inge Wagner, and two new and innovative programs as well.

The first program is available to all county residents by phone. It is called the Tel-Law Library program and is jointly sponsored by the county's Legal Aid Society.

The bar association offers free brochures that list more than 50 short, tape-recorded messages on legal questions.

Equipped with the brochure, you can select and hear any message by calling Tel-Law's 24-hour phone number.

Brochures are available from the Orange County Bar Association, 17291 Irvine Blvd., Suite 309, Tustin, Calif. 92680. Taped subjects include "How to find an attorney in Orange County if you do not know one."

THE SECOND option open to Orange County residents is the bar's Limited Means Program. It's designed to serve people making too much money to be eligible for legal aid to the poor and too little money to comfortably afford an attorney.

If a Limited Means Program applicant can meet the bar's financial standards—figured on a sliding scale that differs from case to case—he or she may receive legal services at rates reduced by as much as one-half, Mrs. Wagner said.

If you're impoverished, you're eligible for legal help under two programs in both Los Angeles and Orange Counties.

The Legal Aid Foundation or Society exists to provide counsel to the poor in civil matters only, according to Toby Rothschild, Legal Aid director in Long Beach.

PEOPLE who can show they're eligible for the local program have only to pay a $2 registration fee, he said.

Legal Aid attorneys generally try to practice preventive law, settling problems before they reach the courts, and the attorneys won't handle cases such as lawsuits in which private lawyers would stand a chance of collecting a fee, said Rothschild.

Instead, Legal Aid's work usually consists of cases such as divorces, landlord-tenant disputes, consumer problems and the defense of uninsured drivers who've been in auto accidents, he said.

In criminal cases, the poor have a constitutional right to legal counsel. That role is filled by the county Public Defender's Office.

If you're arrested on a criminal charge and can show you're impoverished, you generally can expect to have a deputy public defender—or in some cases a private attorney—appointed to represent you at your arraignment, according to Long Beach officials.

The arraignment proceeding takes place within three court days of your formal booking on a criminal charge.

Finally, there are two other options open to you if you are certain your legal problem is uncomplicated and you believe that paying attorney fees would be an unnecessary expense.

One of these alternatives is, simply, doing it yourself. A few legal processes involve—in some people's cases, at least—little more than the filing of forms.

TWO EXAMPLES can be a divorce, when neither partner is contesting it or feuding over community property; and filing for homestead.

Most people will need to invest time and effort in studying for the project. A primary source of information is, again, the nearest county law library branch. You'll find legal volumes there that describe the procedures.

Also, books have been published in recent years outlining several fairly common legal procedures in "do-your-own" terms. Subjects include divorce, homestead and bankruptcy.

Some controversy surrounds such books, however, and you may hear mixed reports on them.

IF YOUR legal problem is a dispute over money and less than $500 is involved, you'll end up in Small Claims Court, where you're not allowed to have an attorney.

You'll find the forms and guidance you need, for either filing or responding to a small claims action, in the local courthouse.

If you're tackling any other sort of legal problem yourself, however, you should keep a standard attorney's warning in mind.

Acting "in pro per" you'll be responsible for your own mistakes. And if a complication or dispute with the other party arises, you may find yourself matching legal wits with an attorney.

Celery stalks the Big Top circuit between semesters

By BRAD ALTMAN
Staff Writer

Clown College. San Jose State. UCs all in an academic year for Hilary Roberts. Between semesters: the Big Top, if she can find a vacancy.

At 21, she already has the distinction of being one of the few female circus clowns in America.

Female, and proud of it. Unlike other female clowns who dress to look neuter, Hilary refuses to disguise her gender. Wearing a colorful hoop skirt and pantalettes, she looks like a little girl in the ring. She dots each white grease-painted cheek with a dainty red heart.

A LIFELONG Long Beach resident, she was one of the first women to break the sex barrier when in 1974 she graduated from an eight-week course at the Venice, Fla., Clown College, sponsored by Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey Circus.

She was one of nine women and 39 men selected from 500 applicants nationwide to attend the college, after filling out a grueling application and passing tryouts held at the Inglewood Forum when the circus was there.

At the tuition-free Clown College she learned the tricks of the trade from some of the best circus performers in the country. A few months later she joined the Rudy Bros. Circus, a one-tent show, and toured 20 cities from April through October last year.

This week, she leaves for San Jose State to resume her college studies. Her earlier work at UCLA was interrupted by Clown College.

SHE ALREADY has mailed applications to several of the two dozen tent circuses now making the circuit in this country, letting them know she'll be available for summer work between semesters.

"I joined the circus thinking it would be romantic to run away, leave my problems behind," the perky and straightforward young woman says. "But then I realized I'd still be a clown 20 years from now, so I've decided to go back to school. I'm interested in upward mobility."

At UCLA, she studied theater arts. At San Jose, she'll study journalism. She wants to be a newspaper reporter.

Rudy Bros. Circus paid Ms. Roberts $175 a week. She says the circus was "a little bit better than tacky-bad" and adds that it is now defunct. She thought the salary was fine until she was told the circus management did not provide living, food or transportation expenses.

MS. ROBERTS and three other clowns entertained audiences from Bakersfield to Boston with pantomime and comedy acrobatics.

Along the way she picked up a clown name: Celery. "Someone asked at dinnertime, 'Celery, will you pass the Hilary.' The name stuck."

She traveled and slept in her 1970 Datsun. "Most girl clowns have a boyfriend or husband and I was single. Everyone says I had so much courage to travel alone. It has more to do with stupidity."

"I'll do it again. There's something exhilarating about traveling 900 miles in two days and performing on the third."

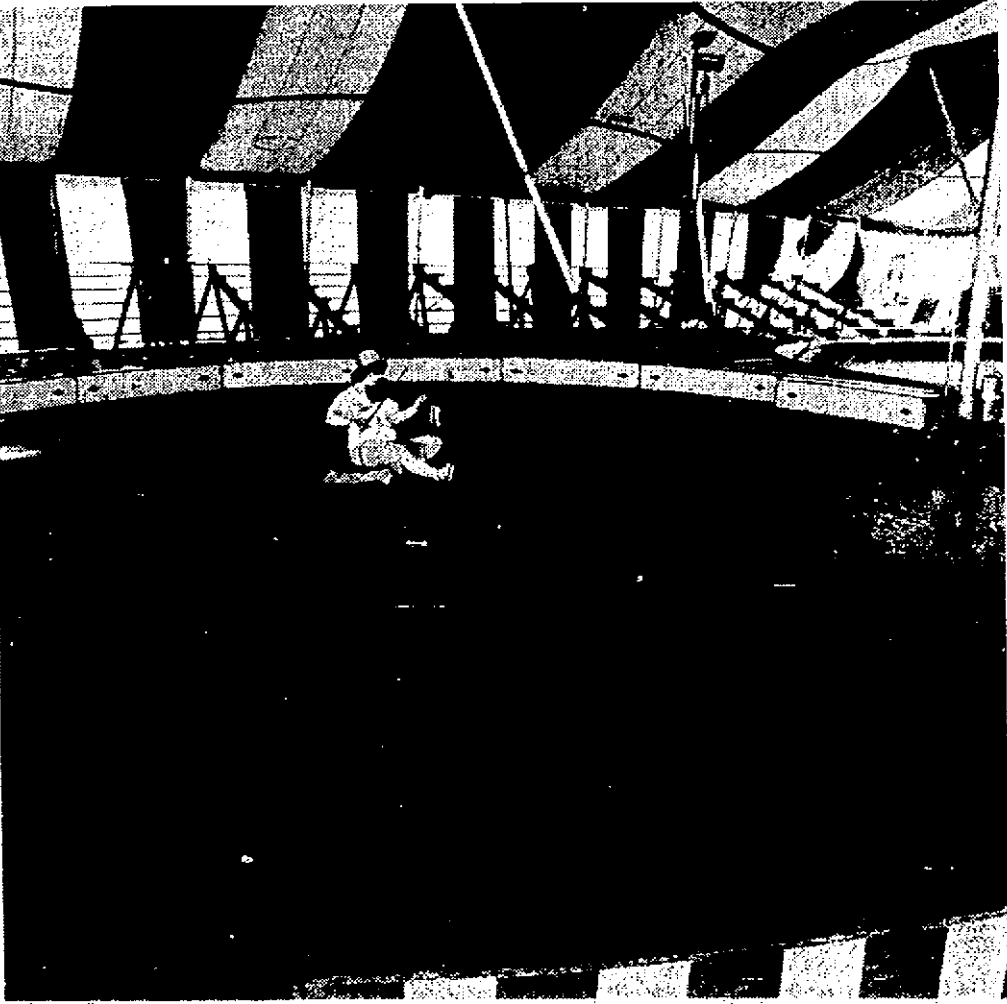

She says the most annoying part of circus life was the lack of bathing facilities. "I had to put on a bathing suit and wash up using buckets next to the elephants."

SHE DOESN'T plan on making clowning a career. "Being a clown is magical—people's faces light up when they see you. However, it's anonymous work and for me it's a very insecure feeling to be a non-name person. People say, 'Look! a clown!' They never say, 'Look, it's Celery!'"

She is a 1972 Poly High School graduate. Her father, Larry, is a postal clerk, her mother, Katie, a housewife.

What do they think of her clowning around?

"Looking back on last summer's tour, I think Hilary's lucky she wasn't raped or mugged," says Mrs. Roberts. "We really worried about her when she was on the road, but she says the experience was terrific. Besides, how many girls from Poly High ever become clowns?"

Police in New York and San Francisco are learning new ways to cope with the growing numbers of gunmen taking hostages. Here, patience and psychology pay off in capture of Ray "Cat" Olssen holding 10 in a New York City bank. Police talked with him, gave him beer and jumped him when he got drowsy.

How Police Hostage Squads Avert Bloodshed

by L.H. Whittemore

"I've gone this far," the gunman yelled. "I got nothing to lose. I may die, but so will they."
"You don't have to tell me," the police officer shouted back. "You hold all the marbles. We want to do the right thing."

"What's going on out there?"
"Don't get nervous. We're just opening the door. Don't panic. We want to make sure you can hear us."

The officer, Lt. Frank Bolz of New York City, held a bullhorn in one hand and a periscope in the other as he peered around the corner and crouched to one side of the bank's front door.

Meanwhile a crazed young man nicknamed "Cat" held a shotgun and a revolver on four customers and six employees, keeping them hostage.

That scene last October has become all too commonplace across the nation. The setting could also be a store, an office, an apartment or house. Barricaded inside, a gunman or group has threatened to kill the hostages unless certain demands are met.

How should the police respond? Break down the door? Shoot their way in? Play it all by intuition?

A chance to economize

Seven firemen who act as drivers for two battalion chiefs are being converted into ambulance drivers now that the city has taken over providing that public service.

The Long Beach Fire Fighters Union has asked the city council to appropriate money to hire seven more men to replace them and the council is scheduled to look at the problem again Tuesday.

THE ISSUE was first brought to the council by the union in mid-December. At that time, both City Manager John Mansell and Mayor Thomas Clark warned against opening the budget in mid-year for such purposes.

Clark said it would set a bad precedent. Mansell said he felt the jobs as drivers for the battalion chiefs should be abolished anyway as part of an austerity program.

Mansell indicated that after several months' experience he and Fire Chief Virgil Jones would take a look at the situation next spring and see if new men should be hired, or if more could possibly be cut.

Certainly the city won't suffer to any appreciable extent if such a trial period proves that the men should be replaced. If not, the cutback will save almost $200,000 — just for these seven drivers. Following the program to its logical conclusion — there are seven other such drivers on the payroll — has the potential of saving the taxpayers almost $400,000 yearly.

THE UNION argues that the seven men perform other duties in addition to driving the battalion chiefs, but we wonder if those duties can't be absorbed in some other way, as the city manager has suggested.

Here's a good chance for the council to prove it has more than just good intentions when it comes to saving money.

We hope the members follow the advice of the city manager and the mayor.

Vigilantes of the PTA

In Vacaville, Parent-Teacher Association members plan to make citizens' arrests of storekeepers who sell cigarettes to minors.

The plan strikes us as a bit of small-scale vigilantism that should not be copied elsewhere, and that might best be abandoned by the Vacaville parents.

Concern about teen-age smoking is legitimate, but the best way to deal with it would surely be provided by the parents of teen-agers who are tempted to smoke. Teen-agers determined to buy cigarettes will find vending machines. And by emphasizing to young people the forbidden nature of cigarette smoking, the PTA may only make the search for an unwatched vending machine more enticing.

The primary result of the PTA campaign is likely to be added trouble for merchants, who may feel compelled to ask for proof of identification from young customers, and added trouble for 18-year-olds buying cigarettes legally.

What others say

A date to remember

(From the New York Times)

When historians look back on the events of 1975, one day in particular will stand out as a turning point in the nation's affairs. On April 29, President Ford announced: "The evacuation (of all Americans from South Vietnam) has been completed. . . . This action closes a chapter in the American experience. I ask all Americans to close ranks, to avoid recrimination about the past, to look ahead to the many goals we share. . . ."

The end had not come without a revival of those very delusions that marked the long years of America's tragic and costly involvement in Indochina's civil war. Until the last moment of South Vietnam's collapse, Mr. Ford and Secretary of State Kissinger had asked the American people to believe that one more infusion of United States arms could turn the tide. It was finally up to Congress, representing the mood and the will of the people, to reject such thinking, along with the dire predictions of a universal loss of faith in Ameri-obsessed the nation's leaders and petrified their policies. Chastened by the futility of the attempt to win "the hearts and minds" of a remote peasant country, Mr. Ford pointed to the folly of the belief that "if we do not succeed in everything everywhere, then we have succeeded in nothing anywhere."

For a brief moment, during those days of somber relief, there was reason to fear that the long misadventure in Vietnam had so eroded the American people's conscience that they might turn their backs on the teeming masses of Vietnamese refugees. In the end, the most fundamental American commitment — to give asylum to the homeless — prevailed. Before the year's end the last of the refugees had entered American communities. Even at a time of economic stress, the nation kept the doors open. By welcoming one more wave of humanity, Americans showed that they themselves had come home to their best tradition.

IN GLOBAL TERMS, April 29, 1975, marked not this country's withdrawal into a new isolationism but a belated recognition that American power, like that of any nation, has its proper limits. Acceptance of such limitations does not suggest lessened American concern with international affairs; it merely underscored the folly of trying to improve the world by forcing it into the American image. The events of that traumatic spring of 1975 might be summed up by a warning written by Henry Kissinger in 1969, before he took charge of so many of the nation's foreign ventures, that while "a new international order is inconceivable without a significant American contribution," the complexities of a changing world made it impossible to "impose an American design."

It is a warning that should not be allowed to fade from the nation's consciousness as new and vexing conflicts tempt American policymakers to overestimate the power of United States weaponry in settling internal strife in distant lands.

Presidential job description

WASHINGTON — Maybe the first task in the presidential election of 1976, and also the most difficult, is to try to define the qualities of presidential character, intellect, and personality that are best suited to the trends and priorities of the coming years of the '70s.

A presidential election is not so much a judgment on the past as a bet on the future. The instinct of the American people for choosing the better of two candidates is as good as any other democratic country's, but historically it is not all that good. There is a long list of tragic blunders in the presidential election record because the people were looking to the past rather than to the future.

THE AMERICAN people, or so it seems here, were looking to the past when, tired of the First World War, they chose Warren Harding over James Cox in the election of 1920; when they chose the visibly dying Franklin Roosevelt over Tom Dewey in 1944; and Calvin Coolidge over John W. Davis in 1924.

You can still, of course, get an argument about all this, but the historians seem to agree that, for whatever reasons, the voters chose the wrong man for the wrong reasons when they elected Zachary Taylor over Lewis Cass in 1848, Ulysses S. Grant over Horatio Seymour in 1868, Herbert Hoover over Alfred E. Smith in 1928.

Voters interested in the accidents and caprices of history should read Irving Stone's study of the presidential also-rans, the clearly superior candidates who were defeated, and also the distinguished citizens who were never considered.

"Only by the merest margin," Stone concludes, in They Also Ran, "has democracy been able to prove that it has the discernment to choose the best man available for the most important office in the land."

IN THE LAST few weeks, the newspapers, magazines, radio and television, confronted by a battalion of candidates in '76, have done an excellent job of reporting the candidates' biographies, but we still have to try to draw a political map of the future, and a job-description of the presidency that is relevant to a rapidly changing world.

This is clearly a dicey business, but every family, institution, business and government has to make a few assumptions about the future. Some reasonable assumptions, at least for the purposes of debate, can be suggested for the next five years:

• It will be a period of new and immensely complicated economic, monetary and political problems between the nations, and among the federal, state and local governments at home.

• Accordingly, maybe three qualities will be essential in a president to grapple with these problems: the capacity to mobilize the most flexible and pragmatic talents of the nation, regardless of party, to analyze these puzzles; the political power to get the consent of the Congress; and the personal gift of speech to reduce all this diversity to some kind of identity.

• A reputation for being a whiz at foreign affairs, and knowing all the personalities in Moscow, Peking and the other major capitals may not be as important in the next five years as they were in the '60s and early '70s. The leaders in the Soviet Union and China will probably be gone by the end of 1976, and anyway, the security of the United States may depend more on restoring the confidence of the American people in the integrity and efficiency of their own institutions than in anything overseas.

• One assumption you can bet on. In the last years of the '70s almost half of the 215 million Americans will be under 40 and their most vivid political memories will be of the controversies of Vietnam, the scandals of Watergate and Chappaquiddick.

James Reston

THIS NEW rising majority of America, searching, disenchanted and increasingly self-concerned and even cynical, is not impressed by the New Deal policies of Humphrey, the Cold War combativeness of Jackson, the amiable good intentions of President Ford, or the smooth theatrical conservative nostalgia of Reagan. Maybe they don't know what they want, but they don't want the past, and whatever you think of them, they are a critical part of our future.

In the '60s and '70s, we have gone through a torrent of change at home and abroad, in which science and technology, popular education, racial tension and the massive growth of the cities, have challenged all our institutions, social conventions and traditional morality.

It has been a period of confusion, spiritual bewilderment, and appalling political and business corruption, in which our political leaders have told the people that it was their destiny to get more and more material wealth, and that the politicians who promise the most live and rule the longest.

BUT RECENTLY, there has been a turn. The most promising trend in Washington at the beginning of the new year is the decline of political promises. All the presidential candidates, except maybe the populist Fred Harris, have suddenly become fiscally responsible, because this is the new popular theme. None of them, however, has come forward with a program, a Cabinet, or a philosophy of reconciliation at home that deals with the coming years.

Everybody is for balancing the budget, caring for the poor, driving the wastrels off welfare, making peace with the Soviets and the Chinese, defending Israel without aggravation or losing the oil of the Arabs, but none of the candidates gives us a vision of the coming years or demonstrates the qualities to deal with them.

Maybe it is asking too much of the candidates, but if we are to get out of this past decade of drift and hallucination, somebody is going to have to define what lies ahead and what qualities we need in a leader.

Letters to the editor

On wrong trail

EDITOR:

Senator Frank Church, chairman of the Senate's Select Intelligence Activities Committee, which is slowly but surely rendering our nation's intelligence community inoperative, was incensed last week over a news leak from someone on his committee concerning alleged intimate and frequent contacts between former President John Kennedy and a woman with known Mafia connections.

I suspect most Americans would sleep better at night if the good senator were less concerned with the release of potentially defamatory information on the sexual promiscuity of a former Democratic president and more concerned over the recent brutal slaying of Richard S. Welch, CIA station chief in Athens, Greece. I suggest that Senator Church investigate for openness the group entitling itself "Fifth Estate," which CIA Director William Colby blamed for Mr. Welch's death by fingering him earlier as a CIA agent. The "advisory board" for this group reads like a Who's Who among the radical left chic: Philip Agee and Victor Marchetti, CIA turncoats; Anthony Russo, who helped Daniel Ellsberg "leak" (ha!) the Pentagon papers; and David Dellinger, one of the infamous Chicago 7 defendants.

Of course, Senator Church and his committee may have to conduct this investigation without the assistance of the FBI or the CIA. I wonder whether there's enough of those organizations left to even lend a hand?

Don't sue

EDITOR:

I wonder if anyone has come up with the following solution to the malpractice controversy?

Have the patient sign a waiver that under no circumstances would he sue the doctor for whatever surgery or treatment he is to receive. This way the doctor would not be required to buy any malpractice insurance which in turn should lessen his fees to the patient.

After weeding out the bad apple doctors, the patient's chances would be practically 100 per cent.

The only losers would be the lawyers and insurance companies, but haven't they already overflowed their pockets?

Fees too high

EDITOR:

I very strongly protest the raising of Animal Shelter fees, for I am sure I will be one of the first to lose my dog.

My son felt I needed a dog for protection and got me a year-old female German shepherd I do feel much safer with her in my house or yard, but she doesn't like being penned up. She has escaped six or seven times in the past two months, twice being picked up by the dog catcher. She unlocked the gate once, chewed her way out of the gate twice, knocked a fence board out once and the other escapes are still a mystery.

I think the high fees at the shelter are all right for those who turn their pets loose at dark (and many people do) or those who feel they must "walk" a dog to a nearby park or school or neighbor's yard. However, many of us try to obey the law and our pets just aren't as law abiding as we would wish. I'd also have my dog spayed if I could afford it, but since I can't, that will just have to wait.

Getting it right

EDITOR:

Several weeks ago I read the article in the I.P.T. referred to the LBSU branch of Harbor Bank as the first full-service banking office on a university campus in Southern California. Today, (December 27) the article "Harbor Bank Names Manager" states the same incorrect information.

More correctly, Cal State Los Angeles opened its $7 million university student union in April 1975 and on September 15, 1975 the Bank of America opened a full-service banking office in the union.

I work in Los Angeles, live in Cypress, and read the IPT. Sometimes the latter is embarrassing to admit. PAT METZGER

Andy who?

EDITOR:

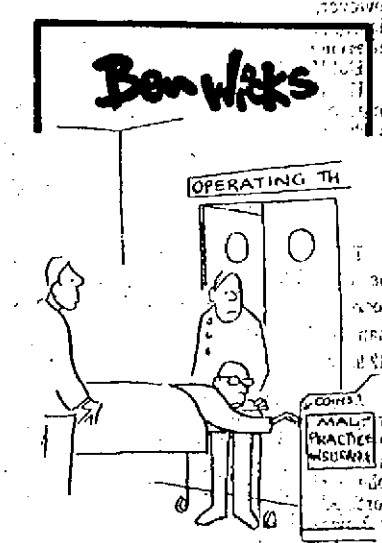

I am sure in this day and age the Evening Final edition of the Press-Telegram for December 23 could have chosen a far more appropriate large headline than "Andy Messersmith Made Free Agent."

Not everyone follows baseball or the Dodgers for that matter, so I wonder how many people glanced at those lines with a big question mark of who's Andy Messersmith and what is a free agent attachment?

This should have been headlined in the sports section, Dear Editor.

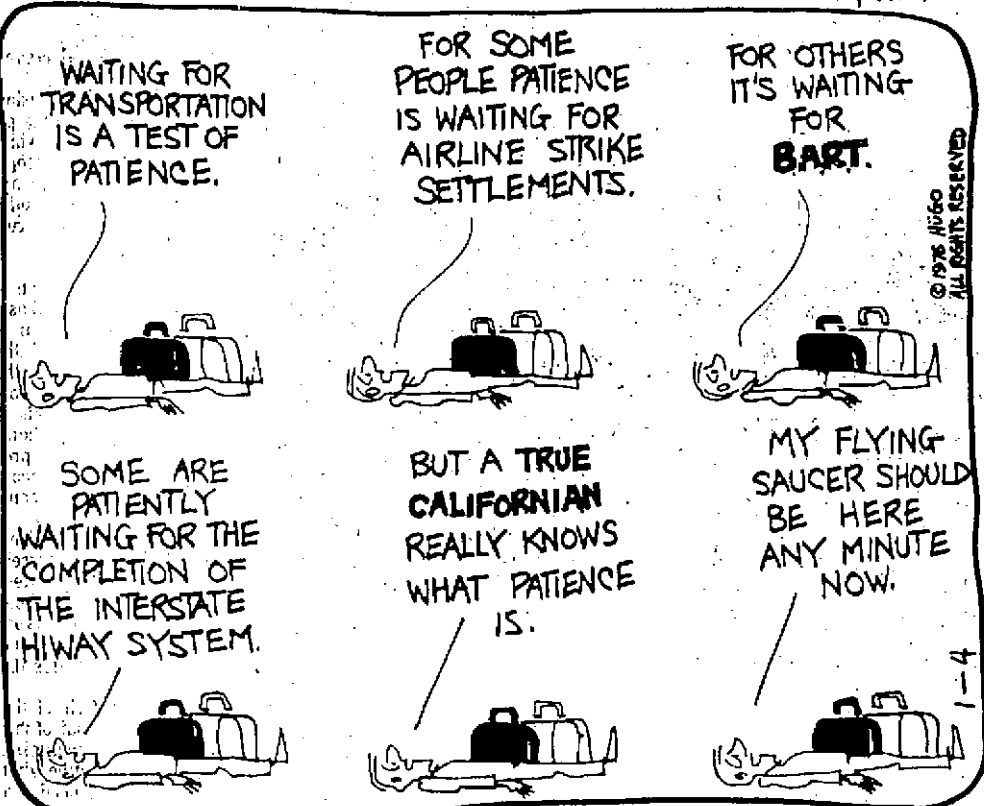

MILT NALIBOW

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Evening Final of the Press-Telegram clearly specifies, in the large green ear high on the right side of Page One, that it is the "LATE SPORTS-CLOSING STOCKS" edition. The precedent-setting award of free-agent status to Dodgers pitching star Andy Messersmith, implying as it did a major restructuring of professional baseball, was a significant sports story of interest to all sports fans and especially the large Dodgers following in this area.

A part of our heritage

Gone for a Soldier: The Civil War Memoirs of Private Alfred Bellard. Edited by David Herbert Donald. Little, Brown. 298 pages. $20.

By JONATHAN YARDLEY

If we absolutely must have a Bicentennial celebration — and it's too late, alas, to stop the thing now — it would be nice if we did it properly. There's not much evidence that we're going to; if we're to believe what we've seen lately on television, the celebration is going to consist of Mickey Mouse in a cocked hat and spectacular vulgarity of the half-time-at-the-Orange-Bowl variety. If you can believe that such displays have anything to do with the Founding Fathers, then doubtless you can also believe George Washington in a sequined leisure suit.

For a country as troubled as ours, the Bicentennial should be an occasion not for ostentatious self-congratulation but for thoughtful contemplation of the past. We could, for starters, reread the Bill of Rights and reflect upon the number of ways in which we acquiesce to the violation of those rights. On a less-exalted scale, we could consider the lives of ordinary Americans of generations past who participated in the great events that shaped the nation.

ONE SUCH person was an 18-year-old New Jerseyan named Alfred Bellard, who in August 1861 enlisted in the Fifth New Jersey Infantry and served in it for three years. He was no hero, merely a soldier who did his duty — and who wrote about what he did and saw, leaving behind a memoir that proves to be a splendid Bicentennial document.

Throughout his service, Bellard wrote regular and detailed letters to his family, and he requested that they be saved. As a consequence, when he wrote this memoir some 15 years after the conclusion of the Civil War, he had firsthand observations from which to draw. The memoir disappeared after his death in 1881, and did not resurface until it was discovered in an antique shop in 1962 by Alec Thomas, a film maker. He recognized that he had found a manuscript of unusual interest, and brought it to the attention of Little, Brown — which, in turn, engaged the distinguished historian David Herbert Donald to authenticate and edit the memoir.

It is a remarkable, and valuable, piece of work, filled with marvelous detail about the lives of ordinary soldiers fighting an extraordinary war. It includes graphic descriptions of the fighting in such pivotal battles as Second Bull Run, Fredericksburg and Chancellorsville, but it is not a book about flanking maneuvers, grand strategy or momentous decisions. It is a book about how your run-of-the-mill Yankee dogface coped — about how he slept and ate, how he felt when the bullets started flying, what he did for R&R, how he kept warm and dry and alive. It is history on the human scale, and thus history to which we can most immediately and meaningfully respond.

PRECISELY WHY Bellard wrote the memoir is far from clear, but what is clear beyond dispute is that he did not write it to inflate his own role in the conflict. One could not ask for a more self-effacing narrator, nor could one ask for one more observant, humorous and succinct. Bellard was no prose stylist, and his spelling left a lot to be desired, but his text vividly recreates the daily life of men at war.

So, too, do the primitive sketches and drawings he composed on the scene; they are, in fact, as important to this beautifully produced book as the text itself.

The memoir, like war, is a mixture of daily routine and sudden horror. On the one hand there is the unending quest for sustenance: "Our crackers we used to fry, to make them more palatable soaking them an hour or two to make them soft. We fried them in pork fat and made a tasty meal." On the other hand there is death: "Dead men were lying in all directions. In walking over the field, some would be seen with their legs or arms shot off, others with the top or side of the head cut off as with a knife (which in this case was a piece of shell), while one man of our Regt. had his entire chest smashed in as flat as a board. In the fallen timber a reb was found who had one hand in the pockets of a union soldier and had been shot while leaning over a log rifling the pockets of his enemy. In a ravine that was so ably defended by the rest of our brigade, the dead rebels were piled one on the other."

By so matter-of-factly setting down what happened during his term of service in the Union Army, Bellard has more to say to today's readers than may at first meet the eye. We know a lot about the great generals who led the nation to freedom in the Revolution and those who led it to reunion in the Civil War. We know much less about the ordinary soldiers whose heroism lay not in legendary triumphs but in dogged endurance.

Generals may lead nations, but ordinary people make them. Gone for a Soldier is about such people, and thus it speaks directly to us during a year in which we honor our heritage.

Bring back the students

Without going into a frenzy of denunciation — and realizing that the reader may now be red-eyed from watching mercenaries slug, hit, react, second-effort and whatever else they do on the gridiron, grass or carpet — I would have to open the sermon by stating that after watching Woody Hayes of Ohio State for at least a decade the only conclusion to be reached is that the man is pathetic.

Who now should be surprised that Hayes would perform like an ass after getting it stuck to him in the Rose Bowl game by a team, UCLA, that was presumed not to belong on the same field?

I have interviewed this slob myself and have found no redeeming characteristics. Unlike most, however, I find him as obnoxious in victory as in defeat. We all have different drummers, I guess.

But Hayes isn't the problem. He is the epitome of the big time, computerized Coaching God to whom a boys' game has become a business somewhere up there with Transamerica. He, as with his friend in Michigan Bo Schembechler, has mechanized teams, robots. I don't pay much attention to those frenzied prayer sessions

William G. Sumner
Ridder News Service

they have on the sidelines, for I suspect that Woodrow has told his mercenaries to jump and slap helmets and pads and yell or try to get scholarships in history or political science.

I have watched both of these mechanics, Hayes and Schembechler, get upset by schoolboy athletes in the Rose Bowl and it has always been a pleasure. You might forgive Hayes for the Stanford upset, for he was facing a superb passing quarterback and at least two good receivers when beaten by Jim Plunkett, but wasn't it a pleasure to watch Stanford's hippie quarterback beat Michigan the next year? I can't recall his name. No one can. He was a student.

But you see the Big Ten in Pasadena, coming on first with its bands, like Prussians with their precision and quick steps, and you are impressed: the machine that produced them must indeed be invincible.

You get the feeling that if the high-stepping drum major were to fall on his face he would be strung by the thumbs but, meanwhile, a sub would be rushed in.

There is even now restlessness among the schools of the Top 10, and among them I would put Southern California. They feel shackled by the minimal scholastic and "red-shirt" confines of their conferences and weak opposition and wish to form what, in fact, would be a semi-pro conference which would no doubt realize its ambition through lawsuit, forcing its way into Superbowl XIV.

This is not college football.

Oh, really?

You are regarded as an innocent for saying it. But why in hell should I draw such hysterical adulation? I don't know. At each level, there is interest, up, I think, to neo-professional college football. There, you have to note, they constitute pro farm clubs, lacking only the experience five more years or so would provide and, as has been demonstrated pretty clearly, intelligence, emotion and esprit. Where have you gone, Dink Stover?

Post office mismanaged

WASHINGTON — Once again, the Postal Service has sought relief from its own mismanagement by increasing first-class rates. Thus the people who use the mails the least will continue to be charged the most.

In the past four years, the price of a first-class stamp has more than doubled. Yet the cost of handling a letter has risen only about 35 per cent.

THE FIRST-CLASS users might not mind paying a disproportionate share of the mail costs if their letters were delivered a little faster to the right mailboxes. But the delivery service seems to decline, unhappily, in direct proportion to the rise in mail rates.

Of course, the Postal Service has been quick to blame inflation for the need to increase rates and reduce service at the same time. But the real cause of the mail mess, in our opinion, has been bad administration.

We have kept a close watch on the Postal Service since it went on a business basis in 1971. We wrote a series of columns about mismanagement and misfeasance, which forced Postmaster General Ted Kassen to resign in the middle of his term.

From confidential postal files, we showed how the authorities had made costly mistakes, had handed out fat contracts to their friends and had squandered money on their own comforts. Kassen's successor, Ben Bailar, has made some improvements. But the mismanagement is so entrenched it would take a wholesale reorganization to correct it.

INFLATION MAY have aggravated the fiscal crisis in the Postal Service, but bad planning, boondoggles and cronyism were the cause. The question of who should pay for this mismanagement was brought before the Postal Rate Commission.

With unerring logic, an administrative law judge, Seymour Wenner, proposed that those who create the greatest burden for the Postal Service should pay the biggest share of the cost increase.

He called for a 2½-cent reduction in first-class rates and an increase in other rates. He suggested raising parcel post rates 57 per cent, second-class rates 100 per cent over five years, and third-class bulk rates by 7 per cent.

This brought howls from newspapers and magazines, who benefit from second-class rates. It also brought howls from the big corporations, which flood the Postal Service with third-class junk mail. This is mail that most recipients would rather not receive. Yet tons

Jack Anderson
with

of it, addressed to the anonymous "Occupant," are delivered every day by mailmen. You guessed it, the postal authorities were more impressed by the corporate howls than the private grumbling. First-class mail rates weren't reduced two cents, as Wenner urged, but were increased three cents.

THIS MEANS the individual letter writers will subsidize the corporations by helping to pay the mailing costs for their business solicitations. Or to put it another way, the anonymous aggrieved "Occupant" indirectly will help pay for the avalanche of junk mail he never wanted in the first place.

Congress voted to free the old Post Office from the fetters of the federal bureaucracy six years ago. The whole idea was to remove politics from the postal operation. The proponents in Congress promised that once the Postal Service was put on a businesslike basis, the mails would return a profit and government subsidies could be eliminated.

Instead, the postal deficit soared to an estimated $2.6 billion. Not that the efficiency experts failed to tinker with the postal machinery. They developed a streamlined, centralized Preferential Mail Network, which was supposed to speed up mail delivery.

Special sorting machines were built that were supposed to process letters speedily. But unfortunately, the infinite variety of envelopes, which come in all shapes and sizes, fouled up the works.

ANOTHER MACHINE scanned envelopes so fast it outpaced the antiquated machinery that served up the envelopes. The fancy machine constantly runs out of mail to process.

The Postal Service also invested $1 billion in a parcel delivery system that has turned out to be slower, more expensive and more damage-prone than the competing private service, United Parcel.

The bulk mail system is made up of 21 centers built near urban areas. They are supposed to serve as central clearing-houses for parcels in each area. This mechanization plan was supposed to replace hand sorting and provide speedier service.

Instead, the service has slowed and the deficit has risen. According to the Postal Service's own estimate, it takes more than eight days for the average parcel to make its way, for example, from Washington, D.C., to Los Angeles. The Pony Express made the trip from St. Joseph, Mo., to Sacramento in about six days in 1861.

THE DRAWBACKS of a centralized system didn't dawn on the postal planners until the energy crisis sent their fuel bills soaring. Suddenly, ferrying packages to a central processing plant became exceedingly expensive.

Here's how it works. A package mailed to a neighbor in a nearby village, for example, has to be shipped hundreds of miles to the nearest urban center for processing. Then it is shipped back again to the addressee. This process obviously slows the service, boosts the cost, and increases the damage risk.

Congress notwithstanding, the Postal Service is a service, not a business. It is a service, moreover, that is costing the taxpayers about $1.5 billion a year to maintain. It's going to go on costing the taxpayers billions more than it should unless it is completely revamped. And the reorganization, in our opinion, will have to start at the top.

The Vikings: Rise and Fall of the Norse Sea King. By Rudolf Poertner. Translated from the German by Sophie Wilins. St. Martin's. $12.95.

An eminent German historian brings to life the pulsating world of the Norse civilization whose adventurers and warriors expanded their sphere of action from Norway to North Africa, from the Volga to the St. Lawrence.

A Pepper-Pod: A Haiku Sampler. By Shoson (Kenneth Yasuda). Foreword by John Gould Fletcher. Tuttle. $5.95.

Haiku, that delightful, 3-line pithy Japanese verse form practiced by some of Japan's greatest poets, receives, in this book, a rare adequate English rendering, at the hands of a Japanese writer fully acquainted with English. Yasuda adds a brief selection of haiku written by himself directly in English.

POLICE BEAT

Market robbed of $10,000

Two men armed with a sawed-off shotgun robbed Ralph's Market at Compton and Atlantic Boulevards in East Compton of more than $10,000 Saturday afternoon, Lakewood Sheriff's deputies said.

The pair held office personnel at gunpoint and forced the manager to empty the safe, deputies said.

The two, described as blacks in their late teens, fled in an unidentified car after the 4:40 p.m. holdup, according to deputies.

Youth stabbed to death

A Watts teen-ager was stabbed to death late Friday while attempting to stop an argument in his home, police reported Saturday.

A police spokesman said Gilbert Perez, 16, was killed while trying to intercede in an argument between his mother and stepfather.

A spokesman said the couple, Angel Berto Ortega, 33, and his 35-year-old wife, Carman, were arguing shortly before 11 p.m. Friday when Perez tried to break them up and was stabbed once in the chest.

The youth was taken to Martin Luther King Jr. Memorial Hospital where he died at 1:15 a.m. Saturday.

Angel Ortega was arrested and booked on suspicion of murder, authorities said.

Burglar flees with rings

Jessie Mae McGill, 62, of 1015 Alamitos Ave., told police Saturday that a burglar who entered through her front door stole rings valued at more than $300 from her bedroom.

TV, cufflinks, coins stolen

Long Beach police said Saturday that a burglar who broke a bathroom window at the home of attorney Mark Lincoln Taylor, 218 W. Sixth St., stole a portable television set, cufflinks and foreign coins with a total value of about $124.

Tools worth $300 taken

A burglar who climbed over a chain-link fence in a maintenance yard of the Powerline Oil Co., 910 S. Windham Ave., stole wrenches, sockets and other tools valued at $300 from a tool cabinet on a truck, Long Beach police said Saturday.

Restaurant robbed of $50

Two bandits, one armed with a pistol, robbed the Taco Bell restaurant at 4103 Viking Way of $50, Long Beach police said Saturday.

An employee told police one of the bandits told him, "Get your hands up and don't touch the alarm," police reported.

The employee then told the bandit, "Show me a gun first," and the man drew a revolver from his coat pocket and pointed it at the employee.

Police said the suspects fled in a yellow pickup truck.

How to find reliable legal advice

most controversial—option you may consider in some cases also involves no attorney.

In the past two years, clinics operated by nonlawyers have opened in several Southland communities. They've been called "divorce clinics" since their business has been limited to simple, uncontested divorces.

A spokesman for one such clinic said they help people of moderate means to do their own divorces, and at prices below those charged by attorneys.

Clinics do that by providing clerical and document delivery services only, he said, since they'd be breaking the law if they offered any sort of legal advice to clients.

It's that issue that has kept the clinics in controversy. Some attorneys' groups have claimed that the clinic owners are, in effect, practicing law without a license and advertising illegally. Civil suits and criminal charges have been filed against California clinics on those grounds.

But while that legal war continues, both sides have won some battles and the clinics continue to operate.

In fact, the clinic spokesman said, some of the firms intend to expand their services soon to other common legal areas: bankruptcy, homestead, legal name change and simple adoption.

Such clinics are most easily located through their classified newspaper advertisements in the "Personals" or "Announcements" columns.

The spokesman stressed that reputable clinics turn down contested or complex cases.

"If it's a complicated situation, if it's a contested situation or if they have any legal question about the subject matter at all, then we recommend that the people have at least a consultation with an attorney," he said.

The spokesman added a warning to people who turn to the classified columns to locate a clinic: Ask enough questions to safeguard yourself from any "fly-by-night" business.

"Oftentimes these guys don't work out of an office, don't maintain phone service and they deliver to homes, so there's no accountability at all," he said. Reputable clinics, he added, won't mind inquiries.

Stamp buyers stampede post offices

Postal patrons—caught without the proper denominations of stamps after the 33 per cent price increase last week—queue up for purchases at the downtown Long Beach Post Office Saturday. Postal station managers throughout the nation reported a rush on their offices as people sought to buy the new 13-cent first class stamps or three-cent stamps to supplement their outdated 10-cent versions. "They're buying everything they can get their hands on," said Ed Burt, manager of the Bixby Station in Long Beach. "It's almost like people are afraid we're going to run out of stamps." Tony Robinson, a window clerk at the downtown Long Beach office, said employees there were "five times busier" than usual Saturday.

At the Golden Sails

Former pike carney to be honored

By CHUCK CHEATHAM
Staff Writer

Sam Boyd, owner of Sam Boyd's California Hotel and Casino in downtown Las Vegas, will be honored Tuesday evening as "Carney of the Year" by the Long Beach Pike Showmen's Association.

Boyd and his wife, Mary, will be guests of honor at the association's third annual dinner dance at the Golden Sails Inn, 6285 E. Pacific Coast Highway.

In 1924 Boyd started working after Poly High School hours on the pike at 10 cents an hour.

His first job, he recalls, was picking up baseballs players threw at targets. When a bull's-eye was hit, girls in bathing suits who sat on racks were dunked into the water.

Boyd was soon working at various other pike concessions, became a pitchman and worked in and operated bingo games. He also worked on gambling ships outside the three-mile limit and in Hawaii.

In 1941 Boyd and his wife went to Las Vegas to visit friends and ended up staying.

Starting with a penny roulette wheel, he studied the gambling profession as a dealer in several clubs and then worked as pit boss at the El Rancho, Flamingo Hotel, Cal-Neva Lodge and Thunderbird Hotel in Las Vegas. He held similar positions at the Cal-Neva Club in Reno and the Cal-Neva Lodge at Lake Tahoe.

In 1949 Boyd became a partner in the Las Vegas Sahara Hotel and then became executive vice president of the Sahara-Nevada Corp., which owned several gambling casinos in Las Vegas, including the Mint.

He was president and chief executive officer of the Union Plaza hotel, casino and transportation complex until he resigned to build and operate his new club, which opened New Year's Eve, 1974.

Albert S. Brown, schoolmate and fellow-pike worker with Boyd more than 50 years ago, was honored in 1974 as the first "Carney of the Year."

Brown, now manager of Lite-O-Line game at W. Pike and Cedar Walk, will introduce Boyd and present him with a plaque for his outstanding contribution to the amusement industry.

Lloyd Hilligos, owner of Foley and Burke's traveling carnival, who started in the amusement field 30 years ago on the pike, was honored at the association's second annual event.

IT'S ONLY AN ANIMAL

Dying in a steel-jaw, leghold trap. An animal that feels pain much like we do. Imagine having your fingers crushed in a car door. Nobody opens the door for 24 hours. That's what happens in a steel-jaw trap. Less than half the states have laws requiring trappers to even check traps every 24 hours. No one has cared much. It's only an animal.

Every winter millions of fox, lynx, raccoons, minks, otters, muskrats, beavers, badgers, bobcats, skunks, and other animals suffer in these primitive traps. Why? Because humans think fur coats are "glamorous and chic." There is nothing glamorous about being clamped in a trap for hours or even days, exposed to the weather, without food or water, in pain and fear, waiting for the trapper and death. Some even chew or wring off their toes or paws to escape. But then, they're only animals.

This trap hasn't changed much since the days early fur traders and mountain men used it to nearly wipe out the beaver in this country. That was well over 100 years ago. Today trapping is a sport... a hobby... a recreation. Few people trap for survival. The reasons have changed but the trap has not. The pain and suffering it has inflicted on wild animals over the years is impossible to comprehend. Still, little has been done about more humane traps. Again, the victims are only animals. It is time to change, time to stop making excuses for this needless suffering. It is time to outlaw the steel-jaw trap.

It is the only decent thing to do—for the animals. Please help.

Why L.B. money situation is critical

Increased facilities and salaries have driven up library costs, he noted.

Community development, formerly a small section of the Administrative Management Department, has experienced probably the greatest increase.

Verrue said that several programs, brought on by a combination of new federal regulations and increasing community demands for services, have begun over the past 10 years.

Community relations didn't exist then, and neither did the three neighborhood facilities centers, he said.

"The purpose of the community-relations department is to attempt to bring the community closer to city hall and to serve as a liaison with various local organizations," Verrue said.

From a small department of two or three, community development has grown to 55 people. Two large federally supported housing programs, leased housing and housing assistance, have added 17 positions alone, he noted.

The department also services the three redevelopment projects now under way, Verrue said.

The city manager's office actually has added only three people to the original staff of 13, Verrue explained, to take care of the increasing transportation needs of the public.

The reason for the big jump was that three departments, personnel, affirmative action and manpower affairs, have been shifted to the manager's office.

The expenses of the three departments have been added to the manager's budget.

"Everyone wants us to cut expenses, until we start to cut their pet program," Mayor Thomas

Clark told the audience at a transfer-tax hearing. "No one wants to tell us where to cut."

Secret Witness

Selected cases, rewards

The Independent, Press-Telegram's Secret Witness program has resulted in the arrest of 57 criminal suspects and fugitives from justice since the program was inaugurated on June 10, 1972, with rewards totaling $38,500 paid or committed on conviction of suspects waiting trial.

Additional reward money available for informants is specified in the caselist below, one of the selected and varying summaries of 10 Secret Witness cases printed in the Independent and Press-Telegram each Sunday and Thursday.

Cases are dropped from the summaries from time to time, but rewards will remain in effect for these until such cases have been closed by police or until notification in print that reward offers have been withdrawn.

Rewards also will be paid for information leading to the arrest and conviction of suspects in any other major criminal cases, whether covered in these summaries or not, and for the apprehension of fugitives from justice. These rewards will vary in amount depending on the seriousness of the offense.

To ensure eligibility for Secret Witness rewards, informants are required to channel all information directly through Secret Witness — that is, to notify Secret Witness first — either by calling the special Secret Witness telephone number or by writing in care of the Secret Witness post office box.

Today's summaries follow:

— A $2,000 reward is offered for information leading to the arrest and murder conviction of the killer of 42-year-old Donna Rae Goodell, found beaten to death in her home at 12230 Briarwood St. in Stanton on April 21, 1975.

— Rewards totaling $2,500 — including $2,000 guaranteed by Secret Witness and $500 pledged by Knights of Columbus Council 3449 — will be paid for information leading to the arrest and murder conviction of the slayer of Steven Robert Snedeker, 18-year-old clerk shot to death during a robbery at the H & O Liquor Store, 6069 Cherry Ave., on the night of Jan. 27, 1975.

— A $2,000 reward is offered for information leading to the arrest and murder conviction of the slayers of Jose Ballester, 18, of Wilmington, stabbed to death by a group of young men as he was walking to his nearby home from a bus stop on L Street near Lakme Avenue at 10:45 p.m. on March 17, 1975.

— A $2,000 reward is offered for information leading to the arrest and murder conviction of the slayers of George W. Harrison, 50-year-old chef at Peppy's Steak House in San Pedro, found stabbed to death in his home at 261712 S. Pacific Ave. in San Pedro at about 7 p.m. on Aug. 22, 1975.

LIFE/STYLE—L/S-1

Historic house redone

By PATRICIA de LUNA
Staff Writer

General Phineas Banning was never a passive man. Even now, 90 years after his death, he still seems to inspire people to get things done. Banning, although he never made the school history books, is considered father of Los Angeles Harbor, a pioneer of Southern California.

"Banning is a great character who has been lost in history," says Oliver Vickery, an elderly man who has spent much of the last ten years researching Banning history. Banning was a big man, he says, known for his wit and hospitality.

Banning first arrived in California in 1851 from Delaware. He was 20-years-old and the kind of man to set his jaw to an idea and refuse to take no for an answer. He accomplished many things.

His most visible achievement perhaps was his three-story Greek revival home, built in 1864, which was turned over to the state in 1927 and has since been named an historical landmark.

More recently, Banning house has come under the care and attention of Dr. Robert Haas, head of extension arts at UCLA, and a team of interior designers and students, volunteer committees, and a new director, Beverly Bubar — all of whom are working on its restoration.

The stately 30-room house sits on M Street, Wilmington, surrounded by 20 acres of Eucalyptus trees in the middle of Banning Park. The park has long been popular with neighborhood residents for family picnics, tennis matches, and wisteria festivals, but until the restoration work began on the house there hadn't been that much to see on the tours. Much of the building had been closed to the public.

When restoration is completed the house will chronicle Banning, his achievements, the history and the culture of that period. Haas, an authority on Victorian houses, praises the high quality of the Banning structure compared to the few other existing California homes of the Civil War era and predicts that as a tourist attraction, Banning house could become as popular as Mt. Vernon.

"THIS HOUSE MARKS the beginning of the American era in the West," says Ms. Bubar. Many historical houses have become museums in the East, she says. Not so in the West. "Adobes have been restored but little that architecturally represents the American beginning."

"This house is similar to an upper New York State house of 1840. It is architecturally representative of the late Federal or Greek revival period," Banning house, says Haas, is probably the type of home Banning would have had in Delaware.

"There are no photographs of the interior so we don't know exactly how it was," says Ms. Bubar. But a committee of research designers and UCLA students have been delving into the past for any and all information on such things as the popular colors of the period and Banning's style of entertaining. "They're taking a look at how the family lived and how the West was. What sold in the stores and what was printed in the newspapers," says Haas.

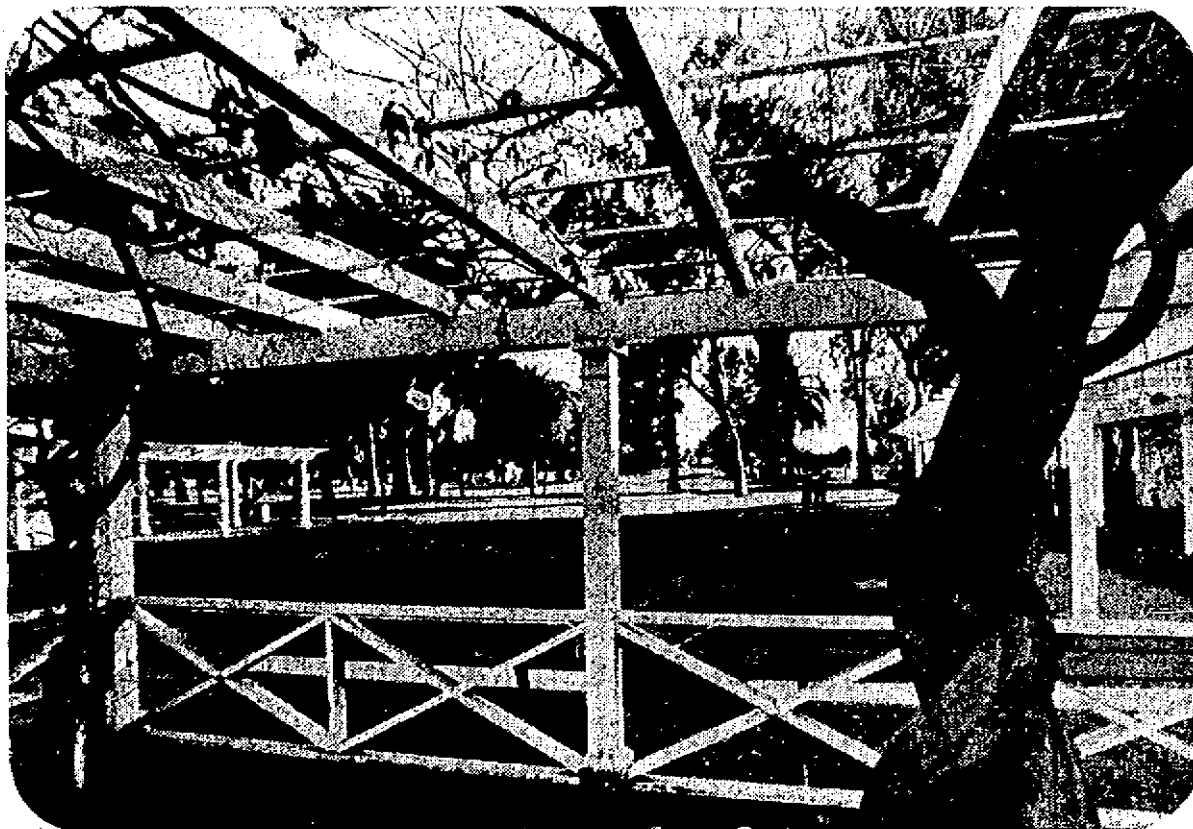

"We're more interested in representing the peri-

Glad you asked that!

SIR Laurence Olivier — not from acting family.

Q: As part of his misspent youth, didn't superstar Steve McQueen serve a prison term? — Flo Variday, Indianapolis.

A: Not prison. But Steve did spend some time in Boys' Republic — a California school for troublemakers.

Q: How old is Laurence Olivier? And wasn't his father an actor too? And what's he going to do after filming "The Marathon Man" in New York? — Jill Williams, Queens, N.Y.

A: Sir Laurence signed a year's contract with Granada TV. And will be spending the winter as head of contemporary drama with that network. He'll also direct and, if the spirit moves him, appear in several productions. Born in England on May 22, 1907, the veteran was the youngest son of a minister, not an actor.

Q: Is it true that the U.S. is hiring Indian medicine men to help provide care to Indians? — L. Jackson, Portland, Ore.

A: So far, that's only a suggestion proposed by Herbert Fowler, M.D., director of the University of Oregon mental health project. A psychiatrist, Fowler believes "a medicine man can help bridge the gap between this world and the Indian world."

Q: I've heard that James Caan's co-star in "The Killer Elite" is a Vietnamese beauty. Is that true? — Franklin Spencer, Orlando, Fla.

A: Yes. Tiana is a Saigon-born Vietnamese actress who conceals quite a belt — a brown belt in karate. She studied the martial arts under Bruce Lee. He introduced her to writer-producer Stirling Silliphant — now her husband.

Q: Is panelist Peggy Cass married? And was she related to the late Mama Cass? Also, what is her age? — Mrs. E.S. Wiseman, Seattle, Wash.

A: To tell the truth, Mary Margaret Cass will hit 51 this May 21. She was no kin to Mama Cass — whose real name was Cass Elliot. Peggy was married and divorced from Carl Fisher and has no children.

Q: She must be kidding, but my girl says that Flip Wilson, when he suns himself, uses suntan lotion. Is this true? — M.P.O.R., Jersey City.

A: Why not? He uses it for the same reason everyone else does — to prevent a burn. "I've been using the stuff," Wilson flips, "ever since I got a painful sunburn in the Bahamas seven or eight years ago." He even did a TV commercial for one of the popular brands.

Q: Why the big mystery about the identity of Tom Jones's secretary? Is she a secret romance or something? — Sonja Risman, Cincinnati.

A: No. "she's" a he — Tom's son, Mark. The 17-year-old Jones boy is making his mark helping to handle his father's fan mail as well as some secretarial chores. Recently a gushing girl broke through the tight security in Caesar's Palace where Jones was appearing and screamed: "I want Tom Jones's baby — I want his baby!" Mark comforted her with this squealer: "You've got him. I am his baby!"

Q: We thoroughly enjoyed those two new TV shows, "Medical Story" and "Doctors' Hospital." Since they were critical of the medical profession I supposed that the AMA used pressure to have them cancelled. Anything to this? — Dina Kennedy, Milwaukee.

A: Wrong diagnosis. Unhappily for both series, not enough viewers felt the way you did. Accordingly the shows expired from low-pressure ratings — not high pressure from the AMA.

Q: Actor Donald Sutherland used to be a real busy political activist. What are his thoughts about politics in this country today? — Gloomy? — Harold Knight, Pittsburgh.

A: No — groovy. "In the U.S." Don's observed, "you get the very worst and the very best of politics . . . I believe strongly that the most exciting new political moves and the biggest changes for the better will eventually come out of America."

Q: Somebody must be pulling my leg — swearing that there are two virgins on the Miami Dolphins. Check, please. — Betsy Doniker, Coconut Grove, Fla.

A: You heard right! They're brothers. — Herbert and Charles Virgin, the Dolphins' team of team doctors.

TV PANELIST Peggy Cass — different from late Mama Cass.

COMEDIAN Flip Wilson — seeks slow burn from sun.

ACTOR Donald Sutherland — former political activist believes in U.S. system.

SINGER Tom Jones — his baby has grown up.

ACTOR Steve McQueen — setting record straight.

Shy as herself, she's confident in any other role

(EDITOR'S NOTE: While Rex Reed is traveling home from the Iranian Film Festival, we are pleased to provide you with a column on Loretta Jane Swit (star of M*A*S*H and currently, "Same Time Next Year") by Bernard Gavzer. Rex Reed will resume his column next week.

Bernard Gavzer is a prizewinning special unit producer with NBC-TV's NewsCenter Four show and functions as the station's key investigative reporter.)

By BERNARD GAVZER

Once upon a time, there was this really ugly kid — not just ugly, but uhgggily — all blonde hair and pug nose and lantern jaw and braces bracketed by fat lips who was born in Passaic, N.J., no less, and whose granny would touch her on the head and say, "Duzo rozni!"

Which, as any Polish person would know, means: "Grow tall!"

And when she did, she was 5 feet 6 inches and her name was Loretta Jane Swit, but she was no longer an ugly duckling.

Instead, she was sexy enough and blonde enough and oomphy-dumb enough to be the guleful, predatory Major Margaret "Hot Lips" Houlihan of M*A*S*H. Which she still is.

She has also stepped admirably into the role of Doris, in the two-character Broadway comedy hit, "Same Time Next Year." Prospects are that she'll remain in the show until the call comes to do 1978-79 season segments of M*A*S*H.

The memory of her grandmother's benediction came like a flashback as she spoke recently of what had placed her on the headlong path to the theater.

"Everytime she saw me, my grandmother on my mother's side would touch me and say, 'Duzo rozni.' I know that it literally means, 'Grow tall.' But it means much more. It means 'sprout'; 'fly.' I took it for granted," she said.

PERHAPS THE moment of realization, or fulfillment, came when she packed her bags and said, goodbye Passaic, hello New York, which was shortly after graduation from Pope Pius High and sometime before taking drama courses with Gene Frankel and her first chance on stage as understudy for the key role in "Any Wednesday."

And when interviewers ask her what was her first break, her standard reply is: "Leaving Passaic."

But it's not as though Loretta has any umbrage for the town or its folks. "My family just didn't understand me," she said. "There's nothing that would have made them so happy as for me to get married, have a flock of kids and live a block away. That would still make them happy."

There appears little prospect of Ms. Swit becoming Mrs. anything, she says, because right now there isn't anybody who comes within two light years of being the right Mr.

"I don't want to talk about that," she said, "that" being any part of her romance, past or present.

Besides sex, she doesn't like to talk about politics or a long litany of insecurities she possesses. Although on stage or in TV she seems strongly in command, she confesses to a vulnerability that is almost frightening.

"I guess I tend to hide," she said.

INDEED, MEETING the press, she said, is always an ordeal. "It's a great struggle for me to assume that someone is really interested in me personally. I worry that I will say things that I know aren't clever or witty or interesting."

"Maybe that comes out of my family life. I come out of parents who told me that anytime you begin a sentence with 'I,' you are boring," she said.

Her family came to see her in the role created by award-winning Ellen Burstyn, and later, backstage, her mother complimented her, saying, "It's nice. You make people laugh."

LORETTA SWIT, "Hot Lips" in M*A*S*H series, and Ted Bessell star in Broadway production "Same Time, Next Year."

AP Wirephoto

"Now I think I have a great sense of humor," she said. As she did, that tone of self doubt and instability vanished. Whenever she talks about acting or her passionate affair with the theater, she suddenly lands on very firm ground.

"People I work with tell me that. But they don't have to. I know I do because I like to laugh and I do laugh," she said. And as she talked it became clear that her comedic sense ranges from an appreciation of bad oneline gags to a subtle — and very cerebral — wit.

Some of that emerged as she talked of the value of having been "funny-looking," as she put it, or of not being sensationally beautiful, in the manner of, say, Catherine Deneuve. Like most aspiring actors and actresses, Loretta assumed that one requirement for success was possessing looks that could set folks off ahhing and oohing.

"I grew up wanting very much to be beautiful," she said. "But I discovered that the meaty roles go to the unclassical looking people. If I'd looked like Catherine Deneuve, I couldn't ever have done Gooch."

Gooch was the Agnes Gooch of "Mame," a juicy, sought-after role that spelled instant attention, and Loretta played it in the national company of the play.

HER LATEST COUP, landing the role of Doris in the Broadway hit "Same Time Next Year," is an exquisite one for any comedic talent. Unlike the broad comedy inherent in playing Gooch, or the slightly slapstick zaniness of "Hot Lips" Houlihan, Doris' charm and power lies in the heart of the play, in the script.

In the play, she and her lover, George (played by Ted Bessell), are on stage throughout the play. No other actors appear. The story is that of two rather middle class, average, essentially decent human beings, who happen to find themselves entangled in a romantic episode while away from their respective spouses. They find something different in one another, but the magnetism of it is not strong enough to pull them together and pull apart their marriages.

It is strong enough for them to meet again the following year, while he ostensibly is attending to income tax work for an old-time buddy and she ostensibly is attending a retreat. And they meet the next year and the next and the next. And never for more than a brief, few days together.

Through it all, they age. And so the audience sees a kaleidoscope of changing fashion in dress and furnishing and manner in the 24 years through the decades of the 1950s, 1960s and into the 1970s. There are births, deaths, kids off to school, kids and the tooth fairy, and through it all there runs the recognizable thread of real people having lived through a real period.

And in the hands of Loretta Swit and Ted Bessell there is much pleasure and laughter in those years. It is a thoroughly delightful comedy.

"Doing those roles (Gooch, "Hot Lips" Houlihan, Doris), made me understand that classical beauty is a handicap," she said. "I am still the same me I was as a child; the same too-much hair and pug-nose and jaw and what you call 'generous' lips. But that's what is me."

Loretta may be no classical beauty, but she IS a person of appetizing demeanor, agreeable and pleasant, warm and friendly and very nice to behold.

She made a "Hot Lips" Houlihan kind of smile as though revealing a secret: Loretta Jane Swit is the best Polish joke around.

"The first thing you learn about your job is how important it is. How it fits in. And how many other people will depend on what you know. The Army's serious about your job—and it makes you serious too."

Neil Cheney is a Wheeled Vehicle Mechanic at Fort Lewis, Washington.

"I wanted to work on diesels. Back home, there aren't many places where you can do that. And the way I would've learned—hanging around a good mechanic, picking it up—that's okay, but not as fast as I'm learning now. The Army starts you off with school. You learn the fundamentals. My instructors were good, always coming right to the point about how something works. As for on the job experience, one look at a motor pool will tell you the Army has enough of that for everybody."

If you enlist in the Army, and if you qualify, you'll have over 200 job training courses to choose from. You'll get first rate instruction, and practical experience. You'll also get good pay, 30 days paid vacation each year, and opportunities to travel, and to continue your education.

The instant it happened

Bill Warneke was late, but that's what you get for being a nice guy.

Warneke had been assigned to cover the departure of New York's Mayor William J. Gaynor from Hoboken to Europe, August 9, 1910. Pretty routine stuff for Joseph Pulitzer's New York World which liked to stress the improbable.

Just as Warneke was leaving, a colleague came in with a problem. The city was replacing its fire horses with motor-driven fire engines and the World city desk wanted a shot of a horse having a last laugh. But how do you get a horse to laugh?

Warneke said he would try something on his way to Hoboken. He stopped off at a fire house and tried all the sure fire things that make horses laugh. None worked. Then an idea: he fed the animal some caramel candy. Trying to get the goo off his teeth, the horse wriggled his lips and Warneke clicked. After all, no one had to HEAR the laugh...

So, by the time Warneke boards the SS Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse, all the other photographers have come and gone. The Mayor is talking to several newsmen so Warneke takes a picture, then changes holders for just one more, your Honor.

At that moment, a man named J.J. Gallagher walks up, pulls a pistol and jerks the trigger six inches from Gaynor's head. The gun misfires. The man fires twice more, hitting the Mayor both times. He staggers as aides rush up. The would-be assassin is overpowered by 300-pound "Big Bill" Edwards, the Street Cleaning Commissioner. Gaynor, who will survive, is carried off on a stretcher and Warneke has a classic of photo journalism, proving again that it can be better late than never. And who ever heard of a laughing horse, anyway?

ADVICE TO THE TAXLORN

Future gains uncertain

Dear Mr. Smith: I own some preferred stock. The dividend is not taxed but deducted from the cost of the stock. I figure that in ten years the cost of the stock will approximate "0". Thereafter, the dividends are taxed as capital gains. Is this a sound idea for reducing inheritance tax if there is no need for the cash? — S.R.

The dividends are not taxed because the company is not earning taxable income. Circumstances could change so that the dividends, if continued to be paid, may become taxable. Furthermore, due to frequent changes in the tax laws there is no certainty that your dividends will continue to be non-taxable when received. In the meantime, you are obviously paying less income tax.

However, under the present tax law, except for the effect upon market value, there is no reduction in federal estate tax (and, I believe, all state inheritance taxes), since all assets are valued at death at their market value, not at income tax basis.

Dear Mr. Smith: I was involved in a non-injury car accident where my car had considerable damage. It took over three months to get the car repaired. During this period, I paid $500 for a rental car. May I claim the rental car fee as part of a casualty loss? Also, the insurance company refused to pay part of the mechanical damage. — M.A.

If you use your car for business, deduct all the expenses you mention in the same way that you deduct your other car expenses.

If you do not use the car 100 per cent for business, enter the personal portion as an itemized deduction and deduct the amount of the loss over the $100 deductible.

Only the amount not reimbursed by your insurance company may be deducted. If anyone at IRS questions the $500 paid out for renting a replacement car, ask the agent: "Why not?" — because temporary living expenses incurred when a family's residence burned down have been allowed.

Dear Mr. Smith: I am going to receive $6,138.36 for my I.D.A. installment certificate, at maturity. I would like to know if I would have to pay IRS when I get same, since the face amount is $5,000. — S.H.

To avoid error, wait for Form 1099, or other instructions. If not received by January 31, 1976, write to the company and request it.

Dear Mr. Smith: My wife passed away Aug. 6, 1975. During our 40 years of marriage, we acquired valuable real estate, jointly owned. We had a will that upon my death all properties would be my wife's and upon her death all properties became mine. Could you please inform me if the survivor is liable for estate or inheritance taxes? — E.D.S.

Yes, however, there will be no federal estate tax if the combined value of all your assets is $120,000 or less. As to state inheritance tax, your state allows a $30,000 exemption on the property you inherited from your deceased wife.

I believe you will benefit if you seek out a competent professional to handle these matters.

Dear Mr. Smith: I am 73. I am not working but I get a pension that must be reported as income. I have interest on savings and certificates. Do I have to file an income tax report for 1975? — M.M.L. and W.R.R.

A single individual over 65 need not file a federal return for 1975 unless gross taxable income is at least $3,100. In the case of a married couple, both over 65, the amount would be $4,900 for 1975.

THE FORMULA

Cost warms your heart

If you mix a batch of this formula, you'll need very little kindling, if any, to get your fire started. And it's especially great when logs are damp.

Most lumber dealers cut lumber to their customer's specification which results in the accumulation of a goodly amount of sawdust. This waste material usually can be had for the asking, which certainly makes the price right.

The next time you have the oil changed in your car, save the used DRAIN OIL. Place about five pounds of the SAWDUST in a metal container that has a tight fitting cover. Now pour about two quarts of the oil over the sawdust and mix thoroughly with a wooden paddle or board. Note: this is a combustible mixture and should always be stored in an air-tight container.

There has never been a how-to book so practical and helpful as THE FORMULA BOOK. Hundreds of easy recipes put savings and fun into the making of your own personal and home care items. Over 200 pages of recipes, diagrams and instructions on ingredients and equipment, in a large paperback format, for only $5.95. Send to THE FORMULA BOOK, Independent Press Telegram, P.O. Box 2218, Shawnee Mission, Kan., 66201.

HOSTAGES CONTINUED

These days many officers are arriving not only with guns and brawn, but with a new set of psychological concepts and techniques as well. They come ready to shoot if necessary, but more often now to plead, persuade, cajole and coax.

"It's a whole new solution," says Lt. Richard Klapp of San Francisco, "a progressive, different approach to law enforcement's real dilemma in this age. Because not a day goes by somewhere in the world when somebody isn't taking a hostage. So we're taking a positive step, through training and a new philosophy, by dealing with these people psychologically and negotiating instead of getting into bloodshed."

Proud of the record

So far there has been widespread interest among the nation's policemen and almost-perfect records of preserving lives. "We've never lost anybody," says Bolz, who has commanded New York's 70-member hostage unit since its inception in early 1972. "The suspects haven't gotten away either," he adds.

Detective Harvey Schlossberg, a clinical psychologist with the New York department, has been something of a pioneer in the new approach. "The basic, overriding philosophy is that human life is the most important variable," he says. "Everything else can be manipulated, dealt with, replaced."

New York and San Francisco have the most advanced hostage units. At least 150 police organizations in the country have expressed interest in the program and about 15 have put representatives through Schlossberg's training course. Among the latter are federal agencies such as the FBI, the Secret Service and the State Department. They also include the North Carolina State Bureau of Investigation, the Michigan State Police, Nassau and Suffolk counties in New York, plus Richmond, Va., and Hackensack, N.J. But a large number of major cities, such as Chicago and Los Angeles, have expressed little or no concern with it.

"It's not unanimously accepted in the profession," says Lieutenant Klapp in San Francisco. "There are still a lot of people who just don't believe in it. The philosophy challenges some basic, traditional police precepts such as, 'We don't sit and let anybody dictate our circumstances,' because it does involve sitting and waiting—two weeks, if need be—to preserve the safety of the hostages. That's difficult for 'men of action' who are accustomed to taking charge of a situation and resolving it. So it's an alien precept. The fact that it's worked every time doesn't seem to influence the critics."

New York's squad is the only formal one, with eight lieutenants, five sergeants and 62 detectives under Chief Louis Cottell who are trained as negotiators. All are carefully screened volunteers, called away from regular duty only when needed. The unit includes 12 blacks, 12 Hispanics, two women and experts in bombs, firearms and even karate. Members range in age from 26 to 55 and speak at least a dozen foreign languages.

San Francisco has 10 trained negotiators. Most are in the Patrol Division, not actually assigned to the hostage unit but available in a crisis if they happen to be on duty.

"To be very frank," says Klapp, "I've had considerable difficulty over my role in this, because of opposition here in administrative circles. Detective Schlossberg came out in April, 1974, and held a basic course for top officials, but only a little group of us bought it."

Does it amount to "coddling" of gunmen, as some opponents contend? Schlossberg answers by citing the Middle East, where "the surrender-or-be-killed tactic hasn't discouraged anybody yet."

Response to critics

Schlossberg also tells critics to imagine that they themselves, or their loved ones, are the hostages. "At that moment," he says, "you wouldn't want the police to say, 'Now we're going to teach all criminals a lesson.' I think I'd want to come out alive. That would be more important to me than whether we're coddling criminals. That aspect can be dealt with later."

The new movement began after two incidents in 1972. That summer, a bizarre holdup siege at a Brooklyn bank involved eight hostages and lasted 15 hours. The ordeal, which became the basis for the current movie Dog Day Afternoon, resulted in an FBI agent killing one of the bandits at Kennedy Airport. A few weeks later, in September, came the Munich tragedy, in which Israeli Olympic athletes were first held and then killed by Arab terrorists.

As a result, Chief Simon Eisdorfer of New York City suggested formation of a program to deal with similar situations. Guidelines were drawn and some 500 ranking officers began one-day seminars and training courses, complete with role-playing skits.

"It gave everybody an opportunity to think in a new way," Lieutenant Bolz recalls, "and we started realizing the ramifications of going one way or the other."

Sessions went on for three months, ending in January of 1973, just in time for a crucial test. "Almost as if it were a final exam," Bolz says, four Muslims walked into a sporting-goods store and held a dozen persons captive for 47 hours. One officer was killed, two were wounded and a Muslim was shot, but all hostages came out safely.

Nobody injured

New York then began screening and training its volunteer detectives. So far three classes of "negotiators" have been graduated and their training continues. They made 22 "runs" in 1974 and 21 this year, with more than a dozen cases lasting longer than two hours. Each time the hostages, policemen, bystanders and suspects have been unharmed.

"It's always a team effort," says Bolz. Aside from police sharpshooters and emergency-service personnel, there are "backup" negotiators and intelligence-gatherers who continually feed in new information about the suspect. During the bank siege in October, for example, the cops took a photograph of "Cat" and enabled Bolz to call him by name before he identified himself.

In that case, Bolz spoke to the gunman almost nonstop for the first seven hours, but by telephone only. "I tried to keep everything on a positive basis," he recalls. "Most people involved could be either suicidal or homicidal, so you keep it at the problem-solving level. There has to be a way out for him. You don't block all his avenues."

For the final 45 minutes, Bolz was forced to crouch near the door and use his bullhorn, but the young man had become "very, very down" in mood. Fortunately "Cat" requested some beer, which Bolz sent into the bank, and before long he became drowsy and nearly fell asleep. Two of the hostages lunged for the weapons while emergency-service cops ran inside and grabbed him.

"That one happened to be on center stage," Bolz says, "but lots of jobs we get are in hallways and tenements and they're just as dramatic and important. We had one in the Bronx where a guy held five kids up there. One of them was a deaf mute. We went all night, until 6 a.m., until he finally gave up. Each case is heart-tugging and a tremendous strain on the negotiator, both physically and emotionally."

Hard work

Lieutenant Klapp can attest to that experience all too well. He has negotiated two of San Francisco's three hostage situations since the unit was formed in the spring of 1974. In one case, a demented father held his 6-year-old child hostage inside his home for more than three hours. Klapp spoke with him face-to-face while the man brandished a cocked automatic weapon.

"He finally surrendered," Klapp says, "but I walked out of that one saying, 'Gee, do I really want to be in this?' It's usually a desperate thing. It's as critical as anything we encounter in law enforcement. You're really talking about life and death at every moment. By the same token, it's a tool that we've never had before."

In another San Francisco case, Klapp negotiated by telephone with a gunman who held seven hostages in a supermarket from 6:30 a.m. until 2 p.m. That one and a third, handled by another trained negotiator, also ended with success.

Generally there are three types of suspect. One is the professional criminal, usually a holdup man seeking a means of escape. "You can rationalize easier with him," says Bolz. "The objective is to slow it down, utilize the time, and gain the advantage."

Time is a factor

Most dangerous, Bolz points out, is the political terrorist who is less amenable to persuasion. "He may be a kamikaze-type, so you need to give him time to make a mistake. A lot of them are just looking for a stage, so that time can work in our favor."

But perhaps most complex are suspects with only psychological problems. "We deal with their anxiety level and bring it down to more manageable proportions," Bolz says.

"Whenever one of these things happens," says Klapp, "some other poor soul may be motivated to try it. Invariably they are failures in life, one way or another, and suddenly it's a step to notoriety. So a core of men here is staying on top of things, increasing our knowledge. Because we haven't seen the last of it."

The traditional way to combat a hostage-taker is with tear gas and guns. In this Tahoe, Cal., case last fall, a hostage died and a detective was wounded.

IN-SIGHTS

Many monitor police radio calls

What's the most popular radio station in town?

I asked that of a number of my friends recently, and none of them guessed the right answer. Yet in cities large and small, the answer can be predicted with consistency.

Of course, most radio stations vie mightily to attract listeners, because their advertising income is greater with greater listenership. Not this station, however; it is not a commercial station. And you can't receive it on your regular radio.

Figure it out yet? No, it's not the new rage — the "CB," or citizens' band radio. While there has been a surge of interest and sales (and subsequent thefts) of CB radios, that's not the right answer. The correct answer: the police radio.

Whether you check the sales to private citizens of the "scanner" units which pick up all the police band transmissions, or whether you just talk to the police department, you'll find that the listenership is striking and growing by quantum jumps. Many stores can't keep a supply ments of many senior citizens, the radio is turned on in the morning and plays all day. The same is true at my neighborhood service station.

The chief noted that one year when they were having trouble with the police department budget appropriations, the city auditor happened to get a police band radio. After listening to the constant barrage of calls and the steady activity of the police, he was much more supportive of the budget proposals. He had no idea they were kept that active.

What's so intriguing about the police radio? For some people it is a way to keep in touch, but in touch in a special way. Many of the listening senior citizens report that they feel more secure and reassured by the constant police activity they hear. They like knowing the police are on the job and available to help them should anything come up.

The constant conversation of the "helping" police at work is also another way to cut through the isolation and loneliness so prevalent these days. In spite of the population explosion, people do feel more estranged from one another, especially in the large cities. (This points to an attraction of the citizens' band radio, where you can do more than just listen; you can talk to others and exchange messages.)

EQUALLY significant with the police radio may be the sense of being on the inside, hearing about all the things the police are attending to — accidents, criminal investigation, errands of mercy. It's like tuning in on a secret report of "important" events as they are happening, well before the regular radio stations get the news.

And it is always exciting to eavesdrop. That's what you are doing with the police radio. The messages are in no way intended for a separate listening audience. Of course, the police are aware that there are lots of people listening in, and that sometimes complicates their work. For the citizen, there is the titillation and intrigue of overhearing someone else's conversation, picking up potential "gossip." But you aren't listening to just anybody, you're listening to the police.

We all have feelings about the police. They are the authority figures who are charged with keeping us all behaving on the right side of the law.

SINCE MOST of us are sure that the police are always watching us to see if we make a misstep, it can be particularly satisfying to have the tables turned and eavesdrop on them without their knowledge. It's like tuning into your conscience, without it being able to get back at you. Perhaps you'll catch it in a mistake, and thus feel a bit vindicated about yourself.

MIMES Sophie Wibaux and Bert Houle in expressive moment from program to be given at Long Beach City College.

Mime: motion that says it all

Mimes Bert Houle and Sophie Wibaux will be artists-in-residence at Long Beach City College Tuesday through next Sunday giving three public performances and conducting lecture-demonstrations and workshops for dance and theater students.

The free-of-charge, open to the public performances will be presented in the LBCC Liberal Arts Campus Auditorium, Clark Avenue and Harvey Way, Friday and Saturday at 8 p.m. A special children's performance will be given in the auditorium next Sunday at 2 p.m.

Their Long Beach stay is made possible by a grant from the National Endowment for the Arts' dance touring program and the LBCC office of community services.

Houle and Wibaux met in the Paris studio of Etienne Decroux, whose former students include Marcel Marceau. The two became a mime team and currently are resident artists with the Loretto-Hilton Theater, St. Louis.

THEY WILL DO three types of mime: comic, or traditional; symbolic, which is more dramatic and is intended to portray inner, invisible forces in man; and illusory mime, where the performer uses the art to create illusion of objects or movement.

"They do some very unusual types of mime in addition to pantomime, which is the slapstick," said Lani Reynolds who teaches mime to the college's advanced theater students.

Houle and Wibaux do some pantomime which appears to border on dance. Both mime and dance use movement, but mime uses movement to create an illusion; dance is more concerned with movement itself. Mime is a more dramatic form — dance is very symbolic, it's not specific, it's more technique. In mime, what you're doing is re-creating things found in normal life. You play more character in mime."

THE COLLEGE has scheduled the lecture-demonstrations and workshops so that theater classes can participate. Although both are open to the public, workshops are limited to 30 persons and all openings already have been filled. In the lecture-demonstrations, Houle will explain a facet of mime, then demonstrate it. These, to which the public is invited, will take place Tuesday at 4 p.m. in the auditorium on the Liberal Arts Campus; Wednesday at noon in the gymnasium on the Pacific Coast Campus, 1305 E. Pacific Coast Highway; and Friday at 11 a.m. in the Liberal Arts Campus Auditorium.

Rodin show now at Getty

By ELISE EMERY
Arts Editor

"Rodin's Rodin," on loan from the Maryhill Museum of Fine Arts in Washington, may be seen at the J. Paul Getty Museum through Jan. 28. The special collection of bronzes, plasters and watercolors by French sculptor Auguste Rodin is uniquely "Rodin's Rodin" because most of the pieces on display were gifts from Rodin to his friends.

"Unlike art purchased by collectors, the items in this exhibit reflect Rodin's personal taste and, perhaps, can give us a glimpse into his genius," said Dr. Jiri Frel, the museum's curator of antiquities.

He added that the exhibit is particularly interesting when seen in conjunction with the Getty Collection of classical Greek sculpture because Rodin used the basic principles of sculpture established by the Greeks.

Often called the father of modern sculpture, Rodin sometimes would separate hands, feet, arms and even heads from finished figures and then would transfer the pieces to other torsos, or would isolate the fragments to give them meaning of their own.

There is no charge for admission, but advance reservations are recommended for the museum, 17995 Pacific Coast Highway in Malibu. It is open from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Tuesdays through Saturdays.

WAUGH SMITH was first winner: Vesta Carlton, second; and Dorothy Black, third, in Long Beach Art Association's January Membership Show.

You may see the exhibit until Jan. 22 at the LBAA Gallery, 890 E. Ocean Blvd. Wilbur F. Broderick, instructor of art at Long Beach City College, made the selections. He also awarded honorable mentions to Loyce Carhart, Roger Frey, Charlotte Robertson, James Benedict, Mal Morehart and Barney Boies.

Gallery hours are noon to 4 p.m. Wednesdays through Sundays.

All artists are invited to submit their work for the Long Beach Art Association's Annual All-media Open Juried Show. More than $400 in prizes will be allotted to winners selected by Helen Wurdemann, art administrator and collector, director of the Los Angeles Association Galleries and art critic for the magazine, Art in America.

Entries will be received Monday, Jan. 26, from noon to 7 p.m. The show will run from Feb. 1 through 27.

Thursday concert by Avanti Players

Four talented young women who comprise the Avanti Players will perform the fourth chamber music program of the season which Long Beach Museum of Art presents. Featured are Mary Ann Ringgold, violinist; Linn Subotnick, violinist; Selene Hurford, cellist; and Joan Elardo, oboist.

The program will begin Thursday at 8 p.m. in Burnett Branch Library, 560 E. Hill St. There is no admission charge. The Players have chosen music by Beethoven, Mozart, Britten and Francaix.

Sidney Stafford directs this series, now in its 24th season.

MALCOLM LOWRY: Psalms and Songs. Edited by Margerie Lowry, New American Library, $5.95.

This is really not one book but five. It contains some of Lowry's early stories, a handful of reminiscences of Lowry by others, part of a doctoral thesis, "The Luminous Wheel: The Evolution of Malcolm Lowry's Style," by A. C. Nyland, some of Lowry's last stories, and his novella, "Lunar Causality," with an introductory note by Conrad Knickerbocker.

The book's editor, Lowry's second wife, a writer herself under her maiden name of Margerie Bonner, explains that the Psalms of the subtitle are the stories, while the Songs are the recollections.

I suppose I most enjoyed the latter. This may argue a weakness for literary gossip on my part, or it may derive from a fascination with Lowry's life as a study in transcendence. How, for one thing, given the drunkenness that blighted so much of his life, did he get anything at all written, let alone the painstakingly textured "Under the Volcano," itself an enigmatically redemptive inferno?

Neither the early stories nor the late, nor even the novella, although it is not a negligible effort, represent Lowry at his best — it's possible that only one book does — but the themes and methods with which he wrestled throughout his career are plainly in evidence, perhaps too plainly.

The mixing of voices, of signs and symbols, the restructuring of autobiographical incidents that gradually took on paradigmatic significance for the author — everything is here, but it is a bit like encountering a couple of extra Mona Lisas, one earlier, one later, one with a grin, one with a frown.

If you have read "Under the Volcano," I doubt there's any need to sell you on this volume; if you haven't, I'd suggest you read it first. "Under the Volcano," and because of it, Malcolm Lowry, are with us to stay. — Gerald Locklin, English Dept., California State University.

Charles F. Lummis: The Man and His West. By Turbese Lummis Fiske and Keith Lummis. University of Oklahoma Press, $17.50.

Charles Fletcher Lummis (1859-1926) walked, in 1885, from Cincinnati to Los Angeles, over 3,500 miles, and became the editor of the Daily Times, a position he held until stricken by paralysis in 1887. Born in Lynn, Mass., and graduated from Harvard, he had become editor of the Scioto Gazette, in Chillicothe, Ohio.

The disease sent him to the dry country of New Mexico, where his travels among the Pueblo Indians initiated what was to become an undying interest in the ancient and contemporary cultures of the Southwestern Indians. In 1892-1894 he participated in an ethnological expedition to Peru and Bolivia, and in 1894, in Los Angeles, he founded the magazine Land of Sunshine, which later became Out West.

It was Lummis who established Los Angeles' Southwest Museum. He was not a professional ethnologist or archaeologist, but his well-written, absorbing books about New Mexico and Arizona aroused nationwide interest in the peoples who had so captivated his own imagination. His books on the Southwest, among them "The Land of Poco Tiempo," "Mesa, Canon and Pueblo," "Pueblo Indian Folk Stories," "The Man Who Married the Moon," "Spanish Songs of Old California" (two volumes), were immensely popular.

He established the Sequoia League to aid the Indians and the Landmarks Club to restore the California missions. He did much to reveal the Southwest's culture to the world. He became blind, but despite that took part in a New Mexico "dig" sponsored by the Southwest Museum.

Two who knew him intimately have given us this splendid colorful biography of Lummis — his daughter, and his youngest son, Keith, who completed the book after her death. Included is a wealth of Lummis' own writings, and the volume is rich in photographs, many taken by Lummis. — NAT HONIG

Pablo Cruz and the American Dream: The Experiences of an Undocumented Immigrant from Mexico. Compiled by Eugene Nelson. Introduction by Julian Samora. Illustrations by Carlos Cortez. Peregrine Smith, $8.95.

An immigration officer who had arrested "wetbacks" once sadly told this reviewer: "I can't blame them; I'd do the same thing." One such illegal immigrant, Pablo Cruz, tells in this moving book, the most thorough first-person account of the Mexicans who furtively cross the border in their attempt to escape dire poverty and seek work in the United States.

Pablo, torn between loyalty to his country and the need to improve his lot, recounts his desperate wanderings north, sometimes on foot, sometimes by freight train, always protected by darkness. Smugglers of "wetbacks," crooked border officials and police loom large in his story, as do his stint in a California prison for illegal entry, his experiences in a California farm labor camp where the workers were kept as virtual slaves in a ceaseless alcoholic haze; his meeting with a sympathetic woman who becomes his wife; his decision to become a United States citizen, and the achievement of a relatively stable life by his family in a small town in central California.

MEDICINE AND YOU

Blockage of blood aids kidney tumors

KIDNEY TUMORS may succumb to blockage of blood supply to the tumor by injection of extremely tiny beads.

Los Angeles surgeons say the procedure calls for injection of ferrosilicone colloids. These are iron microspheres suspended in liquid silicone, and they are injected into the blood supply of a kidney tumor.

The microspheres are held in place with a portable external magnet until ben zinser

vulcanization (a reaction causing strengthening) takes place.

The technique can be used for any solid tumor or one in an organ with an independent blood supply, says its developer, Dr. Robert W. Rand, professor of neurosurgery at UCLA.

Blocking of the tumor tissue causes eventual tissue death, and this causes the patient some pain and perhaps low-grade fever and loss of appetite. But these can be controlled by medications. Dr. Rand has seen no serious toxic effects from the procedure.

Details about the procedure appear in the Journal of the American Medical Association and also in the Journal of Urology.

OBESITY is a major maternal risk factor and accounts for about one-fifth of maternal deaths, researchers report.

Three Minneapolis doctors say that most of the maternal deaths in their series were caused by pulmonary embolism — a clot that has traveled to the lung area.

Seven obese pregnant women died of lung clots, they report in their study of 24 maternal deaths. (All the women in the series weighed more than 175 pounds before pregnancy.)

Hemorrhage was the cause of death in six. In four the bleeding was due to a ruptured uterus (womb).

Giving anticoagulant drugs might be considered in those with a history of phlebitis (vein inflammation) and in the immediate period following delivery, the doctors say. That would reduce the risk of clot formation and dislodgement.

The report is in the Journal Obstetrics and Gynecology.

A COMBINATION of the drugs broxyquinoline and broxaldine may be effective in the treatment of leprosy, says Dr. C.S. Gangadhar Sharma of India.

When these two drugs were administered three times a day, 13 leprosy patients showed significant improvement, the doctor says.

Improvement was noticeable three to four months after treatment was begun, according to a report in the Lancet, a medical journal. A summary of the report appears in Skin & Allergy News, a newspaper for doctors.

USE OF THE DRUG Amantadine in pregnant women may be risky, a case report suggests.

The drug customarily is used to control Parkinson's disease (shaking palsy) and against one type of influenza.

Three doctors at the University of Colorado Medical Center, Denver, report they recently saw an infant with a heart defect. The baby's mother had taken Amantadine during the first three months of pregnancy — which encompasses the vulnerable period of formation of the heart.

The 29-year-old mother had been taking Amantadine for a movement disorder similar to Parkinson's.

The report is in the Journal Lancet.

A DRUG CALLED Hydergine can bring about improvement in no fewer than 18 symptom areas among elderly nursing home patients, according to a new report.

Dr. Arthur Thibault conducted a study involving 48 institutionalized patients in Victorville, Quebec, Canada.

Patients treated with Hydergine experienced symptomatic relief in such areas as restlessness, appearance, initiative, fatigability, sleep difficulties, dizziness, appetite, mobility, irritability, mood, memory, interest in activities, and degree of nursing time required.

Details of the study are reported in the journal Current Medical Research and Opinion.

MORE THAN 1,000 patients have received nuclear-powered heart pacemakers in the past five years.

Dr. William M. Chardack, associate professor of surgery at State University of New York, Buffalo, says that the high initial cost of the pacemaker — about $5,000 — makes it impractical for most patients.

For selected patients, the nearly indefinite life of the power supply should make use of these units economically attractive, says Dr. Chardack, a pioneer in the development of artificial pacemakers.

Details are in Modern Medicine, a periodical for physicians.

A HEADACHE, sometimes severe, often follows a spinal tap. And it is usually worse on arising in the morning.

Dr. Elliott Liff of San Francisco says this is probably because sleeping in a flexed position raises intracranial pressure. And this increases the likelihood of a spinal leak.

So, Dr. Liff tells his patients with post-spinal headache to sleep in a fully extended position, using pillows if necessary to keep from curling up during the night.

The report is in the journal Consultant.

Weighing value of insurance charts

Those insurance charts are beginning to get on my nerves. You know, the ones that list what you should weigh if you have a small, medium or large frame.

Lie about my weight on my driver's license, my passport, and my application for work. What makes them think I don't lie about my weight when I apply for insurance...if only to raise the average?

The truth is, I have never found anyone who could explain to me what constitutes a small, medium or large frame. Are we to believe that life stops after a large frame? Is there nothing else beyond large? Not even "I don't want to talk about it"?

When I check the charts, I figure I'd be a fool to admit to a small frame. They're only allowed 108-116 for my height, which is 5-2. (Face it, I weighed 102 at birth and I was premature. The medium frame gives me a 110-122 leeway. I always opt for the large frame which gives me a break: 121-138 pounds.

ONE OF THE biggest jokes is the calorie number, or the little blurb on the chart that asks the musical question, "How many calories do you need?"

To calculate my calorie needs, I had to figure out if I was moderately active (since I send my oven to be cleaned I answered yes.) That meant I needed 15 calories a day per pound to maintain my body weight.

Now the chart said, "Determine how much you want to weigh." That was easy. I always wanted to weigh 102 pounds/or hang a handbag on my hipbone/whichever came first.

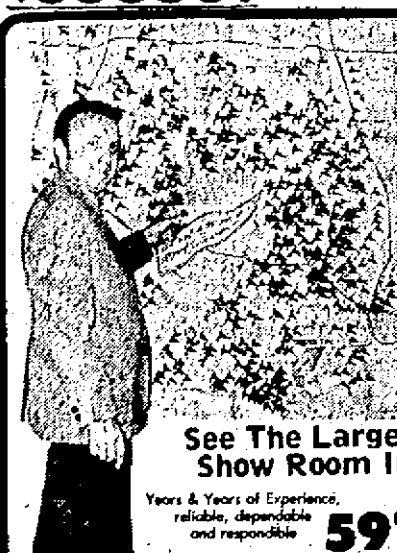

Now, multiply this by 15 which gives me 1,530. Then subtract 500, the number of calories I want my body to withdraw from my store of fat reserve.

ONE THOUSAND THIRTY CALORIES!

FLEA MARKET FINDS

'Bread' in old baskets

By DAN D'IMPERIO

Q. "Old baskets fascinate me, but aren't they becoming scarce?" — Faye, Phoenix, Ariz.

A. American basketmakers utilized various types of materials such as splint, straw, rattan, grass, pine needles, willow and vines. The splint types are most common. As a dating guide, the earlier types were held together by natural binding materials. Handwrought or square cut nails are other indications of an early example. Later factory made baskets usually had wire nails or metal ball handles. Finely crafted baskets disappear off flea market tabletops swiftly, particularly those attributed to American Indians, Shakers or the Pennsylvania Dutch. Value guide: Early Pennsylvania splint type, woven handle $80.

Q. "When was Vaseline glass popular?" — Mrs. R. L., Gainesville, Fla.

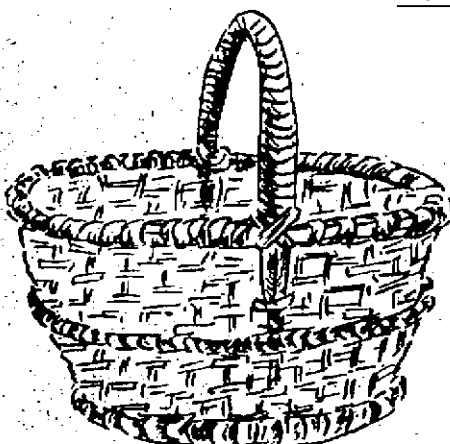

A. This greenish yellowish glass was the rage of the late 1800s. Because its color resembled that of petroleum jelly, it was dubbed Vaseline glass. However, some antiquers persist in referring to it as Canary glass. It was made by various American glasshouses, and some pieces originated in France. Ornamental and utilitarian articles won customer approval. Knowledgeable buyers rarely permit a piece of Vaseline glass to slip through their fingers. Value guide: Spooner, wildflower pattern, $30.

Q. "Do St. Louis World's Fair, 1904, items warrant collector attention?" — Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Springfield, Mo.

A. Souvenir hunters had a marvelous time acquiring small remembrances at this noteworthy fair. The trifles they purchased are now treasured pieces of Americana. St. Louis World's Fair value guide: Cup and saucer, Education Building, $16; paperweight, Palace of Transportation, $25; plate, Festival Hall and Cascade Center, $20; playing cards, Fairground views, $30; tumbler, ruby stained, $24.

Q. "Please discuss old pot lids." — Doris, Troy, N.Y.

A. Because the majority of colored pot lids originated at the F. & R. Pratt firm of Staffordshire, England, they are often referred to as "Pratt pot lids." However, many other major and minor potteries produced them in the 19th century. The Pratt factory won a medal for their display of box covers at the Exhibition of 1851. These small round, oval or oblong boxes with colorful lids were made as receptacles for pomade, fish paste, shrimp and other products. Many Pratt pot lids bear the signature or initials of talented artist and engraver Jesse Austin. Collectors have discovered plenty of profits in old pot lids. Value guide: Village Wedding, $70.

EARLY PENNSYLVANIA SPLINT BASKET

CHEF OF THE WEEK

Has number of abilities

Whether his is the voice that you hear on the other end of the line when you've reached a wrong number, we're not sure. We ARE sure, however, that whether it was your mistake, or the faulty wires attached to your phone, today's chef of the week, Robert L. Getman, can fix it.

He's service manager for the General Telephone Company, Long Beach Division. He started with the company in 1948, as an instrument shopman.

Getman grew up under the protection of the Statue of Liberty on Staten Island, N.Y., where he was born. Following graduation from high school there, he entered the U.S. Army Signal Corps, where he served for 4 1/2 years during World War II. He was a master sergeant in the signal section of Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters.

One of the most important events in his war experience took place in Brisbane, Australia. It was there that he met June Petrie of Toogoolawah, mildred flenary

Queensland, Australia. She was working in the Defense Department in Brisbane. They have been married 31 years.

Following his discharge from the army, he and his bride moved to New York City where he worked briefly for a brokerage house. They couldn't forget Long Beach, however, so they decided to make this their permanent home, and the telephone company his place of business.

Getman and his wife have two married daughters: Kay and her husband live in Lakewood, while Melanie and her family live in Huntington Beach. There's also a little granddaughter, 3 1/2, named Melodie Michelle. The family is living in anticipation of the month of February, when another grandchild will make its debut.

GETMAN IS A MEMBER of the Downtown Lions Club which he joined in May of '73, and has two years' perfect attendance.

His hobbies include the whole family, their greatest interests are camping, fishing and traveling. At the present time they have a mobile home in Palm Springs and spend most weekends there. They love to swim, bicycle, and our chef has been trying to upgrade his game of golf for the past two years. Yes, he's optimistic about it!

June says he doesn't cook too much, and is relatively conservative around the kitchen. Well, after all, we'll bet their telephones are operating perfectly.

Today, his recipe is for Beef Olives.

BEEF OLIVES

Cut (1) round steak in strips approximately 6 inches long and 2 inches wide — and bacon in similar size strips. Place bacon on each piece of round steak — roll and secure with toothpicks. Dip in flour and brown each "Olive" in oil to cover bottom of saucepan, add medium size onion, chopped, salt and pepper to season. When all "olives" are browned, add water to cover and simmer until tender. (Serve with mashed potatoes and a green vegetable). (Serves 4)

Aces on bridge

ira corn

Dear Mr. Corn:

Recently you answered a problem and suggested a raise to four hearts with this hand and after this bidding:

Opener	Opener Re-	Responder
4 K 8
9 7 2	INT	2 4
A 4 3 2	2 4	3 7
4 A Q 3	2 4

My question is what if responder had bid three spades instead of three hearts?

Sorry in Wassau, Wassau, Wis.

Answer: I would bid three no trump, but would have some apologies ready in case the opponents rattle off too many hearts. Some good tidings might happen over, three no trump.

Responder might bid four spades with a six card suit or he might bid a minor suit. If he passes, there's always the chance that hearts won't run, that partner has them, and if I'm lucky, they might not even be led!

Dear Mr. Corn:

Opener bid an every day one club and responder bid one diamond with:

4 Q 6 4 3	1 4 3
4 J 5 2
4 J 10 6
4 A J 3

What was the purpose of the one diamond response

on a three card suit?

Wondering Jo
Dallas

Answer: Responder had three reasonable choices: one spade, one no trump and one diamond. One spade would be the popular choice; one no trump in the minority.

One diamond is a non-committal bid and postpones a decision. It forces for one round, does not imply a good spade suit and leaves the door open after any rebid by opener.

There is little risk in misleading opener, but he would rarely insist on playing diamonds.

Dear Mr. Corn:

Who's responsible for announcing the score at the beginning of each deal? I've been told it's the dealer. Is that right?

Sleeping Beauty
Indianapolis

Answer: The laws assign equal responsibility to all players. A scorekeeper or dealer is under no obligation to keep his opponents awake.

Today's Housing Solution: The Compact House

by Carl Norcross

When the 50,000 members of the National Association of Home Builders get together in Dallas Jan. 18 for their annual convention, a major topic of discussion will be "The Affordable [or Compact] House."

Men who have been building smaller—and cheaper—houses will be telling their colleagues how to do it.

Compact houses are being built in several major metropolitan areas, and the idea is spreading. Even the federal Department of Housing and Urban Development has had architects working for more than a year designing compacts for its Basic Homes Program.

Home builders are following the lead of Detroit's automakers in turning out compacts. Compact houses, like compact cars, are cheaper to buy and operate. They are reversing the 25-year trend during which houses have grown steadily larger and more expensive until today the average family can't afford the average house.

Generally compacts are priced from the low $20,000's to around $30,000, but a few can be found in Florida and Arizona for as little as $17,000. Designed for families earning $12,000 to $14,000 a year, they open up housing to people who would otherwise rent apartments.

One-third smaller

While the average house of the past few years has about 1700 square feet of floor space, the compacts are one-third smaller—most ranging from 900 to 1200. But, like the one the Larry Piersons bought in Dallas for $21,600, many include a surprising number of amenities. The Pierson house has three bedrooms, two baths, an oversize garage, equipped kitchen, fireplace and air conditioning.

"We looked at more expensive houses," says Pierson, a Dallas fireman, "but couldn't see making such a huge down payment; we'd have nothing left over for extras. And the monthly payments here are within our budget. This is the most for the money we've seen."

Said Bob and Janet Simmons, both in their early 20's, who bought a similar house: "We'd been looking for over two years but couldn't afford what we saw. This is perfect."

After a down payment of $500, which includes closing costs, the buyers of compacts in Dallas pay $200 a month for mortgage, interest and taxes. "The price and terms were just right for us," said Ray King, who with his wife Shirley, both in their mid-20's, works at Medical City in North Dallas. "In the town where we lived before you could buy either a 25-year-old house or a custom-built one. We couldn't afford either."

The only way for most families to own a home today is to buy less home. Here, Dallas fireman Larry Pierson, his wife, Sandy, and their three children, shown on today's cover, have dinner; the kitchen, living and dining rooms are in a single area.

$200 a month

These low-priced houses did not come easily. "Our special task force worked a full year to get costs down," says Dave Fox, head of Fox & Jacobs, a 28-year-old building firm. "We started with the specific aim of designing for families who could afford monthly payments of only $200."

Compact houses fit in with the ecological mood of people today, especially young marrieds. Smaller houses save lumber, steel, aluminum and other materials. Because they are insulated and tightly built, they conserve natural fuels and electricity.

Such compacts also fit in with the nonsense attitude of women who want full value for every dollar they spend. "I'm not looking for frills," said a young woman shopping for houses in Maryland. "I want value first and amenities second." Couples touring model homes ask sharp questions about such things as heat loss, insulation rating and the efficiency of heat pumps.

Frank E. Mackle Jr., whose Deltona Corporation has built thousands of Florida houses, commented, "Our back-to-basics houses started as a temporary solution to the recession. Now it looks like this is what we're going to have to live with from here on in. It's just like people driving smaller cars and drinking beer instead of Scotch." His compacts range from $17,980 to $31,900, and it was his low prices that brought retired state policeman Frank Bierwieler and his family to Florida from Bath, N.Y.

Up-to-date plans

Compacts are also in tune with today's smaller families. More young wives are working—60 per cent or more in many cities, in contrast with 40 per cent a few years ago. They are postponing their first child and many are having one or two children rather than three or four. They can live comfortably in a two-bedroom house, which in fact may be larger in floor space than some $75,000 condominium apartments.

Extra space is a great luxury when you can afford it. But houses in recent years have had more space than average-income families can afford. It had gotten so that people wouldn't buy a house if it didn't have a family room, which is really a second living room. Who needs it? Not young couples struggling to furnish one living room and the rest of the house. Most new houses also had two dining areas: one in or next to the kitchen and a separate formal dining room. The compacts have one dining area, bedrooms are smaller, and additional money is saved by eliminating halls and extra bathrooms. The size of garages has been cut, or the garage eliminated. Many two-car garages of existing houses are used for storage and cars are parked in the driveway—demonstrating that garages in some climates are not as necessary as people thought.

Carmakers' lesson

Builders have learned another lesson from automakers: get your base price down by offering optional extras. Not every family needs or can afford a dishwasher, washer-dryer or a new refrigerator when they move in. Many can get along without air conditioning, a downstairs powder room or a fireplace.

Buyers of bi-level or split-level houses can save $2500 or more if they leave the lower floor unfinished. Rooms have unfinished walls and floors, no lighting fixtures, and bathrooms have no fixtures. Such rooms can be finished when needed.

Some builders are using fewer windows, which saves construction as well as heating and cooling costs. Almost all use more factory-built components, saving lumber and time on the job.

od and styles rather than a specific time and person," adds Ms. Bubar.

"We had thought," says Haas, "that Banning lived on an ordinary level. The house is big but we thought that Banning was not lavish. Family records in the Huntington Library, however, show that the family lived in a better style than we thought. Banning cut a wide swath, much like Stanford in San Francisco."

In the dining room of the white frame home sits the original Banning table, a large mahogany oval, around which Bannings dined for 60 years. Phineas Banning liked to entertain. He would invite the socially elite of the day to fiestas and galas to celebrate the Fourth of July and Washington's Birthday and use these occasions to indulge his penchant for flowery speeches.

BANNING STARTED his career in California only one year after its admission to the union. He opened a stagecoach line and by the end of one year, he had 500 mules, 40 wagons and 15 stages, says Vickery.

But to continue against his competitors he built the first railroad in Southern California and was instrumental in bringing the Southern Pacific Railroad to the area. He succeeded in making a fortune in transportation.

During his lifetime, which ended accidentally in 1885 during a business trip to San Francisco, Banning became an admiral of the port — he also had lobbied successfully for harbor development funds — became a general in the militia, and a senator. He had 11 children, two wives, fought slavery, and founded the town of Wilmington — named after his own hometown.

The story goes that he purchased 2,400 acres of land at low cost from the Dominguez estate and virtually gave it to anyone willing to help build a town.

Banning also made ingenious use of the materials at hand to get his house built. Few carpenters, except for those sailors skilled in woodworking, could be found in California in those days. So Banning devised a trade-off. He convinced the captains of various ships to lay over for several weeks to make repairs after their rough sea voyages. He would provide the tar to caulk the seams and cracks — bringing the tar down in large barrels by wagon from the La Brea pits — in return for the labor of the ships' carpenters.

The carpenters did a fine job. In fact, Vickery likes to contrast the sturdiness of Banning House with the less sturdy main building of Banning High School, built nearly 50 years later, which had to be demolished after it failed to meet earthquake standards.

BANNING HOUSE has its original pine floors, a spiral staircase in the back of the house to the lower level, rounded balusters reminiscent of similar posts on ships, and a cupola atop the third floor where it is assumed Banning retreated with telescope to watch the harbor.

The reception room, the only room completely restored at the moment, is dedicated to the Greek revival period of the 1840's. It has a wallpaper copied from an 1850 Boston design, a flooring with the Greek key painted around the edges, period draperies, and two chairs which were found in a back bedroom and which are considered fine examples of Greek revival furniture. Another larger chair, which has a telltale stripe down the back, is a product of "one of the great furniture makers," according to Haas. The stripe represents a major breakthrough in the making of laminated wood.

"People will come to visit the Banning house just to see this chair," says Haas.

The Greek revival influence can be found also in the dolphin arms, lions paw and cornucopia design on the couch, the columns of a desk and mirror, and in the clock on the mantel.

"We put all the furniture which related in style in one room and planned around it." Much of this antique furniture was scattered throughout the house, moldering away in upper level rooms which had been closed for several years; much has come from Banning descendants, and much has been donated, including a sofa provided by Debbie Reynolds.

"We've been extremely fortunate," says Haas. "We couldn't afford to go out and buy this furniture."

WHEN RESTORATION work began four years ago, the Banning home had long been idle. "There were dead rats in every room. Mattresses were crawling with little animals."

"Volunteers came and shoveled out the debris and burned it," says Haas. "Everything had to be cleaned or washed and labeled. This took time. The rooms were badly arranged. A harness was in the living room. The rooms were chaos."

The entire interior had to be cleaned and painted — walls were painted white and the wood floors were given a darker stain. Money for this was raised by students at UCLA. "They gave terrible spaghetti dinners — which we all attended — to provide money for paint and paper," says Haas.

Great care is given to every detail. "We had 14

rugs in the reception room, but none would do what it was supposed to do." The search continues for the proper rug.

Other rooms in process of restoration include the living room, the dining room, a library which will be used as meeting room for the Board of Recreation and Parks Commissioners for Los Angeles which is in charge of Banning house; Banning's study and bedroom, his wife's bedroom and bedrooms of the various Banning children.

The library (originally constructed as two bedrooms according to Ms. Bubar) is being redecorated as a music room and family room "typical in those days." Extensive research went into the precise way to group the furniture in the long room, in planning shutters rather than draperies for the windows, in knowing that plants trained to wind around the windows would also be in keeping with the time, and in searching out family portraits for the walls.

"We may find that some of this furniture was made in California. There were few furniture makers here this early," says Haas. "It all takes lots of study."

THE DISTINCTIVE house has been used for filming "Gone with the Wind," "The Littlest Rebel," starring Shirley Temple; and more recently for television shows such as Bronk and an as yet unnamed film with Cliff Robertson. "Unfortunately," says Ms. Bubar, "none of those funds come to the restoration project."

An estimated $160,000, in addition to the $133,000 already expended by the Recreation and Parks Department on the restoration, and the $50,000 worth of donations already made, will be necessary to complete the refurbishment and start a planned educational program at the site, according to Friends of Banning Park, the nonprofit group trying to raise funds for the project.

Educational plans are for seminars on Victorian crafts, furniture restoration and cooking, a memorabilia display, and a photographic museum in what was once the Banning ballroom.

Banning house property includes one of the first carriage houses in Southern California, one of the first artesian wells, and a milk house. It is open to the public on Sundays from noon to 4 p.m. by appointment with Ms. Bubar.

DEAR ABBY

Decisions don't come easy

DEAR ABBY: This problem has bugged me for 25 years. It concerns my husband's inability to cope with anything unpleasant. I would call it his problem, only it doesn't seem to bother him. I'm the one it bothers, so that makes it MY problem, right?

When we receive bills, they could lay six months, and he'd never open them. If he gets a call from someone who wants some information he promised to company while she sits, and I said it would be all right.

Lately, both my husband and I suspect that they have been using our home as a rendezvous-for-improper behavior. (We have no proof — just a feeling.)

Should we now tell her that we do not want her to have any male company in our home in our absence?

If something unfortunate were to happen in our home, we would feel responsible. Are we wrong? And how should we handle it? — "THE WS"

DEAR "WS": You are not wrong. Tell the girl that you have changed your mind about allowing her to have her boyfriend keep her company while she sits. Because you have no "proof," and are proceeding only from a "feeling," make no accusations.

DEAR ABBY: What is your opinion of people who wear dark glasses indoors? (I don't mean "finted" — I mean DARK, which makes it impossible to see their eyes.)

I have a friend who comes to visit me, and she never removes her dark glasses the entire time she is here. I like to make eye contact with people I talk with and I find this very frustrating.

Am I being picky? I have never made my feelings known to her.

Should I mention it? — WONDERING

DEAR WONDERING: People wear dark glasses indoors for a variety of reasons. Some do so because they have an eye problem. On the chance that this is the reason, it would be a kindness to refrain from mentioning it.

CONFIDENTIAL TO MY READERS: If you or a relative has spent three months or more in a mental hospital, please tell me what problems were encountered after returning to the community. You need not disclose your identity. Thank you. — ABBY have ready but didn't get around to, he doesn't return the call.

He puts things off indefinitely. Needless to say, this drives me up a wall.

He is a dear, sweet, loving man, and I love being married to him. He has the disposition of an angel, and he's kind and generous and everything a wife could want in a man, but his irresponsible attitude about matters that I consider important makes me want to scream.

What do you advise me to do, Abby? — "E" IN MO.

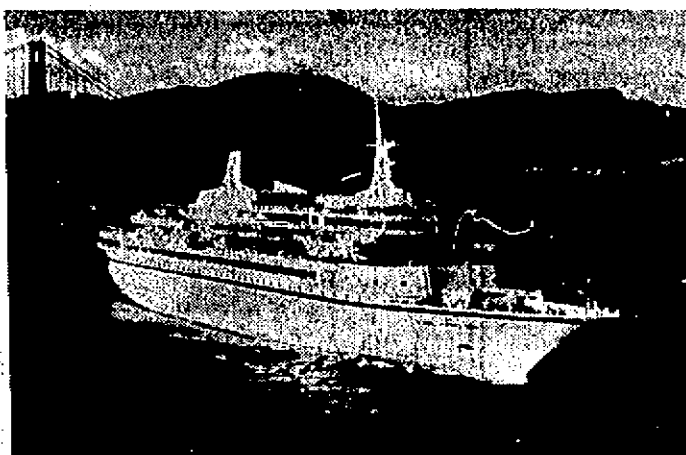

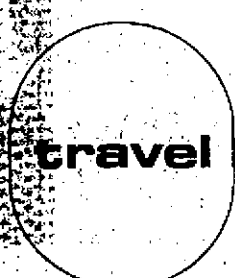

DEAR E.: Face it. You'll never change this dear, sweet, loving, generous man, so roll with the punches.

Why not take over the household bills? He may welcome the idea, and you'll know they're paid. Don't nag him. Nobody's perfect, and his faults are minor compared to some he could have.

DEAR ABBY: A high school neighbor girl sits with our children about two nights a week. She is a pleasant, quiet girl and the children love her.

ROYAL Viking Sea stops at San Francisco on its cruise to Alaska.

VIKING ALASKA CRUISE

Away to sea with IPT

By HERB SHANNON
IPT Travel Editor

Long Beach area travel agents and the Independent Press-Telegram will co-sponsor a 14-day Royal Viking Sea Alaska-Canada cruise starting from the Port of Los Angeles June 14.

Two lucky readers will win free passage aboard the luxurious Royal Viking Sea in the IPT Grand Prix Race Game contest announced elsewhere in this edition. Readers also will share $7,800 in cash during the 13 weeks of the contest.

Winners of the 12 $50 prizes to be awarded weekly will be included with several hundred other contestants drawn at random for the Grand Prize drawing in April, giving them a chance at both cash and the cruise for two.

The cruise will be the maiden voyage to the Pacific Northwest of the Royal Viking Sea, newest of the three sister ships in the Viking fleet. Festive welcoming ceremonies will greet the vessel in ports at either end of its voyage through Canada's Inside Passage to Alaska.

THE HIGHLIGHT of the cruise will be the full-day visit to spectacular Glacier Bay on June 21. Twenty frozen rivers converge here to form a rugged coastline reminiscent of the fjords of Norway. A blast of the ship's whistle may trigger avalanches from the wall of ice ringing the bay.

Ports of call en route to the frozen frontier include Victoria, British Columbia; Juneau, the picturesque capital of Alaska, and Haines, a center of Alaskan Indian arts, crafts, music and dances. The Eskimo outpost of Sitka marks the beginning of the return voyage to Los Angeles via Prince Rupert, B.C.; Vancouver, the western Canada metropolis, and a Sunday stop in San Francisco.

In port, the Royal Viking Sea serves as palatial hotel, gourmet restaurant and base for optional land tours. While cruising at sea, IPT party members will have leisurely days to set an active or relaxed pace of their choice. Shipboard facilities include deck sports, swimming pool, gymnasium, sauna, card rooms, night club, film theater and lounge with live entertainment.

In addition to other shipboard activities, the Royal Viking Line features an educational program conducted by experts in a wide variety of fields ranging from history to the space program and from opera to fashion. Passengers may meet informally with lecturers in discussion groups or after-dinner meetings.

The 22,000-ton Norwegian flag vessel offers all first class accommodations for approximately 500 passengers. Cost of the 14-day IPT Alaska-Canada cruise starts at $1,330 per person for an outside double stateroom.

Sailing on charter yacht

Terre de Haut, French Antilles

We came to anchor here in a rose and blue evening. The western Caribbean was swallowing the pirates' gold sun. The little fishing village lay silent in shadows.

Les Saintes are five tiny islands in a cluster that gives them the finest harbor I've ever seen. They are too small to be pin pointed on most maps. Modest offshore satellites of the main French islands — Guadeloupe and Martinique.

Napoleon encouraged Norman and Breton fishermen to come here. The mixture with slaves from Africa has produced islanders like no others in the islands: Light chocolate skin and many blond heads.

THE CRUISE ships don't come to Les Saintes. The government says proudly that tourist business is up in Martinique and Guadeloupe — 171,000 by air, 231,000 by cruise ship last year.

The result has been to raise native made straw hats from $2 to $10. Island rum from $1 a bottle to $2 a drink. (The same St. James rum is shipped halfway around the world to French Tahiti where it sells for half as much.)

You come to these islands by yacht. We are aboard the chartered ketch Sealestial. It's 71 feet. Sleeps six, each paying $100 a day — $4,200 total for the week.

The charter people feel this is no more than cruise ship prices. They say eight of ten of their passengers have never sailed on small boats before.

"Friends of ours sat at the Captain's table on a cruise ship. Is there some way you arrange this in advance?"

If you know somebody important that does business with the shipping line, they can arrange it. The Captain's table is a public relations thing. Invitations go to people who can do the company some good.

Don't despair. A seat at the Captain's table shows you have social muscle, but the people can be stuffy. There are other officers' tables: The Staff Captain, The Chief Engineer. Sometimes the Chief Radio Officer and the ship's Surgeon.

The liveliest table is the Purser's. He gets the advance passenger list and doesn't let himself get cluttered up with stodgy people. If there are any good looking single girls, they'll be at the Purser's table — that's a dog.

General table seating is done on sailing day by the Chief Steward. This is as chancy as roulette. You have to analyze your table swiftly.

If it looks like 14 days of boredom, split right now. Ask the Chief Steward for another table. Stay with it for three meals and it's hard to get out.

Some ships don't have

stan delaplane

chief officers' tables. Too much headache assuring people that the Staff Captain's table is just as important as the Captain's. (Because it isn't. That's why Chief Stewards are gray-haired.)

"Our cruise line advises us to buy our shore excursions before we sail. We can buy them on the ship at each port. What do you think?"

There's a chance a shore tour might be full if you try to buy it the night before landing. I've never seen it though.

Shore tours are run by local people who stay flexible. They know there are a lot of last minute people like you. They aren't about to let you sail away with all that money.

"How should I dress the evening we board ship? Is it very formal?"

Sea going rule: No dress up the first night out of port, last night coming in to port. Wear flat shoes.

There's often a heavy ground swell as you're getting out to sea. The ship rolls. Hang onto railings. Wedge bottles into corners or you'll come back from dinner to find everything on the floor.

The holiday travel crush has ended and space is now available on nearly every flight.

As 1976 starts off it is a great time to start planning for your business and pleasure travel.

Air-sea combination packages and cruises are becoming more and more popular, and space is already selling heavily on Alaska, Mexico, and Caribbean Cruises.

European and Orient tours are equally popular and often feature all-expense trips that assure you total enjoyment at fixed prices within everyone's budget.

We strongly urge our readers to plan early for best tours of the lowest prices. Usually a small down payment will protect your space on that long awaited trip you've been thinking about.

Start the year off right by stopping in for a friendly visit with our trained staff at any of our 3 offices. Happy New Year!

STEVE TSIPSIS
Glorious Sunday champagne brunch

IT'S A GLORIOUS way to go on Sunday. It's the colorful, multiple-dish gourmet brunch in Hugo's restaurant at the Edgewater Hyatt House, a perfect place to relax after church or 18 holes of golf.

The Edgewater is a large hotel at 6400 E. Pacific Coast Highway. Hugo's can't be seen from the highway, since it's inside the hotel. Nevertheless, that imaginative buffet has been discovered by scores of happy people who know it's served every Sunday between 10 a.m. and 3 p.m. They return again and again to sample the delights, including a glass of champagne, assorted fruit juices, sliced fresh fruit, a variety of cold cuts and different salads and such hot entrees as eggs Benedict, scrambled eggs, sausage, bacon, chicken crepes a la reine, fresh chicken livers sauteed with mushrooms, hashbrown potatoes, rice pilaf, twist rolls, blueberry muffins and perhaps such special European additions as quiche Lorraine, a pastry shell with French stuffing.

The brunch is $3.95 for adults and $2.95 for children. The artistic buffet display is the result of careful planning by Steve Tsipsis, the hotel's food and beverage manager; Antonio Jacobo, its extremely accomplished executive chef, and Frank Jimenez, Hugo's talented maitre d' who was recently promoted to manager of Hugo's and the hotel's coffee shop.

Hugo's is a glamorous restaurant with the kind of elaborate table settings one finds in the finest, traditional restaurants of Europe, New York or San Francisco. It is named in honor of Hugo (Skip) Friend, a top executive with the Hyatt corporation, a man who is described by his friends as "a superhuman being."

Hugo's starts serving its beautiful dinners on Sundays at 5:30, including its classic beef Stroganoff. Hugo's is the only restaurant in this area which creates its Stroganoff on a cart at the guests' table. The action is beautiful to see as the waiter or maitre d' Frank makes it "from scratch" using fresh mushrooms, the choicest slices of beef, sour cream, butter, onions and wine. It's $7.50 on the complete dinner, which is unusual because it includes such a variety, ranging from relish tray to garden salad, a little cone of tart sherbet to refresh the tastebuds between courses, the freshest vegetables, mixed brown rice or potatoes, a selection of freshly cut fruits and after-dinner liqueurs such as cordials or warm plum wine.

Also featured are such entrees, $5.50 to over $9, as the "catch of the day," sauteed halibut with pecan butter, filet of sole saute meuniere, giant sauteed prawns, the best prime rib au jus, double French lamb chops, choice steaks and lamb shish kebab.

WHEN HE FIRST became part of the French Riviera restaurant's staff two years ago, women guests occasionally nudged one another and whispered: "Look at that handsome man. I wonder who he is."

His name is Orson Kapri and he's one of the owners of the French Riviera, South Street near Paramount Boulevard, one of Long Beach's most amazingly successful restaurants because it serves such outstanding luncheons and dinners at such unbelievably low prices. Orson is the quiet owner, soft-spoken and gracious, always handsomely dressed. His partner is Mehmet (Frenchy) Gunsay, who ranges from quiet to occasionally explosive. Mehmet is just as gracious as Orson, but he has a completely different style. A rapid-fire machine gun cannot speak as rapidly as Mehmet.

The third and newest partner at the French Riviera is Arthur Garcia, the executive chef. He is a prize, an award-winning Frenchman who knows all the secrets of creating wondrous soups, the best salad dressings and veal, seafood and beef creations with the richest, most delectable wine sauces. You'd think that with a chef like Arthur on the premises the French Riviera would raise its prices. But no! Mehmet, Orson and Arthur don't wish to offend anyone; they insist on serving the French Riviera's specialties at those quaint prices reminiscent of the early 1960s.

Among the dinner-treats at the F.R. is pan-fried whitefish, merely $2.45 with tureen of soup for complimentary second helpings; salad, rice, deep-fried zucchini (wonderful!) and loaf of the freshest hot bread with butter. It's such a splendid value it would cost at least $4.50 elsewhere. Other beauties on that big dinner include such continental creations as filet of sole Marguery, $3.25, with a white sherry sauce; veal Monterey with avocado, $3.25; a small (but very popular) filet mignon, $3.25; prime rib au jus, $3.45, and frog legs provencale (Cal Worthington's favorite), $3.95.

Dinner is served starting at 2 p.m. Sundays, Monday through Friday, dinner starts at 2:30; on Saturdays it is served from 4 on. Luncheon is Monday through Friday, 11:30 a.m. to 2:30. The luncheon prices are remarkable, such as the veal Monterey, $1.95 with soup and salad. Others include the French dip sandwich for $1.50 with soup and salad and hot bread, and the fancy Monte Cristo sandwich with soup and salad, $2.25.

The French Riviera has a loyal clientele who happily follow the house rules: children under 5 aren't admitted, and the guests try not to waste food, helping to keep the prices low.

Marked man

Dallas quarterback Roger Staubach, whose last-minute pass beat Minnesota last week, will be marked man today at Coliseum in NFC title game. Rams are favored by five to beat Dallas. One reason is Fred Dryer, shown pursuing Staubach in earlier game this season.

Rams Super-bound?

Harris starts against Dallas

By RICH ROBERTS
Staff Writer

"It's going to be a dogfight," they say with heavy sighs. "Dallas is always tough," comes the clenched-teeth response. Phooey!

Today's 1:05 game at the Coliseum to determine the National Conference champion of the National Football League should be only as difficult as the Rams allow it to be.

They are only talking themselves into trouble—and out of the Super Bowl—if they get carried away with the Cowboy mystique. The way to watch this one (Channel 2, thanks to the Southern California Ford Dealers Association) is to relax, make some sandwiches and don't worry on third down. A six-pack should do it.

ONE MUST keep in mind that if the visitors were called the Podunk Paupers instead of the Dallas Cowboys, they would be regarded as just a pretty good second-place team—and the Rams already have whipped the team that finished first in the NFC East, 35-23.

True, the St. Louis Cardinals don't play much defense, but the Cowboys gave up almost as many points in the regular season—268, nearly twice as many as the Rams' 135, and were burned for 20 touchdown passes.

There are other considerations.

JOHN DIXON, Sports Editor
SUNDAY, JANUARY 4, 1976

In the past two weeks the Rams have beaten the defending Super Bowl champion Pittsburgh Steelers, 10-3, and the winners of the NFC's strongest division without two offensive starters, quarterback James Harris and left tackle Charlie Cowan, who will be with them today.

If there is some doubt about the condition of the bruised right shoulder that has restricted Harris' passing, it may be dismissed as a factor.

Ram coach Chuck Knox promised that he wouldn't start Harris "unless he is 100 per cent," and Harris proved to these eyes that he was sound when he reared back and pitched a perfect bomb to tight end Terry Nelson in practice at Blair Field Friday.

Ron Jaworski will play only if Harris experiences the difficulties he had in the league opener at Dallas last Sept. 20 when the Rams' own ineptitude did them in, 18-7.

Harris threw three interceptions that day. He hasn't done that since. Two of the steals—by veteran cornerback Mel Renfro, who grabbed only four all season—led directly to nine Cowboy points on a 24-yard TD drive and Toni Fritsch's 19-yard field goal.

A poor punt snap by center Bob DeMarco gave Fritsch another of his four field goals, and when Ron Jessie beat the defense only to flat-out drop what should have been an 81-yard touchdown pass from Harris, the Rams knew it wasn't their day.

Without those abnormal occurrences, the score would have been Rams 14, Cowboys 6.

Even Dallas coach Tom Landry admits, "That wasn't a true measure of the kind of team Los Angeles has. I'm sure they weren't especially high for the game, not when you consider they beat us, 35-7, in pre-season . . . and I think we surprised ourselves by the way we played."

THAT GAME first established Landry's latest innovation, the shotgun formation, as mankind's greatest weapon.

Again, phooey!

UCLA was up for the Irish

By GARY RAUSCH
Staff Writer

Gene Bartow wouldn't come right out and say it, but UCLA's decisive 86-70 victory over Notre Dame Saturday afternoon took the weight of the world of the Bruin head coach's shoulders.

How would you feel if the opposing coach spent five minutes before the biggest game of your season to date talking with your predecessor. But, lo and behold, there was Digger Phelps and John Wooden conversing like long, lost fraternity brothers in Section 4A of Pauley Pavilion.

With spirited defense, sparkling shooting plus an unexpected assist from Digger himself, UCLA streaked past the Fighting Irish and extended its home court winning string to 91 games.

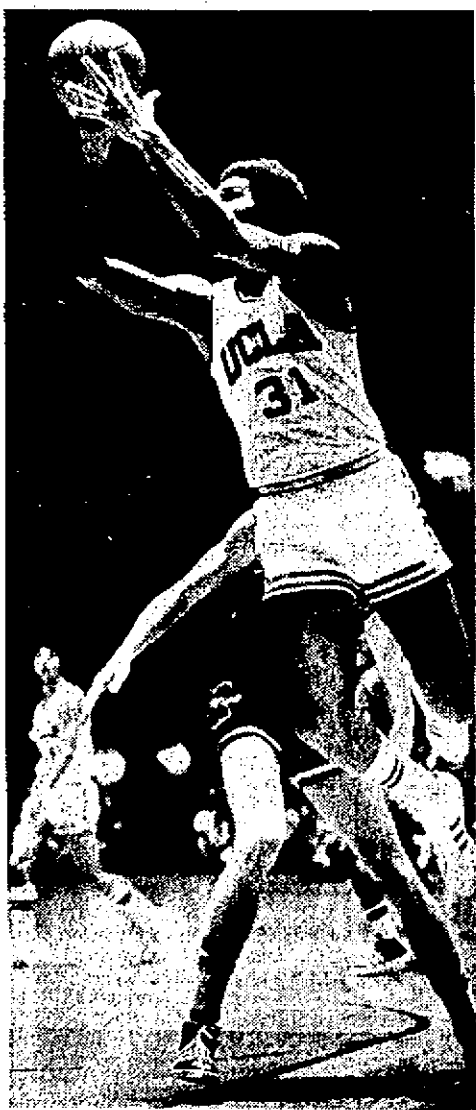

Knowledgeable fans in the crowd of 12,741 and a nationwide television audience give Bartow the benefit of the doubt over the season-opening loss to Indiana (84-64). It was not a fair test for the new coach or his young players.

Notre Dame was.

The Irish arrived with only a three-point defeat at Indiana and two-point slip against Kentucky in Louisville to mar their seven-game season. If Bartow was ever to get the wolves off his back, Saturday was the time.

He matched muscle against muscle in pitting his all-America forward Marques Johnson with Notre Dame's all-everything, Adrian Dantley. His theory was that Dantley would get his points (28.7 average), but try and contain him as best as possible and really concentrate on the other four starters.

It worked to perfection.

Two for the total

UCLA's Richard Washington climbs invisible ladder and pumps through 17-foot jump shot in first half of Pauley Pavilion game against Notre Dame Saturday. Washington canned 10 of 16 floor attempts and was Bruins' top scorer with 24 points in 86-70 victory.

Lakers fall asleep

Weekend sweep for Warriors
By DOUG IVES
Staff Writer

OAKLAND—A promising start turned into a miserable finish for the Lakers Saturday night.

Leading by 16 points early in the second period, the Lakers gave Kareem Abdul-Jabbar a rest. It signaled 34 minutes of slumber time as the Golden State Warriors outscored them 108-63 the rest of the way to post a 130-99 victory.

By sweeping the Lakers Friday and Saturday the Warriors improved their record to 25-8, best in the NBA, and opened up a 6½-game lead over the Lakers in the Pacific Division.

With a home game against Portland tonight preceding a seven-game road trip, the Lakers must now concern themselves with the threat of losing second place to onrushing Seattle and Phoenix.

Golden State made only 6 of 27 shots in the first period, trailing 32-20. But the scoring was sensational after that (more than 60 per cent) until the final five minutes when coach Al Attles poured in his reserves.

SUBS for the Warriors don't necessarily mean a letdown, however. In fact, it was sizzling reserve guard Gus Williams, a rookie from USC, who marshalled the Warriors' rally.

Williams scored 13 in the second period, lifting the Warriors to a 56-56 tie, then he started the third quarter and pumped in eight points to boost his team into an 87-79 lead.

The fourth period was a joke, at least as far as the Lakers were concerned. The Warriors scored 43 points, 29 by the subs. Golden State's bench provided 38 points for the night compared to 14 for the Lakers.

Williams finished with 27

Oh! That smarts

Long Beach State's Anthony McGee (33) goes flying into Colorado's Emmett Lewis (10) after getting off a shot in Saturday night's game at Long Beach Arena. At right are Buffaloes' Kurt Schoenhoff (14) and Greg Mueller. McGee hit 16 points as 49ers won, 67-64.

LBSU dedicates the win to Jones
By JIM McCORMACK
Staff Writer

It was a strange dedication.

"That one was for the coach," Larry Hudson smiled Saturday night, moments after he and his Long Beach State teammates had rallied to subdue the Colorado Buffaloes, 67-64.

"Coach (Dwight) Jones is really intense," Hudson continued, "and we don't like to see him getting so excited."

There was a lot for Jones, and the 3,060 49er partisans in the Long Beach Arena, to get excited about.

Among the high, and low, lights were:

- A four-point play that enabled the 49ers, who had never led, to take a 30-27 halftime advantage.

- An 8-2 spurt opening the final 20 minutes that resulted in a heady 37-29 lead for Long Beach.

- A 5-43 drought in which Long Beach was outscored, 19-2, resulting in a nine-point deficit.

- A nerve-shattering rally that enabled Long Beach to regain the lead, 65-64, on a free throw by James Dawson with 59 seconds to play and then secure its 90th victory in its last 92 home appearances.

"I still don't understand it," Jones mumbled after the 49ers had improved their season standard to 5-6.

"We got the eight-point lead by being patient on offense," the 49er coach continued, "then we forgot how we'd gotten the lead and became careless."

"Our next three times down court we took terrible shots."

On each of the tactical errors, Colorado collected baskets and suddenly Colorado was on an offensive avalanche.

The six points trimmed Long Beach's lead to two and then Dave Logan got the Buffs (3-8) even at 37 with a pair of free throws.

Rookie Boston goalie hands Kings 3-0 blank

By AL LARSON
Staff Writer

Who needs Bobby Orr and Phil Esposito?

The Boston Bruins proved they don't when they handed the Kings their first shutout at home

this season, 3-0, Saturday night before a sellout crowd of 16,005 at the Forum.

With 28-year-old rookie goaltender Dave Reece repulsing 31 shots, the Bruins ran their unbeaten road record to 13 games (nine wins, four times)—longest in the NHL this season—while increasing their division lead over the idle Buffalo Sabres to four points.

"The big thing is we're working as a team now," said Bruin coach Don Cherry. "We've lost only three of our last 25 games since the trade. Every guy thinks of the team. If there's anyone who's selfish, he won't be playing."

Rival coaches Gene Bartow (left) of UCLA and Digger Phelps of Notre Dame may be two of the most animated coaches in college basketball. Each demonstrated their own brand of sign language Saturday afternoon at Pauley Pavilion as Bruins handed Irish 86-70 thrashing.

Deltona Corp.'s "Elaine," a $22,200 Florida house, has two bedrooms, an air conditioner; carpeting and appliances extra.

HOUSES CONTINUED

"The biggest dilemma facing builders today is what to take out to make houses affordable, and what to leave in to make them salable," says New York's Edward C. Birkner, publisher of a housing newsletter that specializes in reporting new trends. Almost no one buys a stripped-down car, because people are willing to pay for extra features. That same thinking carries over to houses. They have grown larger and more expensive year by year because the stripped-down houses wouldn't sell either. But the new smaller houses do sell now.

The price of land

Whether prices in your city will ever reach as low as $25,000 or even $30,000 depends on the cost of land and of turning it into buildable lots. Lots are getting smaller for compacts, but that isn't enough. Around Washington, D.C., and some other cities, land prices are so high there is little chance for any house under $35,000. The country's largest home builder, Ryan Homes of Pittsburgh, builds in nine states. Prices vary widely. A house that sells for $25,000 in Louisville is $10,000 or $12,000 more in the Virginia and Maryland suburbs of Washington.

But whatever the price, waning affluence is forcing changes that may already have come to your area.

The "Dundee" by Ryan Homes, America's largest builder, may come with unfinished lower level; $25,450 in Columbus, Ohio.

Cerritos beaten, 73-61

LBCC earns some revenge

By PAUL McLEOD
Staff Writer

With 28 seconds remaining in a rematch with Long Beach City College, Cerritos' 6-9 center, Willie Howard, took a half court pass and, all alone at the Cerritos end of the Falcon gym, casually stuffed the basketball through the hoop to the delight of a partisan Falcon crowd.

The play had little to do with Saturday night's final score, 73-61, in favor of Long Beach, but it released all the frustration of the night for both Howard and Cerritos, now 11-5, and enabled the Falcon crowd to salvage something from their teams' performance until the defending South Coast Conference champions open defense of their title on Saturday.

Billed as a rematch — Cerritos won the first contest in the Modesto Tournament 75-64 — between two of the state's top basketball powers, the game more resembled a dance contest as the Vikings waited to their 12th victory of the season.

The Falcons, who reached the finals of the state tournament last season with some uncanny shot selection, were stone cold from the field, hitting just 39 per cent from the floor for the game — and that was a 14 per cent improvement over the first half when they made just 7-of-28 field goals.

"That's definitely what put us out of the ball game," admitted Cerritos coach Bob Foerster, whose team entered the game averaging 53 per cent. "We were considerably off. Our shooting worries me, but I think it's just a temporary thing."

Viking coach Bill Fraser had a different view.

"I was really pleased with the way our defense played," he explained. "We kept making the big play and we didn't need to use the press. Our defense kept them away from the good shot."

Long Beach, despite a rocky start that sent them into the locker room hitting just 41 per cent from the floor, used its defense effectively and allowed the Falcons just three field goals in their first 18 tries. Not until Cerritos' Darrell Lane connected on a 17-footer with 7:30 remaining in the half did the Falcons put together a semblance of offense. Of the Cerritos' 17 first half points, Lane netted seven (41 per cent of the team total).

LBCC led by as many as 21 points in the second half as Rod Dalton, the leading scorer for both teams with 21 points, hit four-of-six free throws and four-of-eight field goals. Teammate Brian Lenzan finished with 20 points.

49ERS—

At 15:47. Ten seconds later freshman guard Emmett Lewis stripped the 49ers' Dale Dillon of the ball and went for a layin and Colorado took the lead, 39-37.

HUDSON got the Beach even with a driving shot, but Colorado ran off nine unanswered points — Lewis getting two, Jay Sierra three and Greg Mueller four — for a 48-39 lead with 13:06 remaining.

Colorado twice had nine-point leads and was up eight on three occasions before four quick points by Glen Gerke got Long Beach back in contention.

The 49ers got within two three times before they were finally able to tie matters at 62 and then at 64.

Dawson, the hero of Tuesday's last-second win over Bowling Green, hit a layin for a tie at 62 and Hudson hit a well-defended, 14-foot jump shot for the draw at 64.

Dawson hit the second of a two-shot free throw opportunity at 0:59 and Hudson skied for the critical rebound when Logan missed an 18-footer over the 49er zone with 22 seconds to play.

Hudson dribbled the ball for nearly seven seconds in the Colorado end of the court before firing a long pass to teammate Anthony McGee, who stepped up to catch the toss and was flattened by Colorado's Kurt Schoenhoff.

McGee, who maneuvered for 16 points, hit both free throws with 15 seconds to play and then intercepted a Colorado pass with five seconds left to secure the victory.

Hudson matched McGee for game scoring honors and also grabbed rebounds on each of the three shots Colorado missed in the final 2:05.

Milikan was nursing a one-point halftime lead before Marty and Heckel connected for 12 points. Marty finished with 17 points and Heckel with 14. John White added 15 and Rick Manogian 13 for the victors.

Warren, which lost five players to fouls, was paced by Brian Lumsden's 29 points. Milikan's Steve Trefzger held high-scoring Mark Mullane scoreless.

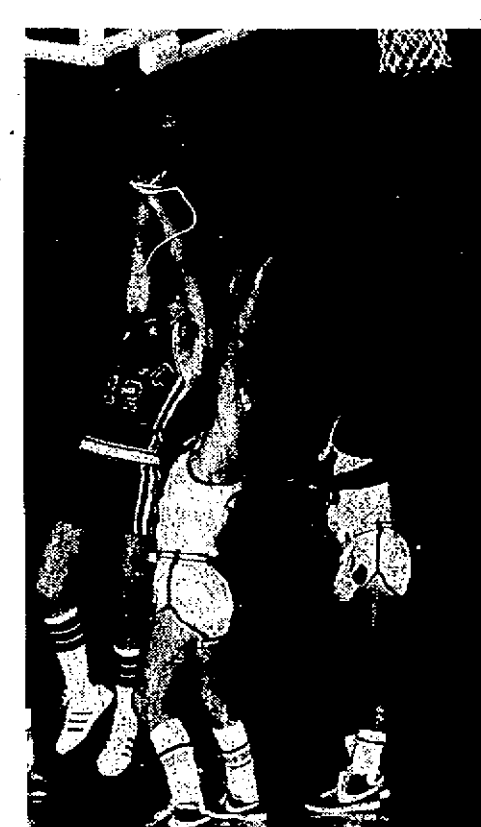

Milikan trailed by six points with three minutes to play in the first period yet managed to grab the lead, 14-13, the end of the stanza.

Doug Widfield poured in 37 points and grabbed 24 rebounds to lead La Mirada past Bishop Amat, 77-55.

Widfield hit 80 per cent of his floor shots (16-of-20) to help La Mirada run its record to 11-0.

Mike Norris netted 25 points to lead Brethren past Brentwood, 71-66. It was the Warriors' third win in nine starts.

KINGS LOSE—

Everyone sacrifices himself for the team. That's the only way.

Reece starts only his second game in the last 26 we've played and he gets a shutout. That's teamwork.

"Another thing," Cherry noted, "before the trade in early November, we were playing only .500. Now we're 12 games over .500 and we don't have a player among the top 10 scorers in the league. That's why we got rid of one guy," Cherry added, obviously referring to perennial scoring leader Esposito.

Jean Ratelle and Brad Park, who came to Boston in the celebrated Nov. 7 trade with the New York Rangers for Esposito and Carol Vadnais, each contributed a goal to the chargin of the fans who are having a hard time understanding the inconsistency displayed by coach Bob Pulford's skaters. In their last home appearance the Kings scored nine goals against Kansas City. Two nights ago Pulford's troopers registered nine goals in Buffalo.

"It was a different game than I expected," Pulford said. "We expected Boston to be more wide open, but then they had to go with Reece in goal and they changed their style and played a strong defensive game."

Reece was pressed into service because regular goalie Gilles Gilbert sustained a leg injury in Friday's night's 4-4 tie in Vancouver.

"We're good some nights and bad others," said Pulford. "Tonight we were off. I was impressed with the play of (Gary) Sargent. He was one of the bright spots in the loss."

Many thought the Rangers got the best of the trade when they obtained Esposito. Instead, the Bruins have climbed into the division lead while the Rangers have disappeared into the cellar in the Smythe Division.

After routing his troops out of bed at 6 a.m. to catch a flight on the heels of Friday night's match, Cherry said, "We're four points up on Buffalo and we're not going to look back."

Coupled with Montreal's 7-0 win over Washington, the Kings now find themselves looking way up in the standings. They trail the Canadiens by 16 points and must take to the road for seven games. They don't play at home again until Jan. 22 against Toronto, then disappear again for a pair in New York.

Apparently what the Kings need is a trade, too, to shake them out of their lethargy.

Need a miracle? Here's your man

Drew Pearson keeps authoring frantic finishes

DREW PEARSON...miracle worker

"There's no knack to it or anything like that. It's just being lucky and in the right spot at the right time." — Drew Pearson.

If this keeps up, he'll be invited to tour with his father-in-law, who is Marques Haynes of the Harlem Globetrotters.

If this keeps up, Jerry West will relinquish his pseudonym, "Mr. Clutch."

If this keeps up, not only will spectators be frisked for hidden whisky bottles but Drew Pearson will be searched for hidden footballs, and they'll be saying that the late, great columnist was named after him.

"That would be a nice change," says the Dallas Cowboys' wide receiver, whose incredible catch last Sunday beat the Minnesota Vikings, 17-14, and rattled windows around the National Football League.

The Rams packed away their cold-weather gear for at least another year.

The Rams' offices were stormed by excited mobs... and, for the first time in memory, nobody had a rope.

The Vikings were relieved to learn that they wouldn't have to lose another Super Bowl.

THE NAME Drew Pearson became a household word in football as it once was in journalism. For his next trick... well, don't expect him to produce his last-minute lightning every week, not even against the Rams in today's National Conference title game at the Coliseum. He's already done it to them once.

"I remember that vividly," Pearson says. "It was my rookie season, my first playoff game and I'd caught a touchdown pass earlier in the first period. Then to catch that one was really a big thrill to me—the biggest thrill of my career at the time. Now this one comes ahead of that."

Ram fans haven't forgotten, either. It was the 1973 first-round playoff game in Dallas when the Rams had come back to 17-16 after a bumbling start and appeared ready to take command. Then Roger Staubach, scrambling desperately, saw Pearson flashing across the middle, launched a prayer into the Texas sky, a Ram defender fell down, taking another out of the play, Pearson caught the ball and completed an 83-yard touchdown play.

Pearson struck again the following season when he caught a 56-yard pitch from Clint Longley to beat the Washington Redskins in the last 35 seconds, 24-23.

CLEARLY, PEARSON is a tremendously talented athlete—he was all-pro last season—but he doesn't mind his feats being called "miracles."

"I don't resent it," he says. "You call it that because of the situation. Everything seems hopeless and all of a sudden you come up with a play that wins the game for you."

"I know I was lucky to be able to catch the ball. There's no knack to it or anything like that. It's just being lucky and in the right spot at the right time."

The Cowboys pride themselves on building from the draft—running back Preston Pearson (no relation) is the only player not originally signed by the club—but the fact is that they didn't draft Drew at all.

At New Jersey's South River High, he was an all-state center-fielder, an all-county forward in basketball and a quarterback in football. He didn't switch to wide receiver until his junior year at Tulsa University, and then the team ran the ball most of the time.

"I didn't have the opportunity to make any plays such as I've made in professional football," he says.

BUT THE COWBOYS took him to their Thousand Oaks training camp as a free agent and he worked his way into the starting lineup in time to do in the Rams in the playoffs.

Will he do it again? Pearson usually is as surprised as anyone by the spontaneity of his act.

"We're that kind of team," he says. "We try to do whatever it takes to win."

At Minnesota, Pearson hadn't caught a single pass until the final drive, when he caught four for 91 yards.

"It had been frustrating all day," Drew says. "He hadn't thrown any passes to me. My team was losing. The season was about to end... and I was a little upset that I hadn't made the Pro Bowl team again."

Roger had asked me earlier what I was getting open on. I told him I was loose on the corner route, and we hit it for that big play on fourth down. Then I thought I could get loose on a streak route.

"I gave him (Minnesota cornerback Nate Wright) a little inside fake but he didn't bite. The ball hit right in my hands. Then he (Wright) hit my arm and the ball slipped but stuck between my elbow and my hip. It was a lucky catch. I thought I'd dropped it. I just pulled it up and ran into the end zone."

THE VIKINGS are still screaming that Pearson pushed off illegally on Wright, who wound up in the ground.

"I don't think I pushed off,"

says Drew. "It's hard to say. I was trying to get back to an under-thrown ball and he was, too. He might have pushed me; I might have pushed him. I knew there was some type of contact."

"After I caught the ball, I saw an orange come out of the stands and I thought it was a penalty flag. I thought I might get pass interference. It could have gone either way."

Pearson has not seen Dallas films of the play.

"We didn't watch it," he says. "We've just been getting ready for Los Angeles. The only time I saw it was on the news Monday night, and it wasn't a very good angle."

His wife Marsha, daughter of the Globetrotter, "was over at some friends' house and they couldn't believe it," Drew says. "A friend of hers kept saying, 'Keep the faith'—and, sure enough, something happened. They couldn't hear what the announcer was saying because they were yelling so much. They get very excited."

PEARSON CAN thank his father for meeting Marsha.

"I had a chance to sign a baseball contract out of high school but my father wanted me to go to college," Drew says.

There he met Marsha, who was a senior in a Tulsa high school at the time.

Drew also could thank his father for his name. Dad was a big fan of the former author of the nationally syndicated political column, The Washington Merry-Go-Round.

"He used to read it every day," says Drew, whose three brothers and three sisters were given "just regular names."

"I've been getting it ever since grade school, so I'm kind of used to it."

Football fans are, too. Drew Pearson? Sure, he writes miracles for the Dallas Cowboys.

The Cowboys surprised Renfro

Should old acquaintance be forgot?

Most surprised man in Dallas that the Cowboys are in today's National Football Conference championship game is Mr. Mel Renfro, one of the Cowboys' oldest veterans and a five-time all-pro.

The cornerback, who was selected to the Pro Bowl his first 10 years in the NFL and missed only the last such affair because of a season-long foot injury, claims he thought the Cowboys would be lucky to finish with a 7-7 record this past campaign.

"We lost so many great players — Bob Lilly, John Noland, Cornell Green, Walt Garrison — that at the start of the pre-season schedule, I did think we'd be lucky to finish 7-7," said the defensive back, who was contacted in Dallas the night before the Cowboys enplaned to Southern California.

At the time, the former U. of Oregon all-America halfback and world-class trackman was celebrating his 34th birthday by cooking dinner for his three children.

"My feeling that we were in for a long year was strengthened when the Rams beat us pretty good in the first pre-season game in the Coliseum," continued Renfro.

HANK HOLLINGWORTH

"Then things changed. We beat the Steelers in our last pre-season game and followed with good wins over the Rams and Cardinals in our first two league games. That's when I changed my thinking and became very optimistic."

"But I sure had no championship, or Super Bowl, game thoughts that first week in August when we first met the Rams."

RENFRO, WHO OWNS and manages real estate in Dallas, feels that the regular season opener against the Rams (won by Dallas, 18-7) was his best game this season, but he expects an entirely different game today.

"I intercepted two passes and made some great plays against the Rams in the opener at Dallas, but my play then won't mean a thing in Sunday's rematch," claimed the Houston native who grew up in Portland, Ore.

"This game will be entirely different. Neither team knew what to really expect back in September, but we both do now. For that reason I look for a low-scoring game. It should be a defensive battle...real tough front-line stuff."

The Cowboys have been in the playoffs nine of the past 10 seasons. How does the thoroughly seasoned Renfro approach today's showdown affair?

"No differently than the others," replied the Cowboys' all-time interception and kickoff return leader. "All playoff games are tough. You always have your work cut out for you. I'm loose as can be, but we have a lot of youngsters and, I hope they don't get tight and make mistakes."

WILL THE COWBOYS' playoff experience be a beneficial factor today?

It's been a hair-raising season

Mel Renfro, Dallas' veteran cornerback, is also veteran wig-wearer as you can plainly see: Renfro admits he is surprised by

"It will work to our advantage in that we're hungry for playoff wins. We've lost quite a few, you know. But you've got to remember also that a lot of the fellows who got us into the playoffs are gone, so extensive playoff experience applies only to a small number of us."

A second round Cowboy draft choice in '64, Renfro played at safety his first six NFL seasons, then cornerback the past six. What difference, if any, is there in the two positions?

"Playing safety is more fun because you're on your own and can go where the ball is. As a cornerback you have to protect your zone and there's an awful lot more pressure at that spot."

"After I switched to cornerback in 1970, I realized that I probably didn't have the attitude or the guts to play cornerback my first few years. I had the ability, but I don't know if I could have stood the pressure right away. At the corner, you have to have nerves of steel. Just ask Eddie McMillan and Monte Jackson."

WHAT DO YOU THINK of the Rams?

"They are good! Look at all the injuries they have, but they still win. I have a lot of respect for their defense. They're not easy to defend, either, because they have outstanding offensive personnel. The Rams run right at you, then throw an occasional pass. They make everything work. We caught them off guard in that first league game, but we won't now."

Who do you expect to keep you the busiest today?

"Ron Jessie and Harold Jackson will be the guys coming at me. But we have to control the Ram game up front. We have to stop (Lawrence) McCutcheon and force the Rams to pass. If we put good pressure on the Ram passer, that will help all the Dallas defensive backs."

Does it make a difference to you if James Harris or Ron Jaworski is at quarterback?

"No difference at all. I've seen films of both and they both can throw the ball. Any man who throws the ball well is trouble for a defensive back."

HAS ANYONE influenced your career?

"Coach (Tom) Landry has done quite a bit for me. He is an outstanding general. I admire his ability to produce a winner. My worst game this season was when we lost in overtime (30-24) in Washington. I had some foot problems and some critical passes were completed on me. I was way down, but Landry made me shake it off. I feel that he is one of the great coaches of our time."

Have you been healthy this season?

"I had a bone chip in my foot the last two regular season games, but the rest did me good and I felt like my old self against the Vikings last week. I felt great when I intercepted that pass in Minnesota. I think I could have intercepted a couple more but (Fran) Tarkenton didn't throw enough to my side."

Three years ago you started wearing a hairpiece that you claimed made you look seven years younger. Are you still wearing it?

"I wear it quite a bit in the off-season. But you've got to wear it consistently and it becomes a headache putting it on and taking it off during the season. You become quite funny to others when one day you wear it and the next day you don't. I'm good-natured, but I don't like being the butt of hairpiece jokes."

Get that, Jackson and Jessie? No hairpiece jokes today or you're liable to find your teeth in your throat when you go into the Dallas secondary after a Harris or Jaworski bomb.

Should old acquaintance be forgot and never brought to mind? Should old acquaintance be forgot and days of Auld Lang Syne...

As the glasses are raised in this new year, the toast is to the good guys from the world of fun and games who left us during the 12 months just passed. The world was better off for having known them and their acquaintance will not soon be forgotten.

Should old acquaintance be forgot...

Of all the wonderful things about Casey Stengel, the most memorable was that he was a little boy to the end and right now he's at a great big playground. He's got a baseball cap on sideways and he's hitting fungoes and laughing and talking in Stengelese... "Can't anybody here play this game?"

Casey was Skippy and Spanky and Charlie Brown. When God put games on this earth, he meant them for guys like Casey Stengel.

And never brought to mind...

Alvaro Pineda was too young to die...freak accidents create rage within you...there is terrible remorse that he couldn't get out of the gate alive.

But wherever Alvaro is there are nine races today and nine more tomorrow and the weather is always clear and the track is always fast. Alvaro Pineda is in the winner's circle again and smiling.

Should old acquaintance be forgot...

Mark Donohue went to the other side of the world to perish in a grinding crash. Bill Pearson hit the wall at Riverside. Graham Hill wasn't even in a race car.

These guys didn't laugh at death but they chose to ignore it, and they would deplore sad songs. Still, you sing them.

And days of Auld Lang Syne...

Steve Prefontaine was only 24. The seven national distance records he held were secondary to enjoying life.

"You can't beat fun," he once said. Damned if he wasn't right.

For Auld Lang Syne, my dear...

God, how the youth was taken. George Stewart, the Trojan football player, was only 29 when he pitched forward with a heart attack while lifting weights.

Ron Copeland was not yet 30 and it was a miserable injustice that he had to go the way he did. Just jogging, just running. Free.

For Auld Lang Syne...

Gary Sanders was only 25 summers along. The awful killer that eats away at strong young bodies took him, but it was not without a fight.

But then, those who played against Gary will tell you he never gave anybody anything on the golf course. Now the fairways are wide and the drives are straight and greens curl toward the cup.

We'll take a up of kindness yet...

Ezzard Charles lost the big bout to the same disease that once took Lou Gehrig. Champions also get counted out.

For Auld Lang Syne...

Jacque MacKinnon lived for 36 autumns and played professional football for 11 of them. He was taken too soon like so many of the others.

Should old acquaintance be forgot? And never brought to mind...

No, not this year. Or any other.

A big win for Bruins

Dantley scored 25 points while his four teammates were held to a combined total of 17—more than 12 below their norm. It didn't hurt the Bruin cause when Dantley was saddled with three offensive fouls, nor that 14 of his markers came in the final 9:16.

UCLA never trailed by fewer than 10 points during that span and the credit goes to Johnson, Richard Washington, Ralph Drollinger, Andre McCarter, and especially Raymond Townsend.

Washington led the Bruins in scoring with 24 points, hitting 10 of 16 from the floor. Johnson added 16 points, Drollinger eight clutch rebounds and McCarter five assists and an outstanding floor game.

The afternoon's loudest cheer went to Townsend, the Johnson Bruin iron-man with 39 minutes of playing time. Raymond poured in nine field goals, added a free throw for 19 points and passed out five assists.

His 24-foot jump shot with 13:33 to play ignited a 10-2 Bruin blitz from which the Irish never recovered. Dantley followed with an offensive foul, Drollinger blocked a shot that led to a Washington basket and N.D. guard Ray Martin double dribbled.

Bing, Bing went two Washington jumpers around a Bill Parterno fielder for the Irish. Then Townsend shook the nets again and Notre Dame was all but beaten.

"It was my first start in a big game, but I was never more relaxed," Townsend said. "My job was to take Dantley high and Marques took him low. Our philosophy was quickness outside and strength inside. A.D.'s always going to get his points."

The only player who troubled the Bruins besides Dantley was center Bill Laimbeer, the 6-11 freshman from Palos Verdes. He scored 10 of his team's last 21 points to end the first half, but picked up his fourth foul 3:11 into the second half and was benched for over five minutes. He lasted less than three minutes upon his return.

The Bruins' next biggest assist was Notre Dame refusing to attack its 2-1-2 zone the final 5:13 before intermission. The Bruins were leading by five, 31-29, but Notre Dame had outscored them, 11-6, over a 4½-minute span and had all the momentum.

"WE WENT into the zone because a couple of our players (Drollinger and Townsend) had two fouls and we didn't want them taking a third before halftime," said Bartow. "Digger had (Toby) Knight with three and I guess he thought it best to stall."

"I don't know if there's ever been an advantage to both teams, but he seemed happy to go in five points down and we were definitely happy to be five up."

Phelps had his own explanation.

"We were trying to force UCLA into a man-to-man defense," he said. "I felt if we could have cut it to three, we would have been in great shape going into the second half."

"Many teams, including us, have been blown out in Pauley Pavilion because of long UCLA scoring spurts at the end of the first half."

Bartow called Notre Dame the best team his Bruins had faced since Indiana and expects the Jan. 24 rematch in South Bend to be "quite a battle."

I've gotten to know our players better since the Indiana game. Ralph appears mentally ready now and our guard situation has stabilized. This game was closer than the score indicated.

Eventually the conversation got around to whether this win would silence his critics.

"I don't think that's ever possible here for me or with Notre Dame or Green Bay Packer football or Boston Celtic basketball," he said. "I've been accepted by about 95 percent of the people around here."

"Maybe in 10 years and 10 national championships from now, I'll have won over the other five percent."

Gene Bartow was smiling, but making no promises.

RAMS MEET DALLAS—

Like George Foreman, there is the suspicion here that the shotgun's punch is over-rated.

Even in the win over the Rams, the Cowboys netted only 80 yards in the air and averaged only 2.8 yards per pass play. Bud Goode, the computer man, will tell you that is strictly a loser's statistic—except the Rams sank to 1.0 that day.

Also, the Cowboys' passing efficiency has not improved appreciably over last season when Roger Staubach was operating as a standard T-formation quarterback—7.42 yards per pass to 7.54, the same average, incidentally, that Harris had this season.

In fact, Staubach threw one more.

ROBERTS ROUSER: Rams 24, Cowboys 10

Interception this season—16—although he has been sacked nine fewer times—38.

So how did the Cowboys get this far? Well, for one thing, they were the best of a sorry lot of runnersup in the NFC, and then there was the Staubach-to-Drew Pearson "miracle" at Minnesota against a Viking team that was generally described as "lethargic" by comparison.

The foregoing are words written to be eaten, but this is not to imply that the Cowboys are here on a pass, which they are. They are a well-coached team of talented players who play with enthusiasm, and they will attack Ram fullback Lawrence McCutcheon, who is the heart of the Rams' ball-control philosophy.

THE RAMS' greatest concern is not the shotgun but how efficiently they will be able to move the football without the blocking of tight end Bob Klein and fullback Jim Bertelsen, both gone for the season with knee injuries.

McCutcheon was asked to carry it 37

times against St. Louis and responded with an NFC playoff record 202 yards. The Cowboys will not allow that to happen again.

The Rams' game plan is, as always, based on not making mistakes, as they did in Dallas.

The biggest mistake they could make this time would be to take the Cowboys' too seriously.

RAMBLING: Statistics from the first game show the Rams netting only 135 yards—115 rushing and 20 passing. Dallas netted 277—197 rushing but only 80 passing, but the Cowboys controlled the ball 71 plays to the Rams' 54. Staubach threw no interceptions but was sacked four times and scrambled seven times for 56 yards. The Rams tied with the New York Jets in leading the league with only eight lost fumbles. The Cowboys lost 18. One key season statistic is that the Rams' pass defense allowed 4.2 yards per pass play (including sacks and yards lost on sack) while they averaged 6.0—a differential of 1.8. Dallas' differential, based on 5.2 gained and 4.9 allowed, is 1.3. Goode cites that as the single most important figure in football.

Dallas has two Pro Bowl selections—free safety Cliff Harris and offensive tackle Rayfield Wright. The Rams have eight. St. Louis had nine, including the infamous Conrad Dobler. "We don't have any Conrad Doblers on the field this Sunday," says Jack Youngblood, the Rams' all-pro defensive end who will oppose Wright in the day's classic matchup. But Dallas' former all-pro middle linebacker, Lee Roy Jordan, says, "Something is mighty wrong when people like Roger Staubach, Jeffery Pugh and Blaine Nye don't make the team. Jordan didn't make it, either. The Rams' Jack Reynolds got the nod from the league's coaches, instead."

Only one wild card team has reached the Super Bowl—Kansas City, which won it in 1970—and that was before realignment and inter-league play. Fritsch set a Dallas record with 22 field goals and tallied 104 points, tops in the NFL. The Rams lead the series, 5-4-0, and have won the last two in L.A., 24-23 in 1969 and 37-31 in '73. The Cowboys' last win in the Coliseum was in '62, 27-17.

The Rams set several NFC playoff records against St. Louis last week, including most rushing attempts (37) and most rushing yardage (129) by McCutcheon. Others were most first downs, 20; most net yards gained, 440; most interception return yardage, 130, and most touchdowns on interceptions, 2.

points, tying his career high. Starting guard Phil Smith also had 27, all in the final three periods, and that was his season best. The Laker defense made everyone look like an All-Star.

Forward Rick Barry was 3 for 14 in the first half but came on to finish with 22 points. Jamaal Wilkes was 1 for 8 after three periods but made nine points in the final stanza.

Total fouls: Lakers 26, Golden State 21. Fouled out: none. A: 12/267.

the Lakers was impressed with everything the Warriors did.

"They can beat you so many ways," he said. "Their rebounding (58-43 edge) was the big thing. They get a lot of second efforts and make them pay off."

As for Williams, coach Sharman said, "I haven't seen a player with quicker hand since Jerry West."

The Warriors wound up shooting .514 from the field, with Williams 11 for 15 and Smith 12 for 21. They also had 15 steals, including five by rookie guard Charley Dudley.

In losing for the fourth time in a row and by the widest margin of the season, the Lakers continued to shoot ineffectively, mostly because they have been unable to penetrate the middle of maintain a consistent fast break.

Only Abdul-Jabbar shot well, 9 for 17. Guards Gail Goodrich and Lucius Allen were a combined 14 for 34, having to shoot from long range because of the quick, swiftness defense by the Warriors.

The Lakers were 13 for 24 in the first period, turning in their best quarter in some time. But with 9:30 remaining Sharman gave Abdul-Jabbar a rest and the Warriors gained six points before the big center returned to the game.

Tonight's Forum game will be difficult. Bill Walton has returned to the Portland lineup and the Trail Blazers have beaten Boston and Golden State this week.

CHEAP!

"I should have had a copy of this book when I started housekeeping," says Lady Bird Johnson. "It is indeed the most remarkable compilation of information between two covers, a regular encyclopedia, and I believe it will become a handbook in every American home."

Mrs. Johnson is talking about the text that forms the basis of the monumental new reference work The Cheap Book: The Moneysworth Consumer Encyclopedia. This volume is, indeed, the fundamental book on straightening out the financial side of your life. Its chief feature, of course, is telling you how to get the most for your money in buying such items as appliances, hi-fi's, furniture and automobiles. But the book also reveals how to obtain free medical services, cut your food bill, locate a house that will appreciate in value, get mortgage money cheaply, reduce your electric bill drastically, recognize home furnishings that will increase in value in time, negotiate for installment credit at lowest rates, plan a family budget, rearrange your kitchen to save motion and money, select children's books and toys that give you your money's worth, enjoy vacations for a song, and buy just the right kinds of insurance—whether automobile, theft, fire or life—and in precisely the right amounts. In short, The Cheap Book: The Moneysworth Consumer Encyclopedia gives you at once the kind of wisdom that it normally takes years of bitter experience to acquire.

The Cheap Book: The Moneysworth Consumer Encyclopedia is mammoth in both size and scope. It consists of 496 two-column, large-size pages and over a quarter of a million words of hard-to-come-by information and sage advice. The work is divided into one hundred and forty chapters and subchapters, and its index alone occupies eight pages and contains two thousand, four hundred entries. The text is supplemented by illustrations, floor plans, botanical drawings, menus, charts, maps, calorie tables, and so on.

Contributors to this historic work include one hundred and thirty-three top experts in the field of consumer affairs. Among them are the Surgeon General of the United States, Secretary of Agriculture, heads of over 20 schools of home economics of leading universities, high-echelon officials of consumer-protection agencies (like the Food and Drug Administration) and renowned chemists, nutritionists, biologists, architects, economists, etc., etc., etc. Together they constitute the most formidable think tank of experts ever assembled in behalf of the consumer.

Critics who've seen the original text upon which this work is based speak of it with the zeal of apostles. Says The Wall Street Journal: "Want to know how to replace a broken zipper, lose weight, save money on food, choose the right educational toy for your child? How to build a patio, wire a garage, get rid of crabgrass? If you do, beat a path to this how-to book covering just about every practical question you can think of relating to food, clothing and shelter." Parade: "A must for every household." The Washington Star: "Reads like a letter from a wise old uncle and covers just about everything but choosing a mate." The Washington Post: "A handy-dandy guide bulging with tips on everything from dog bites to a working wife." Associated Press: "An all-knowing almanac." Federal Times: "A standard reference book for the homemaker and handyman." The New York Times: "Packs into 496 pages thousands of how-to-do-it facts for everyday living."

The editors of Moneysworth are pleased to announce that, as befits an extraordinary work of this kind, The Moneysworth Consumer Encyclopedia is not being distributed in the usual way: It is not being offered for sale; it is being given away—ABSOLUTELY FREE—to all those who enter eight-month subscriptions to Moneysworth.

How much does a subscription to Moneysworth cost? Incredibly, ONLY $2.99! And, as we said, you get the encyclopedia ABSOLUTELY FREE!!

In case you're not familiar with Moneysworth, let us explain that it is (as New York critic Robert Reisner has stated) "By far, America's most trustworthy and useful consumer publication." It rates products as to best buys (as among cars, cameras, and the like); it offers tips on how to save money (they will astound you with their ingenuity); and it reports important news concerning the management of your personal finances (telling not only how to reap maximum returns on your savings but also how to protect yourself against the ravages of inflation). Moneysworth commenced publication not too long ago but already has become the most widely read newsletter in the world (with nearly a million readers).

Here's a list of the kinds of articles Moneysworth prints:

Cars that Are Stingiest with Gas
How to Earn 12½% on Your Savings
Air Travel at 50% Off
Low-Cost Life Insurance for Non-Smokers
How to Save 20% on Your Food Bill
Pantyhose that Won't Let You Down

Earn Interest on Your Checking Account
The ABC's of Buying Vitamins
14 Ways to Save on Your Phone Bill
How to Wheel and Deal for a New Bike
Outsmarting the Insurance Adjuster
How to Sue without a Lawyer
Stoves that Are a Turn-On: Product Rating
Cheap Skates
Hair Dryers that Won't Burn You
Dog Foods Fit for King
How to Pare Doctor Bills to the Bone
Scholarships that Go Begging
How Politicians Avoid Income Taxes

In short, Moneysworth is an ever-ready, up-to-the-minute source of consumer intelligence. It's your trusty aide-de-camp in the battle of the marketplace.

The editors of Moneysworth are a team of hard-nosed, experienced journalists with considerable expertise in the fields of consumer-affairs and quality periodical publishing. The publisher is Ralph Ginzburg, creator of the classic magazines Eros and Avant-Garde. Moneysworth's editor-in-chief is Betty Fier, formerly of Fact magazine, and its art director is Herb Lubalin. Radiating from this nucleus of editorial energy are reporters, researchers, product-testers and consultants throughout the United States. Together, they create the first—and only—consumer periodical with churisma.

Moneysworth is available by subscription only. Cost of 8 months: ONLY $2.99! This is A MERE FRACTION of the cost of familiar, old-fashioned consumer publications—which, compared to Moneysworth, are boring, ponderous, confusing and nearly unusable. And you get The Cheap Book: The Moneysworth Consumer Encyclopedia ABSOLUTELY FREE!!

What's more, we're so confident that Moneysworth and The Consumer Encyclopedia will prove indispensable to you that we offer them with what is probably the most generous money-back guarantee in publishing history: We absolutely and unconditionally guarantee that Moneysworth—in combination with The Cheap Book: The Moneysworth Consumer Encyclopedia—will increase the purchasing power of your income by at least 15% or you get your money back IN FULL. In other words, if you now earn $10,000 a year, we guarantee that Moneysworth and the encyclopedia will increase the value of your income by at least $1,500—or we'll refund your money. Meanwhile, you will have enjoyed 8 months of Moneysworth ABSOLUTELY FREE and you may keep the encyclopedia WITH OUR COMPLIMENTS!! What could be more foolproof?

To enter your subscription and receive your free copy of The Cheap Book: The Moneysworth Consumer Encyclopedia, simply fill out the coupon below and mail it with $2.99 to: Moneysworth, 251 West 57th St., New York, N.Y. 10019.

It would be madness to pass up this opportunity. Send for your copy of The Cheap Book today. After all, you can't get much cheaper than free.

MONEYSWORTH, 251 WEST 57TH STREET, NEW YORK, N.Y. 10019

I enclose $2.99 for eight months of Moneysworth, the authoritative consumer fortnightly. As a Special Introductory Bonus, I will receive ABSOLUTELY FREE a copy of the monumental, 496-page reference work The Cheap Book: The Moneysworth Consumer Encyclopedia.

EXTRA BONUS OFFER: Check this box ☐, enclose $5, and get the encyclopedia PLUS a full year of Moneysworth AND a copy of the invaluable Moneysworth booklet that all of America is talking about, "Stake Your Claim! How to Work the Social Security Gold Mine."

Across the plain

When the terrain is flat or shooting to an elevated green or one lower than the tee or if the green is in shadows...well, you can see that judging distance is like observing a showgirl's curves. Seeing is one thing; believing is another.

Half the golfers wear glasses, and the other half can't see. They don't consider undulations, pin placements or elevations in selecting a club.

AMATEURS ought to try to knock the ball over the green. Only the top ones hit enough club. Paul Runyan was hitting 3-woods to Sam Snead's 4-irons in the 1938 PGA championship, but nobody called Paul a puffball hitter when he won, 8-7.

Briefly, a hole looks closer when trees are behind a green. It appears further when its in shadows. Also, add yards when shooting to an elevated green, subtract if the green is below you.

Those half-acre greens can mean a difference of three or four clubs in judging distance. It depends on whether the flag is on the front (use a wedge) or back (hit a 7-iron).

There's more to a hole than scorecard distance. Check the rolls and waves in the fairways before choosing a stick.

Glenz cards a 70, leads Lynx by 3

MONTEREY (AP) — David Glenz, a touring professional from Coos Bay, Ore., fired a one-under-par 70 Saturday at the Laguna Seca Golf Ranch to open up a three-stroke lead going into the final round of the $65,000 Lynx Invitational Pro-Am Golf Championship.

Glenz, 27, playing out of Miami, Fla., posted a 54-hole total of 205 to lead Bob Risch of Diamond Bar who had a 73 Saturday for a 208 total.

Glenz, who had back-to-back eagles in shooting a course-record 65 at Corral de Tierra Friday, opened the tournament with a one-under-par 70 at nearby Rancho Canada.

Bob Wynn, last year's runner-up, was tied at 212 with Dave Cogdell and Gary McCord.

"How I lost 1200 mg. of 'tar' the first week... without losing out on taste."

© 1976 R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Co.

"Personally, there's not a big difference to me in the taste of Doral and my old brand. They are both good smokes. But Doral is 6 milligrams lower in 'tar'.

"That's 120 mg. less 'tar' a pack. I go through about a carton a week — so it adds up to about 1200 mg. less 'tar' on this 'Doral Diet.' Best of all, I'm not smoking statistics, but Doral — a good tasting cigarette."

Lynwood is no cinch in tough SGVL

By GARY ELLIS Staff Writer

Lynwood High, nearly conceded a second successive San Gabriel Valley League basketball title at the outset of the season, apparently will face a bitter scramble for the championship.

Warren, Downey and La Mirada have all emerged as serious threats to Lynwood with Bellflower and Cerritos applying pressure to the top four clubs.

The SGVL could be the best 3-A basketball league in the CIF. Lynwood's Darrell Allums is a quality rebounder and scorer; Tom Freeman may be the best junior forward in Southern California, and guard Tyren Nauls is among the top five sophomores.

But La Mirada counters with 6-8 Doug Widtfeldt; Downey with Tom Day and Steve Driessen while Warren enjoys a balanced attack from six players. That Warren depth was demonstrated during its first seven game when a different player led the team in scoring each night.

LYNWOOD—Allums, Freeman and guard Dave Mullins are returning starters while Nauls was the sixth man last season. "Freeman and Allums are definitely all-CIF candidates," said coach Bill Notley. "We have sound guards in Mullins and Nauls." Experience, along with superb talent, should add the Knights in the run for the title. "It's an easier team to coach," admitted Notley. "The players know what to expect and they know what they can do as a team." Notley admits depth could be the problem. "We're basically a seven-man team." Howard Henderson (forward) is the fifth starter. Robert Hardy (forward) replaced Freeman when the latter was injured. John Ligon is the third guard.

WARREN—Jay Young collected his 300th victory early in the season and has faith his club can win the title. Three Bears return from last season—Jim Klunder (guard), Brian Lumsden (forward) and Jeff Karbett (forward). A pleasant addition to last year's club is Mark Mallane, a 6-4 junior. "We have very good shooters," said Young. "A team can shut one guy down but others will score." Hustle and discipline, trademarks of Young-coached teams, are other positive strengths. Depth, including seniors Gary Haynes (6-5), Chris Marsh (6-3), Chris Carter (6-2) and John Howard (6-0), is a strong point.

LA MIRADA—Widtfeldt, a 6-8 center, is the best big man in the league. "I've never seen anyone his size do the things he does," said coach John Moore. "He can pass, rebound, shoot and run." Jeff Brewer, a 6-2 forward, has developed into a potent scorer in recent weeks and will take some of the pressure off Widtfeldt. Perhaps La Mirada's most significant weakness is a true forward. "We really have only seven players and lack a big forward," said Moore. Mark Belowski is the court general and Jeremy Steadman is the other guard. Bruce Hansen and Mike Delman are the other forwards.

DOWNEY—Day and Driessen will be the Vikings' double-death squad. "Day's matured, put on weight and strength, and is playing solid defense," said coach Gary Ernst. "Driessen is really a strong rebounder for his size; his shooting has developed and he's a consistent scorer now." A transfer, Herb Harper (6-2), and Santa Ferrante (6-1 guard) are other starters. Ernst credits his bench as a major factor this season. "The key to our success is that we've been able to use the bench well. One game, our bench scored 36 points."

CERRITOS—Ian Desborough's team won the Suburban League last season but the Dons transferred leagues. "We'll have to play smart basketball and run like all get-out," said Desborough. "We'll have to set the tempo this year." Rodney Miller (guard) and Mark Smith (forward) are returning starters. Mike Bressmer and sophomore Todd Hamlett will be utilized as forwards. Eric Arnold, Phil Wilson or Rich Komishi will fill in the other guard position. "I don't think we can hold the ball this year," said Desborough. "I just hope we can shoot the lights out."

BELLFLOWER—The Bucs will be young, but under Jim Greenfield's tutoring, representative. Three juniors—Kurt Herbst, Mike Anderson and Kevin Farman—will start along with seniors Steve Campbell (center) and Jeff Rogers (forward). "Herbst is for real," said Greenfield. "He's shooting 54 per cent and could be one of the best forwards in the league." "We'll try to get people to play our type of game," said Greenfield, whose coaching style has given opponents fits. "Every game is different to a degree. You have to play a different style each game to win, whether it takes holding the ball or running. At least we're in every game." This season will be no exception.

PARAMOUNT—For the first time in four seasons, the Pirates are not favored to win the title. Lack of size and experience are the major factors against Bob Rittenger's team this season. "We'll be playing four underclassmen," noted Rittenger. "Everybody knows the odds are against us but we'll be scrappy." Al Acaraz (guard) and Tom Riskey (center) are starting seniors. Sophomore Ken Korver will run the offense and Randy Burwell is the other guard. Keith Korver and Gary Le Fevre are the other forwards. "We may get outrebounded but we'll certainly scrap in each game."

NORWALK—The Lancers return only one player, 6-2 senior Jeff Faught, the team's tallest. Experience, and size, will be working against Bob Douglas' club. Brian Hinsley and Paul Meadows are the forwards and John Gates, Darrell Klein and Randy Astry are the guards. "If we had some height..." Douglas' voice trailed off. Sophomore twins Mark and Mike Davis and Jim Gardner will share seventh-men duties.

LUSK LEADS WEST TO 21-14 SHRINE VICTORY

STANFORD (AP) — Long Beach State's Herb Lusk scored two touchdowns and quarterback Craig Penrose of San Diego State gave his team an edge in passing as the West scored a 21-14 victory over the East in the 51st Shrine game Saturday.

Lusk scored on a pair of two-yard runs and Wyoming's Lawrence Gaines ran five yards for the other West touchdown before a Stanford Stadium crowd of 75,000, biggest in the history of the college football all-star game. California all-American Chuck Muncie gained 106 yards rushing.

The West led 21-7 late in the third period and was in position to score again, but Muncie fumbled and Wisconsin's Steve Wagner recovered at the East eight-yard line. Following another fumble recovery, the East drove 31 yards and scored on a quarterback sneak by Jeff Grantz of South Carolina in the opening minutes of the final period.

Grantz threw a nine-yard touchdown pass to Gary Fencik of Yale in the third quarter to cut a West lead to 14-7. Shortly after Grantz' touchdown sneak, Duke linebacker Dave Meler intercepted a pass by Penrose and returned the ball 17 yards to the West 27.

But the West defense held, and Lonnie Perrin missed his fourth field goal attempt of the game, from 50 yards away. Penrose completed 16 of 28 passes for 187 yards and New Mexico quarterback Steve Myer added six completions and 62 yards to the West passing attack. Tight end David Hill from Texas A&I caught seven passes, with two receptions setting up touchdowns, and Steve Rivera of Cal snared six passes.

'Envoy finds S'Anita turf course quick

Favored Century's Envoy headed down the Santa Anita hillside turf course in front and never relinquished his lead to take the $34,250 Sierra Madre Handicap in 1:12 2/5 for the 6 1/2 furlongs, equalling the stakes record.

Century's Envoy carried high weight of 126 pounds in the field of eight 4-year-olds and up and held off Larrikin by a length and three-quarters, with Barrydown another two lengths back in third. Jerry Lambert rode the winner, who is owned by Mr. and Mrs. J.J. Elmore and who won the Sierra Madre a year ago.

The crowd, estimated at 36,000, made the 5-year-old gelding their 8-5 choice; and he paid $5.20, $3.20 and $2.60 for $2 across the board. Larrikin, coupled with Triggairio as an entry, returned $4 and $3.20, and the show payoff on Barrydown was $3.80.

Although he broke from the far outside, Century's Envoy had enough speed to gain the front position at the start. Rise High and Medical Man were close to him for a half-mile, when Larrikin, carrying 125 pounds and ridden by Lafite Pincay, began moving to the leader.

In the stretch run, Larrikin tried without success to catch the leader as Barrydown came on to be third, three-quarters of a length ahead of Sir Jason.

The time on the firm turf course equalled Baffle's clocking of 1:12 2/5 in the 1970 running of the Sierra Madre. Baffle carried 123 pounds that day.

IS TIZNA a supermare? The 7-year-old Chilean-bred mare today will attempt to carry more weight—132 pounds—to victory in a Santa Anita stakes race than any distaff thoroughbred has ever managed.

The assignment, made by Santa Anita racing secretary Louis H. Eilken, is for the $44,200 San Geronimo Handicap, a mile and one-eighth turf encounter.

Tizna won the "honor" of packing 132 pounds when in her most recent race she won the California Jockey Club Handicap at Bay Meadows with 130 pounds. She and jockey Fernando Alvarez will face eight other distaffers in the San Geronimo.

Rich derby tops week at Los Al

The $130,000 El Primero Del Ano Derby, the nation's first major quarter horse event of 1976, highlights a week of racing at Los Alamitos that includes both day and night action.

The first full week of the new year gets under way Monday with a 12:45 p.m. first post time for the first race $2 exacta and continues with day racing on Tuesday. The lights come on Wednesday through Saturday nights with a 7:45 p.m. first post.

The El Primero Del Ano Derby is the first 3-year-old tet for some of the outstanding freshmen sprinters of 1975. Included in the classy field should be such stars as Mr. Breakthru, He Flys and Mito Wise Dancer.

Mr. Breakthru figures to command much of the betting action in the Saturday night derby. The favored role fell to the speedy Easy Jet colt when a rash of injuries took three of the nation's finest 1975 freshmen out of the picture—Sold Short, Bobbys Angel and Rocky Carina.

All three, however, are expected to be back in action in time for this summer's Los Alamitos Derby.

Keeping Up... With Youth

by Pamela Swift

ISABELLE ADJANI: MOVIES ARE HER LIFE

A New Brigitte Bardot

You will be hearing soon of Isabelle Adjani, 20, daughter of a German mother and a Turkish father.

Isabelle has never had an acting lesson in her life, but the French press insists she is the greatest acting discovery since Brigitte Bardot and Jeanne Moreau.

"Le Figaro" claims: "She is the phenomenon of our generation."

"Paris Match" says: "All of France is in love with her."

Film director François Truffaut declares: "She is the only actress in this business who has made me cry."

Isabelle is currently working in a Truffaut film, "The Story of Adele H.," in which for $35,000 she plays the 24-year-old daughter of author Victor Hugo. In the film she falls in love with a gambler and dies of insanity at age 43.

Isabelle Adjani a few months ago was offered a 20-year contract by the world-famous Comédie Française. She turned it down to work with Truffaut. "The Comédie Française," she explained, "will always be around. Truffaut will not."

Isabelle, who has performed in films and on stage since she was 14, has been signed to appear opposite Roman Polanski in "The Tenant," which he is also directing for Paramount. She plays a young girl who falls in love with her kidnapper.

Like many young French actresses, Isabelle is reluctant to discuss her private life. "All I will tell you," she says, "is that as yet I have no steady boyfriend. I am complicated, confused, and consumed by ambition."

Rather than spend time dating young men, Isabelle goes alone day after day to the Cinématique in Paris where she endlessly watches old films—sometimes as many as six consecutive ones.

"That," she points out, "is how I learn to act."

Girls Do as Well

Girls make just as good mathematicians as boys. The problem is getting the girls to take math. They think it's unfeminine and will hamper their relationship with boys.

Two University of Wisconsin researchers, Elizabeth Fennema and Julia Sherman, questioned 589 girls and 644 boys in four Madison, Wis., high schools.

They discovered no significant difference in math grades and achievement between boys and girls. What they did discover, however, was that after the second year in high school, the number of girls taking math courses decreased sharply.

The study, commissioned by the National Science Foundation, indicates a feeling among the girls that math is or will be less useful to them than to the boys.

"There seems to be a cultural restriction," explains Julia Sherman, "that is a hangover from earlier days and times that scares girls out of math."

my FAVORITE jokes

by PÊPÊ ROGERS

EDITOR'S NOTE: Pêpê "Rod" Rogers, who is peppy, quick and funny, is also short. "You see I'm a short man," he explains as if you didn't believe it. "When I'm interviewed on a TV show I will inevitably be asked: 'How do you feel about being short?' Well, how would you like to go through life and never see a parade?" Sometimes he'll tell a nightclub audience: "I want to apologize to the ladies for not looking like Gregory Peck. They brought me in here to make the drinks look bigger."

Rogers has appeared in many films and in top nightclubs all over the country (the Coconut Grove, Hollywood; the Flamingo Hotel, Las Vegas; the Doral Hotel, Miami Beach). He played on Broadway in "The Unsinkable Molly Brown" and was the first comedian to entertain the troops in Vietnam.

Here are some of Pêpê Rogers' favorite jokes, lines and stories:

My wife invited Uncle Harry over for dinner to taste some of her famous Hungarian goulash. After dinner Uncle Harry said, "Gee, but this was delicious!" Those were his last words.

When I was a little boy I had blond, curly hair down to my shoulders. One day my mother took me to a barber and he cut all my curls off. The next day when I went to school the teacher looked at me surprised. But not half as surprised as the kid sitting next to me. He used to carry my books home.

It isn't that my father was lazy. You see, Dad believed in the Good Book. The Good Book says: "Thou shall not abuse what thou love." Dad loved work and he wouldn't abuse it.

The subject was why are you thankful to Mother Nature. The first pupil said: "My name is Mary, and I'm thankful to Mother Nature for my golden-blond hair and my baby-blue eyes." Then the teacher asked a second child, who said: "My name is Rose, and I'm thankful for my pearly-white teeth and my beautiful complexion." Then the teacher turned to a cross-eyed, pigeon-toed, knock-kneed, toothless boy. She said: "Billie, why are you thankful to Mother Nature?" He said: "I ain't thankful for nothin'; she doggone near ruined me!"

It's great to be crazy. When you are crazy you don't worry. My whole family is happy.

Whenever I go to a drive-in movie I always jack up the rear wheels. My wife likes to sit in the balcony.

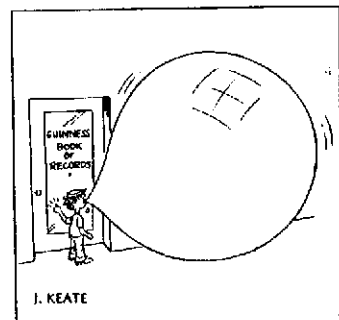

A Texan looking at Niagara Falls was asked, "Have you got anything like that back home?" "No," he replied, "but we've got a plumber who could fix that leak."

It isn't that Dad liked to drink—he had a tapeworm that was a lush.

One day while I was driving, the motor in my car began to act up. I stopped, got out, lifted the hood and started to fix it. Just then a guy came over, jacked the car up and started stealing my tires. I said: "Hey, what's going on here?" He said: "You take what you want, I'll take what I want!"

My teen-age son gives me such trouble that now I stay up nights trying to find a loophole in his birth certificate.

When Telly (Kojak) Savalas drives at night he has to dim his head.

The story of a fine

Let us send you, for the token price of only $1 each, three books that have served as cornerstones in many a fine home library.

The complete works of Shakespeare

This beautiful 1300-page volume contains every word Shakespeare ever wrote. All 37 of his plays. All of his comedies, tragedies and historical dramas including Hamlet, Romeo and Juliet, Macbeth, etc. Also all of his poems and sonnets.

The works of Kipling

Actually eight books in one. A complete novel and 139 stories, ballads and verses loved the world over... including Fuzzy-Wuzzy, Mandalay, Gunga Din, The Phantom Rickshaw and others.

The works of De Maupassant

128 matchless tales by the greatest master of the short story the world has ever known. Every story complete and unexpurgated. Includes The Diamond Necklace, A Piece of String, The Will.

Each volume is clothed in a handsomely-tooled binding of antique ecru that has both the elegant look and feel of leather, a binding that should last a lifetime.

The page tops of every volume have been gilded. And, as a delightful added touch, each book has a permanently attached page marker of crimson ribbon.

You will enjoy reading these books, just as millions before you have. Your friends will admire them, perhaps even envy you for owning them. And your children will gain a real advantage with books like these always close at hand.

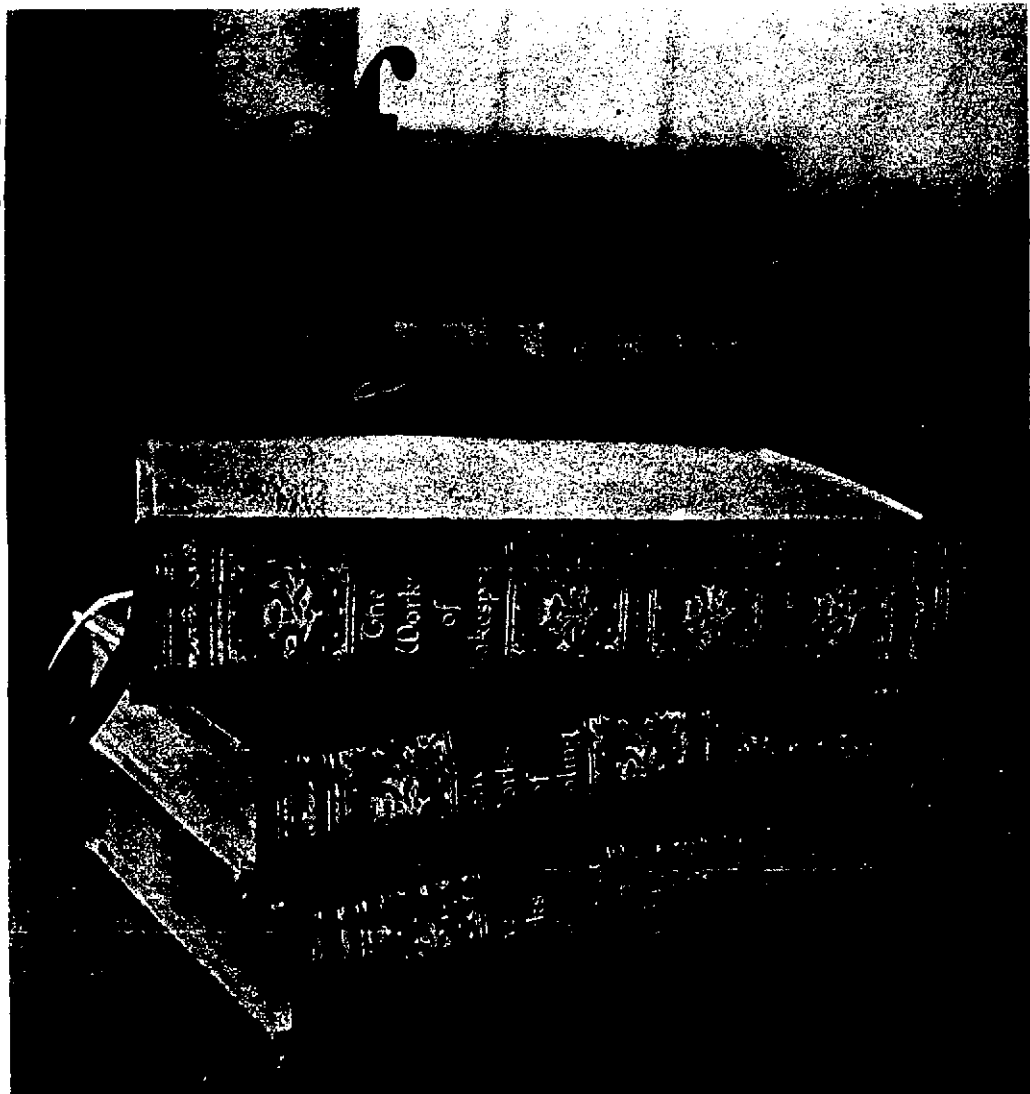

Why do we offer you three books of this calibre for only $1 each?

We simply want to introduce you to our new Golden Giants Series. We think you will be impressed with the books we send you. And we hope you will want to own others in the Series, as they become available. They will include:

Hugo. 36 complete works including Hunchback of Notre Dame, A Woman of the Streets, The Souls, etc.

Stevenson. 39 novels, stories, poems. Treasure Island, Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde, Kidnapped, etc., all complete.

Tolstoi. 27 novels and stories: Anna Karenina, Kreutzer Sonata, The Cos-

Regularly $16.17. Now only $1 each.

sacks, Love and many more.

Ibsen. His daring plays, each absolutely complete, including A Doll's House, Ghosts, Hedda Gabler, etc.

Doyle. All the best of Sherlock Holmes — The Sign of the Four, Red-Headed League, plus other great works.

Poe. 91 tales, poems, essays of this great American writer: Annabel Lee, The Raven, The Gold Bug, Murders in the Rue Morgue, The Black Cat, etc.

The full series will also include the works of Cellini, Wilde, Browning, Longfellow, Emerson, Dostoevsky, Byron and many others.

LBSU cagers hope to start year right

By ELAINE RISINGER
Staff Writer

It Fran Schaafsma and her Long Beach State basketball team found a few moments New Year's Day for any first-of-the-year commitments, they may well have resolved to begin 1976 in the same style they ended 1975. The 49ers pocketed their first three wins and a tournament title at the recent Cal Poly/Pomona Invitational and hope to continue their undefeated pre-season record this weekend at the Chico State College Tournament.

Long Beach State opened Thursday evening by overpowering UC Davis, 71-43. Other schools competing at Chico include Sacramento State,

WOMEN IN SPORTS

"We beat them in the semi-finals of regionals last year," University of Nevada at Las Vegas. "They recruited heavily and play a physical game." Fresno, which LBSU downed, 88-44, at the Cal Poly event, and San Jose State.

Lynn Stith, who has been bothered by low back problems, was unable to make the trip. At the Pomona tournament, Lynn scored 14 points against Fresno and 12 points when LBSU topped Cal Poly in the finals, 55-53.

The 49ers pulled out the final Cal Poly win despite missing two other varsity players — Angie Avery, ill with a strep throat, and Trish Reis, who had suffered a sprained ankle. Both players are in the lineup for this weekend.

Long Beach State will open its regular season Jan. 17 against USC at the L.A. Sports Arena. The game will precede the Trojan men's Pac-8 game with Stanford. USC, which Fran says is "much improved," lost to LBSU, 70-65, in the semi-finals at Cal Poly.

The Long Beach State women also have a double-header scheduled in conjunction with the men's team Feb. 7 against California State University, Fullerton.

It's also interesting to note that LBSU has been ranked 20th in Basketball Preview, a Street and Smith publication dealing primarily with men's basketball. Cal State Fullerton was placed third and UCLA, ninth. Fran expects to prove the magazine's ranking to be on the low side for the strong 49ers.

VIEWERS who tuned into ABC's Wide World of Sports telecast Saturday should have noticed some familiar names and faces. The Russian gymnasts, in the Los Angeles area for the recent exhibition at the Sports Arena, toured Disneyland with members of the SCATS gymnastic Team of Westminster.

A visit to the SCATS gym had been scheduled, but a delayed plane arrival caused cancellation of that part of the tour.

The afternoon provided one of the few social contacts by the Russians with an American peer group. The young people exchanged moments with each other, and the following evening SCATS members presented the Russians with flowers and Cathy Rigby watches during intermission time at the exhibition.

Bogey comes to life in Allen play

By RALPH HINMAN JR.
Staff Writer

If you are among those who delight in Woody Allen's antics and pleasurable remember Humphrey Bogart's "Casablanca," or if you just enjoy sparkling comedy well performed, by all means catch Community Playhouse's "Play It Again, Sam."

In all candor, however, I must confess to a bit of trepidation prior to Friday night's opening.

Woody, in the first place, wrote himself into a highly complex show. And on top of that, how many actors are available these days who can believably recreate on a contemporary stage?

But I need not have worried.

Carl Nelson doing the almost typecast central figure, Allan Felix, was to the T the neurotic 29-year-old movie buff Woody portrayed for us, complete with innumerable hangups, sexual and otherwise. Paul K. Bonnell, who physically resembles Bogey, does a brilliant job of accentuating that resemblance as he comes on stage to advise Woody-Allen-Carl on the fine art of seduction.

Exceptionally strong support is provided by Jo Gannaway as Allan's recently divorced wife, appearing only in his imagination; from Celeste Clinton doing Allan's best-friend's wife and sex object; and Gary Brunson, the cuckolded boyfriend. Lesser supporting roles, the many objects of Allan's fantasies, are handled neatly by JoAnn MacKnight, Jane Scott, Jodie Lund, Donna DiLoreto, Cathianne Noble and Judy Marshall. Guest director Glenn Bradley deserves high praise for a job well done. Friday and Saturday are performances at 8:30 p.m. through Feb. 7, 5021 E. Anaheim St.

White sea bass off Baja Flats

One of my New Year surprises was a telephone conversation with an old friend, Eddie McEwen, skipper of the Pacific Queen at San Diego. Would you believe that Eddie and his wife enjoyed a baked albacore dinner on New Year Day and that the alby was fresh from the ocean.

No, Eddie didn't catch it on his boat. A commercial fishing friend, operating a jigboat somewhere near Guadalupe Island, found a small school of albacore, caught some and returned them to San Diego. He gave Eddie one and said: "Happy New Year!"

Eddie didn't go so far as to say that it means an early run of albacore. Rather, he remarked, the longfins are holdovers from the August-September run of '75 and they haven't sense enough to know that they should be on their way back to the other side of the Pacific Ocean.

Eddie has a trip scheduled for Jan. 10-17 when he will take some scientists and students on an ecology cruise far down the Baja California coast. He told me that he would rather be fishing for yellowtail, but those gamey fighters have not started to show in any numbers.

The commercial fishermen who use small 18-foot skiffs and outboard motors have been catching white sea bass through most of December, but the runs are spasmodic at best and he doesn't see any justification for Coronado Island trips.

THERE ARE SOME SPORTFISHERMEN who complain about the way the commercial men do their white sea bass fishing, claiming that it's illegal and that it ruins fishing for them (the sportsmen?). Perhaps all that occurs at The Coronado Islands and on the flats between there and the Mexican state of Baja isn't legal, but those fishermen are making a living for themselves and their families. At least they are not seining anchovies within the three-mile limit.

Their method of fishing might be unorthodox, but it gets results when the white sea bass are there and hungry. The commercials simply put out two or three dozen floats. Attached to each float is a heavy line and a big white jig. Any white jig will do. Many Candy Bar jigs are used and, if colored, painted white.

The floats bob up and down with the waves and oddly enough, the white sea bass will attack the jigs viciously if they are looking for food. Eddie told me that he knew of one such fisherman who put out 25 jigs. Each time he saw a jig go under water he went after it. He ended the day with 17 white sea bass. The jigs have sharp hooks and the floats are buoyant enough to pull the fish back to the surface time after time.

One sportfishing boat went out of Fisherman's Landing in San Diego and tried to get into the white sea bass just before Christmas. Only two small yellowtail were caught.

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA TROUT anglers may start making their plans for Irvine Lake. Russ Cleary, operator of that popular resort and also Anaheim Lake, announced at year-end that Irvine would be opened on Jan. 16. Prior to that date between 4,000 and 6,000 privately reared rainbow trout will be stocked in Irvine and then there will be a weekly stocking of 2,000.

Boat and motor reservations will be taken for the opening weekend only. After that, there will be a no-reservation system for the balance of the season, which normally runs into September.

Because of the heavy stocking and the close proximity of Irvine, it often has been called Southern California's "Lake Crowley." In past years anglers have been known to line up their vehicles 12 to 14 hours before the lake gates open at 6 a.m.

When trout are planted at Irvine, there always are bonus-size fish (from four to six pounds) in the hatchery load that comes from Northern California. In addition to the trout, Irvine boasts a natural population of large-mouth bass, crappie, bluegill and channel catfish.

Facilities at the Orange County reservoir, situated seven miles east of Orange via the Santiago Canyon Road, include a 300-boat rental fleet, private boat-launching ramps, snack bar, tackle and bait shop, picnic area, restrooms and a paved parking area. There is no overnight camping.

OPENING OF IRVINE LAKE will take some of the pressure off Anaheim Lake, which has been yielding many limits of planted trout, plus a few lunkers, since it was opened in the fall. It will remain open through the winter and spring and will continue to receive weekly plantings of rainbow trout.

There are no other fish in Anaheim Lake except the trout. It is a domestic water reservoir for the City of Anaheim.

In fishing either Irvine or Anaheim, it might be well for anglers to remember that most of the fish, particularly the large ones, are caught on such lures as Mepps spinners, Dardevles and Phobes. That is not to say that the fishermen using worms, salmon eggs, floating cheese baits and marshmallows don't catch fish. Every angler has his own pet method; some come home with limits while others return with just rod, reel and a tackle box.

If you don't catch fish in Anaheim Lake, try the Kids' Pond at the Sports, Vacation and Recreational Vehicle Show at the Anaheim Convention Center. That show opened Saturday to record-breaking crowds and a lot of the kids rushed to the Trout Pond immediately. It's really a great place to take a child who is showing interest in fishing for the first time. Once he catches the fishin' fever at the Kids' Pond, he may be ready for Anaheim, Irvine or some other trout lake. The show, incidentally, will be open through next Sunday.

WORLD FAMOUS MOVING LANDMARK

WITNESS THE THIRTY-TWO THUNDERING HOOVES OF THE BUDWEISER® CLYDESDALES POUNDING OUT PRIDE!

JANUARY 10-11, 17-18, AND 24-25, 1976. AT BUSCH GARDENS.

Over the years the Budweiser Clydesdales have become an American institution, appearing at parades, rodeos, fairs and, of course, on T.V. commercials. And for three consecutive weekends in January at Busch Gardens, you'll be able to see this famous 8-horse hitch step high and mighty pulling a 3½-ton antique beer wagon with feathered feet. (Some feat!) It's a picture of the past.

CLOSED DURING THE WEEK, BUT OPEN ON WEEKENDS. 10 A.M. TO 6 P.M.

As of January 3, 1976, Busch Gardens converts to its winter weekend-only schedule until the summer when we go back to our daily full-time knee-slapping fun operation.

YOU'LL HAVE FUN LIKE THERE'S NO TOMORROW.

Because this year at Busch Gardens fun is a thing of the past. Enjoy the "Good Old Days." It's the theme that runs through the entire empire of festivities, the focus of which is the re-creation of "Old St. Louis." You can shop at nostalgic gift shops. Snap pictures of our Friendly Eagle and all his colorful costumed pals. Take a ride on the Bumper Cars at the "Old St. Louis" Transit Company.

THE PRESENT IS NEVER VERY FAR AWAY.

But should you want to take a break from the past we can always bring you back to the present with our multitude of regular rides and attractions. Have a barrel of fun on the "Busch Barrel Flume Ride." Get an eagle's-eye view of Busch Gardens 40 feet up on the fantastic Sky Trolley. Or you can simply relax altogether at the Strand Theatre while you enjoy our multimedia extravaganza entitled "The Eagle Within."

REFRESHMENTS TO REVITALIZE.

After you've packed in all that great fun, you can pack down some great fun food. Like honey-dipped fried chicken with steak-size french fries. Giant Hoagie sandwiches. Or beer-basted ribs. And you can top that all off with our creamy old-fashioned hand-dipped ice cream. So come to Busch Gardens and experience something new — "The Good Old Days."

THE GOOD OLD DAYS ARE HERE! BUSCH GARDENS, LOS ANGELES

Open weekends and holidays, 10 a.m. to 6 p.m., as of Jan. 3, 1976. Take your horseless carriage on the San Diego Freeway to the Roscoe Exit.

Didja hear the one about Ford and...?

NEW YORK — President Ford, in the last months of 1975, became the country's leading target for jokes, an easy subject for comedians looking for quick laughs. Gone was all reverence for the White House and the No. 1 position in the land. One wit called him "Nixon's revenge."

It was said that when Ford got a phone call, he automatically said, "Betty, it's for you." But some people denied that.

the President was slipping. His defenders said, "He can get in to see Secretary Kissinger any time he wants to."

His refusal at first to assist New York in its fiscal crisis brought about the revival of an old joke. While the President was golfing, an aide rushed up to a foursome and said, "The President received word New York was hit by an atomic bomb. Would you allow him to play through?"

and it bumps into everything." The President's falls on a plane ramp inspired the suggestion that his favorite song is "Stumbling."

Marty Allen suggested that Nixon was going to make the most money next election. "The Republicans offered him a fortune just not to show up." Ronald Reagan was leading Ford in the polls; his gag writers were better than Ford's gag writers.

FOR THE comedians, Ford was the easiest put-down since Richard Nixon. Bob Hope quoted Mike Mansfield, "Why are they shooting at President Ford? He hasn't done anything." Marty Ragaway noted that a poll showed Teddy Kennedy ahead of Ford. "Funny kind of politics: A man who isn't running can beat a man who was never elected."

There was talk of a Ford doll. "You wind it up

THE GAG target next to the President in 1975 was probably the economy, with Jack Carter saying things were so bad that Nelson Rockefeller had to lay off one brother. Free samples of anything now cost a quarter. With the subway fare at 50 cents, change attendants now were reading the Wall Street Journal.

With taxes rising again, business men were blowing their money on wine, women and Washington. A sign in a supermarket said, "Nobody admitted under $18." Once $30 a week would feed a family of five, now it would feed a child of five.

On the streets of New York were guys handing out leaflets from nearby massage parlors that were said to be houses of prostitution. Movies had gone from corn to porn in one generation. Liz Taylor and Richard Burton reunited. Seaman Jacobs said Liz was running out of men. "She's started marrying men she's already married."

Mama Jolie Gabor was hoping that her autobiography would make her more famous than her daughter Zsa Zsa. Jolie wasn't kidding. She meant it.

ED MCMAHON was impressed with singer John Denver. "He's got his own jet, his own Rolls and his own mountain — and he got it all by singing. I'm just a country boy."

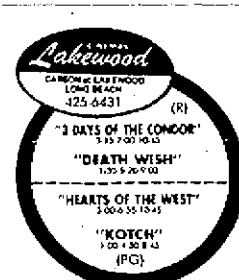

Howard Cosell's "live from New York" TV series wasn't intended to be a part of the disaster wave, but worked out that way. Joey Adams and Henry Youngman disputed who brought the big jokes around first. Joey believed he first told of an actors' club, "where the average age is deceased." He claimed that an exciting experience with George Burns was to wake up his leg. One said, "I'm a Lesbian." The other said, "So how are things in Beirut?"

Henny told of the man calling for water in the desert and being offered neckties for sale, but no water. Finally he arrived at the oasis and crawled to the door begging for water. The doorman said, "Nobody gets in here without a tie."

Billy Eckstine said Sammy Davis, in a famous picture of a year before, wasn't hugging Richard Nixon. "He was faking him."

JACKIE ONASSIS went to work for a publisher. Bob Hope said he heard "she's brown-bagging it." New York Gov. Carey and Anne Ford were dating and somebody called that "Cash and Carey." Sylvia Miles was campaigning for an Oscar nomination and ventriloquist Wayland Flowers said she was such a run-around, "she'd

IP-T GRAND PRIX RACE GAME RULES — READ CAREFULLY

SAVE THESE RULES FOR HANDY REFERENCE THROUGHOUT THE CONTEST

1. The contest will consist of 13 weekly games beginning Sunday, January 4, 1976. Participants will be required to determine the finishing order of ten race cars. Official entry blanks will be published on successive Sundays for each week's contest.

Each Sunday, contestants will be given the names and numbers of 30 race cars; plus an entry form. Then, on Monday thru Friday, puzzles will appear in these newspapers which, when solved, will show which cars finished in the first thru tenth place.

TO SOLVE THE PUZZLES: Each day, Monday thru Friday, two puzzles will indicate the finishing place of two race cars, the number of letters in the cars' names, plus the correct positioning of at least one letter in each name (e.g., _ _ _ _ T _ _). From the list of 30 cars, entrants must then properly determine the car's name that fits that particular blank. On any given day, more than one car name may fit a puzzle, but when all ten puzzles for the week are completed, there will be only one proper solution. It may be necessary at times to have the entire set of ten puzzles before the winning solution is apparent. No car's name will be used more than once in each set of weekly puzzles.

When all ten puzzles are completed, only one solution will give you the correct finishing order of the ten cars. Entrants will then place the correct car number on the cars shown on the entry form, to indicate which car finished first, second, and so on through 10th place.

2. HOW TO ENTER: Mail your completed race entry form, neatly trimmed, to: Independent Press-Telegram Grand Prix Race Game P.O. Box 420 Long Beach, CA 90801 or hand deliver your entry form, enclosed in an envelope, to the Independent Press-Telegram main offices at 604 Pine Ave., Long Beach.

IMPORTANT: Across the end of the envelope, you MUST indicate the race number you are entering as shown in the sample to the right.

Each race course entry form will show the weekly contest deadline. All entries must be in the possession of the Independent Press-Telegram on or before that date. The Independent Press-Telegram cannot be held responsible for entries delayed or lost in the mails.

Individual contestants are limited to one entry per week. Only one entry may be enclosed in an envelope.

Do not mail in the Monday thru Friday puzzles. Only mail the Sunday race entry form.

It is not necessary to subscribe to or buy the Independent Press-Telegram to enter. Contestants may make hand-drawn copies of the official race entry form to enter. These must be legible and of the same size and style as those appearing in the newspapers. Entry forms reproduced by any mechanical or photographic means will not be accepted.

3. PRIZES: Weekly Cash Awards: The Independent Press-Telegram will award twelve cash prizes of $50.00 each week. The twelve weekly cash winners will be drawn at random from the total number of correct entries received for that week's contest.

Grand Prize: The Grand Prize winner will receive a Royal Viking 14-day Alaska/Canada cruise for two aboard the Royal Viking Sea, commencing June 14, 1976. The Grand Prize drawing will be held the week following the close of the weekly contests.

All weekly winners become eligible for the Grand Prize Drawing. In addition to all weekly winners, an additional 200 correct entries will be drawn from each week's contest to be included in the Grand Prize Drawing. No notification will be made of those drawn. No substitute prizes will be awarded. Applicable federal, state, and other taxes imposed on any prize will be the sole responsibility of the prize winner.

All prize winners will be contacted by mail. When weekly cash winners' names are published in these newspapers, they will appear on the Wednesday following each contest deadline.

4. WHO MAY ENTER: The contest is open to anyone 18 years of age or older, except employees of the Independent Press-Telegram and members of their immediate families; employees of Knight-Ridder Newspapers, Inc., any of its affiliated companies and members of their immediate families; and Independent Press-Telegram distributors, and members of their immediate families.

5. JUDGING: The decisions of the contest judges will be final in all cases. Upon entering the contest, entrants agree to abide by all rules set forth here. Entrants not conforming to all rules shall be automatically disqualified.

6. The Independent Press-Telegram reserves the right to alter the contest rules or discontinue the contest at any time.

7. NO TELEPHONE INFORMATION REGARDING THE PUZZLES WILL BE GIVEN.

TRY THIS SAMPLE PUZZLE OF THE IP-T GRAND PRIX RACE GAME

From the list of car names, determine which name fits each blank. While more than one name may appear to fit some blanks, when completed there is only one possible solution. Each name can only be used once. Not all car names will be used.

34 EAGLE	A	1st place
95 TIGER	O	2nd place
23 DOVE	V	3rd place
14 RAVEN	D	4th place
77 BOLD

Once you've determined which car finished in which place, all you must do is transfer that car's number to the entry form from the previous Sunday. The correct answers for this sample would be: 1st, Car # 34; 2nd place, Car # 23; 3rd place, Car # 14; 4th place, Car # 77.

Since, EAGLE, car # 34, was first place finisher, place a 34 in the white space of the first place car.

HOW TO ADDRESS YOUR ENTRY

Your entry must be in the possession of the Independent Press-Telegram no later than the deadline shown on the entry form. It must be enclosed in an envelope addressed as the example below. YOU MUST INDICATE WHICH RACE # YOU ARE ENTERING ON THE OUTSIDE OF THE ENVELOPE.

YOUR ENVELOPE SHOULD LOOK LIKE THIS:

YOUR NAME ADDRESS CITY, ZIP	INDEPENDENT PRESS-TELEGRAM GRAND PRIX RACE GAME P.O. BOX 420 LONG BEACH, CA. 90801

Andorra Village open

New architectural design will be introduced to Rossmore Leisure World here with the Grand Opening of Andorra Village today.

The new section will include 42 Villa Nueva and Hacienda residences, a total of 68, said Elm Weingarten, vice president/marketing.

The newly designed Villa Nueva is available in four floor plans with one bedroom, bath and a half; two bedrooms, two baths; and three bedrooms, two baths. All are fully carpeted.

Each has a separate dining area and in three of the plans the kitchen includes an eating area.

Prices are from $38,400 to $61,400.

ALL VILLA NEUVAS have an entry hall, a 15 foot by 7 foot patio/balcony, fully equipped kitchen with range and double oven, dishwasher, waste disposer, frost-free refrigerator/freezer, luminous ceiling and natural finish hardwood cabinets. Three plans have a pantry.

Baths have Corian vanity tops, luminous soffit in the master bath and luminous ceiling in the second bath, stall shower in master bath, tub with "telephone-type" shower in second bath, grab bars and electric heat lamp with timer switch.

Additional features include prewiring for telephone and cable TV, fully insulated exterior walls and ceilings, sliding glass door to patio or balcony, electric radiant heat and double shelves in wardrobe closets.

HACIENDAS IN Andorra Village are available in three floor plans, all in one story buildings. Prices are from $59,900 to $74,900. The Cabrillo has three bedrooms, two baths, a living room, dining area, entry hall, oversize double garage, 32 foot long patio and a private entry court.

The Casa Rosa has two bedrooms, two baths, living room, dining area, entry hall, oversize single garage, 27 foot long patio, and a second covered patio off the dining area. The Villa Fuente has two bedrooms, two baths, a living room, dining area, entry hall, oversize single garage and joined patios off the living room and master bedroom.

All electric kitchens in each Hacienda have luminous ceilings, natural finish hardwood cabinets, Corian countertops, pantry, range with two ovens, frost-free refrigerator/freezer, dishwasher and waste disposer. Baths have luminous soffit, Corian vanity top, built-in medicine cabinet, stall shower and double lavatory in master bath, tub with "telephone-type" shower in second bath, grab bars and electric heat lamp.

Additional features in all Haciendas are forced air heating, pre-wiring for telephone and cable TV, fully insulated exterior walls and ceiling, sliding glass doors to patios.

ROSSMOOR LEISURE World was established nearly 11 years ago and now has a population of about 18,000.

The entire community is walled and guarded by 250 security officers. Recreation and education facilities are available in five clubhouses and include a 27-hole golf course, tennis courts, riding stables, shuffleboard, lawn bowling, a theatre, swimming, numerous arts and crafts rooms, 150 free adult education courses and 170 membership clubs.

Leisure World is for adults aged 52 and over. A Model/Design Center at the El Toro exit of San Diego Freeway about midway between Los Angeles and San Diego, is open daily to 3:30 p.m.

THREE MODELS OFFERED IN ANDORRA VILLAGE

Peacock Ridge model

A new model has been completed for Peacock Ridge, a townhome village located on top of a hill overlooking the Santa Monica Bay and the lights of Los Angeles.

The model was conceived and implemented by Pati Pfahler Design Associates of Canoga Park.

"The new model was necessitated by a customer who insisted upon purchasing the existing model and taking possession immediately," said Arthur Ehrlich, exclusive sales agent.

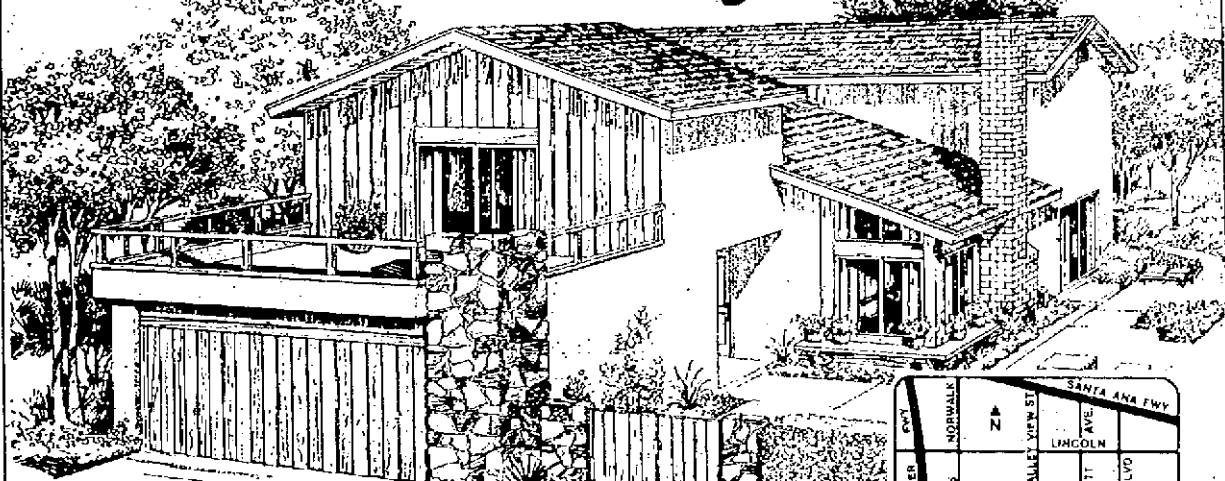

Built by IDM Corp., Peacock Ridge has only nine homes remaining from 44 with two plans available. One is a massive three-bedroom and den tri-level, the other a large two bedroom plus den. Prices are under $79,950.

The development is located at the top of a hill on a cul-de-sac at the end of Peacock Ridge Road. "This is the final condominium offering in this area."

The homes offer cathedral ceilings, custom fireplaces and mezzanines.

Take Hawthorne Boulevard to High Ridge Road, south on High Ridge to the hill-top village at 5987 Peacock Ridge Road.

bow-er (bou'ér), n. a place enclosed by overhanging boughs of trees; a shaded retreat.

In designing THE BOWER we determined to create a place for adults — a secure, secluded retreat for quiet enjoyment and privacy. To achieve this we called in one of the outstanding architects of townhomes in the U.S., Johannes Van 't Hilburg, A.I.A. and the award-winning landscape architectural firm of Galper/Baldon Associates. We asked them to produce a plan with one thought in mind — a place for adults. We believe that they — and we — have done it.

TIME IS IMPORTANT

WHEN YOU ARE THINKING OF SELLING

Real Estate is a very complex business. When you call one of the offices listed below serving your particular area of residence you are assured of a Competent Knowledgeable Sales Associate. Your Home or Apartment will have the greatest market exposure to ensure top market dollars. Isn't that what you are looking for? Hodges eliminates the guesswork! Hodges Special Sales Plan will enable you to benefit by taking advantage of

- ALL CASH IN 5 DAYS
(subject to approval)
- TRADE UP TO A LARGER HOME
- TRADE DOWN TO A SMALLER HOME
- CONVERT YOUR EQUITY TO CASH
- COMPLETE YOUR INVESTMENT DREAMS
- FULL MARKET EXPOSURE

REMEMBER HODGES SPANS FROM
DOWNEY TO SAN JUAN CAPISTRANO

WHEN YOU ARE THINKING OF BUYING

CALL REX L. HODGES . . . AND YOU WILL DISCOVER WHAT 46 YEARS OF LEADERSHIP WILL DO FOR YOU. We are proud of the fact that we are there BEFORE, DURING and MOST IMPORTANTLY AFTER THE PURCHASE . . . THINK ABOUT IT. Financing is still the key and at Hodges We Specialize in:

- VETERAN LOANS (GI Sales)
- FHA FINANCING
- 5% DOWN
- 10% DOWN
- GOVERNMENT REPOSSESSIONS
- LOW INTEREST ASSUMABLE LOANS
- BUY NOW, SELL LATER

SO . . . why not take a few minutes and call one of Hodges numbers and

1. Specify type home
2. Amount of cash you desire to invest
3. Special Requirements

WHEN YOU ARE THINKING OF A CAREER

If you are now licensed or enrolled in a Real Estate school you owe it to yourself to call (213) 437-1251. Ask for Bernie Jones. We have several choice openings and what's more important Hodges pays more, trains better, and sees you as a person. We believe Rex. L. Hodges is a great place to work.

Better still, stop in one of our offices and inquire as to how our associates feel — probably the best testimony.

Remember we have been growing since 1929, that's 46 years. Someone once said, "LITTLE THINGS MEAN A LOT." At Rex L. Hodges we are always concerned with the little things.

HAPPINESS IS WORKING FOR HODGES!

TELEVISION LOG OF THE INDEPENDENT PRESS-TELEGRAM AND THE EVENING NEWS

Midseason bringing more cops, comedies

By BOB MARTIN
TV-Radio Editor

Ready for a new television season?

What's that you say — anything would be an improvement over the present one?

January marks midseason on the television calendar, and the networks get a second chance. They have resolved to do better, but whether they will or not remains to be seen.

Of 26 new series introduced by the three major networks last fall, 16 have gone down the tube — or will soon. One returning series — ABC's "That's My Mama" — also has gotten the ax.

Replacing the canceled shows will be new series that may not seem very much different. Only the names and the faces will be changed in some cases; the content probably will turn out to be just about the same.

JAMES COCO, GERALDINE BROOKS

Situation comedies are being replaced by situation comedies and cops 'n' robbers by cops 'n' robbers. But, then, those two types of shows apparently are the favorites of TV viewers as America enters its Bicentennial year.

It's just that some comedies and some cop shows are more popular than others, and the networks hope their new offerings will have greater appeal than the ones they've killed off.

Three sitcoms already have made their bow as midseason replacements — NBC's "Grady" and "The Cop and the Kid" and CBS' "One Day at a Time." Coming up soon will be four others.

They are: "Popi" (CBS), starring Hector Elizondo as a Puerto Rican father who is raising his two sons; "Laverne and Shirley" (ABC), a spinoff of "Happy Days," starring Penny Marshall and Cindy Williams as two working girls in the 1950s; "The Dumplings" (NBC), a Norman Lear production starring James Coco and Geraldine Brooks as a couple who operate a luncheonette in New York

City; and "The Practice" (NBC), starring Danny Thomas as a Park Avenue doctor.

Additions to the long list of series dealing with police officers or private eyes will be "City of Angels" (NBC), starring Wayne Rogers; "Jigsaw John" (NBC), starring Jack Warden; "Superstar" (ABC), starring Paul Sorvino; and "The Blue Knight" (CBS), which made its bow in December with George Kennedy as the star.

Howard Cosell will be gone, if not missed, but midseason will bring two new variety hours — "Donny and Marie" on ABC, featuring the Osmond youngsters, and "The Rich Little Show" on NBC. And, on CBS, "Cher" will become "The Sonny and Cher Show" as the singer brings back her ex-husband to try to improve her sagging ratings.

Joining the prime-time lineups for the second half of the 1975-76 season will be three dramatic series:

DONNY AND MARIE OSMOND

"Rich Man, Poor Man" (ABC), based on Irwin Shaw's novel and starring Peter Strauss, Nick Nolte and Susan Blakely; "The Bionic Woman" (ABC), a spinoff of "The Six Million Dollar Man," with Lindsay Wagner in the title role; and "Sara" (CBS), featuring Brenda Vaccaro as a frontier schoolteacher.

ABC will revive "Almost Anything Goes," last summer's series involving wacky athletic competition. And CBS already has moved its news-magazine-type program "60 Minutes" into the 7-to-8 p.m. Sunday slot.

Starting dates of upcoming series:

MONDAYS — "Rich Little Show," Feb. 2; "Jigsaw John," Feb. 2; "Rich Man, Poor Man," Feb. 2 (with special premiere Sunday, Feb. 1).

TUESDAYS — "Popi," Jan. 20; "Laverne and Shirley," Jan. 27; "City of Angels," Feb. 3.

WEDNESDAYS — "Bionic Woman," Jan. 14; "The Dumplings," Jan. 28.

FRIDAYS — "Donny and Marie," Jan. 23; "The Practice," Jan. 30; "Sara," Feb. 13.

SATURDAYS — "Almost Anything Goes," Jan. 24; "Superstar," Feb. 21.

'Upstairs' returns tonight; the era is World War I

By KAY GARDELLA
New York News

NEW YORK — Now that CBS' "Beacon Hill" has gotten its comeuppance, a programming experiment that ended after 13 episodes, it's time once again to return to its prototype, the Mobil-funded "Upstairs, Downstairs," and revisit with the Bellamy family at 165 Eaton Place and see how World War I is affecting the lives of the people in this contained British household.

The newest batch of episodes from across the Atlantic, 13 in all, begins tonight on the Public Broadcasting Service. These new programs, which begin in London in 1914, are the best in the series so far.

Once again they are meticulously researched and produced by John Hawkesworth and his script-editor partner, Alfred Shaughnessy. They subtly show the slow disintegration of the rigid social structure in the Bellamy household as its members grapple with the problems of war. The pace, especially, is good.

SO ENGROSSED were we with these future hours that we've practically viewed our way through the entire series. In weeks to come, if we may give you a quick glimpse into the future, you'll see what changes the outbreak of war has made on the snobbish, arrogant James Bellamy (Simon Williams), who is a poor reflection of his father, Richard Bellamy.

He's back in uniform as a guards major fighting in France and Hazel (Meg Wynn Owen), his wife, doesn't like it very much.

Lady Georgina Worsley (Lesley-Anne Down), will surprise you with her serious dedication to nursing. Then there's maid Daisy's heartbreak when Edward the footman (Christopher Beeny) is practically shamed into donning uniform and serving as a front-line soldier.

EVEN HUDSON, who is too old to enlist, does his bit for the war effort by becoming a part-time special police constable. And Rose (Jean Marsh), the maid, shocks Mrs. Bridges by declaring one day that she collects fares on the buses.

Played against these day-to-day seemingly trivial occurrences, is always a much greater underlying theme, one always brilliantly articulated by Alistair Cooke on this "Masterpiece Theatre" series. It's the larger view, the historical backdrop, that is always provided by the urbane host.

In his detailed introductions, covering the various military strategies and supplying viewers with an historically accurate account of what was taking place outside of the Bellamy household, he would say, as an example, "that 80,000 Belgian refugees got into France, and the British shipped in 100,000 refugees from Belgium."

Then, in an episode of the series you will see what happens in the Bellamy household when they accept lice-infested refugees, who are made to stay below with the servants by orders of Richard Bellamy.

THIS SPLENDID English gentleman, who is the essence of good breeding, is, of course, played by David Langton, a suave, gray-haired, 53-year-old actor who was born for the part.

Obviously in tune with the finer things in life, and an admirer of the man he portrays, Langton credits the success of this superb series to producer Hawkesworth. Said he: "He comes from a very grand background; he was a colonel in the guards, a good painter, and he writes well. He's a very good producer, one who functions like a headmaster of a school."

"He thoroughly understands the English background of 'Upstairs, Downstairs' completely. He's a man who rides the hounds. He's a most extraordinary man as a producer, one who found the synopsis for the program and developed it into a series.

"UPSTAIRS, DOWNSTAIRS" returns for a third season on Ch. 28 at 9 p.m. Sunday, and the Bellamy family and their servants find themselves caught up in World War I in 1914. Edward, the footman (Christopher Beeny, with rifle), and James Bellamy (Simon Williams), now a captain, go to the army. Others go into war work: Hudson (Gordon Jackson) as a special constable; Rose (Jean Marsh) as a bus conductorette; Georgina (Lesley-Anne Down) as a hospital helper. The master, Richard Bellamy (David Langton); James' wife, Hazel (Meg Wynn Owen); Mrs. Bridges, the cook (Angela Baddeley), and Ruby, the maid (Jenny Thomasin) find the war affects them, too.

"He cast it very carefully, checking on what people were like and their backgrounds and how they reacted to things. Plus, he was wise in not being too ambitious and keeping the action close to the house.

It's a story about a family and its servants."

THERE IS much speculation why "Beacon Hill" failed so miserably, while "Upstairs, Downstairs" continues along its successful path all over the world. Langton has his own theories.

"In 'Beacon Hill,'" he said, "they tried to make you believe there was an upstairs and a downstairs. But there was never enough discipline below stairs. Everyone seemed to be having a good time, and I found it hard to believe a chauffeur could have an affair with Lassiter's granddaughter and continue to work there."

"By contrast, in England there was a tremendous discipline. People were sacked and would be thrown out on the street with no redress at all. If they didn't have a reference from a master or mistress they didn't work again and they didn't have relief agents to help them.

MEG WYNN OWEN plays Hazel in "Upstairs, Downstairs," which returns to Ch. 28 at 9 p.m. Sunday.

E. G. MARSHALL portrays President Truman and Henry Fonda plays Gen. Douglas MacArthur in the ABC Theatre drama "Collision Course," on Ch. 7 at 9 tonight.

Gen. MacArthur, Truman clash drama's theme

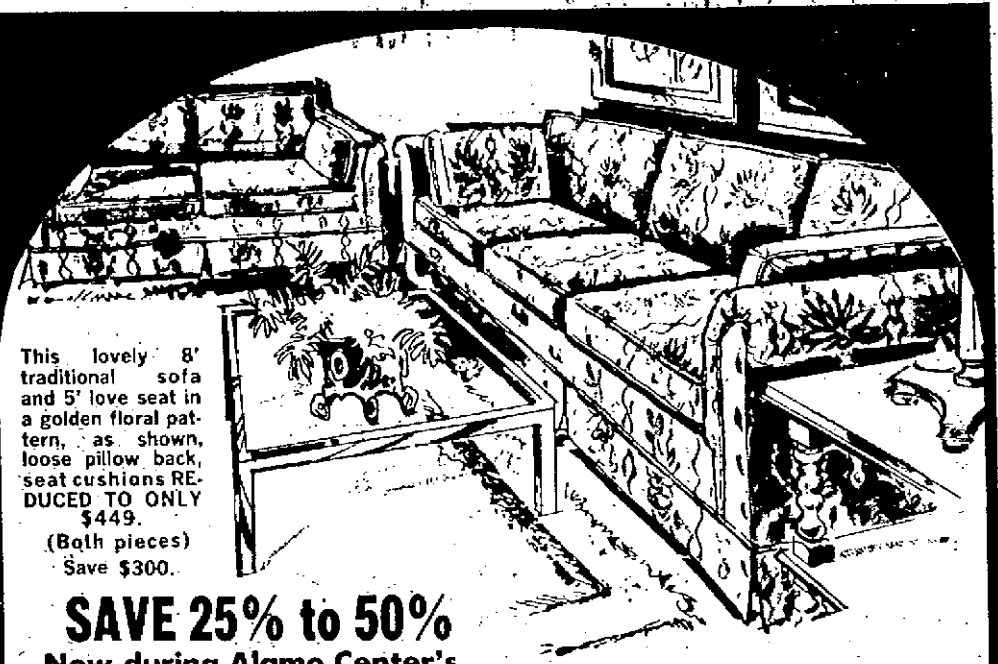

By LEE MARGULIES
Associated Press

For a 40-year-old Englishman, Anthony Page has been part of a lot of American history. First it was the capture and torturous incarceration of the Pueblo crew, then the Cuban missile crisis and now the dramatic showdown between President Harry S. Truman and Gen. Douglas MacArthur. Not that Page has been present for those occasions the first time around. But he has gotten to relive them as director of three so-called "docu-dramas," documentary-like dramatizations of historical events. Following in the footsteps of the highly acclaimed "Pueblo" and "The Missiles of October," Page's latest undertaking, "Collision Course," airs tonight on ABC-TV. Henry Fonda portrays MacArthur and E. G. Marshall plays Truman.

events he knew practically nothing about at the outset. Yet the tall, balding director says being British actually has been an asset. "I'm not so steeped in all sorts of lore that you're saturated with in America," he explained. "It helps me to see things clearer — at least maybe the essential things." Quality material isn't achieved through ignorance, obviously. Page may not have known much about the three topics when he started, but in each case he said he did detailed research before the cameras rolled. For "Collision Course," for example, he read Truman's memoirs, MacArthur's memoirs, numerous biographies of each man and several historical accounts of their controversy and the Korean war.

IT SEEMS odd that an Englishman would be so intimately involved with projects that not only were decidedly American in content but also dealt with

"I READ as much as I can about it," Page said in discussing how he prepares for a "docu-drama." "Because finally, you (Continued Page 15)

SPECIAL

WHAT AMERICA THINKS (4), 1:30 p.m. — An NBC News Poll. Examines the public's attitudes on the major issues of the day and how they feel about the coming election year. John Chancellor, David Brinkley co-anchor. Barbara Walters, Tom Brokaw, John Hart, Catherine Mackin, Tom Petit will participate. (The exact time of this telecast will be determined by the conclusion of the AFC game. Exact time will be announced.)

ABC THEATRE (7), 9:00 p.m. — "Collision Course." Henry Fonda stars as Gen. Douglas MacArthur and E. G. Marshall as Pres. Harry Truman in a compelling story of American history when a soldier and a leader clashed in a highly charged confrontation with the possibility of WW III hinging on the outcome.

MASTERPIECE THEATRE (28), 9:00 p.m. — "Upstairs, Downstairs." (Season Debut). "A Patriotic Offering." Set during WWI, the all-new 13-pt. series opens with the Bellamy household adjusting to a wartime existence with Hazel reluctantly agreeing to house a Belgian refugee family at Eaton Place

Bolster Your Medicare

Get Companion Care.
Now with $300,000
major medical.

Blue Cross Companion Care fills many of the gaps in Medicare. And now it includes $300,000 coverage for major medical-type expenses, such as in-hospital private duty Registered Nurse and outpatient prescription drugs. Today inflation and the recent rise in Medicare deductibles make it especially important to have the added protection of Companion Care.

But to qualify you must inquire by Jan. 31.

Companion Care is designed to supplement both Part A and Part B of Medicare. And it will cover you while traveling outside the United States.

As another benefit, Companion Care is part of the nationally recognized nonprofit Blue Cross organization. It's just good sense to buy health coverage from a long-established company that you know and trust.

To qualify for this protection for yourself—or for a friend or parent—you must inquire by Jan. 31.
Mail the coupon today for an application and easy-to-understand folder detailing coverage and limitations.

CONSUMER INFORMATION: This coupon is a request for additional information, without obligation. It is not an application. To qualify, you must inquire by Jan. 31, 1976, be a resident of Southern California, aged 65 or over. Pre-existing conditions are not covered for six months. By state regulation, this offer cannot be repeated for

RICHARD MASUR plays David Kane, who's in love with the divorced mother of two daughters, on the new comedy series "One Day at a Time," on Ch. 2 at 9:30 p.m. Tuesdays.

Producer named to paramedic unit

Executive producer Robert A. Cinader of NBC's "Emergency!" series has been appointed to the Los Angeles County Paramedic Commission by the County of Los Angeles Board of Supervisors.

He was recommended for the post by Supervisor Peter F. Schabarum. The term of office will extend until Jan. 23, 1978.

"Emergency!" is credited by fire departments across the nation with having created a favorable climate for the establishment of paramedic units in more than 15 states.

Fire episode set on 'The Waltons'

"The Burn Out," a special two-hour segment of "The Waltons," during which a fire rages through the family home, has been scheduled for Thursday evening, Jan. 22, on CBS-TV, according to Andy White, producer of the series.

'Collision Course' drama on Truman, MacArthur

have to know quite a lot because — I mean, the point of view, how something is to be interpreted — the more background knowledge you have the better."

He also was screened newsreel footage of the primary participants in each story to gain additional insight on their personalities.

"Collision Course" covers the period from June 1950 to April 1951, when Truman made the decision to relieve MacArthur as commander of U.S. troops in Korea, a decision which threw the country into controversy and saw the President hanged in effigy.

The only undocumented segment of the film deals with the historic meeting of the two men on Wake Island on Oct. 14, 1950. But even here writer Ernest Kinoy has based his dialogue on what each man reported happened and the transcript of notes made by a military secretary outside the door.

The emphasis is on fairness to each man's position, and, Page says, "this will not radically change anyone's mind, except that people who don't know anything about it might reach an opinion."

PAGE, who is best known in his homeland for his work with the Royal Court Theater, says directing these "docu-dramas" is extremely tough because to misinterpret a speech or a scene or a motivation is to give millions of viewers an incorrect view of history.

"The whole thing is fraught with danger," he says. "Things can be interpreted so many ways, some are bound to be prejudicial one way or another."

Intuition finally comes to play a key role in the process, the director said, because even though a scene may be constructed on an actual transcript, the transcript doesn't say how the words were spoken and how the people looked as they spoke.

That's when his research really pays off, Page said, "because I don't want to do something that's just dramatic and isn't true."

The BIBLE Says

J.I. Smith

QUESTION: "Dear Sirs, In your Bible article of Sunday, October 19th, you stated that Mary Baker Eddy believed she would never die — but she did. Would you please print in your column the name of the book and the page number where you found this information?" (R.W.S.—Long Beach)

In Mary Baker Eddy's book Science and Health, Page 253 she said, and I quote, "I hope, dear reader, I am leading you into the understanding of your divine rights, your heaven-bestowed harmony, — that, as you read you see there is no cause (outside of erring, mortal, material sense which is not powerful) able to make you sick, or sinful; and I hope that you are conquering this false sense. Knowing the falsity of so-called material sense, you can assert your prerogative to overcome the belief in sin, disease, or death." I thought surely since Mrs. Eddy wrote this she believed it.

QUESTION: May one's sins be forgiven by being baptized as an infant. E.E.F.

In the first place, that which the denominational world calls baptism is not. They call sprinkling water on a person baptism. However, there is nothing in the word "baptize," nor in the Bible's teaching concerning the one being baptized, that would include an infant or sprinkling.

The word baptize as is used in the New Testament is defined by God as "being buried in baptism" (Rom. 6:3-6). Also in these passages he says it is a "planting." Thus in Acts 8 when Philip and the eunuch went both down into the water, Philip baptized (buried him) — the eunuch — in water.

Also, an infant is not the proper subject for baptism. Jesus told his apostles, "Go into all the world, and preach the gospel to every creature. He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved; but he that believeth not shall be damned" (Mark 16:15-16). Thus, the subject for baptism is the one who is capable of hearing the gospel and believing it. Needless to say, the infant is not — hence not subject to the instructions of Christ.

Police Story drama cited

NBC's "Police Story" series has been named to receive the National Rehabilitation Association's annual award for "outstanding effort on behalf of the handicapped." Actor David Birney and executive producer Stanley Kallis were cited by the association for their work on the segment entitled "Captain Hook."

Birney and Kallis are the first representatives of the entertainment industry to be so honored in the 26-year history of the award.

RANDOLPH MANTOOTH can't resist a challenge, so when he found himself in a gym full of girl gymnasts during filming of the "Emergency!" episode scheduled to air Saturday night, Jan. 17, he had to try the uneven parallel bars. Admiring teen-aged girls and a few boys from the neighborhood cheered Mantooth on in his amateur efforts. The episode was filmed in the gym at La Canada High School.

MONDAY

"Winchester 73" (1950), 8 p.m., Ch. 9. Good cast and old-time western action of two enemies setting an old score by gunplay. Tony Curtis, James Stewart, Shelly Winters.

"Come Fly With Me" (1963), 1963, 11:30 p.m., Ch. 2. A light-hearted comedy of three overseas airline hostesses who engage in some complicated romancing on a trip to Paris and Vienna. Dolores Hart, Pamela Tiffin, Lois Nettleton, Hugh O'Brian, Karl Malden.

TUESDAY

"Cover Girl" (1944), noon, Ch. 11. Academy Award-winning musical comedy centering around the life a glamorous model, the dancer she loves and a wealthy editor. Rita Hayworth, Gene Kelly, Phil Silvers, Otto Kruger, Eve Arden.

"First Men In The Moon" 3:30 p.m., Ch. 7. Adaptation of an H. G. Wells novel of three astronauts' meeting with an aged discoverer who tells them the story of the first landing on the Moon. Edw. Judd, Lionel Jeffries, Martha Hyer, Erik Chitty.

"Saragoga Trunk" (1946), 8 p.m., Ch. 9. Elaborate but lengthy drama based on Edna Ferber's novel of a beautiful woman with Creole past who returns to New Orleans to lord it over the upper crust. Gary Cooper, Ingrid Bergman.

WEDNESDAY

"Forever Amber" (1947), noon, Ch. 11. Kathleen Winsor's novel, set in the 17th Century, of a country girl who attains success in the Court of Charles II at the cost of the true lover she sought. Linda Darnell, Cornel Wilde, Richard Greene, George Sanders.

"How To Succeed In Business Without Really Trying" (1967), 8 p.m., Ch. 9. Wonderful score-musical comedy from the Broadway hit of a window cleaner who uses glib talk and a book to become Chairman of the Board. Robert Morse, Michele Lee, Rudy Vallee.

"The Count of Monte Cristo" 9 p.m., Ch. 4. Richard Chamberlain is the star of this 2-hr production based on the novel by Alexandre Dumas. Also stars Trevor Howard and Louis Jourdan.

"Tribute To A Bad Man" (1956), 11:30 p.m., Ch. 2. James Cagney stars as a ruthless land baron whose one passion is for horses and who will stop at nothing in his treatment.

TONY CURTIS, who stars as suave con artist "McCoy" on "NBC Sunday Mystery Move," finds himself with women at every turn in a caper he engineers on the episode airing at 9 p.m. Sunday on Ch. 4. Pictured with Curtis are Bernadette Peters (left), who dons disguises to aid in McCoy's hoax; Natalie Schafer (center) as the naive widow he tries to help, and Tony's real-life wife, Leslie (right), as an aviator.

THURSDAY

"Lust For Gold" (1949), noon, Ch. 11. Story of the famous Lost Dutchman gold mine, and a scheming woman who even kills her husband to win its riches. Ida Lupino, Glenn Ford.

"Invasion Earth 2150 A.D." (1967), 3:30 p.m., Ch. 7. A small band of resistance fighters fight to free Earth from an invasion of super-intelligent robots from outer space. Peter Cushing, Bernard Cribbins, Ray Brooks, Andrew Keir.

"Mister Roberts" (1955), 8 p.m. Ch. 9. Misadventures of a U.S. Navy cargo ship during WWII and its beloved 2nd Officer who longs for combat. Henry Fonda, James Cagney, Jack Lemmon.

FRIDAY

"So Young, So Bad" (1950), 1 p.m., Ch. 5. Female delinquents in a N.Y.C. home for wayward girls; those in charge battle over usage of traditional methods versus revolutionary new ideas. Paul Henreid, Anne Francis.

Play by priest set for 'Barnaby Jones'

"Shadow of Guilt," a teleplay by a Jesuit priest about a ghetto priest, has been set by producer Philip Saltzman as an episode of Quinn Martin Productions' "Barnaby Jones." The author is Father Terrance A. Sweeney. Christopher Stone will play the ghetto priest.

Buddy Ebsen and Lee Meriwether star in the series.

"Night Gallery" (1969), 8 p.m., Ch. 9. Rod Serling wrote and introduces three separate supernatural tales. Joan Crawford, Barry Sullivan, Roddy McDowall.

"Super Cops" 9 p.m., Ch. 2. Known as Batman and Robin — two policemen find their wild exploits lead them into conflict with the criminal world and even with their own department. Ron Leibman, David Selby star.

SATURDAY

"Smoky" (1946), 10 a.m., Ch. 11. Based on Will James' classic story of a man's love for a horse and the woman who shared his heart. Fred MacMurray, Anne Baxter.

"Seven Thieves" (1960), 1 p.m., Ch. 5. A comedy of a strange assortment of thieves who gather in Monte Carlo to combine their efforts and pull off a daring 4-million franc robbery. Edw. G. Robinson, Rod Steiger, Joan Collins, Eli Wallach.

"A Star Is Born" (1955), 8 p.m. Ch. 9. Rise of an unknown girl to stardom and the tragedy which results in her personal life. Judy Garland at her best. (Movie will be run uncut.) Also stars James Mason, Charles Bickford, Jack Carson. Directed by George Cukor.

"Oregon Trail" 9 p.m., Ch. 4. Rod Taylor portrays the head of a pioneer family who leave their home in search of a better, freer life out west.

"The Female Instinct" (1972), 11:30 p.m., Ch. 2. Helen Hayes and Mildred Natwick ("The Snoop Sisters"), star as quaint sisters who write murder mysteries for fun and profit, and become involved in an actual murder.

WALTER SCOTT'S Personality Parade

Want the facts? Want to learn the truth about prominent personalities? Want informed opinion? Write Walter Scott, Parade, 733 3rd Ave., New York, N.Y. 10017. Your full name will be used unless otherwise requested. Volume of mail received makes personal replies impossible.

Q. In your opinion who is smarter—Gerald Ford or his wife?—Trudy Schwab, New York City.
A. His wife, but that of course is open to argument.

Q. Isn't Spiro Agnew starting a "rehabilitation program" to prove that he was innocent? Wasn't he guilty as hell of being on the take?—T.K., Baltimore.
A. George Beall, former U.S. Attorney from Maryland who prosecuted Agnew, suggests that people who doubt Agnew's guilt should read the 40 pages of evidence released by the government on the day Agnew resigned pleading "no contest" in October, 1973. Elliot Richardson, who was then U.S. Attorney General, says, "I think it was fortunate in the circumstances that we didn't precipitate a trial [of Agnew] in the Senate at the same time impeachment [of Nixon] was going forward in the House." Richardson says he knew "the result would leave him [Agnew] in a position to make whatever self-serving statements he wanted," but it was worth the price to get Agnew out of office and the case against him on the public record.

Q. Is it on the level that Peter Falk is quitting the "Columbo" TV show? If so, why?—Marsha Weinberg, Chicago, Ill.
A. It's true. Falk says he wants to concentrate on full-length motion pictures.

JULIE CHRISTIE

RYAN O'NEAL

Q. I understand that Julie Christie has turned in Warren Beatty for Ryan O'Neal. What's the story?—R.T., Ventura, Cal.

A. It is impossible to track the sex records of Julie Christie, Warren Beatty and Ryan O'Neal. Suffice it to say that O'Neal and Christie have been dating, but these acting people are not known for their constancy.

Q. Is Mamie Eisenhower giving up the Eisenhower farm in Gettysburg? Is she really moving into a senior citizens complex for military widows in Washington, D.C.?—Ann Kent, Baltimore, Md.

A. Mamie Eisenhower, 79, says she has no intention at this point of moving into a housing complex for senior citizens. "They're too small," she declares. "I want space. I'm used to it." She will continue to reside on the Eisenhower farm in Gettysburg, Pa.

Q. Can you please explain to me what a "cruise missile" is? I read about them all the time, but I don't know what they are.—Patience Welles, Cambridge, Mass.

A. A cruise missile is a pilotless airplane, about 18 feet long and 18 inches wide. Cruise missiles are equipped with sophisticated computer guidance systems, can fly at heights of 200 feet and conceivably escape detection by enemy radar. They can be launched from planes, submarines, surface vessels, trains and tanks. They are having a revolutionary impact on SALT II discussions with the Soviets.

Q. Why would attorney Louis Nizer represent clients like Moe Dalitz and Allard Rosen, formerly of Las Vegas and now involved with Rancho La Costa, Cal.?—T.O., San Diego, Cal.

A. Possibly for several reasons: (1) money (2) legal challenge (3) Nizer's fundamental belief that every man is entitled to the best legal counsel he can obtain. Louis Nizer is a lawyer of the highest principles. No lawyer should be judged by the background of his clients. Edward Bennett Williams, for example, one of the nation's outstanding criminal lawyers, defended gangster Frank Costello, labor leader James Hoffa and former Texas Gov. John Connally.

Q. When Sen. Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania retires from the U.S. Senate, who takes over as the Republican leader?—D.H.H., Lancaster, Pa.

A. Either Sen. Robert Griffin of Michigan or Sen. John Tower of Texas.

Q. Once and for all, did Marilyn Monroe have an affair with the late President John F. Kennedy or did she not?—F.T., Albany, N.Y.

A. There are only two people who know the answer to that question. Both are dead. Marilyn told a few of her most intimate friends, among them columnist Sidney Skolsky, that she was trysting with Kennedy. Some chose to believe her; others did not.

Q. I was told that Pat Boone at one time joined a far-out religious group, that he took dope, that he and his wife separated because of it. What is the truth?—Anna E. Guaragna, Modesto, Cal.

A. Not a word of truth to that rumor. Boone has always lived a clean, wholesome, religious, Christian life with his wife and four daughters.

PAT BOONE AND HIS WIFE SHIRLEY
FLANKED BY THEIR FOUR DAUGHTERS

Q. Read recently that Muhammad Ali, the heavyweight champ, was going to make his film debut for Columbia Pictures in the story of his life. Didn't Ali have a part in "Requiem for a Heavyweight" many years ago?—Lana Barnsdale, Ft. Worth, Tex.

A. Yes, under his old name, Cassius Clay, he appeared in a boxing sequence opposite actor Tony Quinn.

Q. Who or what is SAVAK?—Peter Hackett, Seattle, Wash.

A. SAVAK is an acronym for Sazemane Attalat Va Anmiate Keshvar, the state security and intelligence organization of Iran. It is headed by the Shah's favorite general, Nematullah Nassai, 68. Iran is an absolute monarchy, a one-party dictatorship. The function of SAVAK is to seek out and destroy dissenters. Other security and intelligence organizations in Iran are J2 and the Special Intelligence Bureau.

In Peking, Gerald Ford, Chinese Vice Premier Teng Hsiao-ping and Henry Kissinger: Until the U.S. changes its China

policy, ending recognition of Taiwan, U.S. leaders' trips to Peking are essentially little more than window dressing.

China expert John Service on our China policy: "We're sitting on a time bomb."

The U.S. and Two Chinas

by Lloyd Shearer

WASHINGTON, D.C.

One of the major reasons Henry Kissinger and Richard Nixon established relations with the People's Republic of China in 1972 was to provide the U.S. with leverage in Soviet-American affairs.

The Soviets have long felt that with 800 million people, the Chinese would be able to tolerate a nuclear attack and that eventually Chinese armies might sweep across Siberia and advance to the gates of Moscow.

The Chinese, on the other hand, have long believed that a Soviet attack is inevitable, which is why they have dug deep tunnels beneath their cities.

Building on those fears, Kissinger and Nixon attempted to make the U.S. the fulcrum in the balancing of power: If the Soviets got too uppish, the U.S. would become more friendly with China. If China became too forward, the U.S. would tilt towards the Soviets.

What has gone wrong with that policy is this: The Soviets simply do not believe that the U.S. would join forces with the Chinese or help them defeat the Soviets. They see no indication of any U.S. implementation of the so-called "Shanghai Agreement," which the U.S. signed with the People's Republic of China in 1972. In that agreement we acknowledged "that there is but one China and that Taiwan is a part of China."

Peking believes that normalization with the U.S. will be accomplished only when the U.S. breaks diplomatic ties with Taiwan, the U.S. withdraws its men from Taiwan, and the U.S. abrogates its 1954 Mutual Security Treaty with Taiwan. Until then, visits to Peking by Kissinger and Ford essentially constitute window dressing. Surely, they have little or no effect on restraining offensive Soviet foreign policy.

Worry over future

Several weeks ago, John Stewart Service, an expert Sinologist, one of the old China hands and one of the Foreign Service victims of the McCarthy era, told a Stanford University audience "we're sitting on a time bomb," insofar as America's two-China policy is concerned.

According to Service, basically "nothing has changed" in the U.S. relationship with Peking since the Nixon visit of 1972.

"We have established a liaison office in Peking, and we have exchanged a series of personnel, but we have done nothing to unfreeze Mainland assets in the U.S. nor have we established a most favored nation treaty."

Service pointed out that the Chinese

are buying more goods from us than we are buying from them. He also noted that we are building two nuclear plants on Taiwan. "What happens," he asked rhetorically, "if they [the Taiwanese] develop their own A-bomb and declare their independence?"

Since signing the "Shanghai Agreement" in 1972, the U.S. has given Taiwan 85 fighter planes, four destroyers, more than 100 tanks, has helped build a factory in which the Taiwanese can produce additional F-105 fighters.

Large investment

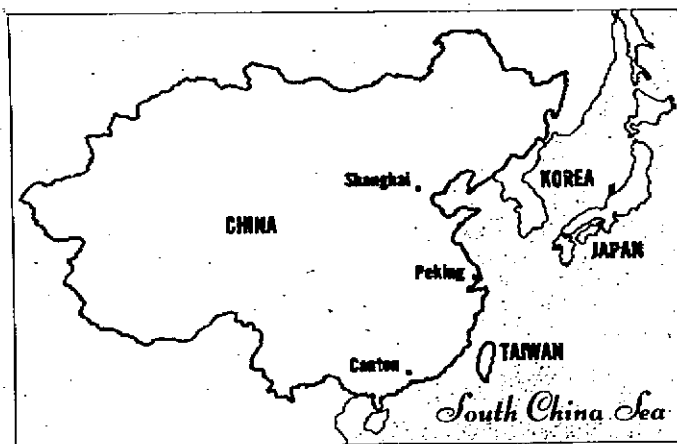

Moreover, U.S. industry and government agencies have invested more than $500 million in Taiwan. We now have eight branches of U.S. banks in Taiwan, six more than we had in 1972, and the U.S. Export-Import Bank extends Taiwan unlimited credit.

All of this constitutes a direct challenge to the People's Republic of China, and the only reason the PRC tolerates our two-China policy is fear of the Soviet Union.

"Secretary of State Kissinger sees all foreign relations as a bargaining process," Service maintains. "Washington wants them [Mainland Chinese] to get so mad that they'll bargain, but the Chinese won't play that game."

President Ford, obsessed with domestic politics, fearful of Ronald Reagan on the Republican right, is afraid of breaking with Taiwan this year and normalizing U.S. relations with the People's Republic of China. If he waits too long, he risks the danger of a thaw between the Soviet Union and the People's Republic of China.

We will then face the ugly, threatening specter of the world's two largest, most powerful Communist nations in league against the United States.

Only 110 miles separate the island of Taiwan from Mainland China. U.S. and Japanese aid has given Taiwan a strong economy and a well-equipped army.

SLEEPER MISSILES

One of the newest secret American weapons, designed to strike fear into the hearts of the Soviets, is the SIAM--the Self-Initiated Antiaircraft Munition.

Supposedly the SIAM consists of a cluster of small missiles with an independent firing and guidance brain. The SIAMs are dropped from the air around enemy airfields. They lie dormant on the ground until a plane takes off. As soon as it does, the plane's noise activates the sensitive electronic ear of the SIAM. When the noise reaches a level which indicates the plane is within range, the SIAM goes into action, homing in on the heat from the plane's exhaust and blowing the plane to bits.

News of this sophisticated weapon appears in the latest edition of "Jane's All the World Aircraft," which sells for around $70 a copy.

John Taylor, editor of the so-called "Aircraft Bible," says, "SIAM is a top secret program in the U.S., highly classified. We aren't able to say too much about it."

WHAT PRICE ALCOHOL

There are roughly 9 million citizens with serious drinking problems in the U.S.

More than 25,000 alcohol-related traffic fatalities, 15,000 alcohol-related homicides and suicides, 20,000 deaths from alcohol-related diseases, 20,000 fatalities due to alcohol-related accidents, and 2 million arrests for simple drunkenness are recorded annually.

One out of every 10 U.S.

workers is an alcoholic or has a serious drinking problem, resulting in an estimated $25-billion-a-year drain on the economy. More serious is that fewer than 10% of all citizens who have drinking problems receive any treatment.

THE WORLD'S CATHOLICS

Although the number of Roman Catholics in the world has grown to almost 690 million, the number of priests, monks, and brothers has decreased.

The Vatican Statistical Yearbook for 1973, containing the latest available figures, shows that 688,991,000 Roman Catholics constitute 18.3% of the world's total population of 3,803,999,000.

The largest concentrations of Roman Catholics are in South, Central and North America.

The yearbook reveals that the number of diocesan priests and male members of religious orders decreased from 417,774 in 1972 to 413,672 in 1973.

BIGGEST FEAR

The Swiss people, conservative, industrious, and thrifty by nature, fear communism more than anything else.

A survey commissioned by "Weltwoche," a Zurich newspaper, reveals that 62% of the Swiss regard communism as their greatest threat.

After that, they most fear extremists of any type, then the Soviet Union, the Arabs, the Chinese, multinational corporations, and progressive organizations. According to the poll, the United States constitutes for the Swiss their ninth greatest threat.

BING CROSBY IN ENGLAND

GOOD TURN

When Bing Crosby was in England last summer, recording with Fred Astaire, he spent some of his spare time as a guest of Godfrey Bostock, who owns a shooting lodge in Yorkshire. Bing had such a good time that without any publicity he contributed $2000 to the Playing Field Fund at Kirkby Malzeard, near Ripon.

When the people in this little English village heard about Bing's generosity, one of them said, "He's not only a fine singer, he's a fine gentleman."

SOCIAL SECURITY NEWS

Starting this year the maximum amount that a Social Security beneficiary can earn and still obtain all his benefits will increase to $2760 a year. Last year the figure was $2520.

People who earn more than $2760 in 1976 may still receive some benefits, but for every two dollars above $2760 they earn, they may lose one dollar in their benefits for the year.

BEWARE BREAST INJECTIONS

Small-breasted women who want larger breasts, do not let any physician inject liquid silicone into your bust! Such injections can be lethal.

The Oct. 20 issue of the "Journal of the American Medical Association" carried an article in which three New York physicians report on several cases of serious illness and one death among individuals who had been injected with liquid silicone to augment breasts.

Two were transsexual men and the others were women. Dr. Richard Ellenbogen of Stony Brook Medical School, East Meadow, N.Y., and his colleagues reported that granules of the silicone had migrated through the body and had entered the liver.

In one case a woman died 10 hours after she was injected under each breast with large doses of silicone. The drug was found in her lungs, kidneys, liver, brain and blood.

There is nothing harmful, however, about the surgical implantation technique of breast augmentation. In this method, silicone gel within a silicone rubber sac is implanted beneath the breasts. There have been at least 100,000 such surgical implantations since 1962 with no adverse effects. The sac or envelope prevents the silicone from wandering. The wandering is apparently what causes the trouble.

Some plastic surgeons have been using small amounts of silicone for wrinkle removal. They inject silicone with a fine needle above a wrinkle and let the silicone fill the crease. Dow Corning of Midland, Mich., manufacturers of silicone, have applied to the Food and Drug Administration for a new drug license regarding silicone, but as of this writing it has not been granted.

Dr. Ellenbogen and his team write that "adverse systemic effects of silicone injections suggests that considerable ongoing clinical research is needed before release of this potentially lethal and debilitating substance into general clinical use."

FACTS AND FIGURES

More than 18 million Americans were unemployed at some time during 1974, almost 4 million more than in 1973.

One-third of all construction workers and one-fifth of all factory workers were unemployed sometime during 1974.

Five million, 600 thousand workers were unemployed for 15 weeks or more in 1974, compared with 4.3 million in 1973.

The inflation rate from September, 1974, to September, 1975, was 7.8%, which means a worker bought more with his average weekly take-home pay 10 years ago than he does today.

WOMEN ARE STRONGER

Why is it that women run less risk of suffering heart attacks than men--especially between the ages of 18-50? Dr. William Kannel, the heart specialist from Framingham, Mass., feels the reason for less susceptibility of the female sex lies in their hormonal difference.

ECLIPSE-CHASERS

If you're looking for an unusual trip--for an even more unusual purpose--you might consider joining an eclipse-chasing group. Such expeditions have become the latest vogue among travelers, amateur astronomers, photographers and others in search of adventure and suspense.

The adventure comes from journeying to the site where a total solar eclipse will be visible. These celestial events have a habit of taking place in remote zones like northern Kenya (1973) and southwestern Australia (1974). The suspense comes from the gamble of viewing the eclipse at all, because if clouds roll in at the last minute the whole show may be blotted out.

Prof. Frederick E. Trinklein, a teacher and author from Brookville, N.Y., thinks the thrill of seeing an eclipse outweighs the possible frustration of making so long a jaunt for nothing. "I've led four eclipse-chasing expeditions all over the world for the past five years," says Trinklein. "I've only had one wash-out, over Quebec Province in July, '72."

The unofficial amateur eclipse-watching record is held by Harry Grahl, a semi-retired businessman from New Jersey. Since 1924 he's been on hand for the event nine times, and only once did the weather ruin the show. "Each one is different," says Grahl.

Everyone agrees that a total eclipse--with the moon moving between the sun and the earth, thus turning a narrow area dark for up to five minutes or so--is one of the most awesome natural spectacles to be seen in a lifetime. In fact, eclipses used to scare the daylights--so to speak--out of people before they knew what caused them.

The computer has made it possible to predict with total accuracy the place and time of eclipses far into the future. In case you want to make your plans early, here's the schedule for the next eight years:

REFUGEES ON RELIEF

Approximately 53% and possibly many more of the refugees from Southeast Asia who settled in California are on welfare. The percentage of welfare refugees may even reach 80% by the end of this month when Mario Obledo, state secretary of health and welfare, obtains the latest data.

JEAN BELL AND RICHARD BURTON

BURTON, THE GRATEFUL

Many actors are tightwads, which is understandable when one considers the transiency of their fame and the insecurity of their occupation.

At 50, however, Richard Burton, if anything, is generous to a fault, especially to the women and children in his life.

Latest example of his kindness involves a black actress from Los Angeles who prefers to call herself Jean Bell. It was she who looked after Burton when he was on the bottle in Italy some months ago. Burton was then depressed, having fallen out with the two Elizabeths -- Taylor, to whom he is again married, and the Princess of Yugoslavia, with whom he had a fast fling.

Before Burton departed from Jean Bell, he performed a most generous and thoughtful act. He suggested that she enroll her 13-year-old son, Troy, in Geneva International School in Switzerland. He would pay the tuition and expenses, which come to $5000 a year.

Miss Bell agreed and sent her son off to Geneva, where he made friends with Leighton Taylor, Elizabeth Taylor's 15-year-old nephew from Kauai, the garden island of the Hawaiian chain.

Word comes now, however, that young Troy Bell, lonesome and unable to adjust to the Geneva boarding school, has returned to his mother in Los Angeles.

If there is some other prep school he prefers, Troy need do little more than get in touch with Burton. The actor will see to it that tuition is paid. Richard Burton has not forgotten Jean Bell's care and kindness.

Police in New York and San Francisco are learning new ways to cope with the growing numbers of gunmen taking hostages. Here, patience and psychology pay off in capture of Ray "Cat" Olssen holding 10 in a New York City bank. Police talked with him, gave him beer and jumped him when he got drowsy.

How Police Hostage Squads Avert Bloodshed

by L.H. Whittemore

"I've gone this far," the gunman yelled. "I got nothing to lose. I may die, but so will they."

"You don't have to tell me," the police officer shouted back. "You hold all the marbles. We want to do the right thing."

"What's going on out there?"

"Don't get nervous. We're just opening the door. Don't panic. We want to make sure you can hear us."

The officer, Lt. Frank Bolz of New York City, held a bullhorn in one hand and a periscope in the other as he peered around the corner and crouched to one side of the bank's front door.

Meanwhile a crazed young man nicknamed "Cat" held a shotgun and a revolver on four customers and six employees, keeping them hostage.

That scene last October has become all too commonplace across the nation. The setting could also be a store, an office, an apartment or house. Barricaded inside, a gunman or group has threatened to kill the hostages unless certain demands are met.

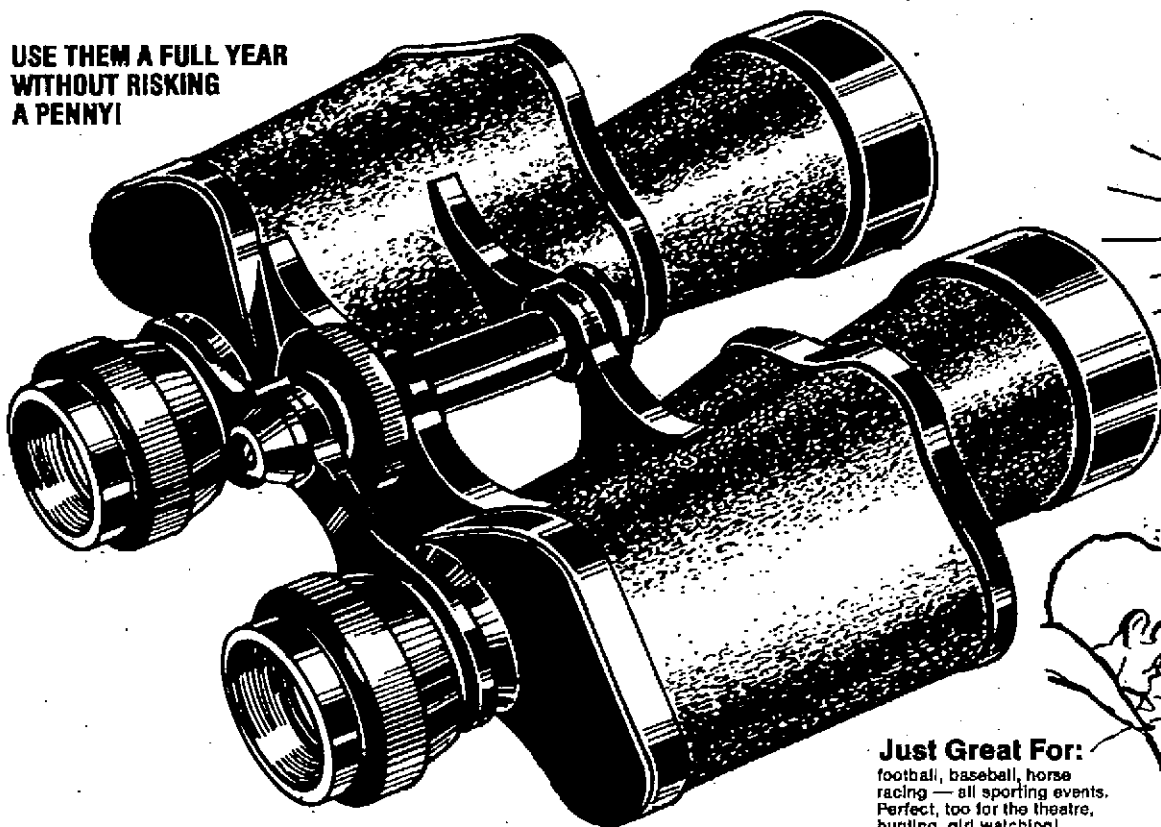

How should the police respond? Break down the door? Shoot their way in? Play it all by intuition?

Neil Cheney is a Wheeled Vehicle Mechanic at Fort Lewis, Washington.

"I wanted to work on diesels. Back home, there aren't many places where you can do that. And the way I would've learned—hanging around a good mechanic, picking it up—that's okay, but not as fast as I'm learning now. The Army starts you off with school. You learn the fundamentals. My instructors were good, always coming right to the point about how something works. As for on the job experience, one look at a motor pool will tell you the Army has enough of that for everybody."

HOSTAGES CONTINUED

These days many officers are arriving not only with guns and brawn, but with a new set of psychological concepts and techniques as well. They come ready to shoot if necessary, but more often now to plead, persuade, cajole and coax.

"It's a whole new solution," says Lt. Richard Klapp of San Francisco, "a progressive, different approach to law enforcement's real dilemma in this age. Because not a day goes by somewhere in the world when somebody isn't taking a hostage. So we're taking a positive step, through training and a new philosophy, by dealing with these people psychologically and negotiating instead of getting into bloodshed."

Proud of the record

So far there has been widespread interest among the nation's policemen and almost-perfect records of preserving lives. "We've never lost anybody," says Bolz, who has commanded New York's 70-member hostage unit since its inception in early 1972. "The suspects haven't gotten away either," he adds.

Detective Harvey Schlossberg, a clinical psychologist with the New York department, has been something of a pioneer in the new approach. "The basic, overriding philosophy is that human life is the most important variable," he says. "Everything else can be manipulated, dealt with, replaced."

New York and San Francisco have the most advanced hostage units. At least 150 police organizations in the country have expressed interest in the program and about 15 have put representatives through Schlossberg's training course. Among the latter are federal agencies such as the FBI, the Secret Service and the State Department. They also include the North Carolina State Bureau of Investigation, the Michigan State Police, Nassau and Suffolk counties in New York, plus Richmond, Va., and Hackensack, N.J. But a large number of major cities, such as Chicago and Los Angeles, have expressed little or no concern with it.

"It's not unanimously accepted in the profession," says Lieutenant Klapp in San Francisco. "There are still a lot of people who just don't believe in it. The philosophy challenges some basic, traditional police precepts such as, 'We don't sit and let anybody dictate our circumstances,' because it does involve sitting and waiting—two weeks, if need be—to preserve the safety of the hostages. That's difficult for 'men of action' who are accustomed to taking charge of a situation and resolving it. So it's an alien precept. The fact that it's worked every time doesn't seem to influence the critics."

New York's squad is the only formal one, with eight lieutenants, five sergeants and 62 detectives under Chief Louis Cottell who are trained as negotiators. All are carefully screened volunteers, called away from regular duty only when needed. The unit includes 12 blacks, 12 Hispanics, two women and experts in bombs, firearms and even karate. Members range in age from 26 to 55 and speak at least a dozen foreign languages.

The traditional way to combat a hostage-taker is with tear gas and guns. In this Tahoe, Cal., case last fall, a hostage died and a detective was wounded.

San Francisco has 10 trained negotiators. Most are in the Patrol Division, not actually assigned to the hostage unit but available in a crisis if they happen to be on duty.

"To be very frank," says Klapp, "I've had considerable difficulty over my role in this, because of opposition here in administrative circles. Detective Schlossberg came out in April, 1974, and held a basic course for top officials, but only a little group of us bought it."

Does it amount to "coddling" of gunmen, as some opponents contend? Schlossberg answers by citing the Middle East, where "the surrender-or-be-killed tactic hasn't discouraged anybody yet."

Response to critics

Schlossberg also tells critics to imagine that they themselves, or their loved ones, are the hostages. "At that moment," he says, "you wouldn't want the police to say, 'Now we're going to teach all criminals a lesson.' I think I'd want to come out alive. That would be more important to me than whether we're coddling criminals. That aspect can be dealt with later."

The new movement began after two incidents in 1972. That summer, a bizarre holdup siege at a Brooklyn bank involved eight hostages and lasted 15 hours. The ordeal, which became the basis for the current movie Dog Day Afternoon, resulted in an FBI agent killing one of the bandits at Kennedy Airport. A few weeks later, in September, came the Munich tragedy, in which Israeli Olympic athletes were first held and then killed by Arab terrorists.

As a result, Chief Simon Eisdorfer of New York City suggested formation of a program to deal with similar situations. Guidelines were drawn and some 500 ranking officers began one-day seminars and training courses, complete with role-playing skits.

"It gave everybody an opportunity to think in a new way," Lieutenant Bolz recalls, "and we started realizing the ramifications of going one way or the other."

Sessions went on for three months, ending in January of 1973, just in time for a crucial test. "Almost as if it were a final exam," Bolz says, four Muslims walked into a sporting-goods store and held a dozen persons captive for 47 hours. One officer was killed, two were wounded and a Muslim was shot, but all hostages came out safely.

Nobody injured

New York then began screening and training its volunteer detectives. So far three classes of "negotiators" have been graduated and their training continues. They made 22 "runs" in 1974 and 21 this year, with more than a dozen cases lasting longer than two hours. Each time the hostages, policemen, bystanders and suspects have been unharmed.

"It's always a team effort," says Bolz. Aside from police sharpshooters and emergency-service personnel, there are "backup" negotiators and intelligence-gatherers who continually feed in new information about the suspect. During the bank siege in October, for example, the cops took a photograph of "Cat" and enabled Bolz to call him by name before he identified himself.

In that case, Bolz spoke to the gunman almost nonstop for the first seven hours, but by telephone only. "I tried to keep everything on a positive basis," he recalls. "Most people involved could be either suicidal or homicidal, so you keep it at the problem-solving level. There has to be a way out for him. You don't block all his avenues."

For the final 45 minutes, Bolz was forced to crouch near the door and use his bullhorn, but the young man had become "very, very down" in mood. Fortunately "Cat" requested some beer, which Bolz sent into the bank, and before long he became drowsy and nearly fell asleep. Two of the hostages lunged for the weapons while emergency-service cops ran inside and grabbed him.

"That one happened to be on center stage," Bolz says, "but lots of jobs we get are in hallways and tenements and they're just as dramatic and important. We had one in the Bronx where a gunman held five kids up there. One of them was a deaf mute. We went all night until 6 a.m., until he finally gave up. Each case is heart-tugging and a tremendous strain on the negotiator, both physically and emotionally."

Hard work

Lieutenant Klapp can attest to that experience all too well. He has negotiated two of San Francisco's three hostage situations since the unit was formed in the spring of 1974. In one case, a demented father held his 6-year-old child hostage inside his home for more than three hours. Klapp spoke with him face-to-face while the man brandished a cocked automatic weapon.

"He finally surrendered," Klapp says, "but I walked out of that one saying, 'Gee, do I really want to be in this?' It's usually a desperate thing. It's as critical as anything we encounter in law enforcement. You're really talking about life and death at every moment. By the same token, it's a tool that we've never had before."

In another San Francisco case, Klapp negotiated by telephone with a gunman who held seven hostages in a supermarket from 6:30 a.m. until 2 p.m. That one and a third, handled by another trained negotiator, also ended with success.

Generally there are three types of suspect. One is the professional criminal, usually a holdup man seeking a means of escape. "You can rationalize easier with him," says Bolz. "The objective is to slow it down, utilize the time, and gain the advantage."

Time is a factor

Most dangerous, Bolz points out, is the political terrorist who is less amenable to persuasion. "He may be a kamikaze-type, so you need to give him time to make a mistake. A lot of them are just looking for a stage, so that time can work in our favor."

But perhaps most complex are suspects with only psychological problems. "We deal with their anxiety level and bring it down to more manageable proportions," Bolz says.

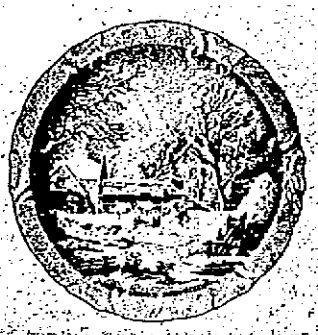

"Whenever one of these things happens," says Klapp, "some other poor soul may be motivated to try it. Invariably they are failures in life, one way or another, and suddenly it's a step to notoriety. So a core of men here is staying on top of things, increasing our knowledge. Because we haven't seen the last of it."

Today's Housing Solution: The Compact House

by Carl Norcross

DALLAS, TEX.

When the 50,000 members of the National Association of Home Builders get together in Dallas Jan. 18 for their annual convention, a major topic of discussion will be "The Affordable [or Compact] House."

Men who have been building smaller—and cheaper—houses will be telling their colleagues how to do it.

Compact houses are being built in several major metropolitan areas, and the idea is spreading. Even the federal Department of Housing and Urban Development has had architects working for more than a year designing compacts for its Basic Homes Program.

Home builders are following the lead of Detroit's automakers in turning out compacts. Compact houses, like compact cars, are cheaper to buy and operate. They are reversing the 25-year trend during which houses have grown steadily larger and more expensive until today the average family can't afford the average house.

Generally compacts are priced from the low $20,000's to around $30,000, but a few can be found in Florida and Arizona for as little as $17,000. Designed for families earning $12,000 to $14,000 a year, they open up housing to people who would otherwise rent apartments.

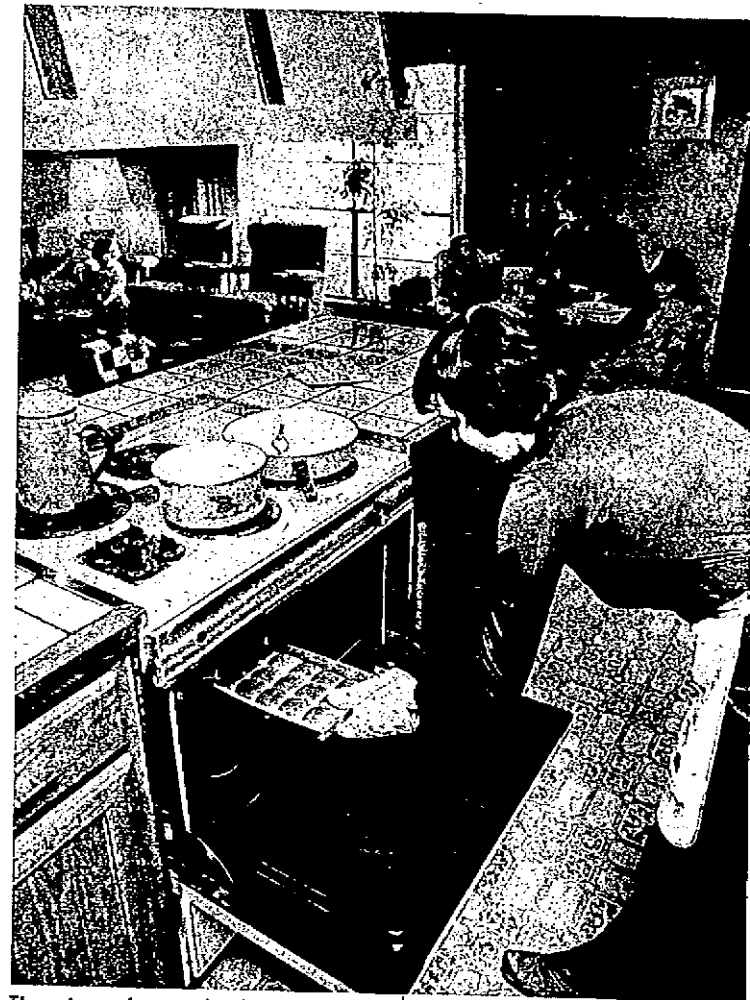

One-third smaller

While the average house of the past few years has about 1700 square feet of floor space, the compacts are one-third smaller—most ranging from 900 to 1200. But, like the one the Larry Piersons bought in Dallas for $21,600, many include a surprising number of amenities. The Pierson house has three bedrooms, two baths, an oversize garage, equipped kitchen, fireplace and air conditioning.

"We looked at more expensive houses," says Pierson, a Dallas fireman, "but couldn't see making such a huge down payment; we'd have nothing left over for extras. And the monthly payments here are within our budget. This is the most for the money we've seen."

Said Bob and Janet Simmons, both in their early 20's, who bought a similar house: "We'd been looking for over two years but couldn't afford what we saw. This is perfect."

After a down payment of $500, which includes closing costs, the buyers of compacts in Dallas pay $200 a month for mortgage, interest and taxes. "The price and terms were just right for us," said Ray King, who with his wife Shirley, both in their mid-20's, works at Medical City in North Dallas. "In the town where we lived before you could buy either a 25-year-old house or a custom-built one. We couldn't afford either."

The only way for most families to own a home today is to buy less home. Here, Dallas fireman Larry Pierson, his wife, Sandy, and their three children, shown on today's cover, have dinner; the kitchen, living and dining rooms are in a single area.

$200 a month

These low-priced houses did not come easily. "Our special task force worked a full year to get costs down," says Dave Fox, head of Fox & Jacobs, a 28-year-old building firm. "We started with the specific aim of designing for families who could afford monthly payments of only $200."

Compact houses fit in with the ecological mood of people today, especially young marrieds. Smaller houses save lumber, steel, aluminum and other materials. Because they are insulated and tightly built, they conserve natural fuels and electricity.

Such compacts also fit in with the nonsense attitude of women who want full value for every dollar they spend. "I'm not looking for frills," said a young woman shopping for houses in Maryland. "I want value first and amenities second." Couples touring model homes ask sharp questions about such things as heat loss, insulation rating and the efficiency of heat pumps.

Frank E. Mackle Jr., whose Deltona Corporation has built thousands of Florida houses, commented, "Our back-to-basics houses started as a temporary solution to the recession. Now it looks like this is what we're going to have to live with from here on in. It's just like people driving smaller cars and drinking beer instead of Scotch." His compacts range from $17,980 to $31,900, and it was his low prices that brought retired state policeman Frank Bierwieler and his family to Florida from Bath, N.Y.

Up-to-date plans

Compacts are also in tune with today's smaller families. More young wives are working—60 per cent or more in many cities, in contrast with 40 per cent a few years ago. They are postponing their first child and many are having one or two children rather than three or four. They can live comfortably in a two-bedroom house, which in fact may be larger in floor space than some $75,000 condominium apartments.

Extra space is a great luxury when you can afford it. But houses in recent years have had more space than average-income families can afford. It had gotten so that people wouldn't buy a house if it didn't have a family room, which is really a second living room. Who needs it? Not young couples struggling to furnish one living room and the rest of the house. Most new houses also had two dining areas: one in or next to the kitchen and a separate formal dining room. The compacts have one dining area, bedrooms are smaller, and additional money is saved by eliminating halls and extra bathrooms. The size of garages has been cut, or the garage eliminated. Many two-car garages of existing houses are used for storage and cars are parked in the driveway—demonstrating that garages in some climates are not as necessary as people thought.

Carmakers' lesson

Builders have learned another lesson from automakers: get your base price down by offering optional extras. Not every family needs or can afford a dishwasher, washer-dryer or a new refrigerator when they move in. Many can get along without air conditioning, a downstairs powder room or a fireplace.

Buyers of bi-level or split-level houses can save $2500 or more if they leave the lower floor unfinished. Rooms have unfinished walls and floors, no lighting fixtures, and bathrooms have no fixtures. Such rooms can be finished when needed.

Some builders are using fewer windows, which saves construction as well as heating and cooling costs. Almost all use more factory-built components, saving lumber and time on the job.

HOUSES CONTINUED

"The biggest dilemma facing builders today is what to take out to make houses affordable, and what to leave in to make them salable," says New York's Edward C. Birkner, publisher of a housing newsletter that specializes in reporting new trends. Almost no one buys a stripped-down car, because people are willing to pay for extra features. That same thinking carries over to houses. They have grown larger and more expensive year by year because the stripped-down houses wouldn't sell either. But the new smaller houses do sell now.

The price of land

Whether prices in your city will ever reach as low as $25,000 or even $30,000 depends on the cost of land and of turning it into buildable lots. Lots are getting smaller for compacts, but that isn't enough. Around Washington, D.C., and some other cities, land prices are so high there is little chance for any house under $35,000. The country's largest home builder, Ryan Homes of Pittsburgh, builds in nine states. Prices vary widely. A house that sells for $25,000 in Louisville is $10,000 or $12,000 more in the Virginia and Maryland suburbs of Washington.

But whatever the price, waning affluence is forcing changes that may already have come to your area.

The "Dundee" by Ryan Homes, America's largest builder, may come with unfinished lower level; $25,450 in Columbus, Ohio.

CHEAP!

"I should have had a copy of this book when I started housekeeping," says Lady Bird Johnson. "It is indeed the most remarkable compilation of information between two covers, a regular encyclopedia, and I believe it will become a handbook in every American home."

Mrs. Johnson is talking about the text that forms the basis of the monumental new reference work The Cheap Book: The Moneysworth Consumer Encyclopedia. This volume is, indeed, the fundamental book on straightening out the financial side of your life. Its chief feature, of course, is telling you how to get the most for your money in buying such items as appliances, hi-fi's, furniture and automobiles. But the book also reveals how to obtain free medical services, cut your food bill, locate a house that will appreciate in value, get mortgage money cheaply, reduce your electric bill drastically, recognize home furnishings that will increase in value in time, negotiate for installment credit at lowest rates, plan a family budget, rearrange your kitchen to save motion and money, select children's books and toys that give you your money's worth, enjoy vacations for a song, and buy just the right kinds of insurance—whether automobile, theft, fire or life—and in precisely the right amounts. In short, The Cheap Book: The Moneysworth Consumer Encyclopedia gives you at once the kind of wisdom that it normally takes years of bitter experience to acquire.

The Cheap Book: The Moneysworth Consumer Encyclopedia is mammoth in both size and scope. It consists of 496 two-column, large-size pages and over a quarter of a million words of hard-to-come-by information and sage advice. The work is divided into one hundred and forty chapters and subchapters, and its index alone occupies eight pages and contains two thousand, four hundred entries. The text is supplemented by illustrations, floor plans, botanical drawings, menus, charts, maps, calorie tables, and so on.

Contributors to this historic work include one hundred and thirty-three top experts in the field of consumer affairs. Among them are the Surgeon General of the United States, Secretary of Agriculture, heads of over 20 schools of home economics of leading universities, high-echelon officials of consumer-protection agencies (like the Food and Drug Administration) and renowned chemists, nutritionists, biologists, architects, economists, etc., etc., etc. Together they constitute the most formidable think tank of experts ever assembled in behalf of the consumer.

Critics who've seen the original text upon which this work is based speak of it with the zeal of apostles. Says The Wall Street Journal: "Want to know how to replace a broken zipper, lose weight, save money on food, choose the right educational toy for your child? How to build a patio, wire a garage, get rid of crabgrass? If you do, beat a path to this how-to book covering just about every practical question you can think of relating to food, clothing and shelter." Parade: "A must for every household." The Washington Star: "Reads like a letter from a wise old uncle and covers just about everything but choosing a mate." The Washington Post: "A handy-dandy guide bulging with tips on everything from dog bites to a working wife." Associated Press: "An all-knowing almanac." Federal Times: "A standard reference book for the homemaker and handyman." The New York Times: "Packs into 496 pages thousands of how-to-do-it facts for everyday living."

The editors of Moneysworth are pleased to announce that, as befits an extraordinary work of this kind, The Moneysworth Consumer Encyclopedia is not being distributed in the usual way: It is not being offered for sale; it is being given away—ABSOLUTELY FREE—to all those who enter eight-month subscriptions to Moneysworth.

How much does a subscription to Moneysworth cost? Incredibly, ONLY $2.99! And, as we said, you get the encyclopedia ABSOLUTELY FREE!

In case you're not familiar with Moneysworth, let us explain that it is (as New York critic Robert Reisner has stated) "By far, America's most trustworthy and useful consumer publication." It rates products as to best buys (as among cars, cameras, and the like); it offers tips on how to save money (they will astound you with their ingenuity); and it reports important news concerning the management of your personal finances (telling not only how to reap maximum returns on your savings but also how to protect yourself against the ravages of inflation). Moneysworth commenced publication not too long ago but already has become the most widely read newsletter in the world (with nearly a million readers).

Here's a list of the kinds of articles Moneysworth prints:

- Cars that Are Stingiest with Gas
- How to Earn 12½% on Your Savings
- Air Travel at 50% Off
- Low-Cost Life Insurance for Non-Smokers
- How to Save 20% on Your Food Bill
- Pantyhose that Won't Let You Down

In short, Moneysworth is an ever-ready, up-to-the-minute source of consumer intelligence. It's your trusty aide-de-camp in the battle of the marketplace.

The editors of Moneysworth are a team of hard-nosed, experienced journalists with considerable expertise in the fields of consumer-affairs and quality periodical publishing. The publisher is Ralph Ginzburg, creator of the classic magazines Eros and Avant-Garde. Moneysworth's editor-in-chief is Betty Pier, formerly of Fact magazine, and its art director is Herb Lubalin. Radiating from this nucleus of editorial energy are reporters, researchers, product-testers and consultants throughout the United States. Together, they create the first—and only—consumer periodical with charisma.

Moneysworth is available by subscription only. Cost of 8 months: ONLY $2.99! This is a MERE FRACTION of the cost of familiar, old-fashioned consumer publications—which, compared to Moneysworth, are boring, ponderous, confusing and nearly unusable. And you get The Cheap Book: The Moneysworth Consumer Encyclopedia ABSOLUTELY FREE!

What's more, we're so confident that Moneysworth and The Consumer Encyclopedia will prove indispensable to you that we offer them with what is probably the most generous money-back guarantee in publishing history: We absolutely and unconditionally guarantee that Moneysworth—in combination with The Cheap Book: The Moneysworth Consumer Encyclopedia—will increase the purchasing power of your income by at least 15% or you get your money back IN FULL. In other words, if you now earn $10,000 a year, we guarantee that Moneysworth and the encyclopedia will increase the value of your income by at least $1,500—or we'll refund your money. Meanwhile, you will have enjoyed 8 months of Moneysworth ABSOLUTELY FREE and you may keep the encyclopedia WITH OUR COMPLIMENTS!! What could be more foolproof?

Keeping Up... With Youth

ISABELLE ADJANI: MOVIES ARE HER LIFE

A New Brigitte Bardot

You will be hearing soon of Isabelle Adjani, 20, daughter of a German mother and a Turkish father.

Isabelle has never had an acting lesson in her life, but the French press insists she is the greatest acting discovery since Brigitte Bardot and Jeanne Moreau.

"Le Figaro" claims: "She is the phenomenon of our generation."

"Paris Match" says: "All of France is in love with her."

Film director François Truffaut declares: "She is the only actress in this business who has made me cry."

Isabelle is currently working in a Truffaut film, "The Story of Adèle H.," in which for $35,000 she plays the 24-year-old daughter of author Victor Hugo. In the film she falls in love with a gambler and dies of insanity at age 43.

Isabelle Adjani a few months ago was offered a 20-year contract by the world-famous Comédie Française. She turned it down to work with Truffaut. "The Comédie Française," she explained, "will always be around. Truffaut will not."

Isabelle, who has performed in films and on stage since she was 14, has been signed to appear opposite Roman Polanski in "The Tenant," which he is also directing for Paramount. She plays a young girl who falls in love with her kidnapper.

Like many young French actresses, Isabelle is reluctant to discuss her private life. "All I will tell you," she says, "is that as yet I have no steady boyfriend. I am complicated, confused, and consumed by ambition."

Rather than spend time dating young men, Isabelle goes alone day after day to the Cinématique in Paris where she endlessly watches old films—sometimes as many as six consecutive ones.

"That," she points out, "is how I learn to act."

Girls Do as Well

Girls make just as good mathematicians as boys. The problem is getting the girls to take math. They think it's unfeminine and will hamper their relationship with boys.

Two University of Wisconsin researchers, Elizabeth Fennema and Julia Sherman, questioned 589 girls and 644 boys in four Madison, Wis., high schools.

They discovered no significant difference in math grades and achievement between boys and girls. What they did discover, however, was that after the second year in high school, the number of girls taking math courses decreased sharply.

The study, commissioned by the National Science Foundation, indicates a feeling among the girls that math is or will be less useful to them than to the boys.

"There seems to be a cultural restriction," explains Julia Sherman, "that is a hangover from earlier days and times that scares girls out of math."

MY FAVORITE jokes

by Ppé ROGERS

EDITOR'S NOTE: Ppé "Rod" Rogers, who is peppy, quick and funny, is also short. "You see I'm a short man," he explains as if you didn't believe it. "When I'm interviewed on a TV show I will inevitably be asked: 'How do you feel about being short?' Well, how would you like to go through life and never see a parade?" Sometimes he'll tell a nightclub audience: "I want to apologize to the ladies for not looking like Gregory Peck. They brought me in here to make the drinks look bigger."

Rogers has appeared in many films and in top nightclubs all over the country (the Coconut Grove, Hollywood; the Flamingo Hotel, Las Vegas; the Doral Hotel, Miami Beach). He played on Broadway in "The Unsinkable Molly Brown" and was the first comedian to entertain the troops in Vietnam.

Here are some of Ppé Rogers' favorite jokes, lines and stories:

My wife invited Uncle Harry over for dinner to taste some of her famous Hungarian goulash. After dinner Uncle Harry said, "Gee, but this was delicious!" Those were his last words.

When I was a little boy I had blond, curly hair down to my shoulders. One day my mother took me to a barber and he cut all my curls off. The next day when I went to school the teacher looked at me surprised. But not half as surprised as the kid sitting next to me. He used to carry my books home.

It isn't that my father was lazy. You see, Dad believed in the Good Book. The Good Book says: "Thou shall not abuse what thou love." Dad loved work and he wouldn't abuse it.

The subject was why are you thankful to Mother Nature. The first pupil said: "My name is Mary, and I'm thankful to Mother Nature for my golden-blond hair and my baby-blue eyes." Then the teacher asked a second child, who said: "My name is Rose, and I'm thankful for my pearly-white teeth and my beautiful complexion." Then the teacher turned to a cross-eyed, pigeon-toed, knock-kneed, toothless boy. She said: "Billie, why are you thankful to Mother Nature?" He said: "I ain't thankful for nothin'; she doggone near ruined me!"

It's great to be crazy. When you are crazy you don't worry. My whole family is happy.

Whenever I go to a drive-in movie I always jack up the rear wheels. My wife likes to sit in the balcony.

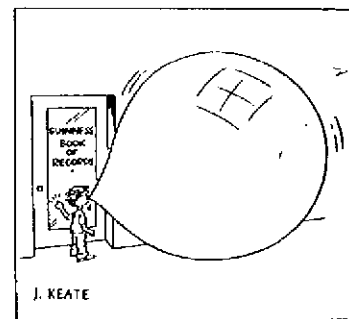

A Texan looking at Niagara Falls was asked, "Have you got anything like that back home?" "No," he replied, "but we've got a plumber who could fix that leak."

It isn't that Dad liked to drink—he had a tapeworm that was a lush.

One day while I was driving, the motor in my car began to act up. I stopped, got out, lifted the hood and started to fix it. Just then a guy came over, jacked the car up and started stealing my tires. I said: "Hey, what's going on here?" He said: "You take what you want, I'll take what I want!"

My teen-age son gives me such trouble that now I stay up nights trying to find a loophole in his birth certificate.

When Telly (Kojak) Savalas drives at night he has to dim his head.

The st a fine

Let us send you, for the token price of only $1 each, three books that have served as cornerstones in many a fine home library.

The complete works of Shakespeare

This beautiful 1300-page volume contains every word Shakespeare ever wrote. All 37 of his plays. All of his comedies, tragedies and historical dramas including Hamlet, Romeo and Juliet, Macbeth, etc. Also all of his poems and sonnets.

The works of Kipling

Actually eight books in one. A complete novel and 139 stories, ballads and verses loved the world over . . . including Fuzzy-Wuzzy, Mandalay, Gunga Din, The Phantom Rickshaw and others.

The works of De Maupassant

128 matchless tales by the greatest master of the short story the world has ever known. Every story complete and unexpurgated. Includes The Diamond Necklace, A Piece of String, The Will.

Each volume is clothed in a handsomely-tooled binding of antique ecru that has both the elegant look and feel of leather, a binding that should last a lifetime.

The page tops of every volume have been gilded. And, as a delightful added touch, each book has a permanently attached page marker of crimson ribbon.

You will enjoy reading these books, just as millions before you have. Your friends will admire them, perhaps even envy you for owning them. And your children will gain a real advantage with books like these always close at hand.

Why do we offer you three books of this calibre for only $1 each?

We simply want to introduce you to our new Golden Giants Series. We think you will be impressed with the books we send you. And we hope you will want to own others in the Series, as they become available. They will include:

Hugo. 36 complete works including Hunchback of Notre Dame, A Woman of the Streets, The Souls, etc.

Stevenson. 39 novels, stories, poems. Treasure Island, Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde, Kidnapped, etc., all complete.

Tolstoi. 27 novels and stories: Anna Karenina, Kreutzer Sonata, The Cossacks, Love and many more.

Ibsen. His daring plays, each absolutely complete, including A Doll's House, Ghosts, Hedda Gabler, etc.

Doyle. All the best of Sherlock Holmes - The Sign of The Four, Red-Headed League, plus other great works.

Poe. 91 tales, poems, essays of this great American writer: Annabel Lee, The Raven, The Gold Bug, Murders in the Rue Morgue, The Black Cat, etc.
